The defeat of the P. C. team by Georgia cast a gloom over the hopes of the Calvinists for the meet with Clemson here Saturday because of the fact that Clemson overwhelmed the Bulldog in a recent meet.

The most sensational race of the meet was the two-mile, in which Majors, of Georgia, defeated Colin Hudson, of P. C. The contest was close from the opening gun. Hudson was [illegible] who exhibited one of his bursts of speed for which he will be remembered from last year, sprinted into the lead and broke the tape some four or five yards ahead of the Hose entry.

Bill Clark, although losing the 880, stepped the 440 in 50.8 seconds, .3 of a second short of his state record time. In the 100-yard dash, Joe Bradley, of P. C., clipped off the distance in 10.1 to place first.

Bill Thompson, high scorer for P. C., got off to a fast start in the 220 low hurdles but fell during the course of the race. Almost before he touched the ground, however, he was up and made a strong comeback to win in 27.6 seconds. Jumping 21 feet in the broad jump, Thompson captured his second first place of the meet.

Presbyterian's fifth first place was contributed by Paul Yearout, who won the 220-yard dash in 23.4. Of the fifteen possible firsts, Georgia captured ten.

Probably the most disappointing event of the meet, considered from the P. C. standpoint, was the mile relay. The Georgia team of Boulware, Adams, Barrow, and Calhoun, broke the tape in the comparatively slow time of 3 minutes, 36.8 seconds to win the distance. The relay defeat may be accounted for, to some extent, by the fact that Clark, ace anchor man, was not used on the final lap.

The summary of the meet is as follows:

100-yard dash: Bradley (P), first; Johnson (G) and Moore (G) tied for second. Time, 10.1.

One-mile run: Cox (G) first; Major (G) second; Adams (P) third. Time, 4:55.7.

Two-mile run: Major (G) first; Hudson (P) second; Charles (P) third. Time, 10:29.1.

120-yard high hurdles: Townes (G) first; Jones (G) second; Guerard (P) third. Time, 15.3. (New University of Georgia record).

220-yard low hurdles: Thompson (P) first; Jones (G) second; Perrin

Successor To Be Elected Tuesday

Five Men Remain In Nomination For Vacant Senior Seat On Governing Body.

On last Wednesday Richard Potter, senior councilman, handed in his resignation to the student council. This action was caused by the ruling that no social fraternity shall have more than two men on the council. The pledging of James Collings, junior councilman and secretary of the student body, raised the number of councilmen on the Beta Kappa roll to three and the result was [illegible] resignation.

This morning nominations were held for a man to fill this vacancy. The council nominated two: G. H. Frady and C. R. Johnson. Four others were [illegible] Wyatt, Lynn Jones, and Allen Guerard. Guerard has withdrawn from the race, leaving five men in it.

On Tuesday morning, April 15, the student body will vote by secret ballot to choose its senior councilman from among these five.

Tiger Track Men Come Saturday

Clemson and P. C. In Dual Meet For Week-end. Relay Expected To Be Feature Event.

The Clemson track team, fresh from the sting of its 3-point defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech last week, will meet the cinder and field squad of Presbyterian college Saturday afternoon on the local track. The Hose also suffered defeat last week at the hands of a Georgia foe, going down before the University team, which was defeated a week before by the Tigers.

Clemson will bring with her Ford, one of the outstanding dash men of the state. Last year Ford was running mate of the famous "Mountain Goat" Lynn in the century and 220 distances. His latest accomplishment this year has been the winning of both distances against Tech last week.

The most thrilling event anticipated for the program is the mile relay. Last year in the dual meet between the two colleges, Clemson gave the Hose relay team its first defeat in the state in seven years; but in the state meet the P. C. quartet captured first place and smashed the state record. With both teams especially pointing for this event, almost anything can happen.

The 220-yard low hurdles should be one of the best races of the afternoon. P. C.'s [illegible] Thompson and Perrin, one a sophomore, the other a senior. Thompson's best time for the flight so far this year has been 26.2. Folger, Tiger low hurdle ace, won the event against Georgia and placed second against Georgia Tech. The winning time in the Tech meet was 25.3. The South Carolina state record is 25.5 seconds.

Thought For the Week

The Joy of Service

[illegible] the causes of unpopularity. Why are some men, apparently of high intelligence and superlative character, so unpopular in the estimation of their fellow men? The consensus of opinion among this group of college students was that the basic reason for unpopularity is selfishness. Truly this is a logical explanation, particularly from the standpoint of Christianity.

The self-centered individual who thinks the world owes him everything and he owes the world nothing [illegible] which to give itself. The professing Christian who is continually seeking inspiration and strength, and [illegible] secret of spiritual power, does not entertain in his [illegible]. Each day we should rejoice in the wonderful privi- [illegible] in an uplifting service for those about us. So long [illegible] the principal aim of our conduct should be to merit finally the most beautiful epitaph ever written: "He went about doing good."

"When Spring Comes Back With Rustling Shade . . . ."

Once again the childhood of the year is here, and [illegible] are throwing away the minor tragedies of life that have been obsessing them and [illegible] the mental garb of quietly riotous thinking. Invariably when the trees begin budding and the green embryoes of summer begin to appear, we turn involuntarily to newly green grass and lazy mother earth.

The whole world is putting on its annual exhibition of awakening life and hope, new even in its millionth repetition, and we are young enough to passively enjoy it. Laboratory work becomes a drudgery, study an impossibility, and extra-curricular activity takes on an air of unexplainable content.

A joyous listlessness fills us all. We are lazy with a pleasing langnor. Whatever we do, we go about with slow, pleasant indifference.

This is the period of the year when school work mounts up in larger proportions than any other. Term papers in astounding magniutde, parallel reading that must be done, professors, seemingly unaffected by the green of spring, rushing to complete courses that have, in the presence of vibrant youth, paled into dull and dim obscurity—all of these should add to our worries. They don't, we go on gleefully unaware of them.

But, how true is the paraphrase of Shelley's lines on spring; "Oh, trees, if spring doth come, can work be far behind!"

Harken to me, ye fellow procrastinator in Spring's behalf, the day of judgment is even now at hand; already the bells of coming exams are sounding dimly in our ears. The end and labor is inevitable.

But even that can not detract from the sheer, exhuberant happiness of the earth's rebirth.

WITH THE GREEKS

AMONG THE GREEKS

Another Pan-Hellenic council member newly elected is Phil Adams, representing Pi Kappa Alpha on the August body. Adams is a native of Dublin, Ga., is a member of Blue Key, and has been named basketball captain for next year.

Another item of news from this fraternity is that Joe Patrick, of Covington, Ga., has just been made a pledge. The new addition to this group is outstanding in journalistic circles, being managing editor of the Blue Stocking.

Beta Kappa fraternity swells its membership list by three with the pledging of Jim Collings, of Atlanta, Ga.; Dalton Mann, and Carl Johnson, both of Chester. Collings is especially outstanding on the campus, in his capacity as secretary-treasurer of the student body, and a football letter man.

Five K. A. boys, and their dates enjoyed a house party last week-end near Pickens. Dan Morrison had as his date Miss May Powell, of Hartsville; Tom Valley, Miss Mary Howze Dillard, P. C. co-ed; George Dunlap, Miss Beverly Davis, young lady of Clinton; Allison Walters, Miss Mamie Bryant, Orangeburg; and Julian Bolick, K. A., and former student here, escorted Miss Margaret Moorhead of Goldville. The chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thatcher of Greenville.

THE PARADE GROUND

Coach Young's charges are seeing very much action lately, for on Monday the rifle team met Wofford on the local outdoor range and won by the large margin of 89 points, and on Thursday the team journeyed to Clemson to participate in the State meet. Two meets in one week is rather unusual for any of our teams in any sport. However, it would undoubtedly be to the advantage of the rifle team to compete every day.

Thursday officially ushered in the spring in the military department, for on that day, coats were discarded for the first time this year. Unfortunately, however, the weather reverted back to its frosty atmosphere of winter, and shivering was quite popular among the cadets on the opening day of the new season. At any rate, we prophesy sore shoulders by the score in the next few days—the weather permitting outside drill—for the rifles are rather uncomfortable without the coat, and it is surprising as to how quickly the trigger guard will literally eat its way in to the hollow of the shoulder.

Remember that the grades made at inspection will count 90½ on the semester grade in military science. This is an excellent ruling for the military minded, but for those who are pacifists, it is just another unfortunate catastrophe. Captain Blanton has even promised the Sophomores that their grades on the inspection may be substituted entirely for the semester grade, but if the inspection grade is low—as many undoubtedly will be—then the regular grade will play the important part.

Now that winter is over and drill is getting harder, complaints are falling thick and fast—complaints against everything that even hints at being soldierly. If those who are so prone to criticize their lots and bemoan their fates would read a daily newspaper and see how much nearer the world gets to another war a [illegible] es, it is quite possible that [illegible] manners would be ex[illegible] for the training which [illegible] ceiving here. They may ha[illegible] chance to be thankful before [illegible] training is even complete [illegible] knows?

Citadel Men Take 5-2 Decision In Charleston. Seminary Contests Remain Unfinished.

The Presbyterian college tennis team lost to the accomplished and expert netmen of The Citadel by the rather one-sided score of 5 to 2 at Charleston Saturday.

For the Calvinists, the work of Captain Chalmers McCutchen and of Francis Gregg was the chief redeeming feature. McCutchen defeated Holiday, 6-3, 6-0, to easily win his match. Greg found a little more trouble with Citadel's Robinson, but came out on the long end of a 6-4, 2-6, 7-5 score.

In the doubles, P. C.'s main bid for victory came in the struggle between Dibble and Dial, of The Citadel, and Levi and McCutchen, of P. C. The first set ended with P. C. holding the upper hand at 3-6. Then, in spite of the peculiar rhyming of the two names, Dibble and Dial spurted to a 6-1, 6-3 win.

Earlier in the week, in a match with Columbia seminary on Friday, Presbyterian was leading 2 to 1 on the local courts when play was called off on account of the condition of the courts. Talmadge, of Columbia, had defeated Levi, P. C., and McCutchen, P. C., had defeated E. Gregg, Columbia. In the doubles match, Van Sant and Gregg, P. C., defeated Nelson and McInnes, Columbia.

Summary of The Citadel matches:

Singles: Dibble (Citadel) defeated Levi (P. C.) 6-3, 6-4; McCutchen (P. C.) defeated Holiday (Citadel) 6-3, 6-0; Gregg (P. C.) defeated Robinson (Citadel) 6-4, 2-6, 7-5; Dial (Citadel) defeated Parham (P. C.) 6-4, 6-3; Logan (Citadel) defeated Van Sant (P. C.) 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles: Dibble and Dial (Citadel) defeated Levi and McCutchen (P. C.) 3-6, 6-1, 6-3; Robinson and Holiday (Citadel) defeated Gregg and Parham (P. C.) 7-5, 6-4.

Hornets Sting In One-sided Game

Furman Jumps On Three P. C. Pitchers for 20 Runs. P. C. Gets Nine Hits, Four Runs.

Furman's Hornets took advantage of pitching and loose fielding to register a one-sided 20 to 4 win over P. C.'s Blue Hosemen in the latter's intercollegiate start last Monday on the P. C. diamond.

Suggs granted eight walks and four hits before giving way to Mullinax, in the fourth. A neatly-executed double play pulled him out of a bad hole, but a barrage of hits in the fifth sent him to the showers. Wilson went the rest of the way for the Calvinists, but was touched for twelve hits. Williams went the whole route for the Purple Hurricane, yielding nine hits. Coach Galloway's charges committed eighteen errors during the afternoon. Bolick, Millsap, and Horne, each secured a pair of hits for the Hosemen while practically all of Furman's players secured hits with Burrell, right fielder, leading the assault with four out of six trips to the plate.

The P. C. performance was on the whole disappointing, but the hitting showed possibilities of improved batting strength before the season ends. "Goof" Holliday, ace hurler, was unable to do mound duty due to a sore arm. The batteries and scores by innings follow:

Furman	120	460	232	—20
P. C.	100	200	001	— 4

Batteries: Furman, Williams and Langston; P. C., Suggs, Mullinax and Wilson; Bolick.

Nocturnal Play

First a probability and now an assured project, night football has several distinct advantages over afternoon play—with financial enrichment leading the list. Another feature, and one that hasn't been mentioned yet, is the elimination of the "sun-sections" of the field, which will add greatly to the comfort of both spectators and players. With the completion of this project, Presbyterian College athletics will enjoy the patronage of practically all sections of the state—providing other palmetto schools don't follow in our footsteps.

Swan Song

When the scholastic routine is resumed next September, several of P. C.'s brightest stars of gridiron, court, track, ring and diamond, will be absent. Their collegiate careers almost finished, the following well-known satellites are preparing to sing their swan song: Clark, Bolick, Boggs, Perrin, Seagle, Yearout, McCaskill, Tisdale, and Holcomb.

For The Love of Money

Preston Charles, the "Little Napoleon," was warming up in preparation for the two-mile run against Carolina's representatives at the meet in Columbia last Saturday, when accosted by "Joe E. Brown" (John Chapman). Said Joe E.: "I'll pay you the $2 I owe you if you place." Said Charles: "All right." The race began, with Charles running fourth. After six laps he was still fourth. At the conclusion of the seventh lap, and still stuck in fourth place, Charles' attention was attracted to the sidelines, where stood the excited Joe E., waving the $2 over his head. Upon seeing the attractive pair of frog skins, the Little Napoleon took on a new lease and quickly stepped ahead of his nearest rival to cinch third place. Said a bystander, after the race: "Congratulations—but what caused you to make that swell finish?" Said Charles: "That highly-touted P. C. Spirit."

Local Rifle Team Defeats Wofford

New Range Is Dedicated With 89-Point Victory. Upshur Gets High Position In Scoring.

The new rifle range which Capt. Wysor and the F. E. R. A. have built for the college on the corner of Young Field was dedicated with volleys of well-aimed fire Monday afternoon when the wofford ten-man team was defeated by eighty-nine points.

The outdoor range provided places for ten marksmen to be in position at a time, and the entire match with over five hundred shots was fired in an hour and ten minutes, just a third of the time required for a fast indoor meet.

Sergeant Young's team won a margin in all four positions, and as usual Upshur cracked out the top score.

Scores were as follows.

Clemson Back In College League

Returns To Loop After Withdrawing On Account of Conflicts In Schedule.

On last Thursday at a meeting of the coaches of the Palmetto College Baseball league, Clemson formally re-entered the loop. Arrangements were made in the schedules of the other schools of the state to enable Clemson to complete its out-of-state list while it played fourteen state loop games. The major changes came in the Carolina schedule, though practically every member of the loop was forced to make minor changes.

Tank Contests To Begin Tomorrow

The long awaited and frequently postponed intramural swimming contests will begin tomorrow night at 7:30 in the local pool. The events will be continued on either Thursday afternoon or night.

George Dunlap, placed in charge of the Blue Key swimming program, has announced a series of events which will test the strength of every team entered by a fraternity or dormitory. Plans are that there will be eight events, several of which will probably be altered later.

HISTORY CLASS VISITS LOWER PART OF STATE

There was also the tomb of Nathalie DeLage, French daughter-in-law of the General, which had been the tiny private Catholic chapel in which she had worshipped.

After stopping at the site of the battle of Eutaw Springs . . . Ben Legare escaping by the skin of his teeth a ducking after a characteristic quick gallop down the hill to the springs . . . and crossing the meager creek-like reminiscence of the once important Santee canal, the party stopped at Belle Isle plantation, once owned by Gabriel, the brother of General Francis Marion. Securing an ancient darky (Joesy Benekin, suh!) to unlock the gate on the promise of two bits, it visited the grave of the Swamp Fox, who died in 1795.

The next stop was Mepkin plantation, the estate of Henry Laurens, diplomat, president of the Continental Congress, once imprisoned in the Tower of London, but exchanged for Lord Cornwallis at the close of the Revolution. Down a mile-long avenue of unearthly beauty, lined by immense live oaks shrouded with grey moss, to a modern plantation home now owned by Mrs. Rutgers of Brunswick, N. J., the party drove. On the banks of the Cooper river, looking out over a broad vista of ex-rice flats and water, Mepkin plantation was the most impressive point visited with the possible exception of Magnolia gardens at which one car stopped.

Once in Charleston, the party broke up. At one time or other the various groups visited such points of interest as St. Michael's and St. Ph churches, the old and only Frenc guenot church in America, th slave market, the Manigault h the battery, navy yards, the C of Charleston and innumerable places hoary with age and redole a thousand memories . . . as the doned skeleton of the Planters' tabulated as "a merry place it w the days of yore."

South Carolina has a new mea and value to the adventurers . pecially since Dr. Jones has prom to allow an account of the trip substituted for a term paper. bers are hereby warned that write-up is private property!

Tigers Amass Twelve First Places To Smother Presbyterians Under 97½ to 32½ Defeat. Illness and Injury of Local Team Members Responsible For Poor Showing.

The ghost of the Presbyterian varsity track team, laden with sickness and crippled with injuries, went down in crushing defeat, 97½ to 32½, to the trackmen of Clemson college here Saturday.

P. C. took only three of the fifteen first places, while Clemson amassed her score with the remaining twelve. Clark, in the 440, Thompson, in the broad jump, and Williams, in the discus throw, took first honors for the Hose. Ford, Clemson dash man, was high scorer for the meet with 12¼ points.

Clark, Yearout, and Perrin, who had just returned from a trip to Alabama, were unable to turn in their usual performances. Colin Hudson, ace two-miler, was out with a pulled ligament. Frank Carothers, pole vaulter, was in an Athens, Ga., hospital recovering from an appendicitis operation; and Bill Thompson was unable to run the low hurdles because of a leg injury. Such is the roster of Blue Hose casualties.

Ford, Clemson, won the 100-yard dash in the excellent time of 9.9 seconds to defeat Bradley, Presbyterian's only entry, and then duplicated in the 220 with a time of 22.6 seconds. The state record for the 220 distance is 21.9 seconds.

Folger, sensational Clemson low hurdler, covered the flight in 25.8 seconds, a bare three-tenths of a second above the state record.

Going down in defeat for the second time in the state in seven years, the P. C. relay team came in far behind the Clemson quartet. Saturday's team, composed of Winget, who usually runs number two, Guerard, high hurdler, McInnes, miler, and Jacobs, weight man, was hopelessly outclassed. Three of the four men had never before run in a varsity relay.

Summary of the meet:

100-yard dash: Ford (Clemson); Bradley (P. C.); Tribble (Clemson). Time, 9.9 seconds.

220-yard dash: Ford (Clemson); Bradley (P. C.); Yearout (P. C.) Time, 22.6 seconds.

880-yard run: Green (Clemson); Scott (Clemson); Forehand (P. C.) Time, 2 minutes, 2 seconds.

Upshur To Lead '35-'36 Rifle Team

On last Wednesday Presbyterian College's state champion ten-man rifle team elected T. T. Upshur to lead it in the 1935-36 season.

This will be Upshur's third year on the team. This year he was high scorer for the group, his highest being 188 out of a possible two hundred. He is a member of the Junior class, a sergeant in R. O. T. C., drum-major in the band, a member of the glee club, and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, social fraternity.

The team this year loses but three men by graduation: James Jeanes, C. B. Elliott, and Frank Carothers.

New Books Added To Library Shelves

Willard Jones, Presbyterian College librarian, announces that a book that should have wide general interest has been added to the library. This book is "Adventure," by Carveth Wells, noted traveler, explorer and author of of that best seller of several years ago, "Six Years in the Malay Jungle."

Mr. Jones also says that a three volume history of South Carolina by D. D. Wallace of Wofford College has recently been added to the collection of South Carolinians. This is the only complete and definitive history of this state that has yet been written. Says Librarian Jones: "This book does for South Carolina's entire history what McCrary's book does up to 1783."

Forehand Elected Council Head

At its first meeting Wednesday night, the Pan-Hellenic council for the coming year elected Roy Forehand, Beta Kappa representative and vice-president of the council going out, president of this inter-fraternity organization for the year 1935-36.

Forehand has been prominent in social activities of the campus during his three years here, and his service on the council for one year already fits him well for the duties his office will require.

Besides this honor, Roy is vice-president of the present student council, is a letter man in football, basketball, track and baseball; is manager of the college Glee Club; and holds a position as 1st. Sergeant in the R. O. T. C. department.

At this same meeting in which the new council met in conjunction with the old council Allison Walter, Kappa Alpha representative, was elected vice-president of the new body; and Phil Adams, Pi Kappa Alpha's new man, was named secretary and treasurer. Other members of the new council are: Frank Holliday from Pi Kappa Phi, Stuart Campbell, from Alpha Kappa Pi, and Tom Plaxico from Alpha Lambda Tau.

The old council of which George Dunlap, Kappa Alpha, was head, is to be congratulated on the very fine way in which it has conducted the social activities of our campus for the past year; and it is hoped the new council will be equally successful.

Y. M. C. A. Group Hears Swedenberg

Prof. H. T. Swedenberg, assistant in the English department of Presbyterian college, gave an interesting discussion on the subject, "England," at the weekly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last Thursday night. This was the first of a series of personal experience talks and was accorded both entertaining and enlightening. The speaker briefly outlined his travels in England, relating with emphasis the incidents of most striking circumstance.

Prof. Swedenberg told of his arrival at Plymouth and his trip from there to London. After a six day ocean voyage, on a sea similar to a mill pond, he arrived on foreign soil. He and his traveling companion then started on their brief trip which was to prove them to be indeed "innocents abroad." They found no trouble with the customs officials—as they had nothing with which the officers would bother. The "innocents" proceeded to travel to London by bus. This mode, although unsatisfactory, was used until it was abandoned in favor of train at Salisbury. Finally, the two reached their destination and were initiated by having their luggage dumped in a pile with that of all the other passengers. This trip was told brilliantly and sprinkled generously with bits of humorous and realistic anecdotes.

The work of the mission then began. Three months of daily research was done in the British museum, in which the visitors had access to about five or six million volumes. This work took practically all of their day time, but as no work was permitted in the library after 5:45 p. m., there was time for night activities aside from study. As a result, John Gay's poem, "Art of Walking the Streets of England," became, in a very real sense, their inspiration. The two enjoyed this sightseeing amusement, however, and always adhered closely to their self-coined motto, "Poverty is very conducive to sobriety."

Prof. Swedenberg enumerated some of the seemingly peculiar customs of the English people. He told of their queer habits connected with going to the theatre—particularly their strict honesty toward their fellowman in conection with places in line, seats, opera glasses, etc. The remarkable attitude they have toward laws was mentioned. He said something of the peculiar law or custom that no one could buy either cigarettes or chewing candy in London after 9:00 p. m. Another of the peculiar ways of the English which was regarded was their

Finals Sermon By Dr. C. Darby Fulton

Presbyterian Graduate To Deliver Baccalaureate Address On Sunday, May 26.

The Administration has recently announced that Dr. C. Darby Fulton will preach the baccalaureate sermon for the 1935 class of Presbyterian College at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning, May 26.

Dr. Fulton is an alumnus of P. C., coming here from Kobe, Japan, where he was born in 1892 to S. P. Fulton, a member of the class of '84 and a missionary to Japan. He graduated here in the class of 1911, and took his M. A. from the University of South Carolina in 1914. He received the degree of B. D. from Columbia Theological Seminary the next year, and the year following Princeton gave him the degree of S. T. B. In 1924 his alma mater bestowed the D. D. upon him.

From 1917-1925 he was a missionary to Japan and for the six years following he was field secretary of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church of the United States. After a year as field and candidate secretary, he was, in 1932, made executive secretary for this organization, an office which he still holds.

He is married to Nannie Paul Ravenel of Spartanburg, and makes his home in Nashville, Tenn.

Dick Accepts To Raleigh Church

Episcopal Minister, Graduate of P. C., To Go To North Carolina Pastorate From Virginia.

The Rev. James McDowell Dick, rector of Christ Church at Pulaski, Va., and alumnus of Presbyterian college, has recently accepted a call to succeed the late Rev. Theodore Patrick, Jr., as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd at Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. Dick, who is nearing his thirty-sixth birthday, received his early education in the Sumter schools and got his A. B. from Presbyterian college, graduating in the class of 1922. He worked for a year in the mission fields of the Diocese of West Virginia and entered upon his ministerial training at the theological seminary at Sewannee, from which he received his B. D. degree in the summer of 1926. By rapid advancement he rose to the position of rector of Christ Church at Pulaski, Va., from which position he goes to Raleigh.

Said a Raleigh paper in commenting on his acceptance of the call: "The new rector comes to Raleigh with a record of vigorous and effective service in the ministry, especially in his Pulaski charge, which grew steadily in numbers and influence under his direction. The vestry of the Raleigh church was profoundly impressed by the personal qualities of Mr. Dick as well as his clerical service, and regards him as well fitted to carry on the work of the parish."

LOCAL ORCHESTRA RAPIDLY MAKING NAME FOR ITSELF

A tall figure standing before an orchestra energetically swinging a baton, a red face carelessly blowing alternately hot and cold rythm from a horn, "Shorty" McDonald has definitely made a name for himself and his orchestra in one brief year at Presbyterian college.

He has organized an orchestra that has most emphatically had the stamp of approval placed upon it by the student body of this institution. It is a nine piece aggregation, with Dalton Mann alternating with McDonald on first sax to form the tenth man. The personnel is: first trumpet, Robert Lake Clark; second trumpet, and vocalist, Harris Gray; trombone, Paul Harmon; first sax, Dalton Mann; second, William Clark; third, "Baby Ray" Shoemaker; piano, Woodrow Tisdale; drums, M. K. McIntosh; bass, Furman Wallace.

This group has played at the Annual Military Ball at P. C., and for four fraternity dances: Blue Key, Pi Kappa Phi, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Kappa Alpha. In addition to these college festivities he has played several out-of-town dances and on several glee club tours. On the past Friday night they played at the Mary Musgrove Tea Room for a dinner dance.

The organization has received an enthusiastic and emphatic approval every time they have made a public appearance And two novelty numbers, "Mama," and "Old King Cole" have never failed to stop the dance. Their followers have definite favorites: if they like hot music, its "White Heat" or "Business in F," if they're romantically inclined it's usually "I Love You Truly." The orchestra refuses to comment itself, though it is my personal belief that they'd like to consider themselves as rather hot boys.

Henry Calvert was recently made manager and is driving away at the business and advertising side. Yes, the boys have progressed that far now! He is endeavoring to secure a summer engagement so that the people will not have to be disappointed.

Those who, and a chance to "Doc" McDonald and His Orchestra." They're not the Calvanistic institution on the map exclusively speaking.

STUDENT BODY TO CHOOSE SENIOR COUNCILMAN TUESDAY

Election Scheduled To Select One Member To Governing Body From Four Nominated Last Week. Cranford Withdraws.

Tomorrow morning the student body of Presbyterian college chooses the senior councilman to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Richard Potter. The men running for the office are: George H. Cody, J. K. Wyatt, Cliff Johnson, and Lynn Jones.

H. D. Cranford, who had been nominated formally withdrew from the race last Wednesday morning.

James McClary, president of the student body, has expressed the hope that every man in school will vote tomorrow.

Calvert Named To Head I.R.C.

Four Vacant Places To Be Filled By Winners In Competitive Test On Current Affairs.

Henry W. Calvert, prominent junior debater, from Greenwood, was picked to head the International Relations club next year at its business meeting last week, succeeding Hugh Holman, who will continue as an active member of the club.

Other officers elected at that time were E. R. Andrews, brilliant all-round student, as vice-president, and as secretary-treasurer, Charles Steenbergen, rising junior who last year won the Pi Kappa Phi scholarship cup.

Further action of the club was to open four places in the club which will be vacated by seniors to winners of a current affairs contest. Dean M. W. Brown will give the test, covering the everyday news in the papers and Time magazine, so that everyone in the student body has a chance to win a place in the honorary society.

The group opened its fifth place to a former I. R. C. man, Paul Van Sant, who was president of his junior college club, and has been a good student as well as a player of the international game of tennis since transferring to P. C.

Students Contribute To Lighting Fund

Doyle Boggs Heads Committee On Campus, and Is Meeting With Nice Response.

The campus campaign to raise the $200 quota set for the student body, in the drive for funds to pay for the erection of the lighting and amplifying system for Johnson field, is progressing nicely.

The student committee appointed by James McClary, president of the student body, and headed by Doyle Boggs, is attempting to see each man individually. Realizing that money is somewhat of an oddity and a curiosity on the campus, the committee is asking each man interviewed to donate a certain amount of his breakage deposit to the project.

The drive has not, as yet, gone far enough to determine its outcome. Most of the men approached have gladly assented to the proposition. A few have, of course, refused, but on the whole the response has been excellent.

While the student body drive is under way, the alumni association is also endeavoring to enlist support. It is anticipated that dances and other forms of entertainment will be held in nearby cities by alumni and the proceeds added to the growing fund.

Now that erection of the poles is actually taking place, the dubious should be appeased and the campaign brought to a rapid conclusion.

Scholastic Group At Festal Board

Sigma Kappa Alpha Honors Students On Dean's List. Judge Gaston Is Speaker.

With all members of the student body who had recently been named on the honor list of the school in attendance, and with Judge A. L. Gaston, of Chester, as after-dinner speaker, the faculty and members of Sigma Kappa Alpha, local honorary scholastic fraternity, sponsored the annual banquet for this group in the college dining hall Friday evening.

An excellent repast was served to the fifty or more present, after which Judge Gaston spoke to the group about the American Constitution. He pointed out the fundamentals on which our nation was founded and urged the college youth represented there to realize the heritage that their forefathers have passed down to them, so that in this time when a greater opportunity for service than ever before in the history of the country is open to young people, the generation coming up today would take this opportunity and render an account of itself equal to that of the writers of the Constitution, and cause the nation to continue to grow and continue to be the greatest nation on the earth.

Dr. John McSween, president of the college, presided, and Dr. F. D. Jones, a class-mate and friend of Judge Gaston, introduced the speaker.

For the first time, the year all men and women of the student body who had attained a relation of quality points to semester hours of 2.5 were invited to this affair. Formerly only members of Sigma Kappa Alpha and five members of the freshman and sophomore classes who were extended complimentary bids, were invited; but in order to stimulate interest in a high type of scholastic work the new plan was initiated.

Thought For the Week

The Living Companion

A Christian and a Mohammedan one day were discussing the relative merits and truths of their respective creeds. "I am positive," said the Mohammedan, "that the founder of my religion was a real man who actually lived at one time here in the world. For definite proof, I can take you to Mecca and show you the very tomb of the Prophet. Certainly you do not present such an evidence of the reality of your Jesus." "To be sure, I do not," replied the Christian with a beam of satisfaction; "because my religion is established upon a living Christ, not a dead man."

Indeed, this fact is one of the most remarkable characteristics of the faith to which we have pledged allegiance. The Christ to whom we owe reverent devotion today is not a departed saint or a dead martyr, gone forever from this earth. Rather, He is the magnanimous Christ who sacrificed His human life to die on the Cross that we might be saved from our sins. He is the all-powerful Christ who rose triumphantly from the grave and at length ascended gloriously into Heaven. He is the eternal Christ whose Spirit dwells divinely now and forevermore in every sincerely receptive heart. At this Easter season, when all resurrected nature is bursting forth in freshness of verdant beauty, the Living Christ seems a more impressive reality than ever before during the year. May His Spirit reign supreme and manifest itself daily in every consecrated life on this campus.

What Do You Read?

Someone once said that he pitied the man who had never read a book. We would agree with him, for such a man is in a deplorable state. He has missed some of the greatest treasures possible to attain—the golden thoughts of the ages stored in their vaults—books. But yet this man possibly could have an excuse. After all, there are those who cannot read.

We would point out to you a man more to be pitied than any other. That man is the one who never reads a book or any literature worth reading. That man is the one who yields so often to the revels of liscentious composition, that he becomes entangled as a fly in spider's web. Incipiently his mind is vitiated and finally his whole being becomes so poisoned that his aspirations to and enjoyment of the higher arts becomes impossible. All other than the lure of the erotic and exhorbitant is repelent.

The man in the gutter is always to be pitied and even sometimes despised for his frivolous immoderateness and invertebrateness. But how much more despicable and pitiable is the man whose mind is reveling in the gutter. The man may be picked up from its low place, but the mind is a hard thing to reach and even harder is the soul found there.

The apples of Eden are luscious and alluring but how sick and diseased they can make one when tasted too often.

The American Mercury Crashes Through

The American Mercury is to be highly congratulated. In an age when men are remembering with a feeling of pleasant remorse the Menckenian iconoclasm of their youth, this organ of individualist skepticism continues to plod bitterly its chosen way.

This fact is demonstrated full well by a letter that I received yesterday announcing an essay contest for undergraduates in American Colleges. It seems that the Mercury will pay the author five hundred dollars for the best essay submitted on the very intriguing topic: "The Professors Got the Country into This Mess: But We Can Get It out." Well, Well, Well!

But the Mercury, with evident feelings of great kindness toward me, explained just what they meant in the true manner of their High Priest. Their explanation was, to say the least, interesting, and were it not for the fact that "H. L." is entirely too essential a figure in our intellectual life, I would say amusing.

Their first "interesting" statement is: "No sane man will deny the truth of the first part of the above statement (referring to the topic)—Washington, D. C., is today overrun with recently unemployed professors now embedded in the government payrolls." Of course we could point to the case of Harvard who has declared that F.D.R. can have no more of her best Ph. D.'s, but that would be disputing the Mercury, and that would be blasphemy, and you are damned for blasphemy! A few sentences after this sage remark the writer brings forth some true originality: "It is about time that the youth of the nation had something to say in the regulation of our affairs. The powers of government have been for too long in the palsied fingers of greybeards." And their plan of youthful government says that no one can assume office before he is eighteen or hold it after he is forty. As Mr. Pitkin would say, "What, stop governing just when life begins?"

Then a question is propounded: "Who can deny but that the senior class at Harvard would import itself with more dignity in the Senate than the present incumbents?" Well, only the college student would authoritatively answer that question, and his answer would be inclined to be biased, so I move that be struck off the records.

In stating the rules of the contest the editor rules out graduate students on the grounds that they are "embryo professors," and further laments the fact that the dollars paid as the prize "will be actually worth only fifty-eight cents apiece—but there again the professors are to blame." Now that is an original viewpoint. In my ignorance, I'd been blaming F. D. R.

My heart fills up with joy when I read such letters and realize that the intellectual iconoclasts are still interested in saving us from this terrible mess. The only bad aspect of the affair is that the great minds of the nation must call on us college students for aid after expressing for ten years their disgust with our minds, morals, methods, bodies, education, credulance and ability.

NOTES AND SHADES

MOVIES

Monday and Tuesday—Shirley Temple and Lionel Barrymore in "The Little Colonel." All you Shirley Temple fans—here she is, as you like her. In the quaintest costumes, and cuter than ever. Lionel Barrymore is good as the testy old Colonel grandpa. Evelyn Venable and John Lodge are nice parents for the little Colonel. But it is good old Bill Robinson, ebony face gleaming, who patters away soft-shoe with this Fox picture.

Wednesday—"Traveling Saleslady," with Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell. No review available.

Thursday—Jack Holt in "Best Man Wins," with Jack Holt, Edmund Lowe and Florence Rice for its romantic triangle, underseas adventures for its excitement, and Bela Lugosi its ever-menacing villian, this film holds your interest. As deep-sea divers, Holt and Lowe engage in some thrilling scenes, well acted and skillfully photographed. It's good enough entertainment for those who like stories about brave men engaged in thrilling adventures. Top support by Forrester Harvey and J. Farrell McDonald in this Columbia production.

Friday—"Devil Dogs of the Air"—with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien. No review available.

Saturday—"Red Hot Tires."—Of a seasoned vintage and reminiscent of the old Wallace Reid racing dramas, this is strictly program fare. If you care for automobile racing, there is plenty of it, and harrowing crack-ups galore. A murder trial is mixed in for good measure. Lyle Talbot is the hit-'em-hard guy and racing driver accused of butting the heavy off the track, but Mary Astor and Frankie Darro save the day. Roscoe Karns is Lyle's buddy, and Gavin Gordon is the bad boy in this First National film.

WITH THE GREEKS

Kappa Alpha social fraternity named Allison Walter president of the group at its last meeting. The new head man resides at Orangeburg. He will officiate for the entire coming year.

Another Pan-Hellenic council member went into office as Phi Alpha Lambda Tau elected Tom Plaxico, of Sharon. The new member of this inter-fraternity group is a prominent Y cabinet member, King Scouting man, and is editor-in-chief of the 1936 Pan-Sac.

BOOK REVIEW

By Stuart Campbell

"OF TIME AND THE RIVER" — By Thomas Wolfe

In "Of Time and The River," Thomas Wolfe continues the life of the auto-biographical charcter, Eugene Gant. This novel, the second of six, takes up the thread of Eugene's life where "Look Homeward Angel," left off, taking him through the years 1920-1925.

The plot is inconsequential. Eugene leaves his home town, Altamont (a thin disguise for Asheville) to go to Harvard. There he enrolls in a drama course, meets Starwick, Middle Western esthete, and Gant's one good friend, and opens his mind to beauty, etc. He returns home where he becomes more dissatisfied. In desperation he goes to New York and accepts a position as an instructor at New York University. Still seeking new scenes to satiafy his devouring Faustian hunger, Gant goes first to England where he stays several months. Disappointed he goes to Paris, meets Starwick again, spends two months in a mad whirl with him and two American girls, falls in love with one, but finds she loves Starwick. This with the strange behavior of Starwick and a denizen of Montmartre, causes Eugene to leave the others after a quarrel. He travels in France for a time, becomes more and more notalgic, and boards a boat bound for home.

"Of Time and The River" is a collection of apotrophes, elegies, caricatures, and few ideas. The whole is bound together by the theme "Why is it we have crossed the stormy seas so many times alone, lain in a thousand alien rooms at night hearing the sounds of time, dark time, and thought until heart, brain, flesh, and spirit were sick and weary with it: 'Where shall I go now? What shall I do?' ". This theme is repeated again and again in various guises throughout the book but Wolfe doesn't give any answer. He says "We are so lost, so lonely, so forsaken in America, so immense and savage skies bend over us and we have no door," but doesn't tell us why. We are dazzled by storms of poetic eloquence unlike any written by an American author for generations. Much is an empty rush of words utterly devoid of meaning.

One gets lost in the bewildering maze of characters, Hudson river millionaires, young college boys of corn liquor variety, English-Frenchmen, inhabitants of Altamont's East Side, Jews, and the skillfully portrayed Gants and Pentlands. There are too many figures perhaps but they all are real, alive and forceful. No fault may be found with the central character, Eugene Gant. It is difficult to imagine a youth of two who "loved life so dearly that he was driven mad by the thirst and hunger which he felt for it." One wonders if perhaps too much of the Wolfe-thirty has not entered into this portrait of the Wolfe of twenty.

"Of Time and The River" is at once a novel, an epic, a diatribe and a hymn of impassioned poetry. It tells of the mighty story "of wandering fever and the earth again" with a depth and force scarcely matched in American literature. The powerful emotion recurs time after time: "When we then come from a fatal stock and for what? To cry out our love in the wilderness, to wake always in the night, smiting the pillow in some foreign land, thinking forever of these myriad sights and sounds of home." The scope of this book is so wide, the author has tried to cram the whole universe into one novel, that it can only be viewed from a distance. The contribution of Thomas Wolfe to American literature is yet to be determined. One thing is certain however. Time and The River" is a landmark in the history of American prose regardless of what may follow it.

THE PARADE GROUND

The seniors are now turning their thoughts toward graduation, and are looking forward to the day when they will be reserve officers in Uncle Sam's army. This year, the commissions will be presented to the graduating class by Colonel Thomas S. Moorman, P. M. S. & T. at Clemson. Colonel Moorman is a graduate of Clemson, class of '96, and is a native South Carolinian, having been born and raised in Newberry, S. C. It may be that some of the P. C. graduates will return to their Alma Mater in the future as P. M. S. & T.—if a Clemson man can do it, there should be no doubt about a P. C. man.

After inspection, the sophomores will be given an opportunity to command the companies. Of course, the companies will not be composed of freshmen and the advanced corps too. Only the freshmen will have to endure the torture and misery of being dictated to by sophomores. Still, there may be some Napoleons among us, and if so, why not in the sophomore class? There was a time when even the P. M. S. & T. was a sophomore, maybe, so there is at least a mark for all to fire at—a mark that is worthy of a little consideration anyhow.

We have it that the Assistant P. M. S. & T. has spent four hours of his indispensable time scrubbing and polishing his latest toy—the Oldsmobile. We also have it that the same gentleman has solemnly stated, declared and affirmed that never more will he devote his efforts to such menial tasks—especially in view of the fact that local mud puddles and rain showers seem to have no respect for his beautiful accomplishments. However, anyone wishing to behold a jewel in the shape of an automobile should look at once at the Assistant P. M. S. & T.'s car—such a chance may never present itself again.

Breezes from the armory tell us that the rifle team has elected its captain for the coming year, and that the honor has gone to T. Upshur, lanky Rameo from the lower part of the state. The same winds bring the information that several more rifle matches are scheduled after inspection. Since the rifle team has won the state championship, it had better retire and enjoy the fruits of victory, for 'twould be a shame indeed for the state champs to suffer defeat. Sarge, as optimistic as ever, predicts that only victory can possibly come to his boys, so we hope that he is right!

On Saturday, April 6, the United States of America celebrated April Fool Day—at least there were supposed to be celebrations. How many on the campus were aware that we had an Army Day? Also, how many knew the significance of April 6 as regards military affairs? Of course, there are dreadful things in more ways than one, but this is one that every citizen of this country should know with the customary dread of forgetfulness even entering his mind.

The Company Commanders, during the past week, have been puzzling over how to execute certain movements in restricted areas. It would behoove the basics to know something of the problems that have confronted the senior officers. Following is a list of the things that a company commander should be able to do with his company in a restricted area by giving the correct commands. What are they?

Company in line:
1. Form in mass.
2. Form line of platoons to flank.
3. Change direction.
4. Form close column to a flank.
5. Change direction.
6. Form line to the front.
7. Simple, isn't it?

Track Team Faces Wofford, Furman

Dual Meet In Spartanburg Wednesday and On Local Field Saturday Afternoon.

Smarting from the bite of the Clemson calamity, the track aggregation faces its hardest week of the season, if the number of meets is used as the standard.

Wednesday, Wofford entertains both varsity and freshman outfits at Spartanburg. The Terriers have had a rather disastrous season thus far, dropping their last meet to Carolina by a 98½ to 32½ score. Robertson, of Wofford, will be a constant threat on the 880 and mile stretches.

The second meet of the week will be against Furman on the local track. Furman, like Wofford, also suffered a defeat last week, losing to the Georgia Bulldogs, 89 to 37.

Trowbridge, who runs the 880 in 2 minutes, 6 seconds, and under, will provide ample competition for the best the Hose can put on the track. King, heaving the discus 126 feet and above, and spending his spare time on javelin, shot, and high jump, will also provide plenty of entertainment.

It is still doubtful as yet whether or not Colin Hudson, miler and two-miler, will be able to run this week. Clark, Yearout, Perrin, Thompson, and others will no doubt be in much better shape and more able to give a full account of themselves.

Erskine Wins, 3-2, On Local Field

Despite the two-hit pitching performance of "Lefty" Suggs, P. C. came out on the small end of a 3-2 score with Erskine in a college league contest staged on the Presbyterian field Wednesday.

The Blue Stocking batmen connected for eight safeties during the afternoon but were unable to make their hits count, while Erskine, aided by numerous P. C. errors, made the best of their pair of singles. The Seceders scored in the third, fifth and sixth stanzas, and held the Hosemen scoreless until the eighth, when Robbie Higbe connected with one of Weir's slants to blast out a home run with Suggs on base.

This was the second meeting of these two teams, the first having marked the season inaugurations for both. In this game the Presbyterians were victorious by a 5 to 4 count. The hosemen have not yet settled down to steady baseball. Errors have been all too frequent and concentrated power has been lacking.

Score by innings and batteries of Wednesday's game follow:

Erskine	001	011	000—3
P. C.	000	000	020—2

Batteries—Erskine, Weir and Pressley; P. C., Suggs and Bolick.

Names in the campus news:

HANK WILSON, now known for his wooing of a State Training School girl in the picture show, says in reply to the item here last week, "At least she had the highest I. Q. in the institution . . . The other night three very good-looking girls stopped by Smyth in their car and sent someone up to ask ALLISON WALTER to go to the picture show in Laurens with them (all expenses paid) . . . He stuck his head out of the window and yelled down, "What's on?" . . . GEORGE DUNLAP, we are informed, has fallen out with two Chester girls, by name Mary Frances and Sarah Frances . . . WILL WALLACE, a close associate, confides that his main reason was that he couldn't decide between the two . . "STUPE" BUCHAN recently ruined a freshman who innocently asked, "How is Red and H. P. BROWN getting along?" . . . JOHN WELLS TODD are also interested in a red-head . . . ERVIN GREEN, well-known Lewdist and track manager, is helping SIMON LEGARE keep Robbie Henderson busy these nights . . . It is difficult to tell just now who is ahead in the MARY WORKMAN fracas, but TOM ESTES, JACK McCASKILL, WOODY TISDALE and PAUL YEAROUT seem to be the leading contenders . . . And FOREHAND still sticks to his BECKHAM.

News item of the week: STUDENTS, INCLUDING FORMER STUDENT COUNCILMAN, GIVEN TWO WEEKS CAMPUS FOR WATER THROWING.

Edgar Pitman, known as "Jack Dempsey," suffered some discomfort last Thursday from a typhoid inoculation. He was forced to forego a day of track practice, but he still managed to get his three square meals a day, although taking them of necessity in a standing position. He is entirely well now, thank you.

Men's styles are now acclaiming the almost revolutionary development in men's underwear originated by Doyle Boggs, august ex-president of the student body. It originated when Boggs, seeing that he was fast assuming rotund proportions, saved his undersized pair of shorts by slitting them down the sides and tying red ribbons across the gap. The new decorated type of underwear is said to be taking style centers by storm.

The writer of this column wishes to make a correction of an item that appeared in this paper last week. Due to the omission of a comma, the reader was led to believe that it was Robert McLees who behaved himself with such "obnoxious decorum." This of course is nothing unusual, in fact it is quite to be expected. However, the sentence should have read something like this, "Simon Legare, (note the comma) says the man who rode in the same car with him (McLees) during the dances and late-dated with him afterwards, behaved himself with obnoxious decorum." As the statement now stands, it is simply astounding, to those who are well acquainted with "Simon and his loves." Apparently, however, the man in the front seat must have been making minute observations through the rear-view mirror.

Three Tennis Foes This Week

Monday, Wednesday and Friday To Bring Court Battles With Furman, Clemson, Wofford.

Although the Wofford match was cancelled because of rain, and Clemson smashed through to a 7 to 0 victory a week ago, the Hose tennis team will face the coming week with determination to redeem lost points.

The team was to have met Furman at Greenville this afternoon, and will meet Clemson in a return match at Clemson Wednesday. Friday P. C. clashes with Wofford on the local courts.

Furman's latest victory has been over the Citadel. Wofford defeated Erskine by a narrow margin the latter part of the week. Earlier in the week P. C. also defeated Erskine, and by a narrow margin. With these points in view, the Wofford match should be one of the best of the week.

Kappa Alpha Wins Swimming Meet

Takes Intramural Event By Big Margin. Two Tied For First Place In Sports Program.

Kappa Alpha, social fraternity, swam its way to a clear-cut victory over the other competing teams in the intra-mural swimming tournament held Wednesday and thereby jumped into sudden prominence in the Blue Key intramural race.

Kappa Alpha scored 33 points, Pi Kappa Alpha tallied 19, and Beta Kappa and Alumni dormitory brought up third and fourth places with 8 and 7 points, respectfully.

Alloting 12 points to winners of first places, 7 to winners of seconds, 4 to winners of thirds, and 2 points to winners of fourth places, the organizations stand as follows in the sports program, including basketball and swimming: Pi Kappa Phi—12; Kappa Alpha—12; Pi Kappa Alpha—11; Alpha Lambda Tau—7; Beta Kappa—3; Smyth—2, and Alumni—2.

In the swimming meet last week, K. A. began its spurt for first place with the 40-yard dash event. From then on the winning team captured at least 3 points in every event.

Caldwell, excelling in the dashes, proved himself to be one of the ablest men in the meet. Ellis, swimming for Alumni, placed first in the fancy diving; Propst, K. A., won the 160-yard free style; Forehand, Beta Kappa, took the 60-yard backstroke, and Kappa Alpha won both 240 and 120-yard relays.

Columbia Spectator Forced To Suspend

New York City—Culminating a long period of strife between its editors and the university, the Columbia Daily Spectator, undergraduate newspaper of Columbia University, has been forced to suspend publication by a decision of the Columbia College Student board, in charge of student publications.

The action was taken after the daily appeared with its columns blank, except for statements protesting changes made in its constitution by the Student Board.

The board explained its action in an open letter to the student body, which said in part, "Throughout the year individual students and student groups have found it necessary to protest against mangling and misinterpretation of news. The situation has become entirely intolerable in a paper subsidized by students for the purpose of providing a medium for the expression of undergraduate thought."

James A. Wechsler, editor of the paper, announced immediately that he would put out a paper under the auspices of sympathetic friends in the student body and faculty. This publication will not use the official Columbia masthead, however.

Georgia Students Define Love

Athens, Ga.—It's an itching around the heart that can't be scratched, an experience from which you never learn better, and it's undefinable, because you can't see it, but oh how you can feel it. That's what several University of Georgia students think love is.

Other definitions given to a reporter for the Red and Black, student paper, are:

"Love, when returned, is man's greatest possession; when unreturned, his sharpest thorn." "It's an experiment, often tried, but never proved." "Love is a misunderstanding between two fools."

Believe It Or Not!

Saturday afternoon when the Clemson Tiger Cubs were strangling over the strings of a Blue anklet, one of the most spectacular races of the season was run and, believe it or not, there was no winner!

Kitchens, Clemson freshman and Laurens High star of last year, was the only contestant to report to the starter for the 220-yard high hurdles. After some little discussion, it was decided that he must run the flight for the five points that go with first place.

The gun cracked and the lone runner was off. With the greatest of ease he floated over the first hurdles; but with only three to go, Cadet Kitchens tripped one barrier, faltered, ran around the next, thus disqualifying himself, and finished in an entirely different lane!

Frosh Tracksters Down Clemson

Freshmen Partially Take Sting From Varsity Defeat By Turning Back Cubs, 62 To 51.

An improved aggregation of Presbyterian freshman tracksters defeated the Clemson Cubs Saturday afternoon by a 62 to 51 count to take some of the sting out of the decisive setback handed to their varsity brothers, in a meet held on Johnson field.

Hipp and Hemphill led the attack that gave the Baby Hose first places in eight events, each taking two firsts and a second to divide high-scoring honors. Hipp shone in the weights, winning the shot put, javelin, and placing second in the discus, while Hemphill won the pole vault and high jump, and came second in the broad jump.

Todd ran a fine race in the 880 to come out far ahead of his nearest opponent, and Frowein gave his customary good performance in the mile to capture this event. Waldrep's ability in the 220-yard low hurdles gave him first in this, and he placed third in the discus to register six points. Joe Hollis completed the list of victors for the Presbyterians by winning the broad jump. He placed second in the 100, but took a painful spill in doing so. The Blue Sox, as a whole, performed highly satisfactorily.

Collegiate Digest To Give Prizes

The Collegiate Digest, weekly roto-gravure supplement for The Blue Stocking and other newspapers, is offering a weekly prize of five dollars in cash to the college student who submits the "Picture of the Week."

Each week the Collegiate Digest will feature one picture that its editors believe to be outstanding from the standpoint of photography, composition, subject, and the story it tells. Still life as well as action photos will be eligible for the contest, and there are no subject restrictions beyond those of libel and decency.

The editors reserve the right to use any photo submitted in the contest which is not chosen as a prize winner in Collegiate Digest at the regular rate of one dollar, payment to be made upon publication.

The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. Each entry must be made by an amateur photographer who is now a member of the faculty or student body of a college or university.

2. The name, address, and college of each contestant, together with full information about the photograph, must be printed on the back of each photo submitted. No limitation is made upon the number of entries each contestant may submit, nor upon the size of the photographs submitted.

3. No pictures will be returned unless accompanied by return postage.

4. All pictures submitted in the contest should be addressed to: Picture of the Week, Collegiate Digest, P. O. Box 472, Madison, Wis.

The contest has been started to interest college students in photography and to send in pictures of events or scenes on their campus to Collegiate Digest.

To Students and Alumni

The Library needs copies of old P. C. catalogues to complete its files, particularly those issued previous to 1915. It also needs old Blue Stockings, Collegians, and other publications of the student body. If those who have any of these in their possession will send them to the Library it would be greatly appreciated.

odd treatment of prices. Necessities are one-half as much as our own, while luxuries are ten times as much. Finally, their unusual (to us) attitude toward worship was shown. In this they are not enthusiastic, their sermons dry, and their prayers long and ecclesiastical, with little regard for the "common people."

Prof. Swedenberg closed by telling of his short trip to Paris and then back to the United States. The talk was very interesting and its clearness was enhanced by photographic cards being passed among the audience.

It is the desire of the Y. M. C. A. to have two other talks dealing with personal experience before the present school year is up. The program committee is seeking to secure Capt. Wysor for a talk on the World war and Rev. John Morrison for one on the Belgian Congo. These will come at a later date, however, as the Christian Endeavor society of Thornwell orphanage will present the program at the next "Y" meeting.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

A student at the Universtity of Illinois (Champaign) wrote an essay for class on Hackett's "Henry The Eighth." Following is an actual excerpt from it:

"Henry the Eighth was a very fascinating man, being a book which Francis Hackett wrote. He ended feudalism by killing those of the opposite feud and thus became a great dictator. Henry married eight wives and even though a Spanish princess told him she had only one neck he sent for her. Catherine bored Henry and would have me, too. So he married and disposed of others by losing his head. Henry's chief adviser was Wolsey, who was a butcher's son but who later turned Pope. Wolsey couldn't speak Spanish though and so his head was cut off. Without a doubt, Henry was the greatest magnate of all times."

As a further indication that the American college is suffering from an acute case of survey-itis, we submit the latest bit of investigation which was to determine if there was any correlation between smoking and intelligence. The test was made on 100 coeds.

Tabulation of the answers showed that 40 per cent were steady smokers and holders of 1.7 per cent averages in their grades; 25 per cent were non-smokers and had 1.6 averages while the remaining 35 per cent, who were occasional smokers, made an average of 1.8.

Draw your own conclusions.

Right after the Collegiate Digest sent out a column repeating the insistence of Prof. Estey, of Purdue University (Lafayette, Ind.), that good hard cash is the most important element in the modern marriage, along came three professors at the University of Wisconsin (Madison) who maintain it's love that counts. And the four rules they lay down for happy marriage are these:

1. The couple should have positive ideas about the future of their wedlock. The "drift into bliss" idea is nonsense.

2. They should assume their marriage is going to last, and forget about statistics on divorce percentages.

3. The man should dispense with all feelings of sex superiority. That's poison to happy wedlock.

4. Marriage is a moral issue, a matter of the adjustment of personalities.

It comes to us as gospel—

The pious chaplain of a small, reverent college stopped his car beside a sweating, anguished gentleman who was trying to get a recently repaired tire back on the rim. The chaplain sat in the shade, on his running board and offered kindly, profuse advice. Nothing worked. Finally he suggested the sufferer pray a minute. Willing to try anything, the man ... On his next attempt to put ... on the rim, it went on easy. ... chaplain scratched his head ... I'll be d--d!" he said.

Rev. Clarence E. Piephoff, a graduate of P. C. and a member of the football team while here in school is today doing a great work in the Monaghan Presbyterian church of Greenville, S. C.

Rev. Mr. Piephoff received his first call to the Monaghan and Conestee Presbyterian churches in Enoree Presbytery, and was for several years pastor of both of these churches. But in 1931 Monaghan called him for full time service. Since he became pastor of the Monaghan church it has has grown from a membership of 25 to a membership of 150 today.

"Babe" Rampey, one of the graduates of the class of '33, is now one of the head men on the Soil Erosion Project near Spartanburg. Babe has several P. C. men under his supervision so we naturally come to believe that they are doing wonders in this work for usually when a bunch of P. C. men get to working together things begin to happen in a hurry. Babe is remembered as one of the men that Thornwell contributed to make the athletics of P. C. a decided success during the years '29-'33.

J. W. Walkup, class of '31, was on the campus for a short while Friday afternoon. Walkup is now supplying the Presbyterian church at the Crossnore school, Crossnore, N. C., and is teaching Bible in the school. Walkup finished his theological course at Union Seminary, Richmond, Va.; in the spring of '34 and since then has had this work at Crossnore.

LYNN JONES ELECTED SENIOR COUNCILMAN FOR NEXT YEAR

Fills Vacancy Caused By Resignation of Potter. Defeats Johnston In Run-Over.

On last Friday morning Lynn Jones was elected senior councilman to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Richard Potter. There was an unusually small amount of interest manifested in the election.

On Wednesday morning Jones and Cliff Johnson were chosen from G. H. Cody, J. K. Wyatt, Jones and Johnson to run over for the position. The Thursday balloting was so small that it did not comprise the necessary two-thirds of the student body and the voting was carried over until Friday, when Jones was elected.

Jones entered Presbyterian college last September, coming from a junior college in Mississippi. He was recently elected vice-president of the Y. M. C. A. He is a member of the International Relations club and Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Affirmative Team Adds Another

Debaters Down Wofford In Sixth Consecutive Victory. Negative Team In Non-Decision Tilt.

Last Wednesday the Presbyterian college affirmative debate team defeated the Wofford negative at Clinton continue their long list of victories, as the P. C. negative had a non-decision argument with the Terrier affirmative at Spartanburg.

The query was: "Resolved, that the nations of the world should agree to prevent the international shipment of arms and munitions." Hank Wilson and Edgar Stanton upheld the affirmative for the Calvinists, and turned in their sixth consecutive win.

The negative debate was non-decision due to a misunderstanding on the part of the Wofford manager who did not provide judges. Hugh Holman and Charles Carson were the Presbyterian speakers.

On Friday night the negative team, made up this time of Holman and Calvert, were to meet the Winthrop affirmative at Clinton, but for reasons unknown, the Winthrop girls did not appear.

An exhibition debate between the two P. C. teams will be held in chapel one morning this week.

Outsiders Barred From Dormitories

This morning, by action of the student body, all representatives of service establishments up town were forbidden to enter the dormitories except to go to the rooms of the students who act as campus representatives for that particular establishment.

This action was taken in an attempt to check the tide of petty thievery that has been sweeping over the campus for the past few weeks. It was believed that the greater portion of this stealing came from outsiders on the campus.

Bulletins will be posted on the dormitories warning anyone not connected with the college against entering the dormitories. The cooperation of the student body is requested in enforcing this action.

Thornwell Group Leads 'Y' Service

"How Christ Was a Gentleman" Is Subject of Interesting Program Thursday Evening.

A representative group from the Thornwell Christian Endeavor presented a brief and varied program to the Presbyterian college Y. M. C. A. assemblage last Thursday night. The subject was "How Christ Was a Gentleman" and was treated in a manner befitting the Easter season. Houghston Frowein presided over the deputation and introduced the several speakers and others who participated in the presentation.

"Characteristics of a Gentleman" was the theme of the first talk. This was discussed in a practical manner by Irma Underwood. Her talk was made clear and impressive by the use of three concrete illustrations. It was enhanced in its effectiveness by concomitant quotations from Stevenson, Gay, and others which harmonized the speech into a unified thought. N. F. Garland spoke on the second topic, which was "Jesus, the Gentleman." He read, first, the scripture which included John 18:1-14. Jesus was portrayed as the only perfect gentleman — although many of us claim, and that justifiably, that we are gentlemen. Jesus, it was shown, proved himself to be every inch a perfect gentleman even in the trying times of Passion week. Most particularly so in his action when taken in the Garden of Gethsemane and in his attitude toward his persecutors while on the Cross.

Two added features of the visiting deputation tended to further convey and to make indelible the message of the night. The thought and commemoration of the death of Christ was expressed in a poem, "The Death of Christ." This was recited by Shirley Wilkes. A sextet composed of six girl members of the C. E. sang, "The Old Rugged Cross" as the closing thought of the program.

Spring Inspection Begins Tomorrow

Both Practical and Theoretical Phases Will Be Covered. Captain Boatwright Is Inspector.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, the annual spring inspection in both practical and theoretical phases of the R. O. T. C. department of Presbyterian college will be held. This is one of the most important events of military life at P. C., and is looked forward to with a great deal of interest by students and faculty alike.

Most of the practical examinations will be held on Tuesday, and all military men will be excused from classes on Tuesday morning. A parade will take place the first thing in the morning on the lower athletic field, followed by the formal inspection of the corps by Captain J. R. Boatwright, of Spartanburg, S. C. Directly after this, the various classes will put on their demonstrations in automatic rifle, machine gun, extended order, and other phases of practical military work. Problems will be presented by the inspector, and will be worked out during the morning. Full uniform is to be worn, and all forms of military courtesy are to be fully observed.

On Wednesday, the theoretical examinations will be given in the science hall at eleven o'clock. These will cover all of the work taken up by the military department during the past year. The inspector will grade the papers, and an average of eighty on all subjects is necessary for a rating of "excellent." For five years, Presbyterian college has rated "excellent," and the prospects for this year are better than usual.

"Y" Withdrawal To Be Reconsidered

Move To End Connection With National Office To Be Considered By Entire Student Body.

The executive board of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet has decided to give the members of the "Y" group a chance to reconsider the move that was voted on last Thursday night. Ernest Arnold, the president, read to the group a recommendation that the cabinet had approved which provided for the local unit to withdraw from the national Y. M. C. A. organization.

The following reasons for such an action were included in this recommendation: First, the national Y. M. C. A. no longer stands for the evangelical doctrines of the Presbyterian church which we stand for here at Presbyterian college. Second, We receive no particular benefit from our present connection with the national organization. Third, the national Y. M. C. A. has given us no definite program in exchange for the membership fee which we have invested yearly.

The members present at this meeting voted to adopt the recommendation as it had been read. The reason for reconsidering the motion is to give the entire interested student body an opportunity to think the matter over and express their opinions at the meeting Thursday night. Everyone who has the campus religious organization at heart is urged to attend and cite his views on this most important matter.

If the entire active group votes to adopt this recommendation and approves withdrawal from the national organization the local unit will assume the name "Student Christian Association (S. C. A.) of Presbyterian College," or some other suitable name that may be suggested. At any rate, this action is of a temporary nature, subject to the discretion of the subsequent administration.

Student Fund Is Progressing Nicely

Doyle Boggs, chairman of the student body committee appointed to raise funds for the erection of the lighting system for Johnson field, announces that a total of $194 had been raised through this morning, coming within $6.00 of the quota of $200 agreed upon.

The amount raised was pledged by students of the college and will be collected at a later date. In most cases, the student agreed to allow the committee to take a specified amount from his breakage deposit. It is expected that the remaining $6.00 will be pledged within the next day or two.

Work on the field is progressing as rapidly as the weather will allow. Four giant poles have been erected on the east side of the field and the remainder will be installed at an early date.

As announced at the opening of the drive, the athletic department intends to revise the 1935 football schedule somewhat in order that more games may be played at home, thus making it possible for the students and people of Clinton to follow the team more closely.

Varsity Tennis Men Win Two, Lose One

The varsity tennis team met three opponents during the past week, lost to two, and defeated one.

On Monday, a week ago, Furman defeated P. C., 6 to 1, the Blue Hose only winning a doubles match. Two days later, Wednesday, the Clemson team, which has lost only one match, smashed out a 7 to 0 victory. Then on Friday, the Presbyterians seemed anxious to make amends and trounced Wofford by a score of 5 to 2 on the local courts.

Frances Gregg was not quite up to his usual standard and dropped a singles match to account for one of Wofford's victories. The other resulted

Considers Call

DR. JOHN McSWEEN

No Decision Yet, Says McSween

"I Have Been Very Happy . . . and Would Regret To Sever My Relations Here," States.

Said Dr. John McSween this afternoon to a Blue Stocking representative when questioned concerning the call to Purity Presbyterian church, Chester, which he received yesterday:

"I am a minister of the church and subject to the call of the church. I have not made an decision and shall not make any for at least three weeks.

"I have been very happy, indeed, in my service and association here at Presbyterian college and would regret very much to sever my relations here. In facing any call I must determine as clearly as I can what I believe to be God's will for my life."

NOW SERVING 7TH YEAR HERE

Chester Congregation Issues Call To P. C. President At Sunday Morning Service.

Yesterday the congregation of Purity Presbyterian church, Chester, S. C., unanimously called Dr. John McSween, president of Presbyterian college, to that pastorate.

This church is one of the most influential Presbyterian churches in the state.

Dr. McSween has for the past seven years served as president of Presbyterian college, coming here from Anderson where he was pastor of the Central Presbyterian church. During his seven-year administration P. C. has made vast strides forward.

Dr. McSween was preaching at the Second Presbyterian church in Charleston yesterday when he received the call. He made the following statement to the press in Charleston last night:

"I am greatly honored by the call from Purity church at Chester, which I consider one of the most influential churches and one of the most delightful pastorates in the synod of South Carolina.

"I am a minister of the gospel in the service of the Presbyterian church and have been attempting to serve the church for he past seven years at Presbyerian college. As the Chester church has felt led to call me I feel that I must prayerfully consider the call."

BLUE STOCKING TRACKMEN DEFEAT WOFFORD AND FURMAN

Win From Terriers By 88 to 38, In Spartanburg, While Baby Hose Lost, 50 to 49.

Victory Over Baptists Here Saturday Was 77 to 49. Hurricane Frosh Win, 72 to 45.

The P. C. varsity track outfit swamped the Wofford Terriers at Spartanburg Wednesday by a score of 88 to 38 to open one of the busiest weeks of the track season.

None of the times were exceptional, nor were the distances and heights, as a whole, outstanding. However, Gault, of Wofford, won the broad jump with a distance of 21 feet, 10 inches, and Jacobs, P. C., the high jump at 5 feet, 10 inches.

Colin Hudson was unable to run in either the mile or two-mile events; but Prince Charles and George McInnes ably substituted, tying for first place in the latter race.

Thompson, P. C., one of the outstanding low hurdlers of the state, tripped and was defeated on the flight by Hawes, of Wofford. Guerard added another five points to the Hose score by taking the high hurdles.

In the dashes and midde distances, Presbyterian was clearly predominant. Bradley won the hundred; Winget, the two-twenty; Clark, the 440, and Forehand, the 880-yard run.

Williams, P. C., captured two first places in the weights, winning both discus and shot. Williams tossed the javelin 161 feet, 4 inch, for the remaining Hose first place.

Robertson, Wofford, who is said to be a strong contender for state honors in the mile, won that event in 4 minutes, 52 seconds. Phil Adams was a close second.

Summary of the meet:

Mile run: Robertson (W), Adams (P), Talmage (P). Time, 4 minutes, 52 seconds.

440-yard dash: Clark (P), Yearout (P), Crocker (W). Time, 54.4 seconds.

100-yard dash: Bradley (P), Thompson (P), Gault (W). Time, 10.4 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles: Guerard (P), Mullikin (W), Saumbey (W). Time, 17.5 seconds.

880-yard run: Forehand (P), Clark (P), Noble (W). Time, 2 minutes, 8

In their second victory in four days, the Presbyterian college track team soundly trounced Furman, 77 to 49, here Saturday to regain some of the prestige lost as a result of the defeat by Clemson a week ago.

Joe Bradley's running of the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat marks him as one of the outstanding contenders for the century distance in the state meet two weeks hence. Ford, Clemson star, stepped the same distance in 9.9 seconds against Carolina Saturday.

Clark, in an endeavor to build up more stamina for the 440, ticked off the mile in 4 minutes, 48 seconds, to take first place. Anderson, Furman sophomore, captured the 440-yard dash in 52 seconds and his team-mate, Trowbridge, defeated Forehand to win the 880.

Colin Hudson was still unable to run the two-mile because of a foot injury, but Prince Charles succeeded in placing third for the Blue Hose.

Bill Thompson, seemingly recovered from a recent leg injury, covered the 220-yard flight of low hurdles in 26 seconds, his best time in a meet up to the present date. In addition, Thompson broad jumped 20 feet, 9 inches, for another first place, and won a second in the hundred to capture high scoring honors with 13 points.

The meet was of little significance in the state race except for the fact that it clearly demonstrated that the P. C. outfit is steadily recuperating from its recent slump and should be in top shape by the time of the state finals on May 4.

Summary of the meet:

100-yard dash: Bradley (P); Thompson (P); Yearout (P). Time, 10 seconds.

220-yard dash: Yearout and Bradley (P) tied for first; Boney (F). Time, 25.4 seconds.

440-yard run: Anderson (F); Yearout (P); Winget (P). Time, 52 seconds.

Thought For the Week

The Majesty of Mystery

An athetist once declared that the reason for his unbelief was that his mind could not discern the reality of a Supreme Being. He was inclined to hold true nothing of which he was unable to conceive, and consequently admitted nothing as fact that he could not comprehend. This claim is held by many agnostics and doubters today as the basis of their skepticism. Such an assertion indicates that these individuals have not accorded the wonderful truths of life their just consideration.

Let the skeptic examine the remarkable mechanism that comprises a mortal entity. No person can fully understand the marvelous process by which food is transformed into specialized tissues, organs, and vigorous energy. Nevertheless, we do not doubt for a moment the fact of physical metabolism. What man is able to fathom the deep mystery of the human mind? Yet to deny its existence would be contradictory to practical judgment. Man, using the essential materials of a plant, cannot reproduce the photosynthesis of a single leaf. The countless tiny organisms of the microscopic world, with their minute order of behaviour and growth, defy science to explain satisfactorily their state of nature. The myriads of celestial bodies, speeding through the vastness of space with incredible swiftness and precision, challenge the skill of modern mathematical genius. As man surveys more carefully and more intelligently the various incomprehensible miracles of the universe, he must ultimately realize the positive necessity for the existence of the Divine Creator.

Childishness vs. War

On Friday, April 12, one hundred and twenty-five thousand American college students walked out of classes at eleven o'clock as a formal protest against war. The motive behind such action is to be highly commended. It is a glorious feeling to realize that at least the youth of America are beginning to realize just how much of a Hell war is, and such a mass demonstration certainly shows that the youth of America do definitely oppose mass bloodshed.

But the action was, in one sense a very lamentable one. The United States congress has not been making war speeches. The president has sent or received no ultima; in fact, nothing vague resembling such has appeared on the political horizon—unless the action of Senator Long can be taken that seriously. The action taken by the American college students was premature.

When the flags have begun waving, when the statesmen are making impassioned speeches for bloodshed, when danger of war raises its ugly head, then, and only then, is there need for so strong a demonstration of pacifist sentiment. I am not objecting to the sentiment or to the showing of that sentiment—I am objecting to the methods that were employed in its demonstration.

To strike at this time is but to weaken the cause. It brands the whole youth peace movement as immature, irrational, and unreasoning. It will turn many of the passive on-lookers into active enemies of the movement. It reminds one very much of the recent textile strike of last summer and fall. This textile strike, like the student peace strike, was immature and as a result the cause of the American Federation of Labor has been greatly weakened.

I am strongly opposed to war and emphatically in favor of the principles of the youth peace movement, but the action of the college students on the twelfth makes me feel a tinge of shame when I admit it.

The Nerve of Some People . . .

On a recent Sunday afternoon I was one of a group of "radical young thinkers" who disparagingly discussed religion, sentiment, accepted ideas, and all the other things at which rebellious youth points its guns and its sarcasm.

When it was all over—and I had been one of the most bitter of the attackers—I began thinking of all the old ideas that they had so completely destroyed. Of how we had solved the problem of religion and of ethics with ease where hundreds, yea, thousands of great men had failed. And the humor of it appealed to me!

Almost carelessly our youthful feet had brusquely trod where angels had feared to go. We had, in two brief hours, proven to ourselves that agnosticism is the only justified religion, despite the fact that some of the greatest minds in the world have never decided just which religion is best.

And yet, though I can see the ludicrous side of it, I'm rather proud that youth is still rebellious, that youth would tear down the traditions of age and build in the places more worthy sanctuaries. We have read enough history and literature to know that our struggle is hopeless, that we who are so radical today will become the conservative of tomorrow, and yet we drive ourselves on to hopes and dreams.

Truly of such is empires built. We are sentimental in our anti-sentimentality; we are idealistic in our cynicism; we are incurably romantic in our realism. But we are sincere and sincerity can cover a huge bundle of sins—especially since coming conservatism will soon stretch the dim veil of age and maturity over them.

NOTES AND SHADES

MOVIES

Monday and Tuesday—Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter in "One More Spring." Fairly dripping with sweetness and light, this is recommended only to rabid Gaynor fans. This picture is unique in that nothing happens. It's about three depression victims (Janet Gaynor, Warner Baxter and Walter King) who live in a tool barn in Central Park. King steals the picture, if there is one to steal. Stepin Fetchit has a bit in this Fox film.

Wednesday—Irene Dunne in "Sweet Adeline." A quality musical entertainment, with sweet melodies and lovely lyrics, and Irene Dunne. There is a back-stage situation with a difference, and what does the plot matter, anyway, with Jerome Kern music and beautiful dancing? Phil Regan, the singing copper, is romantic and melodic, and Hugh Herbert's antics get funnier in every picture. This is a Warner production.

Thursday—"The Right To Live." Colin Clive, Josephine Hutchinson and George Brent capably present Somerset Maugham's drama of a crippled husband whose wife falls in love with his brother. A story which could have been toneless is vitalized by William Keighley's directorial pace, capped by a tensely presented dramatic climax. Peggy Wood and C. Aubrey Smith give brilliant performances in this Warner production.

Friday—Barbara Stanwyck in "The Woman in Red."—Here is Barbara Stanwyck with the old ease and the forthright frankness which is her peculiar charm. This, with Gene Raymond in an engaging mood, and Genevieve Tobin enjoying herself as a ritzing snob, lifts the picture into the good entertainment class. Sparkling dialogue freshens up the poor-girl-married-into-society story of this First National production.

Saturday — "The Florentine Dagger," with Donald Woods and Margaret Lindsay. No review available.

THE PARADE GROUND

INSPECTION! And with it the usual agony, excitement, and childishness—we have never had an inspection without them. However, it is great fun as well as hard work. Captain Blanton the other day was exhorting the sophomores and freshmen "for goodness' sake and for the sake of good old P. C." to make good grades on the theoretical exams, for the lower classes had to make up for the advanced corps which always makes rather unimpressive records on theory. Of course, the Captain went on to explain that this was because of the fact that the advanced corps had much harder subjects to master, but that explanation was hardly necessary.

The inspector this year will be Captain John R. Boatwright, former P. M. S. and T. at Wofford college, and now associated with the National Guard units in South Carolina. Our headquarters expects a most difficult inspection, but it could not be ascertained whether this difficulty was to be with the inspector or with the P. C. cadets. Certainly it could not be with the cadets, for they have most assiduously performed every task set forth for them for the last month, and have made enviable records in the classroom. Unusual but true!

Just a warning to the freshmen. Two years ago, when the inspector gave out the exams to the freshman class, he gave Red Wyatt one on military courtesy. Red promptly shouted, "Cap'n, I didn't study military courtesy, I studied citizenship and the R. O. T. C." And the odd thing about it was that the whole class brimmed over with embarrassment, while Red was not in the least flustered. Please, most humble freshmen, if the inspector gives out exams, don't tell him in no uncertain terms that you have not studied what he gave you. Just smile (grimly, if you must) and trade with someone else if you can. If you can't, the best thing to do then is to have a personal talk with Captain Blanton after the inspection is over.

There are to be no more uniform inspections after the big events this week, and consequently the uniform inspection grade on Tuesday will count for three or four ordinary grades. This affords an excellent chance for one and all to pull up military science grades beyond [illegible] tion. There will certainly be [illegible] cuse for any cadet's making [illegible] AA..

After inspection, there wi[ll] short vacation in the military [illegible] ment for all classes except the [illegible] Whether this will be in the [illegible] an excuse from drill for two [illegible] days, or an excuse from [illegible] classes, is not yet known. At [illegible] it is extremely pleasant to [illegible] not having to drill for a day o[r] ter Captain Boatwright finish[es] us. There is certain to be a [re]ac of some sort directly following coming ordeal, for the sudden [re]ac of extraordinary strain from [the] minds always produces a reac[tion] does not exactly make for exce[ss] intellectual or physical feats.

The regular uniform shoes [for] year have been selected, and [the] Adair is to handle them, as [last] shoe is a Freeman make, and plain toe. It was No. 3 among samples passed among the [men] two weeks ago. This shoe is a improvement over the one [worn] year, and it is interesting to [note] it received an overwhelming [ma]jo of the votes cast in the "shoe [pre]fe ence ballot."

Says Menoher, in the latest [is]sue Journal, "The only determining [fac]tor in any war is the infantry, [for] the backbone of the army. The determining factor is the infantry[man], dier, who carries his musket and trudges through mud and all other activities in the army for the sole purpose to make [it] sible for that infantry soldier forward." Being infantrymen think so too!

Now that buttons are getting very best of attention, and [all] are doing their best for themselves the way of general appearance thought occurs that appearance out knowledge in the coming [in]spection will avail little, for

Brass buttons do not a [man] make,
Nor gold bars a cap'n,
And even a general has to [die]
Wars just as they happen.

Therefore, there can not be much work done on the theory—frequently, too little is done.

STUDENT OPINION

LET THE STUDENT BODY SAY

Editor The Blue Stocking:

The recent decision of the Y. M. C. A. leaders to withdraw from the National Y. M. C. A. because of the apparent degradation in its original standards is subject to various criticisms. A vote taken from the so-called active members, who represent the minority of the student body, declared the group temporarily segregated from the National Y. M. C. A. The unfairness lies in the fact that the entire student body reserves the right to vote on the vital subject since they are members by having been acclaimed membership in the organization at registration in college.

By withdrawing we active members are admitting defeat in time of greatest opportunity. Just because we realize the incongruency of the [na]tional organization, need we withdraw[?] the aim of the Y. M. C. A. to [be] itself passive in time of need? [Is] of working only within the bou[nds] this college let us expand and [en]deavor to retain the proper stan[d] throughout the collegiate sectio[n] the U. S. A. Instead of attempti[ng] create a new organization and [re]vise its doctrines, why not reform th[e] tablished organization? Further[more] sideration of the affair will [show] the fact that prospective stude[nts] future years will be influenced [by] existence of an active Y. M. C. A. P. C.

Shall we students stand idly by [and] see our Y. M. C. A. turn renegade its purpose?

Carolina Wins By Narrow Margin

With the Lead Changing Four Times, State University Finally Wins In Ninth Frame.

In a wierd spectacle that saw the lead change hands four times, Carolina's Gamecocks won out over the fighting Hosemen from P. C., 9 to 8, giving a ninth-inning display of feathers that brought in the winning run.

Johnny Suggs pitched well, Horne and Evans scintillated at bat, and the team played heads-up ball, but a scorching single by Gamecock Munn in the ninth undid the work of the Calvinists, and gave the Carolina nine a victory that became secure only when the game ended.

The Hosemen opened up early, sending a pair of runs over the plate in the initial stanza and a quartet more in the second, but the six-run advantage was chopped down to two markers in the third. From then on it was an intense battle, with either team in line for the victory. The teams came into the ninth deadlocked at 8-all, and after Presbyterian failed to score in their half of the game, spectators began settling back to view an extra-inning affair. With two men out and Alexander on base, John Munn cracked out a single that sent the former scampering across the plate with the winning run.

"Shorty" Horne secured a trio of hits that included a home run and a double, to lead the clouting for both teams. Evans cracked out three singles to supplement Horne's performance. For the Gamecocks, Munn, Blair and Abbott were outstanding, and Munn added to his batting laurels by completing the sensational one-hand catch.

Suggs, P. C.'s portside slab artist, pitched well, pulling himself out of occassional holes in fine fashion.

Score by innings:

P. C. ..... 240 010 100—8
Carolina ..... 440 300 101—9

Batteries: P. C.—Suggs and Forehand; Carolina—Stokes, Brown and Williamson.

Wofford Downed On Local Field

Blue Stockings Put On Steam In Early Part of Game and Defeat Terriers, 9 to 5.

Presbyterian's Blue Hosemen put on steam in the first three innings to hand the Wofford Terriers a 9 to 5 defeat and cop their second inter-collegiate victory in as many days. The local soil was the scene of the contest.

Long distance clouting and frequent errors predominated in a game featuring the batting of Shorty Horne and Harry Bolick for the Hosemen, and Norrell for the Terriers. Horne blasted out a double and triple to chalk up P. C.'s only extra base blows, while Norrell secured a triple and a single in three trips.

After allowing two hits in three innings, Holliday was forced to leave the field due to the return of an old ailment, and he was replaced by Mullinix, who became the target of a Wofford attack that netted all their runs. He was relieved by Johnnie Suggs, who held the Terriers at bay until the finish of the game.

The Hosemen committed half a dozen errors and played inconsistently afield, but gave promise of improved play in the future. Bolick and Forehand functioned well in their new positions and Robbie Higbe continued his heads-up play at short.

The score by innings and batteries of the two teams follow:

Blue Hose Nine Ends Good Week

Victory Over Wofford, 7 to 5, Saturday, Makes Three Wins and One Defeat for Period.

P. C.'s Blue Hosemen climaxed a successful week by handing the Wofford Terriers a last-minute whipping to the tune of 7 to 5, Saturday afternoon at Spartanburg, and in so doing boosted their state collegiate record another notch to pass the 500 mark.

The Terriers touched Mullinax for a trio of runs in the third. In the fourth, the Calvinists, aided by Bolick's four-base smash, closed up the gap with a pair. The next four innings were scoreless, but in the eighth a series of timely hits put P. C. in the lead. Wofford came through with two in their half, and the final stanza saw the Hosemen add another marker to their score.

Mullinix gave an improved hurling performance and was accorded good support by his mates, who backed up his pitching with jam-up fielding. Shorty Horne, securing two doubles and two singles in five trips to the plate, led the scoring for both schools. Mullinix got a triple and a single, Bolick a home and a single, and Suggs two singles. Every Wofford performer accounted for at least one hit.

The victory over the Methodists gave Presbyterian three wins for the week against one loss. Newberry and Wofford fell before the Blue Hose attack during the early part of the week, with the loss falling to Carolina by a one-run margin.

Score by innings:

P. C. ..... 000 200 041—7

Blue Hose Triumph In Twelfth Inning

Newberry-Presbyterian Game Is Nip and Tuck Affair, Until Holliday Brings In Clincher.

Frank (Elmer, the Great) Holliday singled with two men on base to break up a great pitching battle that had raged through 12 gruelling innings, and gave the patched-up P. C. Blue Stockings a 9 to 8 victory over the strong Newberry Indians.

The Hosemen drew first blood with a run in the third, but the Indians pushed one over in the next stanza to even the count. From then on it was a bitter feud between Suggs and Ward, with neither able to reign very long. In the eighth, the Indians cut loose with a quartet of markers to seemingly put the game on ice, but the Hosemen duplicated the action of the Lutherans in their half of the inning to knot the count again at 5-all. Newberry scored another in the first half of the ninth to put the spectators in a doubtful mood as to P. C.'s possibilities for a win, but the Calvinists again tied the score to necessitate an extra inning, which produced a pair of runs for both nines. The tenth frame was scoreless and the Indians failed to come through in their half of the eleventh. Two Presbyterians reached base to put the spectators in a frenzy, and Holliday brought the contest to a close with his timely single.

Johnnie Suggs, in addition to giving a fine performance in the box, aided the cause of his team by banging out three singles to lead the stick-work for the Hosemen. Horne, Evans and Holliday secured two hits each and Kirkland, Lominack, Weidman and Morgan, of the Newberry team, contributed two or more hits.

Score by innings and batteries:

Newberry ..... 000 100 041 200—8
P. C. ..... 001 000 041 201—9

Batteries: Newberry — Ward, Ingram and Weidman; P. C.—Suggs and Forehand.

Intramural Tennis Narrows To Five

Although hindered by bad weather and the occasional difficulty of contestants in securing courts, the intramural tennis tournament sponsored by Blue Key leadership fraternity has at last narrowed down to five men.

Norman Creech and Harris Gray are matched for an early battle, and Charles Steenbergen and Frank Johnston complete the other bracket. The winner of the Steenbergen-Johnston match will play "Red" Potter, and the final winner will play either Creech or Gray for the intramural championship of the campus.

Creech is captain of the freshman team organized after the tournament began.

FURMAN FROSH WIN, 72-45

A fast-travelling little Wind from Furman university blew holes through P. C.'s Baby Hose here Saturday afternoon, assembling an early lead to whip the Calvinist yearlings by a 72 to 45 score.

The P. C. frosh were weakened by the loss of Frowein, Isom and other stars, who could have been counted on to contribute to their team's score. TheBaptists scored several surprises, especially in the shot put, in which they made a clean sweep, and the discus.

The feature events were the mile, 440, and 880. In the first named event Joe Seawell, P. C.'s representative, took an early lead which he kept until the finish. On the third lap his Furman opponent attempted to overtake him, but the blond Calvinist put on steam, running the last lap with a splendid display of fighting determination. Todd, Presbyterian half-miler, kept the lead in this event for the first lap, but was contested for his place by a red-headed Baptist, who took the lead. Todd maintained his stride and passed his opponent on the home stretch. His form was excellent throughout the race.

The 440 was the closest race on the program. Dean Power of P. C., pushed out in front and, running with a smooth, even stride, kept his advantage until the last five yards of the gruelling event. He lost out by a narrow margin.

Ralph Waldrep made a last-second spurt to win the low hurdles, and Beeman, making his initial appearance of the season, took first honors in the pole vault. Hipp and Hemphill won the javelin and high jump, respectively.

WOFFORD FROSH WIN, 50-49

While their elder brothers were taking a drubbing at the hands of P. C.'s varsity, Wofford's Terrier Pups eked out a nip and tuck 50 to 49 victory over the Baby Blue Hose tracksters in a dual meet at Wofford Wednesday, with the outcome doubtful until the final event.

The P. C. frosh took the lead with Frowein's win in the mile but Neal, of Wofford, evened things up by placing first in the 880. Stackpool, Terrier speed demon, gave his team an advantage by taking firsts in the 100 and 220, and Smith boosted the score with a win in the 220 low hurdles. Hipp, P. C., weight star, put his mates back into the running with consecutive wins in the shot put, javelin and discus, but Hill defeated Hemphill in the high jump, and Smith scored his second victory of the day to win the broad jump and gave the Methodists the meet.

Meeon Hipp continued his point-making habit by amassing points, being followed by Smith, Wofford, and Stackpool with 10

"Sure, enjoy yourself," said Jim. "It's a ding good cigarette."

I was working way late at the office one night and ran out of cigarettes. When Jim the watchman came through I tackled him for a smoke.

"Sure," says Jim, and he handed over a pack of Chesterfields. "Go ahead, Mr. Kent, take three or four."

Jim said he'd smoked a lot of cigarettes in his time, but he'd put Chesterfield up in front of any of 'em when it came to taste.

. . . "and they ain't a bit strong either," is the way Jim put it.

That was the first Chesterfield I ever smoked. And I'm right there with him, too, when he says it's a ding good cigarette.

Interesting—how people find out about Chesterfield

STATE TRACK MEET HERE SATURDAY

R.O.T.C. UNIT RATES EXCELLENT IN ANNUAL SPRING INSPECTION

Gets Highest Rating For Six Consecutive Years. Captain J. R. Boatwright Is Inspecting Officer.

The regular spring inspection of the Presbyterian College cadet corps took place on last Tuesday and Wednesday, April 23 and 24. This was the most difficult federal inspection ever held at this college, but the record made by the P. C. cadets was slightly above the standard of the school though the rating for the past five years has been "excellent."

The inspector, Captain J. R. Boatwright of Spartanburg, presented many new and effective methods of determining the true worth of the corps, and it may be safely said that he was not disappointed in the least. Although not expecting aught but the regular type of inspection, the P. C. students were so well prepared that they were far from being caught unawares and consequently turned in a record of ninety-one in both theoretical and practical phases of military work. Only eighty is required for the rating of "excellent," so the school exceeded the requirements with a great deal to spare, thus rating "excellent" for the sixth consecutive year. This is a most unusual record, and speaks well for Captain Wysor, Commandant at P. C. for the past six years.

On Tuesday morning, beginning at 8:15, the cadets corps displayed its practical military abilities starting with a parade on the lower athletic field. This was the best parade held here in the past three years, says Captain Blanton, Assistant P. M. S. & T. here. The cadence was excellent, and the entire batallion kept perfect step throughout the manouveurs. The uniforms were particularly becoming, the brass and leather being shined beyond recognition. All rifles were carried correctly and the general appearance of the corps was exceptionally good. Directly following this parade, a picked company went through the most difficult company movements without faltering once. Then came the platoon drill and squad drill. Both of these were practically faultless. The entire corps took place in the practical drill and the demonstrative combat problem which was the next thing in order after the parade. In this problem, the cadets presented the actions of a

Students Petition President To Stay

On last Friday morning the student body of Presbyterian college voted to present a petition to Dr. John McSween, the president of the institution, requesting that he not accept the call to Purity Presbyterian church which he had received on the preceding Sunday.

The petition expressed the appreciation of the student body for all that he has done for the school; stated the great work that he has accomplished in the seven years that he has served here, and requested his continued service here on the grounds that no one could be found to take his place at this crucial time in the school's existence.

Emil Belazco To Play For Finals

Pan-Hellenic Dances To Be Held May 10 and 11. Orchestra Is Best Ever Had Here.

As The Blue Stocking goes to press word has been received that there is a misunderstanding about orchestras and that Velazco may not be secured for the Pan-Hellenic dances here next week.

Having obtained Emil Velazco, the largest and most widely-known orchestra ever to play at a Presbyterian college dance, the dance lovers of this institution plan to enjoy the biggest social event of the season as the new Pan-Hellenic council holds the last series of dances of this scholastic year on the 10th and 11th of May.

Velazco, who is now making his first trip South, and who is stopping by Clinton as he travels from the ball given at the druggists' convention in Winston-Salem, N. C., to the Pan-Hellenic finals at the Unviersity of Alabama, has a twelve-piece band, a $25,000 portable pipe organ, and an attractive torch singer, and an up-to-date amplifying system which is manipulated by a special control man who varies the sound to suit the occasion. The pipe organ, which will be a new feature here, will enable the orchestra to furnish any type or degree of music from the very sweet and dreamy type to the fastest kind.

Velazco and his orchestra are well-known throughout the nation, having followed George Hall at the Hotel Taft in New York city and having played over the Columbia network from that place until just recently when they started their trip South. They have already played at several large schools on this trip and will furnish the music for the finals at Duke university as they go back North from Alabama.

Several members of the Pan-Hellenic council and others from the student body heard and became acquainted with the orchestra in Greenville as they played for the German club finals at Furman Thursday, and all expressed themselves as being most favorably impressed with the music rendered there.

As is the usual custom here, there will be three dances in the series: the Friday night dance lasting from 10 to 3, the tea dance from 4 to 6 on the afternoon of the 11th, and the final dance from 9 to 12 that night.

No details have been worked out by the Pan-Hellenic council yet except that all three dances will be informal; but more information about the orchestra and the dances will be printed in the next issue of this paper.

Winthrop Group Gives Program

A deputation team from the Winthrop College Y. W. C. A. presented a program before the congregated group of the Presbyterian College Y. M. C. A., the Thornwell Christian Endeavor, and the First Church Christian Endeavor last Sunday night at the First Presbyterian church. The program took the place of the regular young peoples' meetings and was sponsored by the Presbytorian College Y.M.C.A.

The team was headed by Miss Copeland McCrary, who read the Scripture and introduced the speakers. The program consisted of two brief talks and several numbers by a stringed ensemble. The talks were by Miss Mary Caroline Rogers and Miss Louise Howe. The music was furnished by Misses Elsie Plant, Emmie Lee Hair, and Lillie Rogel.

The program was well received and attended by the largest crowd at any previous Y. M. C. A. meeting of the year.

Many Athletes To Compete In Events

Preliminaries and Frosh Events On Friday. Largest and Most Colorful Tournament Held In State To Drawn Many.

What is expected to be the most successful South Carolina state track meet ever held here will open with the freshman finals and the varsity trials on Friday, May 3.

The two day meet will open Friday at 1:30 with the frosh ploe vault. The first track event will be the 120-yard high hurdles at 2:30 o'clock, which will be a freshman trial flight Varsity trials will be run Friday in the following events: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, 120-yard high hurdles, 440-yard run.

Varsity finals will begin on Saturday at 2:00 P. M. A grand parade of all the teams contesting will take place at 2:15 led by the college band. The captain of each team will march one pace in front of his team, carrying his school's colors. The procession will enter the field through the west gate, follow the track around the south curve, and then turn to face the stands nearest the gymnasium.

Plans Made For Summer School

Third Annual Term Begins June 10, Ends July 19. Many Courses Are Available.

Dr. R. L. Coe has announced that the third annual summer session of Presbyterian college will begin June 10 and last through July 19.

The regular college faculty will teach in the school. The exact courses to be offered will depend upon the demand of those who enroll. In general, provision will be made for instruction in those courses for which as many as six applications are received.

The school will have headquarters in the W. P. Jacobs Science hall. The college boarding department will not operate for the duration of the school. A day school plan will be followed with classes running from nine o'clock until one-thirty, five days a week.

This summer session offers an opportunity for college students to make up back work or do advanced work. By pursuing one subject in sequence, one complete year of work in that subject may be done. By attending three summer terms, one may reduce the regular college residence work done by one semester.

Here high school graduates have a chance to complete the first year of freshman mathematics, English or other subjects, or the first semester in two subjects, thus allowing more time in the regular session to get adapted to college life.

For the public school teacher there is a chance to review subject matter and to renew certificates for three years. By pursuing one academic course and one professional course, one meets the requirements for certificate renewal in South Carolina.

Expenses are: a tuition fee of fifteen dollars which covers all college dues except a laboratory fee of five dollars for the science courses. Fees are payable five dollars with application for definite courses and the balances on June 10. Boarding and lodging may be secured in the community at reasonable rates. It is estimated that the actual expense of attending summer school will vary from fifty dollars to seventy-five depending on the individual taste and habits of the student.

The courses that will be available are: Elementary French, elementary Spanish, elementary German, college algebra, Old Testament history, inorganic chemistry, sociology, English composition, history, secondary education, intermediate French, intermediate Spanish, intermediate German, trigonometry, New Testament history, general science, economics, English literature, psychology, and elementary education.

TRACK MEN SNARE 'GATORS IN CLOSE CONTEST SATURDAY

'Red' Potter Wins Intramural Tennis

Beta Kappa Star Takes Singles Championship. Teams Being Chosen For Doubles Contest.

The singles division of the Blue Key brought to a conclusion Saturday afternoon when "Red" Potter, Beta Kappa ace, defeated Kappa Alpha Norman Creech, 6-2, 7-5, for the intramural singles championship of the campus.

After losing the first set, Creech seemed destined to make a comeback and smashed over four games to make the score for the second set love-4. But Potter seemed to have ideas of his own and flashed through to his 7-5 win.

The doubles tournament is to start this week. In addition, plans are being completed for an intramural baseball tournament to start within the next week.

The standing of the organizations is now as follows: Kappa Alpha—15½; Pi Kappa Phi—12; Pi Kappa Alpha—11; Alpha Lambda Tau—7; Beta Kappa—7; Spencer—2.

The value of the first four places was cut in half for the singles tournament because of the fact that the doubles are yet to be played.

Frank Johnson, third in the singles, contributed two points to the Alumni score; and Harris Gray gave Spencer its first two with his fourth place.

"P" Club To Give Dance Saturday

The annual Block "P" ball will be held on May 4th in Copeland hall, according to Jimmy Seagle, president of the club. This is to be the first dance sponsored by this organization and it is being looked forward to as being one of the most gala events of the college social calendar. The date was decided on as being very appropriate, considering that the state track meet will be held that day.

Many bids have been sent out over the state to other clubs and individuals and a merry crowd is expected to attend the dance. There will be many young ladies visiting the campus for the track meet and it is anticipated that they will remain for the social event in the evening.

Don McDonald and his orchestra have been secured for the dance. Script will be one dollar.

1935 Catalogue Now Available

The 1934-1935 issue of the Presbyterian college catalogue containing the announcements for 1935-1936 has been issued. It is much the same book as last year's.

In the faculty section, Professors Martin and Lothery are replaced by Dr. F. W. Cooke and Dr. E. M. Berry. Dr. S. C. Hays and Dr. D. O. Rhame, Jr., have replaced Dr. J. W. Davis as college physician.

Another interesting change is in the section on honors. It reads: "A student's rank in class is determined by dividing the number of quality points he has earned by the number of semester hours for which he has registered. In estimating class standing, however, one quality point is deducted for each semester hour in which the student receives a grade of "E." Students who average 3.5 or more are graduated summa cum laude; those who average 3 are graduated magna cum laude; those who average 2.5 are graduated cum laude."

One of the few changes in the list of courses is the addition of a course in practical accounting and the dropping of the course in advanced rhetoric and composition.

The fees remain the same as this year.

Last Event Decides Winner In 67 to 59 Victory Over Visiting Florida Cinder Artists.

First and second places in the 880-yard run, last event of the day, clinched for P. C. the long end of a 67 to 59 score against the University of Florida here Saturday.

At several times during the meet the score was deadlocked, but the superiority of the Blue Hose in the track events proved too much for the visitors. None of the times were outstanding. However, Brown, Florida, put the shot 43 feet, 9 inches, within slightly less than two feet of the South Carolina state record.

Joe Bradley won the hundred in 10.1 seconds with Yearout a bare two feet behind at the tape. In the 220 event the tables were reversed with Yearout placing first and Bradly a close second. The time, 22.6 seconds, was not particularly fast, but it proved that Paul Yearout will be a strong contender for Clemson's Ford in the state meet.

Bill Clark, Hose middle distance man, won both 440 and 880 distances to tie with Brown of Florida for high scoring honors, each taking 10 points.

In the longer stretches, Adams and Hudson were the mainstays of the P. C. outfit. Adams captured the mile with a good lead at 4 minutes, 45.1 seconds. With the fact in mind that the state record is 4:37.2 and that Adams did not seem to be especially pushed, it looks now as if he will give Cardwell of Carolina and Green of Clemson plenty of entertainment on the four laps.

Colin Hudson, running for the first time in several weeks, was far ahead at the finish to take the two mile in good time.

Both high and low hurdles were won by Schuchst of Florida. Bill Thompson had trouble regulating his stride for the 220 flight, but redeemed himself with a first in the broad jump.

The remaining first place for P. C. was contributed by Underwood and

"Y" Remains In National Group

The weekly meeting of the local Y. M. C. A. was given over to an open forum discussion last Thursday night of the question, "Should the local unit of the Y. M. C. A. withdraw from the national organization of the Y. M. C. A.?" The response was mediocre and the discussion was rather half-heartedly and one-sidedly in favor of retaining the present status. The move to remain in the national "Y" was carried by a practically unanimous vote.

E. J. Arnold, president of the Presbyterian College Y. M. C. A., read the recommendation of the executive committee which was that relations should be severed with the national organization because of three primary reasons. First, because of the present lack of an evangelical program of the national movement; second, because of the insufficient return for the money invested as dues; and third, because a local group termed "Student's Christian Movement" would be more beneficial and more real to the students.

The recommendation was voted down. The chief objections centered around the fact that the national "Y" did offer certain definite advantages to the undergraduate, that there was apparently no real or essential expense required by the national "Y," that the P. C. "Y" could plan its own prgram of action regardless of the national tendency, and that a local organization of "S. C. M." offered no specifically new and reforming elements in its plan.

This question had been previously discussed and apparently settled but because of student opinion it was unanimously voted to re-open it for further discussion and a new vote. The result was that the Presbyterian College Y. M. C. A. is still a member of the national organization and is rightfully titled Y. M. C. A.

Thought For the Week

The Spirit of Worship

The search for truth is a distinctive attribute of the human family. This fact is evinced by the vast store of knowledge that has been amassed since ambitious man first began to blaze a trail of learning in the world. Man, by nature a progressive being, is forever seeking to enlarge his faculty of perception to arrive at a comprehension of the fundamental Source of all earthly reality. Experience has shown that the principal avenue by which the mortal may approach the Immortal is through the medium of worship.

Real worship should consist of a reverent attitude of concurrence with the Divine Will which is the basis of the believer's faith. People congrgeate in places of worship at stipulated periods because an assembled body is designed to work for the greatest common good. Undoubtedly the most impressive and perhaps the most beneficial means of paying divine homage is the church servcie, in spite of the fact that irreverence, secular music, and the inconsistent lives of some members tend to contradict the very principles upon which the church is established. The sincere worshiper, however, does not confine his practice of reverence to the limits of public ceremony. Communion with God may be realized through private devotion, earnest prayer, love for our fellow-man, and genuine appreciation of natural marvels which reflect the glory of the Creator of the universe. Jehovah made Himself known to the prophets of Biblical times because they lived in close agreement with His divine plan for their lives. An open soul and a bit of honest intellectual observation will reveal to us today phenomena even more amazing than Moses' experience with the Burning Bush. In all events, the spirit of true worship requires that the heart of man be complete harmony and direct accord with the great Supernatural Truth which antecedes all visible worldly miracles.

Shall He Leave Us?

It is with a great deal of anxiety and fear that we consider the possible acceptance of the call to Purity Presbyterian Church at Chester that Dr. McSween received on the tweny-first. We feel that the loss to this institution would be inestimable if he were to go.

Our president has for seven years faithfully served our college—seven years that have been the most grueling in its existence. In that time this world has experienced the worst financial depression in its history and the school has faced crisis after crisis, financial and otherwise. Carefully and safely he has led us through all of these. And he has done more than merely lead us through times of stress—he has improved the school as he led. A new gymnasium has been added, one that is among the best in the state. A new track has been given. The teaching staff has been increased. The indebtedness of the institution has been greatly diminished.

But his work has not been solely in the material things of the college. He has given the work of the students and the faculty a new and firmer, more determined tone. He has led us—on occasion against our will—but he has seldom led into paths that we have regretted taking. He [illegible] a personal and intimate relation [illegible] Are still [illegible] But we believe that the honest, clear-thinking men of this college will realize that they were done with our interests and not his at heart.

When we consider the possibility of his leaving we are considering the possibility of losing more than a college president, the possibility of losing a friend.

We would not attempt to dictate to him, in any way, the course through which he shall steer his life. We are confident that what he does, he will do in an earnest attempt to serve his God. But we do express the sincere hope that he will find it possible to remain with us.

A Dark Blot

It is lamentable that there was so little interest shown in the recent election for Senior Councilman. This election filled an office that affects, to some extent, every man in the student body, and affects him vitally. That such an election must be carried over to the second day so that a quorum of the students will cast their votes is a manifestation of a lack of interest on the part of the students in their college, its student administration and themselves.

May such things never happen again. May this blot of lack of interest be forever wiped from the record of the student body of Presbyterian College.

NOTES AND SHADES

Monday and Tuesday—"David Copperfield."—A picture honestly rating superlatives. The most faithfully executed and beautifully acted production in our experience, with enough fine individual performances to star in six pictures. A first deep bow to Charles Dickens for the magnificent story, in which each character appeared to be an old friend, so long and vividly have they lived with us. A bow to Hugh Walpole, Howard Estabrook and George Cukor who adapted and directed with such brilliant clarity that not once do we confuse any of the numerous characters. The young David Copperfield is played by Freddie Bartholomew with such sensitive feeling and exquisite diction as we never hoped to see or hear. Elizabeth Allan is his helpless and lovely young mother whose death leaves him an orphan at the mercy of a tyrannical stepfather and aunt, admirably executed by Basil Rathbone and Violet Kemble Cooper. W.C. Fields is Mr. Micawber, in the flesh, "waiting for something to turn up"—and something did. Edna May Oliver turns in her prize performance, Roland Young is distinguished as Uriah Heep, the humble hand-wringer to the letter. Maureen O'Sullivan is a lovely Dora, the child-bride. And Peggoty, done with sympathetic artistry by Jessie Ralph, and her old-salt brother is played to perfection by Lionel Barrymore. Frank Lawton is David grown and David realized. The long cast has been superbly chosen, with every smallest part perfectly delineated. The story is like fresh air, for none of the people in it are at all complex. They are all-good, all-bad, or crazy. Lennox Pawle leaves an unforgettable portrait of Mr. Dick, Madge Evans as Agnes, whom David finally marries. This is an incomparable evening in the theatre, and one that will live with you for years. It is an MGM production.

Wednesday—"The Great Hotel Murder."—This is the old reliable sure-fire Edmund Lowe-Victor McLaglen stuff, but a speedy tempo and top-notch direction lift it from the ordinary class. McLaglen is a dumb house-detective in a hotel where Lowe writes detective fiction. A guest is poisoned, every one is suspected and you guess what happens. William Janney, Mary Carlisle furnish the romance. C. Henry Gordon, Herman Bing and others lend good support in this Fox film.

Thursday—Aline McMahon in "While the Patient Slept."—This First National production again presents Aline McMahon and Guy Kibbe in another one of their co-starring vehicles. It is fair entertainment but cannot touch their previous "Babbitt." Aline is a nurse and Guy is a detective. Of course, Aline solves the mystery and gives Guy the credit and in return gets Guy for a husband. There is a good supporting cast including Henry ONeil, Patricia Ellis, Robert Barratt, and Lyle Talbot.

Friday—Kay Francis in "Living on Velvet," with George Brent and Warren William. No review available.

WITH THE GREEKS

A large number of attractive girls from the town of Clinton enjoyed the social affair given by the Pi K. A.'s last Saturday night. A few of the large number present, were as follows: Misses Mary Howze and Bebe Dillard, Agnes Sheely, Hazel Boland, Beverly Davis, Catherine and Laetitia Jones, Medora Browning, Mary Workman, Miss Jane Brogdon of Lander College, also enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

Kappa Alpha social fraternity has recently initiated two more men into active membership. The pair are H. P. Brown, of Kingstree, and Buck Patterson, Moultrie, Ga. The latter earned his freshman numeral in football last season.

THE PARADE GROUND

Well, Inspection is over. Once more, things become normal and the corps returns to every-day activities. According to the Assistant P. M. S. & T., this inspection was the best in several years. He says that the parade on Tuesday was the most uniform and the best executed parade that has been held during this three years at this school. The uniforms were gorgeous—if such is possible. All brass, shoes and leather was shined to perfection. The whole battalion kept step during the parade, a thing without precedent. It was a glorious occasion, and the corps rose to it like true soldiers. Presbyterian college has maintained its rating of "excellent," a rating which it has kept for six years now. The military department has a perfect right to feel elated.

When the inspector passed through the ranks as he inspected the whole corps in general, no one was disappointed except Jack McAlpine, of the second platoon of "C" Company. When the inspector reached the first platoon of his company, Jack began to swell. When Boatwright had been through the ranks of that platoon Jack looked like a peacock on parade. However, much to poor Jack's chagrin, the Cap'n turned around, and, without giving the second platoon of C Company so much as a glance, walked away. Upon seeing this, the poor fellow who had practiced inspection arms for five weeks in anticipation of this event and had his name, the number of his rifle, and the name of the Secretary of War on the tip of his tongue right ready to spiel them off, began to droop and sag, and when it became evident that the inspector was not coming back at all, his eyes filled and his mouth quivered, but his true soldiery qualities overcame this moment of emotion, and after one of Jack's peculiar throat clearings, no one could ever have told that he was on the verge of tears, fainting, and a complete mental and physical relapse.

When the Juniors were on the carpet, Boatwright asked the prominent Hank Wilson what the right guide of a platoon would do if the command right turn were given. Hank looked at him with his cool nonchalent air for a moment, and then said, "He would face to the right in marching, mark time, hesitate a little bit, and then march off slowly." Now unless military regulations have changed a great deal since day before yesterday, that answer is not exactly correct, but we are assured that so convincing is Hank that the inspector now has decided that previous regulations were wrong, so look in the books next year and see if perhaps Hank has not revolutionized right turn.

When the four classes were called out in front of the companies to be questioned by the inspector, each of the poor unfortunates stood shivering and shaking, clasping his hands behind his back, opening and closing his fingers in nervous anxiety. There seems, however, to be one courageous man in the entire corps. Buck Marx, in the automatic squad, stood up under fire as a dent and assured as a duck in water. According to Buck's own statement later, the inspector has now found a man who invented the automatic rifle, and Buck also says that there is nothing to get worried about, as he knew everything knowable about the automatic rifle, and besides Boatwright was just another man.

Captain Wysor and Blanton were very effective in gesturing. When the inspector's back, to those being inspected. When the inspector asked Garrett to name the different weapons, Garrett named the rifle, the automatic, and then began to look around trying to think of other weapons on taking his eyes from the inspector his shoes, he noticed that Captain Blanton was signaling "Cease fire" so he smiled and told the inspector that he had named all of the weapons. "Very good," Captain Boatwright.

Cadet private Anderson was very unfortunate during this inspection. He was forced to drill a squad for Boatwright. For a freshman, Anderson was fair. He managed to keep his squad going in the right direction several times, and a fair percentage of the commands were correct. According to an eye witness, only two of those commands were given with the right foot.

The P. M. S. & T. has taken a vacation from duties here, and has just returned from Staunton, Virginia, where he has spent the last few days. The Captain was very anxious to take several days off just now, as the weather during those days would be good it is a pity that he has to miss his golf with the president. It would be that he will not have such an excellent chance to display his ability again, for there are rumors that our president is going to leave.

The Juniors are now shooting pistols on the outdoor range. This is a very dangerous procedure, and students are hereby warned and requested to stay away from the firing practice grounds. General safety demands it. The Assistant P. M. S. & T. says that he expects to see a great many toes among the feet during the coming week for he will them seem to delight in pointing their weapons at their feet. Judging from the sizes of the shoes worn by the juniors, there is a great amount of matter to be lost before any real can be noted.

Furman Falls Before Blue Hose, 10 To 2

"Lefty" Suggs rose to brilliance as he subdued the Furman nine with a varied assortment of portside heaves and Presbyterian advanced another notch in the Palmetto league standings by virtue of a 10 to 2 win over the favored Hornets.

Suggs, ace of the Blue Hose hurlers, let the Hurricane down with four hits, two being of the scratch variety. His mates hammered out eleven hits and performed meritoriously afield to aid him in turning back the team that had previously trampled the Presbyterians by a one-sided score on the home lot.

Only Evans of the Calvinist lineup failed to account for a hit, and Suggs, Holcomb, and Forehand collected a pair each. Holcomb, coming out of an extended batting slump, scored three times with a double, single and walk. Langston, the Furman backstop, chalked up two of his team's hits and was responsible for both of their runs.

The victory over Furman was the fourth win for the Hosemen in their last five starts and put them in fifth place in state competition.

Score by innings:

Blue Hose Down Newberry, 10-4

Blasting out seven runs in the third inning, the Blue Stocking baseball team defeated a strong Newberry aggregation, 10 to 4, Friday at Newberry.

During the second innings things did not look so good for P. C., as the Lutherans slammed in two runs on Horne's error. In the third frame, however, the Calvinists began loading the bases. Red Wyatt, flashy third baseman, came to bat at this juncture and got a good single which was turned into a home run by poor play in the Newberry outfield. All told, seven men crossed the plate in this inning.

The Redskins made a better showing after their pitcher, Ingram, was replaced by Ward. The latter allowed only two hits for the remainder of the game. Johnny Suggs, stocky Presbyterian pitcher, was a tower of strength in the box, and allowed the Newberry men but four hits for the afternoon.

Score by innings:

Newberry ..... 021 000 100— 4

Batteries: P. C.—Suggs and Forehand; Newberry—Ingram, Ward and Weidman.

Blue Hose Netman In Disastrous Week

The Presbyterian varsity tennis team finished a rather unsuccessful week Saturday by losing to the Carolina Gamecocks, 7 to 0. Only one match, Parham's and Gregg's doubles, went to three sets. The action took place at Columbia.

On Tuesday, Furman likewise blanked the Calvinists; but on Wednesday Parham won a singles and McCutchen and Levi a doubles to prevent complete ruin when the Erskine netmen were victorious by a 5 to 2 score.

Today the Hose were to have met the Wofford outfit. The only other remaining match scheduled thus far is with The Citadel on Monday, the 13th, on the local courts. A week or two ago the Hose handed the Wofford Terriers a 5 to 2 drubbing, but lost to The Citadel at Charleston.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

Get a glass of water handy, pry open an aspirin box and then read this:

The University of Pittsburgh is likely to be investigated by the state legislature. And for what? Because they want to see if there is anything to the charges that the university is too conservative! And at the same time, efforts for campus investigations are going on in Illinois, New York, Wisconsin and now Minnesota. But they're against the radicalism alleged to be prevalent.

Not that it's important—but, anyway, the girls at the University of Washington (Seattle) affirm and insist that men look better smoking pipes than cigarets. Since girls now have taken up fags, men no longer appear very masculine smoking them, they have decided. We admire the honesty and discernment of one of these coeds. She suggests that the reason men look more masculine with pipes is that they have to thrust out their jaws to hang on to them.

Davidson Frosh Win Meet, 63-54

The Presbyterian college yearlings, in a closely contested meet, went down before the Davidson frosh tracksters to the tune of 63 to 54, Saturday afternoon on Johnson field.

Walter Beeman, Presbyterian rat who has been out only a couple of weeks, led his team in scoring, with 8 points to his credit. His height of 11 feet in the pole vault was exceptionally good for a freshman meet. Joe Commander breezed in to win the half mile in slightly over 2 minutes, 11 seconds, with John Wells Todd a close second. Macon Hipp, 210-pound behemoth, came through again to capture first in the javelin, and Joe Hollis won the broad jump. Two other winners were Caldwell and Power, who made firsts in the high jump and 440-yard run, respectively.

Freeman, of Davidson, was high point man for the meet, scoring a total of 13 points in the field events.

The summary of the meets follows:

100-yard dash: Harrison (D); Hollis (P); Bixley (D). Time, 10.6 seconds.

One mile run: Parcell (D); Gilkes (D); Seawell (P). Time, 5 minutes, 7.5 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles: Barrow (D); Wicker (D); Caldwell (P). Time, 17.7 seconds.

440-yard run: Power (P); Briggs (P); Graham (D). Time, 57.2 seconds.

880-yard run: Commander (P); Todd (P); Parcell (D). Time, 2 minutes, 11.4 seconds.

Creech Is Captain Frosh Tennis Squad

The recently organized freshman tennis team elected Norman Creech, of Moultrie, Ga., captain in a brief meeting on Thursday afternoon.

Although the season is well advanced, it is hoped that several meets can be arranged with rat teams of other state schools. The practice and training that members of the team will acquire, even in the brief time remaining, will be of great value in seasoning them for varsity work next year.

At the present time, three tentative matches have been arranged. The first, on April 27, will be with the Carolina frosh at Columbia. Then, on May 8 and 17, the rats will meet Wofford's first year men.

The squad now numbers nine men, but will probably be reduced later. The following are now on the freshman roster: Creech, Crosby, Woodward, Blackwell, Isom, Johnston, Patterson, Gray, and Witherspoon.

Citadel Successful Over Hose, 8 To 2

The Blue Stocking baseball team lost out to The Citadel's newly organized team last Saturday, the Bulldogs winning by an 8 to 2 count.

The first inning proved to be the ruination of the Presbyterians. With John Wilson on the mound for P. C., the Bulldogs scored six men. With this debacle over, however, Wilson tightened up and held the Cadets in check for the remainder of the game. The fourth inning netter two runs for the Stockings, but they were unable to overcome the lead their opponents had piled up at the first of the game.

Score by innings:

Presbyterian ..... 000 200 000—2
The Citadel ..... 600 010 01x—8

Batteries: Presbyterian: Wilson and Plowden; The Citadel — Onorato and Fowler.

Since The Citadel is not a member of the Palmetto Intercollegiate Baseball league, this game will not be counted in the Blue Stockings' state standing.

R. O. T. C. UNIT GETS "EXCELLENT" RATING

full strength rifle platoon under fire. Blank cartridges were used to make the combat appear completely realistic, and the squads behaved just as though under fire, advancing by squad rushes, by ones, and by twos. The actions of an advance guard and a point were also demonstrated.

The Sophomores and Freshmen put on their practical demonstrations on Tuesday after the combat problem was finished, the sophomores having their work with the automatic rifle and the characteristics of infantry weapons, the freshmen with first aid and map reading. The sophomores working with the automatic rifle, one of the most important weapons in the modern warfare, were required to know all the data concerning the rifle, to know its functions, and to be able to strip and assemble it in a very short time. They were also required to know the characteristics, uses, and disadvantages of infantry weapons. The freshmen were required to apply first aid to such common injuries and sickened conditions as broken bones, fractures, cuts, bruises, shocks, and snake bites. They showed the immediate actions to be taken in case of fire, drowning, or fainting. In map reading they were compelled to read correctly the signs, figures, and symbols of a military map. Throughout these inspections on Tuesday morning, all classes in the college were suspended, and full uniforms were worn all during the morning.

The outstanding events on Wednesday were the theoretical examinations covering all phases of military theory in all classes. The Juniors, however, had their practical demonstrations in the machine gun and in aerial map reading. These were perhaps the most difficult phases of the practical part of the inspection. The theoretical examinations covered seventeen subjects, the most important being Military History and Policy, Scouting and Patrolling, and Combat Principles of the Rifle Company. The average grade in all of these subjects was well over the requirements for the rating of "excellent."

This inspection will long be remembered at Presbyterian College as the hardest in the history of the school, and the best executed during the present administration. The combat problem and the other innovations will tend to make the annual inspection a more complete one every year, and the excellency of this year's parade is a mark for all succeeding classes to shoot at.

The national anthem will be played while the colors are raised, and then President John McSween will welcome the visiting teams. The first field event will be the one mile run at 2:30.

Medals will be awarded winners of first, second, and third places. The victory cup will be awarded to the captain of the winning team at 4:37, and the flag will be lowered at 4:40 P. M. to complete the meet.

Seven or more teams will be entered, with Clemson, Carolina, and Presbyterian given the choice as possible victors. The Tiger outfit has been undefeated in the state this year. Carolina has lost to Clemson and P. C., and P. C. has lost only to Clemson.

Each of the above mentioned teams holds five of the existing state records. Eight records fell last year and several will undoubtedly fall this Saturday. Folger, Clemson, has already run the low hurdles in less than the record for the flight. Bill Clark, Presbyterian, stands an excellent chance to smash his own record of 50.5 seconds for the 440 set last year. Green, Clemson, or Cardwell, Carolina, is expected to at least come within striking distance of the state mile record. If Colin Hudson, Hose two miler, is in top shape by Saturday, the 10 minutes, 13 seconds, record for the distance run may also topple.

With thrills galore in prospect for both field and track events, one of the largest crowds of the year is expected to witness the 1935 edition of the South Carolina state meet.

Harold Underwood To Play For Finals

The Blue Stocking

"ALL FOR P. C. P. C. FOR ALL"

VOLUME XVI PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE, CLINTON, S. C., MAY 6, 1935 NUMBER 28

BLUE HOSE WIN SECOND IN STATE MEET

HAROLD UNDERWOOD SIGNED FOR FINALS THIS WEEK-END

Pan-Hellenic Series of Three Dances Occupy Stage Coming Friday and Saturday.

This week-end old Copeland hall will once more respond to the beat of dancing feet as the Presbyterian college fraternities sponsor the final Pan-Hellenic festival of the year.

Harold Underwood and his Commanders will furnish the music for the occasion, and since Underwood established a reputation for his band during their performance at the Pan-Hellenic finals of last year, it is expected that a large number of out-of-town girls and visitors will make this by far the biggest event of the season.

Underwood has a twelve-piece band, an attractive torch singer and an up-to-date amplifying system, all of which makes his band even better than it was last year. He has been on the air recently from Knoxville, Tenn., and has furnished music in several notable social performances such as the Casino Ballroom, Memphis, Tenn.; Evansville Country club, Evansville, Ind.; Louisville Boat club, Louisville, Ky.; Gold Room, Hotel Richmond, in Richmond, Ky.; Girls Cotillion clubs in both Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tenn.; Ace Day dance at the University of Tennessee, and the Junior Prom at the same school.

The three dances in this series will be informal and a single ticket to the three will be $3.00. Bought separately they will be: $1.50 for the Friday night dance, 75c for the tea dance on Saturday afternoon, and $1.25 for the final dance on Saturday night.

This is the first series of dances sponsored by the new Pan-Hellenic council, but all indications seem to show that this will be the biggest social affair of the year. Around 250 invitations have been sent to dance lovers in this state and Georgia, and since the orchestra is well known in the section, a record-breaking crowd may be expected.

At the Friday night dance there will be four no-breaks, the second being a fraternity no-break coming before the intermission which has been fixed from 12 to 1. There will be two regular no-breaks at the tea dance, and three at the final dance on Saturday night.

Y. M. C. A. Off To Better Year's Work

The Y. M. C. A. is off to a bigger and better year than ever before. The programs planned for the coming year are excellent and will merit the attendance of the student body. It is up to the student body to back this organization. Every student is a member of the Y. M. C. A. and it is up to each individual to make or break the organization. The new cabinet is endeavoring to make the programs interesting to the members and to make the "Y" count for something once more here on the campus.

At a recent meeting it was discussed whether the Y. M. C. A. should remain here, on the campus, whether being a member of the National Y. M. C. A. was of value or not. It was almost unanimously voted, after discussion, that the organization should remain as a member of the Y. M. C. A. The fact that the membership in the "Y" has value to the students off the campus and through deputations from other chapters was brought out.

Now that the "Y" was almost lost and the students thought enough of it to want to keep it shows that at least the student body is interested in the work. But it is high time that a little more than words be used to show it. A little action in attendance of the meetings will do much more toward keeping this organization alive and working part of the campus life.

Delta Chi Alpha Elects Officers

National Christian Leadership Fraternity Chooses Bill Chalmers As Leader.

At a recent meeting of the local chapter of Delta Chi Alpha, National Christian Leadership Fraternity, the following officers were elected: Bill Chalmers, rising junior from Atlanta, Ga., president; Chester Keller, rising sophomore from Greenville, vice-president; Cliff McLeod, rising sophomore from Ocala, Fla., secretary and treasurer; George Collett, rising sophomore from Canton, Ga., chaplain. All these men are recent initiates into the order, having been chosen on the basis of outstanding Christian leadership on the campus.

Keller and McLeod represented the local chapter at the National Convention of Delta Chi Alpha held in Columbia on May 4th. They were accompanied by R. R. Potter, vice-president of the national order.

Andrews To Lead Scientific Group

J. P. Todd Chosen To Receive Scholarship Key Offered By Grand Chapter of Fraternity.

The Chi Beta Phi Honorary scientific fraternity installed its officers for the year 1935-1936 at the regular meeting last Tuesday night. The following officers were installed: E. R. Andrews, president; C. G. Chapman, vice president; T. R. Barringer, Jr., corresponding secretary; F. A. Walter, recording secretary; T. P. Valley, treasurer.

Mr. Andrews is a rising senior and an outstanding member of the student body. He is a member of Sigma Kappa Alpha Honorary Scholastic fraternity, vice-president of International Relations Club, and treasurer of Beta Kappa Social fraternity. He is also assistant in the chemistry department.

C. G. Chapman is a member of Beta Kappa Social fraternity; T. R. Barringer is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Social fraternity; and F. A. Walter and T. P. Valley both are members of Kappa Alpha Social fraternity.

Following the installation of officers, J. P. Todd, a senior from Clinton, was chosen to receive the Scholarship Key awarded annually by the Grand Chapter of the fraternity. The key is given for outstanding scholarship in science. Mr. Todd was an assistant in the chemistry department. He is past vice-president of the scientific fraternity, a member of Sigma Kappa Alpha Scholastic fraternity and a member of Alpha Kappa Pi Social fraternity.

Block 'P' Club Ball Enjoyed By Many

On last Saturday the Block "P" club gave its annual ball in Copeland hall. The music was furnished by Don McDonald and his orchestra. There were many visitors at the affair, an invitation being extended to everyone at the state track meet that afternoon.

The music by McDonald and his orchestra, made up of Presbyterian college boys, was enthusiastically received by the dancers.

A large number of girls were present, and the occasion was in every way a success.

This was the first dance that the Block "P" club has sponsored, and its success indicates that it will become a permanent part of the social affairs of the school.

P. C. Debaters End Successful Season

Affirmative Teams Completes Its Schedule With Perfect Record. One Defeat For Negative.

The Presbyterian college debate teams have closed a very successful year. The affirmative team met no defeats in completing its rather difficult schedule, the negative suffered one.

The affirmative opened the season against Erskine college at Due West. Then they journeyed to Rock Hill to bring back the intellectual scalps of the girls at Winthrop. That same week found them taking the Furman arguers in camp here. And the next night found a strong Southwestern University team going down in defeat. After two weeks pause they snared the debaters from Wofford college, and a week later closed the season with a victory over the Citadel.

The negative team lost the original encounter to Erskine. Following this a jinx of misunderstandings and canceled engagements robbed them of the fruit of their work. Through negligence on the part of the debating officials at Furman University, they debated the Hurricane in a non-decision combat. An argument with the Textile Institute was canceled by the boys from Spartanburg. A misunderstanding at Wofford brought about another non-decision encounter. Winthrop's affirmative, through another misunderstanding, failed to appear for the negative debate here. Citadel failed to sign for a negative contest.

The members of the affirmative team were: Hank Wilson, who has the enviable record of never having lost a collegiate debate; Edgar Stanton, who gave his splendid support in four of the six affirmative encounters; and Henry Calvert, who put up a capable argument against Furman and Southwestern.

The negative group was made up of Hugh Holman and Charles Carson. Both of these men were debating their first inter-collegiate season, and they show promise of becoming outstanding in forensic circles in this state. Carson is a senior and thus will not be able to debate next year. Holman, a junior, is expected to be a definite asset to next year's team.

Clemson Freshmen Win Track Title

Bengal Cubs Set Example For Big Brothers. Four New Records Set. Furman Runner-Up.

A quartet of records in time, distance and height fell before the onslaught of a horde of cinder artists, as Clemson college's Cub trackmen led the field to clinch the championship with a total of 44 points in South Carolina's annual freshman competition.

South Carolina took second honors with 41, followed by Furman with 37 1-3. Presbyterian's Baby Hose placed fourth with a total of 28 1-3 points. Wofford came fifth with 13, and Newberry's Papooses trailed with 1 1-3.

Rohr, Furman flash, covered the century in 10.1 seconds to set a new record, and Commander, of Presbyterian, ran the 880 in 2 minutes, 6 seconds to create a new time in this event. Joe Hollis made a leap of 21 feet, 6 inches to better the distance of Bill Tompkins in 1934. McCoy, of Clemson, set the final record of the day by running the 220-yard dash in 22.8 seconds.

The outstanding performer of the meet was Kitchens, who contributed 16¼ points to the Clemson score. Kitchen captured three first places and took high scoring honors, with Rohr, of Furman, following in his wake with 10¼.

A good crowd witnessed the spectacle, which preceded the varsity meet. The amplifying system added much color and kept the spectators in touch with all proceedings. Hank Wilson and "Pluto" Ross, who efficiently served as announcers, added a humorous note with occasional witty deliverances. In the two-mile run the selection, "With Every Breath I take" was played over the amplifying system in dedication to the long range artists.

The summary follows:

One-mile run: Won by Frowein, Presbyterian; Joyner, Clemson; Morgan, Carolina; Smith Wofford. Time, 4 minutes, 58.3 seconds.

440-yard dash: Won by Kitchens, Clemson; McCrary, Clemson; Neal, Wofford; Acker, Furman. Time, 53.7 seconds.

Shot put: Won by Babb, Furman; Spigner, Carolina; Scott, Furman;

Catalogue Tells Of Early Days Of P. C. When Board and Fees Were $100

"No liquor is sold within the limits of Laurens County" is the optimistic announcement of the "Catalogue of the Officers and Students of Clinton College for the First Collegiate Year, ending July 8, 1881." "The health of the town is unsurpassed," it goes on. "The community is almost without exception a church-going, Sabbath-keeping community."

There is a certain sentiment attached to an old catalague. It throws into bold relief the progress which has been made. "Clinton College" was at that time a public school with academic aspirations. Professor W. S. Lee, former head of the "Clinton High School," was now "principal" of the newly organized institution, while Dr. Wm. P. Jacobs, the founder, was president of the association which owned it.

The college consisted of "a neat two-story building 30x50" already — but it was ambitious. It wanted to "add two wings, each the size of the present building," and also to endow two professorships "so as to pay a minimum salary of $800." Not content with this audacious goal, the College Association was determined "to endeavor to raise, at the earliest possible moment, the hum of TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS." Possibly the compiler of the catalogue had had previous experience with patent medicine almanacs, for he concluded it with testimonials from "Ex. Gov. and Chief Justice W. D. Simpson," the "State Superintendent of Education, Mr. Hugh S. Thompson (later governor for two terms), and the "Honorable D. Wyatt Aiken, members of Congress" —all of them took "great pleasure in recommending Prof. Lee and his cause" in fund-collecting.

The "Scheme of Studies" was curiously like that of a modern high school. Freshmen studied arithmetic, took up algebra and Caesar in the sophomore year, and finished as seniors "Davies Trigonometry" and [illegible] ero.

Announcing as its purpose "to [illegible] up pure religion," even its few sciences such as geology, zoology, chemistry and astronomy were to "be examined as far as necessary for [illegible] of our religion," [illegible] from a Christian standpoint." [illegible] and the "so-called 'liberalism' of modern philosophy" was to be avoided. Truly "Clinton College" was intended to "send out graduates whose lives shall be epistles to Christ's honor and glory."

Under the "college family" system, out-of-town students were to be taken into "the professors' (Professor Lee) homes," boarded and instructed for a flat $100.00 paid quarterly in advance —but as only three of the fifteen "freshmen" and "sophomores" were listed other than "Clinton," and two of those "Laurens County," "the professors" were evidently not overcrowded at the time. $36 a year, tuition, and board in the village at $12 a month could also be arranged. A preparatory

TIGERS SWAMP FIELD OF SEVEN

Clemson Amasses 71 5-6 Points To Lead Scoring In Annual Contests Here Saturday. Four New Records Set.

Clemson College leaped to an early lead in the varsity finals to pile up 71 5-6 points and easily outdistance Presbyterian, runner-up with 39 points, in the eleventh South Carolina inter-collegiate track and field meet held here Saturday.

The Tigers captured 6 first places, broke two of the four state records which toppled, and broke the record held by P. C. for the highest number of points amassed in a state meet. Carter, Clemson hurdle and high jump ace, was high scorer with 13 points, King, Furman, was second with 10 1-3, and Clark, P. C., and Ford, Clemson, tied for third honors with 10 points each.

The remaining teams entered trailed in the scoring list in the following order: Furman, 17 1-3; Carolina, 15; Newberry, 7; Wofford, 6; and Citadel, 4 5-6.

In the trials Friday, Presbyterian's Clark sprinted the 440-yard dash in 50.2 seconds to better his own record set last year by .3 of a second. Then in the finals Saturday Clark easily won the quarter in 50.9 seconds and out-ran Green, Clemson, on the home-stretch of the 880 for a time of 2 minutes flat.

The phenomenal last lap sprint of Neal Robertson of Wofford proved too much for Blue Hose Colin Hudson in one of the most spectacular races of the afternoon, the gruelling two mile. Robertson allowed Hudson to set the pace for seven laps and then ran the last 300 yards in one of the finest bursts of speed ever seen on the local track. The time for the event, 10 minutes, 27 seconds, was, however, far short of a state record.

Blackwell, of Clemson, heaved the javelin 184 feet, 9½ inches, to smash the old record held by Freeman, of Presbyterian, by 8¼ inches. Another Clemson man, Carter, covered the 120-yard flight of high hurdles in .1 of a second under the state mark. King, of Furman, threw the discus 1-16 of an inch over the state record, for the fourth record-toppling performance of the meet.

Ford, of Clemson, won both the 100- and 220-yard dashes, barely nosing out Bradley in the former and Yearout in the latter. Ford's time of 9.8 seconds is within .1 of a second of the record set last year by Bryan Hutt, of Carolina, for the century distance.

The most disappointing event of the afternoon, from the P. C. standpoint, was the mile relay. As neither Yearout nor Clark, numbers two and four of the state record team, were in the running, only Bradley and Winget of the 3 minutes, 27 seconds team were in the competition.

Bradley passed Herring, of Clemson, on the stretch and gave Forehand a substantial lead over Green, which he increased on the back stretch. Winget took the baton and led Wall all the [illegible] last stretch to contribute his bit to the [illegible] past seven years.

A colorful parade of the competing teams, led by the P. C. band, opened the meet in true Olympic style. The weather was extremely hot, but the systematic order in which the events were run off, the efficiency of the amplifying system, and the improvement made by the placing of the jumping pits in front of the stands, combined to make this one of the most successful state meets ever held in South Carolina.

The summary of the meet is as follows:

Thought For the Week

The Art of Morality

The thrill of combat is a quality that is strongly imbedded in the natural make-up of virtually every individual. The frontiers of progress in the forward march of civilization have been characterized by various physical hardships and mental perplexities which have severely tested the prowess of mankind. From an analytical standpoint, the substance of every moral struggle may be conceded to be the age-old essence of a conception of what is right, versus a conception of what is wrong.

Throughout the epochs of history the races of men have experimented in varied fields of enlightenment, forever seeking the hidden formula by which to gain supremacy over the elements of evil in the world. As man amplifies his code of ethics he begins to realize the utter insufficiency of artificial methods of overcoming evil. Consequently, he tends more constantly to place his steadfast reliance in the interpretation of power that is set forth in the Word of God.

Through all the bewildering trials which it has undergone during the centuries of its existence the Bible has emerged indisputably triumphant. The Scriptures were written by consecrated men who were inspired by the Holy Spirit to record in legible order the sacred prophecies and sublime principles which compose the believer's creed. Convincing testimony to its virtue of divinity is the eternal endurance of the Bible. It has been translated into more than nine hundred languages. Its leadership in circulation is unchallenged by any other book. Its literary excellence is unparalleled. Its inspirational potential is unapproached by any other publication. It stands supreme.

To the irresolute, the negative aspects of life which best should not be followed are vividly displayed in the Book of Books. To the searcher for truth, the Bible presents the positive precepts of life which are to be observed in order to realize complete success and genuine happiness in every course of activity. Truly th Bible is the perfect Guidebook which reveals to the sojourner in life the infallible secret of the art of upright living.

"Brotherly Love" To Die?

Almost daily there comes reports from this college or that that on its campus fraternities have begun to lose the prestige they once had. Seldom does a week pass without some great educator remark on the passing of the social Greek letter organizations.

It is reputed that they have reached the stage where they can no longer fill a place in the modern colleges; that they are hang-overs of an adolescent desire for clubs, that they are actually a menace to the educational system of the modern institutions of higher learning.

In these days of reports from the large Eastern universities, but we can determine the truth of these statements as applied to Presbyterian College.

The Greek letter brotherhoods are at Presbyterian College to stay. They fill a definite need on this campus. Primarily they offer social life to a large number of individuals, and a sane social life is essential to a well-rounded education. Secondly, they hold a determination to excell in extra-curricular activities. Consider almost every major office that is held by a student on this campus, and you will find that nine times out of ten the "man" elected to it has an added ambition to succeed, and having given him new determination, they set out to carve a way to his success. Thirdly, they are, to some extent, an impetus to better grades. Those who think that a fraternity regards scholarship as a trivial part of college life should attend a meeting of any group on this campus just after quarterly grades have been posted. The man who has made two "E's" finds himself in a rather uncomfortable position. To these three cardinal points might be added the acquirement of poise, the increase of self-confidence, the development of initiative, and the strengthening of character. And, of course, the very essential point of the increase of pleasure in these last four years before the onslaught of the world's cares.

Term Papers

When spring comes we are always cursed with that particular bane of the college student's existence—the term paper. Spring is in the air, dances are coming off, the heaviest part of the athletic schedule is taking place, things are to be put in order for the closing of school and we must spend our time on these lengthy re-writings of old themes.

We realize that the term paper is an essential part of our educational system and while we object to a small extent, still their existence is rather stoically accepted. We do, however, object to the time at which they come. They should be arranged to come when we students are not quite so pushed for time to accomplish the every-day tasks of college life. We know that we are merely criticising and are offering no plausible solution to the problem, but we suggest that those who run our schedules might well devote a part of their time to arranging a more satisfactory period for term papers.

NOTES AND SHADES

MOVIES

Monday and Tuesday—Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in "Chained." Splendidly written, acted, directed and photographed. Joan Crawford's employer, Otto Kruger, divorces his wife and gives up his children in order to marry her. But in the meantime, Joan has fallen in love with Clark Gable. Unable to tell Kruger, after his sacrifice, she marries him, only to have Gable come forward later and demand her release. Stuart Erwin turns in a grand comedy job in this MGM production.

Wednesday—"Shriek in the Night." A Monogram picture. No reviews available.

Thursday—"Murder On a Honeymoon."—Another adventure of that intrepid female Sherlock Holmes, Hildegarde Withers, whom Edna May Oliver has created so amusingly for the screen. And again James Gleason is the impulsive, slow-witted Inspector Poper. Mostly about a murder aboard a Cataline Island bound seaplane. This is a most amusing RKO-Radio film.

Friday—"Maybe It's Love."—A young couple, during their first six months of a hasty marriage—the girl desperate over lack of money and the boy burdened by the interferences of her family—is the theme of "Maybe It's Love." Ross Alexander makes the young husband an extremely interesting person, but the picture on the whole is frankly dull. Phillip Reed and Gloria Stuart are hampered by their parts. Frank McHugh, Ruth Donnelly, Helen Lowel and Henry Travers make up the cast for this First National production.

Saturday—"Behind Green Lights." A Monogram picture. No reviews available.

DID YOU KNOW THAT . . .

Tallulah Bankhead is starring in her third play on Broadway this season. The present vehicle which opened this week is "Something Gay."

George Arliss's latest film for Twentieth Century, "Cardinal Richlieu," is considered to be his best and has been held over for a second week at the Radio City Music Hall.

Elsa Lanchaster, who played Clickett in "David Copperfield," is the wife of Charles Laughton, whose latest film is "Les Miserable."

Grace Moore and Benjamin DeLoach (from Camden, S. C.) have been invited to participate in the silver jubilee of King George V. this year.

Ruth Chatterton is to return to the screen in the Columbia picture, "Feather In Her Hat."

Nino Martini, Metropolitan opera star, is to star in the Fox film, "The Romantic Waiter."

Mary Garden is to conduct a Master Class of operatic interpretation at the Chicago Musical college this summer.

Sophie Tucker, the last of the red-hot mamas, is appearing as person at the Hollywood cafe in New York. Miss Tucker was heard recently as guest star with Ben Bernie on his weekly broadcast, as was Ethel Barrymore. Miss Barrymore played Juliet to Ben's reeking Romeo. She also played a few lines in the game.

WITH THE GREEKS

The pledges of Pi Kappa Phi entertained the active chapter with a social affair last Saturday night. Several University of Florida track men also enjoyed the evening. The following young ladies from Clinton attended the affair: Misses Mary Workman, Mary Kate Hollis, Dolly Young, Bobbie Hardeman, Uncle Ferguson, Beverly Davis, Georgia Bee Hudgens and others. Several also came from Laurens. Among the group were Misses Helen Brownlee, Edna Switzer, Marion Gene Campbell, Margene Martin and Ina Bramlett.

THE PARADE GROUND

It is quite true that people often say injurious things unintentionally. It is also true that most people are more prone to criticize than commend. All of which means that in the last issue of this paper certain uncomplimentary things were said concerning the actions of one freshman Anderson during the recent inspection—things which were not exactly true. If Mr. Anderson's feelings were hurt in any way, apologies are hereby offered. Instead of putting on a poor performance for the inspector as might have been gathered from the article in the last issue of this paper, Anderson really performed exceptionally well for a freshman and is to be commended for his rather unusual exhibition—considering the fact that he is comparatively inexperienced in commanding a squad.

Instead of having a let-down after the difficult inspection, the corps has demonstrated its ability to take things as they come and be just that much better off. The drill during the past week has been exceptionally good. It seems that the Sophomores and Freshmen get along much better as instructor and pupil than Freshman and Junior. The explanation may lie in the fact that the Sophs are harder on the Freshmen than their former superiors, and that the rats particularly like hard drill and work, but if the answer is not to be found here, then it must be the weather—spring and the revival of old loves, etc.

The Juniors have really settled down to real work in preparation for their summer camp which is only a little more than a month away now. With their packs, ammunition belts, and tents aboard, these prospective campers seem rather odd here on our campus, but nothing will seem more natural in a few weeks. All of the Juniors are slated to seek their berths at the regular old camp in Alabama on about June 10—with the exception of Misters Todd and Wilson, the former going to a chemistry warfare camp, the latter to a camp near Washington near which resides the future Mrs. Wilson.

The pistol range is the scene of some most unusual shooting these days. It is not at all strange of the Juniors to fire away at get for five shots and then to find four of them. That the field behind the targ soon be rich in iron. It may in future years, if things do prove, we may be able to on our campus.

This week, probably begin morrow, the freshmen will dec selves—"Every man a general will have their own captains, corporals, and privates—that may be some privates. In the time, the sophomores will struction in how to instruct. seems to be need for that army all the time and ours ception.

Blue Hose Victors Over Gamecocks

Lefty Suggs' portside slants rang true and a confident collection of Carolina Gamecocks flapped weakly in the face of a 3 to 1 defeat, administered by the versatile Suggs and his Presbyterian college mates in a Palmetto league contest.

Bolick's timely single saw Captain Holcomb scampering across the plate for the first run, and the Stockings counted again in the fifth and sixth frames. Shorty Horne, who is leading the Palmetto league at bat, poled out a long single to score the second run and Bolick romped home in the sixth for the final marker.

As the Gamecocks came up for their final stab for victory in the ninth, it looked as if Pitcher Suggs would have the pleasure of applying the white-wash, but Clary spilled the bucket with a single to drive home Williamson with the lone Carolina dun. Higbe and Brogden, by virtue of a pair of singles each, led the hitting for their respective nines while Harvin and Evans grabbed fielding honors.

Suggs allowed only five hits and gave his best performance to date.

Score by innings:

Carolina .... 000 000 001—1
Presbyterian.... .... 100 011 00x—3

Batteries—Carolina, Henderson and Williamson; Presbyterian, Suggs and Forehand.

Local Tennis Men Win Over Wofford

Playing its next to last match of the season, the P. C. tennis team came through in fine style against Wofford at Spartanburg last Monday to win by a 4 to 3 score.

For Presbyterian, Captain Chalmers McCutchen took his man in tow early in the match to win the first singles victory for the Hose. Then Francis Gregg and Marion Perham duplicated to make the score 3 to 2, P. C.

With the possibility ahead that Wofford might win both doubles and thus take the match, McCutchen and Levi trounced the Terrier duet to clinch the victory.

Prince, of Wofford, defeating Levi in the singles, proved himself to be the ablest man on the Wofford team.

The last Blue Hose match of the year, with the exception of the state matches at Clemson on May 16, 17, 18, is scheduled with the Citadel on Monday, May 13, on the P. C. courts.

Blue Hose Wallop The Citadel, 16-3

P. C.'s batsmen solved the delivery of Onorato to hammer out 12 hits and whip The Citadel nine by a 16 to 3 score, in a return contest staged on the local field Thursday.

Johnnie Suggs starred in a dual role, that of pitcher and batter. He let the Cadets down with 8 hits and banged out a home run and two singles to walk away with honors at the plate. Higbe raised one to the ditch in centerfield for his third circuit swat of the season. Evans and Wyatt collected a pair of bingles each. McGee's triple and single gave him batting honors for his team.

The Hosemen errored frequently and showed the effects of playing their third consecutive game of the week. They had previously checked Carolina with a 3-1 win and lost to Clemson on Wednesday.

In Thursday's fracas which does not count in Palmetto League standings, the Hosemen tallied in every frame except the seventh. Only one man failed to scratch.

Score by innings:

Citadel 002 100 000 3
Presbyterian .. .. 113 221 06*—16

Batteries: Citadel — Onorato and Jackson; Presbyterian—Suggs, Wyatt and Forehand.

Presbyterian	7	5	.583
Furman	5	4	.556
Newberry	4	5	.444
Erskine	3	9	.273
Wofford	2	9	.182

Presbyterian completed her Palmetto League schedule Wednesday with a 5-2 loss to Clemson. "Shorty" Horne is leading the league batting average with a percentage of .405.

Clemson Wins, 6-3, On Local Field

Clemson's Tigers took advantage of weak pitching to hammer out a 6-3 win over P. C.'s Blue Stockings, staging a 4-run spree in the second, in the latter's second inter-collegiate appearance of the week. The game was played on the local field.

The Presbyterians, encouraged by a victory over Carolina the day before, pushed over a pair of runs in the opening stanza, but the Bengals came back in the second to wipe out the short-lived lead. From that point Pitcher "Bill" Durham settled down and held the Calvinists in check for the remainder of the afternoon.

Evans led the Hosemen at bat with a double and triple, and Horne collected a pair of singles to fatten his lead over his college league opponents. Lee, Clemson catcher, connected for a trio of singles to take top honors. Hinson and Durham hit safely twice.

Score by innings follows:

Clemson .... 040 000 011—6
P. C. .... 200 001 000—3

Batteries, Clemson, Durham and Lee. P. C., Mullinix, Wyatt and Forehand.

Five Teams Left In Intramural Tennis

Only five teams have withstood the process of elimination and are yet remaining in the Blue Key intramural doubles tennis tournament. Both the Pi Kappa Phi teams, a Kappa Alpha, an Alpha Lambda Tau, and a Spencer team are still undefeated.

It is likely that these matches will be played off within the next few days weather permitting, and the winners announced at an early date.

Intramural baseball, previously announced as beginning on Wednesday, of this week, will begin instead on Thursday, of this week, at 3:00 o'clock. Ten organizations are expected to enter teams. The games will take place on the varsity diamond, with varsity equipment. The postponement is due to the fact that the varsity meets Erskine on Wednesday and the equipment would be unavailable.

The two remaining divisions of the tournament, doubles tennis and baseball, will be of great interest because of the closeness of the race to date. The corrected list of the standings of the teams through Saturday, May 4, is as follows: Kappa Alpha—15½; Pi Kappa Phi—12; Pi Kappa Alpha—11; Beta Kappa—10; Smyth—2; Laurens—2; Spencer—1.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

Sample form of Canadian humor as published at the University of Manitoba (Winnipeg). It is in the form of a riddle: "What goes 99 plunk, 99 plunk, 99 plunk?" The answer, believe it or not, is "A centipede with a wooden leg."

Editors of the Daily Illini at the University of Illinois resurrected from their 1873 files this item: "Since the admission of girls to this university, not many boys go unshaved and uncombed, a still smaller number go collarless, and no one is found with his pants in his boots."

College Made Easy

They have introduced a new note into the library system at Bucknell University (Lewisburg, Pa.). No longer will spring-drugged coeds and males have to thumb along the shelves until they hit something that might suit their fancy of the moment. Their enterprising librarian has arranged all the books according to "moods." If you are feeling a bit sickish and unsettled, there's the love shelf; should you feel disillusioned and sour about it all, there's the gall and bitterness shelf. Emotions made easy, we should say.

There is no need for a lot of whangdoodle talk about cigarettes

—just plain common-sense

When you stop to think about your cigarette—what it means to you—here's about the way you look at it—

Smoking a cigarette gives a lot of pleasure—it always has.

People have been smoking and enjoying tobacco in some form or another for over 400 years.

Of course you want a cigarette to be made right. And naturally you want it to be mild. Yet you want it to have the right taste—and plenty of it.

In other words—you want it to Satisfy.

Scientific methods and ripe mild tobaccos make Chesterfield a milder and better-tasting cigarette. We believe you will enjoy them.

FAREWELL

Life is filled with strange paradoxes. We are sometimes glad when we are sorry. In severing my official relationship with the Student Body of Presbyterian College there is a very deep sense of real regret and I am truly sorry to say farewell. However, there is an abiding satisfaction in this regret because of the delightful associations and relationships which I have so thoroughly enjoyed and the memory of which I shall cherish with warm appreciation through life.

I am leaving my present post because of a sense of God's call in the call to the pastorate of Purity Church of Chester. I came to my work here because of a similar sense of call.

The fine spirit of loyalty whch has characterized the Student Body of Presbyterian College has been a constant source of inspiration to me. This spirit has been infectious, and, wherever I am and whatever I may do, I shall always carry with me a warm loyalty to the College and an abiding interest in her student activities.

Every student here in these past seven years has claimed a personal share of my affections and will always have a place in my heart. You will always be in a sense my sons and daughters and I shall count any opportunity of service a happy privilege always.

JOHN McSWEEN.

Kappa Alpha Wins Blue Key Trophy

Fraternity Makes Highest Score In Intramural Sports Program Sponsored By Leadership Frat.

Kappa Alpha fraternity baseball team defeated Spencer dormitory by a one-run margin to clinch first or second place in the baseball tournament and to outdistance Pi Kappa Phi for the Blue Key cup awarded to the organization winning the highest number of points in the intramural sports program.

Alpha Lambda Tau is still left in the running for the baseball title, but the outcome of a K.A.-A.L.T. game would not affect the final standings of the teams. It is expected that one of the two teams will forfeit or that the game will be played during the early part of the week.

Should Kappa Alpha win the game the scores of the three leading teams would be as follows: Kappa Alpha, 23½; Pi Kappa Phi, 21½; Alpha Lambda Tau, 14½. Should A.L.T. win, the only change would be that the K.A. score would be reduced to 24½ and the A.L.T. score raised to 19½.

The cup, which will be awarded to Kappa Alpha by Blue Key for one year, was presented to the leadership fraternity by L. A. McCall, Sr., of the class of '22, Florence, S. C. The trophy will be retained by K.A. until next year or until some other organization is victorious in the annual contest.

Throughout the sports program the fraternities have been predominant. At one time did a dormitory threaten to take the lead. Spencer, winning 5½ points, heads the list of dormitories.

L. A. McCall, Jr., president of Blue Key, stated that he was highly pleased with the conduct of the tournament and expressed his appreciation for the fine cooperation of the presidents of the fraternities and organizers of the

Returns To Ministry After Seven Years

Retiring Head of Presbyterian College Has Had Varied Career Since Finishing College.

In accepting, as he has felt led to, a call to the active ministry at Purity Presbyterian Church of Chester, Dr. McSween has added one more turn to a colorful and useful career. A very short while after his birth on Nov. 15, 1888, to John and Kate Sykes McSween in Timmonsville, he was in a buggy behind a runaway horse that dashed off the road and sent the small child flying from his seat. Providentially beside him on the carriage was also an older, Negro boy named John Hamilton, who caught the dress and saved the youngster, beginning the association of faithful servant and grateful master which has brought John as janitor here with the president.

Young John McSween grew up into the high altitude of stature and went to Davidson College where he received not only an A. B. degree and a greater love of athletics from active competition in football and baseball, but also an understanding of how college students think and like to be led.

In further preparation to answer the call of the ministry, he studied

R. O. T. C. Organization Honors Retiring President Friday. Student Body Makes Gift.

On last Friday afternoon at five o'clock, the Presbyterian College Reserve Officers' Training corps made its final appearance of the year in a dress parade in honor of the retiring president of the college, Dr. John McSween. The senior officers conducted the parade and then retired, leaving the juniors in command.

A great many of the friends of the college were present to witness the colorful event. Ofter the review, the band paradd, and Cadet Lieutenant-Colonel Boggs presented Dr. McSween with a present from the student body. The names and ratings of the advanced corps for next years were then read, and the senior officers took their places with the staff. An Unselfish Man...

He is leaving us. Dr. John McSween, a man who lives up to his own ideal—that of being a scholar and a Christian gentleman, has accepted a call to the Purity Presbyterian church at Chester.

He is going and he is leaving behind him the admiration and love of a student body to whom he has endeared himself in seven years of faithful conscientious, and unselfish service. In all his work here the outstanding characteristic has been unselfishness.

As a young man, he left a six thousand a year business to take a mountain church which paid only six hundred. Seven years ago he assumed the presidency of Presbyterian college, leaving one of the finest and highest paying churches in the south to take it. During his presidency here he has been offered a fifteen thousand a year job elsewhere and refused because he felt that his field of service lay with us. Today he is accepting a call to a church which while fairly large and influential in the state cannot compare with that church in Atlanta that has been holding a call open since last January.

It is hard in this age of selfishness, greed, and self-aggrandizement to believe that he doesn't have "his tongue in his cheek," that he is utterly sincere in his desire to obey the call of God and take up a new field of service without considering his personal good. Yet his action in all his service-filled life shows his utter sincerity and his faith in his God, and his will to do the wishes of that God.

Here he has gained the respect, admiration, and love of a student body. His sterling character has convinced over and over again three hundred boys that his aims were unselfish, his interests ours and not his, despite the fact that he was performing acts which we occasionally felt called upon to protest.

To you, Dr. McSween, we say that you are leaving a vacuum that will never be filled. No man could take your place in our hearts. We sorrowfully regret that you feel it necessary to leave us. Wherever you may be, you will always have our respect, admiration and love.

Another Unselfish Man

Presbyterian College is indeed blessed. We are losing a man who typifies to the fullest Christian service, unselfishness, and humility. We find ourselves with a man in his place who typifies to the greatest extent the highest ideals of the American business world, unselfishness, and a deep and genuine love for this, his alma mater.

William Plumer Jacobs, the man who succeeds Dr. McSween as president of this institution, is a business man without equal in this state. He is a leader in the cotton manufacturing business. He is a leader in religious advertising. He finds himself traveling by plane from place to place throughout the south and east, to take care of his vast business interests. And yet his love for his alma mater has led him to assume the difficult and arduous task of controlling its destiny.

To appreciate to the fullest the complete unselfishness of [illegible], one has but to consider the fact that a few weeks ago he was offered an important job at a salary of twenty-five thousand a year, and turned it down to aid his school.

He is starting a large scale improvement and reorganization of the institution that will take thousands of hours of his valuable time.

P. C. could have found no man who was so well-suited to direct its destiny at this crucial time.

To you, William Plumer Jacobs, we extend a heart-felt welcome, and we take this opportunity to express our appreciation for the unselfishness and the love for alma mater that your generous action has demonstrated.

A Prediction

(Note: This was written previous to Gold "P" announcements).

Soon the annual Gold "P" awards will be made. Every year an unprejudiced committee from the faculty elects the students worthy of these honors. As we go to press this week we are wondering just who will receive these awards this year. By reviewing and commenting here on the past year's work among the various organizations eligible to receive these honors we can easily predict those who are deserving of such laurels.

The president of the student body has certainly proved himself worthy of the high honor bestowed upon him by his fellow students during the past year. He has been a great leader, as is witnessed by his military honors and his strong backing in several valuable movements among the students. We feel that this position is deserving of such an award.

The college publications are one of the college's most valuable assets. The Blue Stocking takes first place in ability to aid the college. The editor-in-chief of the last staff did excellent work on the paper, winning honors in the South Carolina Collegiate Press Association. He showed himself worthy of his office and brought the college honor.

Next on the list comes the PaC-SaC. This is always a hard job and the student body feels that the editor this year showed originality in the splendid annual he has published for the students.

Next in line for honors is The Collegian. This publication has been the best ever, and there are perhaps two who should share honors on this staff. The literary editor has done excellent work in striving to make this magazine the best it has ever been and he has had the cooperation of the art editor. They have succeeded not only in this, but have put out the best magazine of all colleges in the neighboring states. The exchanges have proved this by comparison and comment in other publications. The editor-in-chief has given the college a publication worthy of its students, and to him we throw a laurel.

Then in ability to gain honor for the college comes the Glee Club and Orchestra. Most outstanding in these organizations has been the excellent work of the orchestra leader. The musicians, under his leadership, have succeeded in giving the college the best orchestra it has ever had.

Among the forensic organizations of the campus, only one deserves honors. In spite of poor management, the debating team has done its share toward adding glory to our Alma Mater. One member has been outstanding and would easily deserve such an award. But we feel that this student, being a junior, should receive his honors next year.

The Y. M. C. A. is eligible for such honors, but we do not feel that the work has been outstanding enough this year to merit an award.

The Blue Key honor fraternity, under the able leadership of its president, has done as much for the school as any other organization on the campus. The president, voted the most loyal student by his schoolmates, has during his four years' sojourn always striven to achieve those things which were to the best interest of the school.

NOTES AND SHADES

Herbert Witherspoon, who was recently appointed general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, dropped dead in his office at the opera house on Friday afternoon of last week. This horrible occurrence caused quite a furore in the musical world. Mr. Witherspoon had planned one of the most interesting seasons of opera that New York had witnessed in many a year. Whether his plans will be carried out or not is still undecided. The officials of the Met. are still so shocked by this untimely death that they have not as yet appointed a successor. Edward Johnson, the Canadian tenor; Edward Zeigler, one of the assistant managers; and John Erskine, chairman of the Juilliard School of Music, have been mentioned as candidates for the position but this is mere rumor. It is understood that some of the favorite foreign artistes have not been reengaged, but most of the American artists are to remain.

Grace Moore, whose second picture for Columbia, "Love Me Forever," has been engaged by MGM for her first picture since "New Moon." Miss Moore will sail for London Saturday for the Convent Garden season where she will sing in three performances of "La Boheme" as Mimi.

BOOK REVIEW

By Stuart Campbell

"HUNGRY MEN," By Edward Anderson

In an effort to discover new authors Doubleday Doran & Co. offered a prize to the best novel written by a contributor to STORY magazine. As a result of a tie two prize winners were selected. One of these is "Hungry Men." This is a story of economic derelicts, products of the depression. The principal character, Acel Stecker, is an unemployed musician. He is one of that vast army of hungry men swarming over the country. During Acel's travels we are taken to all the sections of the country.

Acel begins in Washington and goes to New York in hopes of finding a place in an orchestra there. He becomes associated with two sailors who are also jobless. One of them, Boats, is a Communist and is killed while trying to present a petition to the Seafarers Home to give men a free shelter and food. The other, Lundgren, dies of pneumonia which could have been cured if he had had proper care. After the scrape at the Seafarers, Acel leaves New York. He bums south and finally arrives in New Orleans. While walking down one of the streets he says: "I have walked down lots of streets just nosing around like this; in Frisco and Minneapolis; in Denver and St. Louis; in little towns like Paducah and Ranger and St. Augustine; I have kind of liked them all and sort ed to leave them. Each ne makes me forget the other. like girls." This illustrates th of being a part of the world a and change that alleviated th siness of his life.

The author seems to think th erica will work out its own of the depression instead of a ism. Everywhere Acel meet bums they discuss economic lems. They all are different opinions except those about ch charity. They have a conce those places where they are ed to a multitude of questio have to work at ninety cents

At the close of the book Au the solution to his own problem and two other jobless musician a three-piece German band. H a girl in a restaurant, also, t take the place of the girl he leave behind him in New York.

The characters in "Hungry are well drawn. The author Acel so intimately that you if he were one of your close Anderson's style is powerfu frankly realistic. There is ve plot but much searching narra dialogue. One cannot judge derson's place in the realm of ture by this book. It is merel ginning but a most propitious

The Seniors are awaiting the day of reckoning with impatience and apprehension. Colonel Moorman of Clemson will award the commissions on the final day. This class of seniors has been one of the best in the history of them. We hope that it is with the greatest regret that we part with them.

The Juniors are the favored ones of the campus right now. They are daily preparing for their six-week camping festivities this summer in Alabama. At the present moment, they are struggling and flinching with the 30-caliber—the infantryman's nightmare—but fortunately the back stop is "high, wide and thick." The entire junior class is looking forward confidently to recapturing the cup at camp this year.

The sophomores have been the sensation of the school in a military way this year—practically and theoretically, on the drill field, in the class room, and under the inspector's fire which was not at all cool. From the office of the P. M. S. & T. comes this startling statement, "The sophomores are really 'taking hold,' in fact they have progressed further than any previous class." A higher commendation than this could not be desired.

And now for the freshmen. During the last few weeks, when they have been allowed to drill themselves, the mettle of our first year men has been indeed revealed, their true worth has come to the front. In a recent test on close order drill, the highest mark in the combined freshm sophomore classes was made freshman. Of course, they are any means supermen, but at t time they are no longer hig heros or prep school stuck-up

The latest rumor has it th year will see another drastic in our military system, for it sible and probable that our P. M. S. & T. will take over t corps, leaving the advanced the supervision of the Assis M. S. & T. This would be n lightful for the Basics, but w prive the rising Junior class privilege of being instructed tain Wysor, and that is some be lamented indeed. It is fe hoped that the P. M. S. & T. lay this change for at least year.

Captain Wysor completes year with us with this fine the corps: "The spirit of co shown throughout the year cially during the inspection, evidence that there is no stude quite the equal of Presbyter lege. They can't be beat." to be outdone, Captain Blan a parting word, "This years' been the best during my thr stay here, and I regret since having to leave. However, soon be in school myself, and sympathize with each membe Presbyterian College cadet We thank Captain Wysor, a Captain Blanton the fullest s his coming student activities.

STUDENT OPINION

Reputaiton is essentially the heart and soul of the successful professional career. While here in college, where we have come ostensibly to prepare ourselves for an occupation in life, the esteem of our fellow students is a merit for which we all may appropriately aspire. There are sundry methods of inviting the respect of our associates, but one which is especially worthy of our consideration is the practice of cleanness of speech.

Few things, indeed, are more demoralizing than the influence of a person who engages himself continually in the despicable vice of violent, profane language. Outstandingly disspiriting is the hypocritical example of the young man, supposedly from a select family of the best Christian stock, who comes to a religious institution and vents his own passionate paganism in spasmodic outbursts of vile, blasphemous invective. Another disheartening inconsistency is the pseudo-ministerial student who curses his way through college (probably expecting to reform his depraved manner of behavior at some later date), in his general attitude plays the part of a Philistine to virtually every conventional code of religious ethics imaginable, and finally presents himself a candidate to preach the very Gospel message which his base conduct so utterly denies.

The motive which prompts people to use profanity is positively aline to the vital doctrines of orthodox religion. The habitual cursser's condemnation of things that he, in his weak insignificance, is absolutely powerless to create, is in itself the heighth presumptousness. The conse viler exemplifies disharmony Divine Plan for Christian cond God of the Christian religion a vaguely-defined, remote deit er. He is a personal God who near and real in the daily lif consecrated believer. William P. Jacobs To Succeed McSween

To Serve Until Full Time Head Chosen

By action of the Board of Trustees on Tuesday, May 7, William Plumer Jacobs was appointed temporary president of Presbyterian College to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Dr. John McSween who, for the past seven years, has filled that office.

Mr. Jacobs is a graduate of Presbyterian College, and is at present secretary and treasurer of the Print Cloth Group of Cotton Manufacturers, president of the advertising firm, Jacobs & Co., president of the advertising firm, Jacob's List, proprietor of the Carolina Pharmaceutical Co., and the Easpirin Company.

William P. Jacobs

He was born in Clinton, S. C., on August 18, 1893, to J. F. Jacobs and Elliott Duckett Jacobs. His grandfather was the founder of this institution and of Thornwell orphanage. He received his education in the Clinton Public schools, and graduated from Presbyterian College in 1914 with the degree of A. B.

In that year he became a member of the firm, Jacobs & Co., advertising, and in 1928 became president, a position which he still holds. In the same year he organized the advertising list, Jacob's List. In 1930 he became vice-president of Young Company, General Merchandise, and in 1933 became the proprietor of the Carolina Pharamceutical Company and of the Easpirin Company.

While at Presbyterian College he was largely responsible for the establishment of football and basketball here and at Thornwell orphanage. He is the donor of the Interference Trophy for Southern and South Carolina Inter-Collegiate conference football each year.

He is a past president of the South Carolina Building and Loan League (1926). He has served as vice president of the Southeastern Conference of Building and Loan Associations from 1930 until the present. He was an Executive Committeeman of the United States Building and Loan Association and has served as its secretary and treasurer since 1924. He was founder and vice-president of the Masonic Temple, Inc., Clinton.

His connection with cotton manufacturing have been wide and influential. As well as writing many books on the subject, among them, "Problems of the Cotton Manufacturer of South Carolina," (Jacobs Press, 1931), "The Cotton Mill Worker and His Needs," (Jacobs Press, 1934), and the "Extended Labor System," (Commerce and Finance, 1930), he has been secretary and treasurer of the Cotton Manufacturers Association of South Carolina since 1929, and chairman of the Mill Stores Committee, American Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

He has many connections with the drug trade. Besides owning two drug manufacturing companies, he is executive Manager and Founder of the Institute of Medicine Manufacturers, and has written an article on the subject, "Food and Drug Legislation," (Broadcasting Publication, 1933).

He is a charter member and president of the Clinton Chamber of Commerce, charter member and president of the Lakeside Country Club, Clinton, charter member and president of the Rotary Club Clinton. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Presbyterian College and past president of the Alumni Association of Presbyterian College.

He is a deacon in the First Presbyterian church of Clinton. And it was largely through his efforts that the beautiful new building was erected.

Wysor Tells 'Y' Of War Experiences

Captain R. E. Wysor, P. M. S. & T. of Presbyterian College, spoke last Thursday night at the weekly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on "Experiences in the World War." This concluded a series of "experience meetings" and was also the last regular meeting of the "Y" for this school year.

The speaker opened his talk by referring to the aid of the Y. M. C. A. in the recent war. He told of its work and of its claim for the distinction of victor. A review of war-time remembrances was then begun.

Private Wysor, the "green horn," went through a system of orientation before he was finally commissioned as a Captain in the great American forces in France. He went through a rather intensive and strenuous training in his initial debut at Fort Myers in Washington. After much of this preparatory work, the Captain with his "boys" went overseas and landed at Brest, France. Then began a series of adventures scintillating with excitement that one is tempted to wonder whether or not the horrors of war are not compensated by its reminiscences. The first home in France was a stable, which is considered a part of the house, and which very inadequately displaced the tents and barracks of the American soldiers. The first assignment was to occupy a trench prepared and used theretofore by the "Aninintes," a midget race. In the taking of position the new forces incurred some 25 or 30 casualties without a shot being fired. The men were bumping their heads on the low cross-pieces of the trench revetment. From this point on there was action. These experiences were divided generally into three groups. Those in the mountains, those at St. Mihiel, and those at Argonne.

In the mountains life was easy, for the officers. Sixteen-course meals served three times a day in the protection of a mammoth rock cave—was the routine. This soon gave way to St. Mihiel.

Here there was real action. Seven and eight nights of continual march, attacks without bearings, front line combat over miles of barbed-wire fields, fighting with the roar of the shells and the light of the flashes deadening all other sensations,—such was the experience at St. Mihiel. Many delightfully entertaining personal past occurrences were given by the Captain in the telling of this action.

Argonne was occupied on Oct. 4th and left on Nov. 11th. It was here that incessant and often isolated fighting was done by the "green" troops of replacement. War was "hell" at this point. The Muse river was crossed and hot fighting finally subsided and gave way to the armistice. A "sight-seeing" escapade comprised the trip back to the states, Brussels, Paris, London, Wales, etc., were all visited.

Captain Wysor concluded his interesting talk by cautioning that war was not glorious—but horrible. He stated that another war would probably occur because of the sensing of a taste for experience is prevalent in the ranks of youth. He closed by adding that "no formula or law will do away with war—it's too basic."

on at Columbia University, then in Columbia, and continued making valuable friendships there and from the infield of Carolina's baseball diamond.

Ordained in 1913, he has served with successive pastorates in Dillon, S. C., Rowland, N. C., Clemson, and Anderson, S. C., which, when interrupted by the war which saw him chaplain at Camp Sevier and a station on the Mexican border and in France. Then in 1928 he accepted the presidency of Presbyterian College.

During these seven years his energy and the confidence which his many acquaintances feel in him have greatly strengthened the financial security of the college, and contacts with his personality have attracted a great many of the more promising students who are at P. C. now. In the matter of scholarships, his policy of seeking able students as well as men able in other lines has worked well for the student body and will do so even more.

In private life Dr. McSween has for his wife the charming former Lina Washington Crews, who have for their living sons, Allen and Bill, and for their daughters Carolyn and Jean, who miss being belles of the college only by leaving a little too soon.

And besides these many objects of his attention, Dr. McSween has still found time to serve as active trustee of Thornwell orphanage here and Columbia Seminary in Decatur, Ga., and to work actively in Church affairs of the state as moderator of the South Carolina synod in 1929-'30.

P. C. Fighters Turn In Good Records

Presbyterian completed the boxing season with an enviable record of three victories, one defeat, and one tie. The Hose piled up 21 1-2 points in five matches to 18 1-2 for opposing teams.

The lone defeat of the year came in the first match. Citadel won two bouts and a forfeit to come out on the long end of a 4 1-2 to 3 1-2 score. The fights were marred by three draws—the bantamweight, the featherweight, and the unlimited.

The next week the favored Clemson Tigers lost 4 of 7 bouts, but won one match by forfeit, to gain a 4 to 4 tie with P. C. The most thrilling fight of the evening was Clark's victory over the Clemson lightweight, Dawson. At times the scrap resembled a free-for-all, but the science of the P. C. fighter decided the outcome.

Hitting the victory stride, Presbyterian punched out a 5 to 3 decision over Carolina's Gamecocks at Columbia on the following Friday. Both Clark and Cappelmann won technical knockouts over their opponents; but the most thrilling fight of the evening was in the bantamweight division. Seagle, P. C., and Taylor, Carolina, fought three rounds that left the spectators breathless. Taylor was awarded the decision, which met with little favor from the Hose section of the galleries.

The next two matches, both in the same week, both against the same opponent, and both with the same result, added to the Hose prestige. Georgia was the victim, both scores being 4 1-2 to 3 1-2.

The first matches, held in Presbyterian's Leroy Springs gymnasium, were packed with thrills. The highlight bout of the night was "King Kong" Cappelmann's knockout of Boulware, Georgia middleweight. In the middle of the first round "King Kong" went wild and stopped only after the referee had raised his arm in the victory signal.

In addition, Seagle won a T. K. O. over McEver, Georgia, and Clark duplicated over Ashford, Georgia. Bolick, P. C., and Jacobsen, Georgia, fought three rounds to a draw decision that was very unpopular with the spectators.

The final match of the year, Georgia at Athens, was almost a duplicate of the earlier fights. P. C. again won 4 1-2 to 3 1-2, and Bolick and Jacobsen again fought to a draw. However, both Clark and Cappelmann lost one bout each. Four seniors, Seagle, Bolick, Clark, and McCaskill, wore the mitts for the last time in intercollegiate competition.

Citadel is angling for one of three orchestras: the Carolina Gamecocks, Jimmy Poyner, or Johnny Long.

FOOTBALL SEASON PASSES IN REVIEW AS YEAR COMES TO END

A Presbyterian football team which seemed always to be groping for greatness but which never quite attained it, opened the season against Clemson on Riggs Field on September 22.

Early in the first quarter the Tiger reared on its haunches and unleashed a running and passing attack that ended in the only score of the game. [illegible]

It seemed inevitable toward the [illegible] that the Hose would score. A pass from Wozniak to Higbe, a [illegible] of the ball to Za, and two smashing line plunges by Bolick and Abbott took the ball to the 7-yard line. Another line plunge, a costly fumble, and a pass that was grounded in the end zone stopped a drive that might have tied or won the game.

The following Saturday the Blue Stockings, seemingly inspired by the entrance of Perrin who had been out of the game because of an injury, swept down the field in the last period and turned defeat into victory with a touchdown and an extra point that trounced the Mercer Bears, 7 to 6.

Mercer scored first, but failed to convert the extra point. The entire P. C. backfield, working alternately, took the ball to the Mercer 1-foot line and Higbe carried it over. "Shorty" Horne kicked goal.

The next week Howard College royally entertained Presbyterian in a mad race for points that ended with the hosts on the long end of a 42 to 19 score. The Hose scores were the result of two passes and a 55-yard run by Higbe.

Against the strong Wake Forest outfit the Blue Stockings fared much better. Although the Deacons won by a 14 to 6 margin, it was only after a hard fight. In the second period, Higbe scooped up a Wake Forest punt and scurried 40 yards down the field. Bolick took it over from the 3-yard line.

Playing the first home game of the season, P. C. was held by Catawba to a scoreless tie. The Hose gained almost three times as much yardage and registered 14 first downs to the visitors. Neither team presented a serious scoring threat throughout the game.

The traditional rival, Newberry, was far outclassed by a Presbyterian team playing one of its best games of the year, and combining excellent offensive and defensive work to win, 12 to 0. The two touchdowns resulted from a combination of brilliant runs and bullet passes that the Indians found impossible to stop.

Erskine was next to crumple before the Blue onslaught. Performing before stands packed with Winthrop girls at Rock Hill, P. C. rolled up 13 points to Erskine's 6. Even though victorious, the game was disappointing in that the Hose failed to play the heads-up ball of earlier games.

A home-coming day crowd of 3,000 watched the Wofford Terriers and the Blue Stockings fight to a 7-7 deadlock in the second and last home game of the season. Wofford rushed the ball across in the second quarter and then kicked goal. In the final period, with defeat staring them in the face, the Hose took the ball to the 15-yard line. A quick pass, Perrin to Quarterman, and the ball was over. The game hung in the balance, but the dependable Horne sank a place-kick between the uprights to tie the score.

Presbyterian dropped the final game of the season to the Citadel at James Hazelhurst, Tom Upchurch, Edgar Peterson, Joe Patrick.

Clemson opened a wide-and-attack early in the game that netted two [illegible] before the Calvinists realized what was happening. Then the Hose came to life and pushed over a touchdown and extra point before the half Bond Underwood, Preston Charles ended. Both teams seemed to have George McInnis, Frank Carothers, expended all their strength and there Wade Williams, Colin Hudson. was no more scoring during the remainder of the game.

During the season Presbyterian won 3 games, lost 4, and tied 2. The freshmen season was not quite so encouraging, for the red showed that they had the fight, if not the power.

Six seniors played their last game for the varsity this year. Bonds, Perrin, Boggs, Yearout, Waldrep, and Tisdale have worn the garnet and blue

Athletes Get Block Letter Certificates

P. C. athletes enjoyed a banquet in Judd Dining Hall last Thursday night. Block letter certificates were given out to men in all branches of [illegible]. Dr. McSween was the principal speaker of the evening.

Jimmy Seagle, president of the [illegible] opened the banquet with an address of welcome to the new letter men and to friends in the town of Clinton. Then he introduced Dr. John McSween, recently resigned president of P. C. He expressed much regret that Dr. McSween would not be here after this year.

Dr. McSween spoke in his address of the value of athletics, especially clean athletics. He praised the Block P Club men highly for their fine spirit of sportsmanship and the good reputation they had given the college through clean athletic play.

Walter A. Johnson, head athletic coach, then arose and read at letter from William P. Jacobs, now temporary president to take Dr. McSween's place, regretting his inability to attend the banquet. In his letter Mr. Jacobs congratulated the P. C. athletic teams for their improvement in spirit and improved play this year. He especially commended Harry Bolick, winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy, and Bill Clark, brilliant boxer and track man. In closing, Coach Johnson, in behalf of himself and Assistant Coach Lonnie McMillian, promised good clean sportsmanship in all phases of athletics. Coach Johnson then proceeded to give block letter certificates to the men who have earned them this year.

In the short business meeting held after the formal procedure was over, Allen Guerard, letter man in track, was elected president of the club for the coming year. Rex Wilbanks and John Wilson were named vice-president and treasurer, respectively.

SPORTLIGHTS
By Sadler Love

Now that the shouting and tumult has ended for the present school year, the hopes for the future rise predominant over the regrets for defeats and the secret gloatings over victories.

In attempting to make athletic predictions or to state expectations for a season yet to come, it is necessary to take into consideration two things. First, the strength of our own team or teams; and second, the strength of our opponents' teams. The first is usually the easier because of the difficulty in keeping up with the graduation of the performers of other schools. Therefore, with little attempt at specific predictions, we will attempt to sum up prospects for next year in various of the major sports.

The football schedule is the hardest ever arranged for a P. C. team. First comes Clemson, then, without a week-end as breather, Georgia Tech, Furman, Newberry, Mercer. After these five is an open date, followed by Wake Forest. Erskine, Wofford, and Citadel bring up the end.

Presbyterian loses six regular players—two from the backfield and four from the line. With the development of the sophomore and junior material, and the return to school of several men who stayed out this year, the team should be shaped into a powerful fighting unit. Neither Clemson nor Tech will be as strong as this year and so, in spite of the difficult season, things do not look so black.

In addition, the schedule is to be rearranged, thus allowing more games to be played at home and thus benefit by the lighting system now being installed for night football which will be the most powerful in the state.

Under the coaching of "Chick" Galloway, voted world's greatest shortstop in '25, the P. C. baseball team will undoubtedly have the most successful season in recent years. Only Holcomb, Bolick, and Johnson will be lost by graduation.

The basketball team will lose no men. Several rising sophomores will make excellent players. When the basketeers learn to click together, they will be a serious threat to any team in the state.

In regard to boxing it is impossible to be so optomistic. Four of the outstanding boxers of the state will graduate. Three of these did not lose a single fight during the past year. Cappelmann, captain for next year, will be the mainstay of the team.

After a lapse of two years, it seems that Presbyterian will once again rise to rule the state track roost. Clark, Yearout, Perrin and Carothers, will not return; but Hollis, Commander, Frowein, and others will come up from the freshman class.

Clemson will lose eight men, among them Ford, Dillard, Blackwell, and Robinson. These four alone accounted for more than 27 points in the state meet.

With continued support of the student body, it appears certain that this time next year P. C. athletic teams will have behind them a sizeable string of victories. Maybe we are wrong, but wait and see!

BLUE HOSE TRACK MEN SECOND IN STATE MEET; WIN 4 DU

Tennis Team Men Show Improvement

Only one member of the tennis team of 1935 will be lost through graduation, and the group, which fared well against its opponents of the past season, will be materially strengthened by the addition of half a dozen or more freshmen.

Professor Coe who has coached the Blue Stockings for the past few years, feels that the past season has shown marked improvement over previous years, and is optomistic in his predictions concerning next season's campaign.

Chalmers McCutcheon, captain and number two man, will be lost through graduation. Succeeding him as captain is Alan Levi, who rates number one, and teamed with McCutcheon to form a strong doubles team that lost very few matches during the 1935 season. Levi should establish himself as one of the state's best before his career ends. Francis Gregg, veteran and number three and "Cu-ball" Parham, number four, will return next year. Both have accounted for some star performances and will be expected to repeat next year. Van Sant, a new man, has shown steady improvement and played well enough to get his letter.

Coach Coe has an impressive selection of freshman material to draw upon. Among those who have been working out are promising racquet-cers as Harris Gray, Piggy Isom, wardshrdlu shrdlu-Ome srd eoi shda Norman Creech, captain, John Woodward, Frank Johnson, Buck Patterson and others.

Baseball Team 3rd In State Standing

One of the most successful campaigns in recent years was experienced by Presbyterian's baseball team during the past season and the nine climbed to third place on the Palmetto college league ladder before the season ended.

After winning the opener from Erskine the Blue Stockings struck a slump and dropped several games before finding themselves. From then on the team began winning and gradually climbed in the standings to finally rest in third place.

"Chick" Galloway," one of the world's greatest shortstops during his career in the big league, was signed as coach prior to the season's opening, and this factor contributed greatly to the success of the team.

"Robbie" Higbe and "Shorty" Horne, room-mates, team-mates and finesstar performers, were batting and fielding stars and Lefty Suggs, portside hurling star, turned in a bevy of brilliant performances on the mound. Higbe led in home-run clouting and scintillated at his short-stop position, while Horne's consistent hitting gave him the batting championship of the state. At the conclusion of the season, Higbe was elected by his mates as their captain for next year. After eliminating his early-season wildness, Suggs settled down to pitch admirably and before the season's termination he had proved himself one of the state's leading mound-artists.

The Hosemen scored decisive victories over such teams as Carolina, Furman and Newberry and lost by small margins two games to Clemson, the loop leaders. Only Captain Holcomb of the 1935 team will be lost through graduation, and graduation to the varsity of "Cab" Blackwell, Joe Commander, Pep Anderson and others will add additional strength to a team that is 'going to town' in 1936.

Handicapped by a lack of [illegible] terial, the Presbyterian varsity team went through a hard-sche[illegible] fine style to win 4 of 6 dual me[illegible] place second in the state meet [illegible] 3 and 4.

The saeson opened with Cl[illegible] Gamecocks at Columbia. W[illegible] smoke had cleared, P. Colin Hudson stepped the tw[illegible] in 10 minutes, 24 seconds, [illegible] time to date, and easily too[illegible] honors in that event.

Georgia, however, trounced [illegible] 84 to 47 at Athens the following [illegible] Majors, Bulldog distance man, [illegible] ed the last half-lap to beat [illegible] on the two mile; but Clark w[illegible] 440-yard dash in three-tenths [illegible] second above the state record t[illegible] amends. Thompson was high [illegible] for the meet with 10 points, h[illegible] won the 220 low hurdles and th[illegible] jump.

Clemson administered a sou[illegible] feat to a Presbyterian team th[illegible] badly crippled by sickness and [illegible] ies the following week by a [illegible] margin. Clemson captured 12 [illegible] first places. Ford, Tiger dash[illegible] was high scorer with 12 1-2 [illegible] For P. C., Clark won the 440, T[illegible] son the broad jump, and W[illegible] the discus.

Although P. C. easily won the [illegible] Gault, Wofford, turned in the [illegible] outstanding performance of th[illegible] with his broad jump of 21 fe[illegible] inches.

Still thirsting for victory, Pr[illegible] terian four days later defeated [illegible] man 77 to 49 on the local track[illegible] ley ticked off the hundred in [illegible] onds flat, while Thompson step[illegible] 220-yard flight of low hurdles [illegible] seconds flat, won the broad jum[illegible] placed second in the hundred, [illegible] points and high scoring honors.

This, the last of the state dua[illegible] for P. C., showed that the Hos[illegible] clearly on the mend after the sc[illegible] the time of the Georgia and C[illegible] meets.

The final dual meet, Florida a[illegible] ton, was not decided until the [illegible] event. Bill Clark, captain of the Hose[illegible] smashed his own state record o[illegible] seconds for the 440-yard dash [illegible] trials Friday by speeding the dis[illegible] in 50.2 seconds. Colin Hudson, [illegible] suffering from a pulled ligamen[illegible] jured in the second meet of the [illegible] son, was outsprinted on the last [illegible] yards of the two mile by Neal Re[illegible] son, Wofford, in one of the most [illegible] tacular races of the meet. Rob[illegible] son's time was 10 minutes, 27 sec[illegible] in the first meet of the year, t[illegible] be remembered, Hudson ran the [illegible] tance in 10 minutes, 24 seconds.

The most disappointing event [illegible] afternoon was the mile relay. C[illegible] was unable to run anchor and Yea[illegible] was unable to run his usual numbe[illegible] Robinson passed Thompson on the [illegible] al lap to give Clemson the victory [illegible] to mark the third defeat of a P[illegible] relay in the state in the past s[illegible] or eight years.

The only s[illegible] standing victory of the season was [illegible] defeat of Clemson's Cubs by a 6[illegible] 51 score. Two freshmen state rec[illegible] were broken by Blue Sox men. Co[illegible] mander ran the 880 in 2 minutes [illegible] seconds, for a new mark, and H[illegible] broad jumped 21 feet, 6 inches, to b[illegible] ter Thompson's 1934 record.

FERA Students Beautify Campus

The Presbyterian College F. E. R. A. group has enjoyed a successful year during the past term of school. Under the supervision of Dr. J. H. Davis, campus administrator, the work of improving the college grounds has been carried on in a systematic, business like fashion. Various plans were outlined periodically and a student leader was appointed to direct the progress of each project. The students employed by the F. E. R. A. thus received training in both leadership and practical experience.

Many permanent improvements have been made which have been beneficial to the college and also to the community at large. The erection of the up-to-date rifle range on the lower athletic field has been particularly outstanding. This rifle range is at the disposal of the Presbyterian College R. O. T. C. unit and the Clinton coast guard artillery, and it has already been put to good service.

The construction of new tennis courts and the improvement of old ones has been of great significance. Increased interest has been shown in intra-mural and community tennis matches.

A notable improvement in the appearance of the college premises has been brought about by the grounds beautification project. Especially attractive is the new lawn and terrace that has been developed in the area between Smyth dormitory and the administration building. The pruning and care of shrubbery and the planting of new vegetation has contributed much to the scenic beauty of the campus.

The survey and map of the college property, which was begun this year, is a work of unusual importance. The map will be accurately drawn to scale and from all indications will be completed some time early next year.

The promotion of intra-mural athletics in general has been another F. E. R. A. undertaking. More interest has been stimulated this year in this type of sports than has been shown during any other previous year. The compilation of a complete history of all student athletic events in which P. C. has ever participated was the work of one group of students.

Other important and interesting projects which the F. E. R. A. here has carried out include: arrangement of publications concerning South Carolina history; student statistics of average student expenses in college; employment and placement bureau; work on museum collection; and chemical research work.

The F. E. R. A. has been of inestimable value in aiding students who were suffering financial difficulties. The average number of students employed was thirty-five, and the greatest number employed at any one time was forty-two. The exceptionally good wage of thirty cents an hour was paid for all work done. Approximately $4,386 has been distributed in payrolls here, making an average of about $125 earned per student. Thus many students were enabled to remain in college who otherwise would have been unable to do so.

Morrison Speaks At 'Y' Meeting

At the Y. M. C. A. meeting Thursday night, Rev. John Morrison, for 18 years a Presbyterian missionary to the Belgian Congo, spoke on "Africa." In his address Mr. Morrison told of the customs of marriage and tribal traditions which are characteristic of the ntaive African. He spoke of the diseases which are encountered in the Congo, and of the native witch doctors whose business seems to be to deceive the sick people in order to get rich themselves. The natives are very reverent when the Gospel message is being proclaimed, Mr. Morrison pointed out. Approxmately 4,500 natives were converted last year, showing the great possibilities for progressive missionary work in Africa. There is a great field in Africa that is as yet untouched, he said.

Mr. Morrison and his wife and three children plan to return to the Congo in early June. They have been in the United States on furlough this year and have made their residence in Clinton. Mr. Morrison is principal of the Luebo school, which has an enrollment exceeding 2500 students.

P. C. Tank Men Second In State

The P. C. swimming team finished a rather unsuccessful season by nosing out Furman in the state meet for second place, the Clemson team taking 54 points for first place.

Presbyterian, with 32 points, turned in its best performance of the year in the aquatic sport. Alexander, crack Hose swimmer, swam the 200-yard breast stroke in 3 minutes, 19 seconds, to set a new state record.

Earlier in the season Furman and P. C. had battled to a 42-42 deadlock; but Presbyterian managed to turn on the power in the state contest.

The other meets of the year were disappointing. Twice Clemson was victorius and once a flashy Florida team journeyed up to deliver a sound thrashing.

Presbyterian's 300-yard medley relay team, composed of Valley, Alexander, and Wilson, was undefeated in the state and captured first plice in the state meet.

Y.M.C.A. Has Been Active This Year

The school year of 1934-35 has been one continuous activity for the Presbyterian College Y. M. C. A. As the curtain of time is veiling the past it is well to recapitulate and review the work of the "Y".

The Y. M. C. A., as usual, had charge of aiding the freshmen in their orientation. The annual "Rat Reception" along with "Hello Friend" tags, Y. M. C. A. buttons, "Y" busses, etc., served to place the new men into their strange environment.

The weekly meetings were held each Thursday night throughout the year. There was a variety of programs, including: special speakers, open discussions, special music, deputations, song services, and many other delightful variations from the routine. These meeting were attended, on an average, rather heartily by the students.

The deputation work of the "Y" sought to place P. C. on the map. It included the sending out as well as the receiving in of teams. Many were received and quite a number delivered. Some of the outstanding places visited were the First Presbyterian church, Greenville; First Presbyterian church, Greenwood; Boys High school, Anderson, and colleges throughout the state. The teams were sent to churches, high schools, and colleges.

In accordance with the work of the National "Y" and with the State "Y" representatives were sent to the various meetings and camps. A number were sent to Camp Adger, to the Student Christian Movement, the State Y. M. C. A. Convention, and other of such meetings.

Another aspect of the Y. M. C. A. work is that of religious activity. This element was handled by prayer meetings in the dormitories, personal work on the campus, weekly chapel devotion programs on Wednesday mornings, and by as means as the cases demanded.

Outstanding committees functioned in their respective duties. Two of the most fruitful of these committees were the Freshmen "Y" group and the Hi Y group. These were very active and instructive in the work of the College Y. M. C. A.

Special work was done throughout the year. This included such activity as the preparation for the Spring Evangelistic Services and the excellent work done by Jim Hardwick. The latter work was sponsored and conducted by the Y. M. C. A.

This is only an epitome of the real work done by the local Y. M. C. A. but it is enough to show that there was plenty of action among its leaders and that they deserve credit for their splendid work. Let us pay due tribute to the Executive Committee of the 1934-35 Y. M. C. A. Cabinet of Presbyterian College.

Prospects For Jobs Much Brighter

Columbus, Ohio.—Cheer up, seniors, Ohio State university's professors are firm in their belief that prospects for jobs are much brighter than for many years.

Deans of five colleges stated that prospects were opening. Many more jobs are available this year than last and only in the teaching field was there any doubt apparent. One dean declared, "Several inquries have come lately that I have not been able to fill."

And even in the field of veterinary medicine, according to Dean Oscar V. Brumley, College of Veterinary Medicine, there is a bigger demand for graduates than he can supply.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

·MONTAGUE JACOBS, star baseballer, was the instrument of a serious accident to the athletic department's bus . . . . On a trip to Greenwood the other day for a baseball game, said Montague tore one door loose from its hinges as the vehicle stopped in front of Lander college . . . . Barber RED UNDERWOOD was nearly frightened out of his wits last week. . . . While delving into the depths of JAKE PENLAND'S hair trying to clear away some of the brush, a bird suddenly flew out in his face. . . . JOE TEMPLETON, Anderson trumpeteer, is hanging his hat in a professor's home three times a week . . . . Not the same one as was mentioned last week, however. . . . . Several people noticed that ELDRED MacLEOD, so-called ladies' man from Bennettsville, guarded his date at the Block P dance with an eagle eye. . . . . Probably he was thinking about what might have happened if another Greenville girl had not broken the date with him for the above-mentioned dances. . . . AL WALTER has come thru and asked his best girl up for Pan-Hellenic Finals. . . . . It is thought that the stormy session he had with her after asking a Rock Hill girl lover for the last dance was the causative factor. . . . A certain student was asked the other day, "What do you keep taking out your Pac-Sac and looking at your picture so much." He answered, "To keep from getting conceited". . . . FRANCIS GREGG, asked if he had a good date in York last week-end, answered, "That's personal."

Bill Clark, speed demon of the cinder track, narrowly escaped a serious altercation some days ago when the Florida track team was on our campus. Two Florida men had dates at a fraternity social affair here to which the visitors were invited. Clark, the 109-pound quarter miler, whispered to the pair that the girls had to be in early that night, but that he would see if he could get them late dates. As they left to take the girls home he said, "I'll meet you back here in front of the administration building when you come back."

Sneaking along furtively in the dark shadows Clark followed one of the boys to the home of his date. As the Floridian walked out of the house, in walked Clark. "What about a late date for tonight?", he asked. "I'd be delighted," she answered, so back they went to the frat rooms. Cutting across the campus, Clark and his evening's entertainment went into the side door of the administration building and started up the steps to his club room. "Aha," he said to himself, "How neatly I foiled them."

But the pair were not yet out of the picture. They were standing just inside of the building, and as Bill began ascending the steps they went in after him, wild with rage, not knowing his ability in boxing, of course. But they had not reckoned with another factor—the speed he had exhibited on his feet even that afternoon. Sensing his danger, he acted quickly. He picked up the girl in his arms as if she were a baby, and bounded with lightning like speed up the two flights of stairs. Arriving at the desired spot in record time he slammed the door and locked it. Then he proceeded to enjoy the remainder of the evening in peace and comfort.

R.O.T.C. Unit Has Successful Year

Under the tutelage and guidance of Captain Wysor and Captain Blanton assisted by the cadet staff headed by Doyle Boggs, the Presbyterian College R. O. T. C. Unit has just completed the most succesful year in its history. The corps as a whole is the best drilled and best officered one ever to be trained at this school.

The military department inaugurated a new system of managing the corps this year in placing most of the authority in the hands of the cadet officers, and allowing them to conduct affairs under the supervision of the P. M. S. & T. This system has succeded in developing among men and officers alike an independent spirit to accomplish something worthwhile, and has produced the smoothest looking corps possible.

The inspections have been most unusually good this year, especially the spring inspection. The corps rated "excellent" for the sixth consecutive time, quite a tribute to our present P. M. S. & T., Captain Wysor, who has just completed his sixth year here in the capacity of commandant. The general appearance of the entire corps, band included, at the review during the last inspection, was the most spectacular one ever witnessed here. The technical knowledge acquired by the various classes during the past year was the greatest yet, as seen by records made on the theoretical examinations of the inspection.

The band and rifle team have been most outstanding this year. The band has played for all of the reviews, and for special occasions at the request of the townfolk. As for the rifle team it has come through in grand style, winning the state match at Clemson, and being undefeated by any other team in the state. Both organizations have done honor to the college at every public appearance, and especially notable was the performance of the band last fall at Rock Hill for the P. C.-Erskine football game.

The last time that the corps assembled, was last Friday, when a full dress parade and review were held in hoonr of our president, Dr. John McSween. This last gesture was a tribute first to the corps, then to Dr. McSween, and finally to the military department of the school which has been quite instrumental in putting out such a polished corps.

Basketball Team Has Fair Season

Led by a classy pair of fast-stepping forwards and aided materially by a talented guard, Presbyterian's Blue Stocking court-artists gave a fair account of themselves on the hardwood during the past winter, and, even though failing to win a large percentage of the games played, gave consistently spirited performances to keep intact the time-honored P. C. policy of never-say-die spirit and rugged determination.

"Shorty" Levi and Red Wyatt garnered most of the points chalked up by the Calvinist machine and constantly buffled their opponents with their deceptive methods. Joe Bradley was a valuable man to combat enemy offensives. His skilfull manner of guarding was a big asset to the Hosemen throughout the season. Phil Adams held down the other guard position and turned in more than one good performance. Forehand and Cleckler filled the pivot position to round out the team's personnel.

Several of the games that went into the last column were decided in the closing stages by a one or two-point margin. The season, summed up in a general way, was disappointing, but with the entire personnel available and Waldrep, Keller and others coming up from the freshman ranks, prospects for next year are painted a rosier hue.

Robbie Higbe, star shortstop and one of the outstanding players in the South Carolina college league, was elected by his team-mates to captain the 1936 edition of the P. C. baseball team in a meeting held the early part of the week.

Higbe is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity and one of the outstanding athletes of the state. He is a native of this rising senior class from Andrews, South Carolina.

All routine matters of the president's office and handling of scholarships will be attended to by Dean M. W. Brown during the summer, it was announced by Acting-President W. P. Jacobs, yesterday.

Thus all students and prospective students will have their correspondence answered promptly even though Mr. Jacobs may be out of town.

Pan-Hellenic Finals Close Social Season

Presbyterian's social season drew to a close last week-end with the Pan-Hellenic Finals, held in Copeland Hall. Music for the occasion was furnished by Harold Underwood and his Commanders.

Underwood played for finals last year. His second appearance on the campus was even more successful than his first. A new "torch singer" with the orchestra made quite a "hit" with all who attended the dances. Especially pleasing was her rendition of Duke Ellington's popular song, Solitude.

Friday night was the occasion of the most attractive groups of girls to visit the P. C. campus in a number of seasons. The late spring ensembles worn by the [illegible] made the affair a colorful occasion. The feature of the evening was the Pan-Hellenic leadout.

The tea dance Saturday afternoon was considered by many the most enjoyable of the three dances. The Pan-Hellenic final Saturday night, endangered for a time by a sudden rain storm turned out a success and a fitting close for the social season. Chaperones were faculty members and their wives and town friends of the students.

These were the first dances to be sponsored by the 1935 Pan-Hellenic council of which Roy Forehand, Beta Kappa, is president.

Track Men Name Bradley Captain

At a meeting of the track team held last week, Joe Bradley, of Chicamauga, Ga., was elected captain for next year.

Bradley is a rising senior, a member of the Alpha Lambda Tau social fraternity, and an outstanding athlete of the college. During the past year he has been prominent in football, basketball, and track. In the last named sport he is noted for his speed in both the 100-yardr and 220-yard distances.

He is a member of Sigma Upsilon and Alpha-Lambda Tau. The Gold "P's" will be presented to these men during the commencement ceremonies next week.

The following is an extract from the war department's distinguished service list: "Having remained at battalion headquarters after the relief of his battalion, when the German barrage preceding the second battle of the Marne opened, Lt. Beatty, realizing the gravity of the situation, voluntarily went out through heavy destructive fire on a reconnaissance of the front lines and obtained information which could not be secured in any other manner. "Rat" Reception Proves Delightful

First Social Function of the Year Held At Jacobs' Home Saturday Evening.

The 1935 Presbyterian college freshmen were formally introduced to the neighboring belles Saturday evening at the annual Y.M.C.A. "rat" reception. The premiere social event of the school year was held at the home of W. P. Jacobs, acting president of the college.

Many new faces appeared among those in the receiving line. Those composing it were Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs, Major and Mrs. R. E. Wysor, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hunter, Professors Cook, Workman and Fish, Capt. and Mrs. George S. Beatty, Miss Margaret Jones, Ernest Arnold and Turk Osman. Dean M. W. Brown and Mrs. Brown introduced the new men.

Freshmen, distinct with green ties, assembled at the president's home on the campus from which, after meeting their date, they proceeded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs in College View. Here they found a delightful environment. The night was warm, the moon was clear, the scenery was beautiful and pairs of portable chairs had been conveniently arranged in secluded nooks on the lawn.

The gala affair was smoothly and orderly conducted by a corp of Y. M. C. A. cabinet members. Frosh guests were given the chance to make acquaintances and upper classmen the

R. O. T. C. Unit Wins High Honor

Takes General Proficiency and Marksmanship Cups At Fort McClellan This Summer.

Presbyterian college's R.O.T.C. unit was awarded the "general proficiency" and the rifle marksmanship cups by virtue of acquiring 930 out of a possible 1,000 points in the annual summer camp held at Fort McCcellan, Alabama.

In the words of Lieutenant Colonel Bruce MacGruder, commander of the camp this summer, "It's getting to be a habit." For four times in the past six years, the "general proficiency" cup has been awarded to Presbyterian college which has the smallest representation of any of the schools in camp. Also, in the twelve times that the cup has been awarded, P. C. has received it six times, a record unexcelled by any other R.O.T.C. school in this corps area.

This year, P. C. had twenty-eight men at Fort McClellan. These men so acquitted themselves that they accumulated 930 out of a possible 1,000 points given for proficiency in rifle marksmanship, professional knowledge, discipline, and guard duty. Louisiana State came second with 910. Others were trailing far behind. The Citadel, ranking eighth, was second in this state to P. C.

In amassing these 930 points, which incidentally, is 39 points more than last year's class won, the P. C. boys were awarded first place in professional knowledge and in rifle marksmanship—actually the only fields in which a fair estimate of a trainee's worth could be had. This, it is argued, all goes to prove that this "man's college in the Piedmont hills of old South Carolina" still turns out men who are superior in any competition that may come their way. And when one consider's the fact that these men were in competition with men from thirteen colleges in the eight states of the Fourth Corps area one is still surer that this is "some place."

WELCOME!

Our heartiest welcome and best wishes to the new students. We feel sure that you are bringing with you a new spirit and ideals which, when blended with that old fighting spirit of P. C., will lift our school higher than ever before. May you soon learn to love, honor and fight for her as true warriors of the past.

JAMES McCLARY,
President, Student Body.

PROF. MARTIN DIES AUGUST 19

Was Member of Presbyterian Faculty For Forty Years. Native of Virginia.

Prof. Abram Venable Martin, 66, for 39 years a beloved member of the Presbyterian college faculty, died at his home in Clinton early on the morning of August 19, following a critical illness of several months.

Funeral services, held at the First Presbyterian church, were conducted by Dr. Dudley Jones and Dr. L. Ross Lynn. Interment followed in Rosemont cemetery.

Prof. Martin was born on Oct. 16, 1868, near Richmond, Va. He was educated at a typical country school until he was of age to enter the now nonexistent Prince Edward academy for boys. After a brief period of preparation here, he matriculated at Hampden Sidney college where he acquitted himself creditably and was graduated in the class of 1891. His first teaching position was in McMinn academy, Rogersville, Tenn., a post he was compelled to give up a year later on account of a severe attack of typhoid fever. Following his recovery he was advised by physicians to go to Florida on account of his health. He taught for five months in Rock Ledge, benefitting by the Southern climate to such a degree that he soon was able to return to his native state. His health now restored, the young man was able to carry a full teaching job, this time in Newbern. He then decided to spend a year in special post graduate work. He chose as his new alma mater the University of Virginia.

The move was a successful one for in the fall of 1896 Prof. Martin moved to Clinton and broke into college ranks as professor of mathematics at Presbyterian college, a position he ably and faithfully filled continuously until the first of the year when he was forced to retire from the faculty on account of declining health. When the young teacher came here the college was headed as president by Rev. E. C. Murray, D.D. In point of service, Prof. Martin had been connected with the institution longer than any member of its faculty, excepting Dr. A. E. Spencer.

"Rat Parade" Be Held Tomorrow

Tuesday night the Plaza, South Broad street, and the city square will once again ring to the sound of rats singing under duress, of dully marching feet, and sternly-placed paddles, as the annual "rat parade" takes place.

"Piggy" Isom, chairman of the vigilance committee, has announced that the parade will begin in front of Spencer hall with the roll call of the freshmen class immediately after supper.

In the words of Mr. Isom, "It will be a good old-fashioned rat parade, with black faces, Clemson songs, the traditional rope, and a gauntlet whose memory is guaranteed to linger on.

Merchants of the town will "fat the calf" by presenting to the rats candy, chewing gum, cigarettes, and cold drinks. The Casino offer a free show to those who are still able to sit down.

Virginia Spratt Goes To Brazil

1935 Graduate To Be Governess To Missionaries' Children In South America.

Miss Virginia Spratt, graduate in the class of 1935, will leave soon to take a position in Garahuns, de Pernambuco, Brazil, as governess for the two daughters of Rev. and Mrs. William G. Neville, who are Presbyterian missionaries in that distant city. Mr. Neville is an uncle of Miss Spratt.

Miss Spratt is to leave Sept. 20 for New York, from whence she will take a steamer for Recife, Brazil. Garanhuns, her final destination, is located about 150 miles in the interior.

Mr. and Mrs. Neville are well known in this city, since Mr. Neville received his education in the Clinton schools and at Presbyterian college. The couple, busily occupied in mission work, felt that someone should be engaged who can give more time to the children's education, and asked Miss Spratt to take charge of them for a year. At the end of that time they will return to the States on their regular furlough which comes every five years.

Committee Gives Freshman Rules

Freshmen must have side-burns shaved off by Wednesday night, and they must respect upper classmen at all times.

These are two interesting rules for freshman control given out by the vigilance committee.

A complete list of the rules follows:

1. All freshmen must have rat caps. Caps must be tipped to upper classmen off the campus.

2. Freshmen must carry matches for upper classmen at all times.

3. Freshmen must follow the Plaza when going to town, stay on regular

STUDENTS FROM TWELVE STATES ARE REGISTERED

One Hundred and Seventeen Students Compose Frosh Class. Sixteen New Girls On Roll.

More students are enrolled at Presbyterian college now than ever before in the history of the institution. The registrar's office Saturday showed a total enrollment of 315 students with several more expected to arrive over the week-end and the early part of this week.

The highest enrollment that the school has had previous to this was 305. There are 117 freshmen enrolled and 33 girls. Only four of these girls are boarding students, the remainder being local girls. Sixteen girls are among the new students enrolled.

The students come from 12 states and Korea. One hundred forty-three towns and cities are represented.

Y.M.C.A. Holds First Meeting

The first Y. M. C. A. meeting of the school year was held last night in the college chapel at 6:45. It was featured by a talk by Chester Keller and a vocal solo by Herbert Wardlaw.

Mr. Keller spoke on "Neglect Not Your Opportunities." He referred to his Scripture reading of I Kings 20: 35-43 and drew an applicable lesson from its account of Ahab and his reign. The speaker said there were only two classes of people in God"s sight, the Christian and the non-Christian. To both these classes, he said, comes opportunities. To the former the chance to serve and to witness for Christ, and to the latter the chance to be saved by taking advantage of "the prompting of the Spirit, the preaching of the Gospel, and the influence of a Christian life." Mr. Keller closed by exhorting the students to realize their opportunities to witness for Christ as it beckons and not to be a stumbling block to those who are seeking truth.

Mr. Wardlaw rendered a bass solo, "My Mother's Bible." He was accompanied at the piano by Keitt Darby.

This "Y" meeting was arranged especially for Sunday night. In the future the regular schedule of Thursday nights will be adhered to.

This was the last drill for the seniors who appear in uniform only once more this year, to receive their commissions from Colonel Moorman, professor of military science and tactics at Clemson college. This also concluded the military work of the remainder of the corps with the exception of the juniors who go to camp at Anniston, Ala., for six weeks, beginning June 7.

Following is a list of the members of the rising junior class who made the advanced corps, including ratings: To be Sgt. Major: J. W. Freeman; to be 1st Sgts.: A. C. McSween, J. W. Thompson, D. B. Brown To Handle Work In Office

All routine matters of the president's office and handling of scholarships will be attended to by Dean M. W. Brown during the summer, it was announced by Acting-President W. P. Jacobs, yesterday.

Thus all students and prospective students will have their correspondence answered promptly even though Mr. Jacobs may be out of town.

Pan-Hellenic Finals Close Social Season

Presbyterian's social season drew to a close last week-end with the Pan-Hellenic Finals, held in Copeland Hall. Music for the occasion was furnished by Harold Underwood and his Commanders.

Underwood played for finals last year. His second appearance on the campus was even more successful than his first. A new "torch singer" with the orchestra made quite a "hit" with all who attended the dances. Especially pleasing was her rendition of Duke Ellington's popular song, Solitude.

Friday night was the occasion of the most attractive group of girls to visit the P. C. campus in a number of seasons. The late spring ensembles worn by the girls made the affair a colorful occasion. The feature of the evening was the Pan-Hellenic leadout.

The tea dance Saturday afternoon was considered by many the most enjoyable of the three dances. The Pan-Hellenic final Saturday night, endangered for a time by a sudden rain storm turned out a success and a fitting close for the social season. Chaperones were faculty members and their wives and town friends of the students.

These were the first dances to be sponsored by the 1935 Pan-Hellenic council of which Roy Forehand, Beta Kappa, is president.

Track Men Name Bradley Captain

At a meeting of the track team held last week, Joe Bradley, of Chicamauga, Ga., was elected captain for next year.

Bradley is a rising senior, a member of the Alpha Lambda Tau social fraternity, and an outstanding athlete of the college. During the past year he has been prominent in football, basketball, and track. In the last named sport he is noted for his speed in both the 100-yardr and 220-yard distances.

Hank Wilson, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., has served on the debating team for three years and has the unusual record of never having lost an intercollegiate debate. He is a member of Sigma Upsilon and Alpha-Lambda Tau. Wilson is only a Junior this year which makes his receiving of the Gold "P" doubly unusual for this is the first time in years that a man has received it for debating.

The Gold "P's" will be presented to these men during the commencement ceremonies next week.

Capt. Beatty Succeeds Blanton

served together in Panama, and is a capable and pleasant officer. In addition to this, it is understood that Captain Beatty has a delightful family which will add much to the social life of the campus.

Captain Beatty saw service in the World war with the 7th infantry of the Third division as second lieutenant. For this service he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. The following is an extract from the war department's distinguished service list: "Having remained at battalion headquarters after the relief of his battalion, when the German barrage preceding the second battle of the Marne opened, Lt. Beatty, realizing the gravity of the situation, voluntarily went out through heavy destructive fire on a reconnaissance of the front lines and obtained information which could not be secured in any other manner. He encouraged the troops by his disregard for personal danger and gave directions for defense of positions. It being necessary for him to remove his gas mask to accomplish this mission, he was seriously burned by mustard gas." This gallant action took place near Le Recq, France, the 15th of July, 1918.

The entire corps anticipates a pleasant and profitable relationship with Captain Beatty.

the University of Wisconsin, and in 1932 he received his doctor of philosophy degree from the same institution. Since that time he has held an instructorship in mathematics at that university, which is one of the two institutions in the entire United States which is qualified for graduate instruction in 31 out of 35 of the most important fields of knowledge. It has received distinguished rating in 17 fields of knowledge and has qualified rating in 14 other fields, which record has been equalled by only one other graduate school and which has been surpassed by none, thus putting it in the foremost rank of American institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Whitelaw is unmarried and is an attractive and pleasant young man. He will teach two courses in freshman math, the courses in introduction to calculus and mathematics of finance, and a new course in business statistics if there is sufficient demand for it.

The position to be filled by Doctor Whitelaw is now occupied by Doctor Eugene Berry, who was called from his position in the mathematics department at Lynchburg college, Lynchburg, Va., to become a temporary professor of math here until another man could be obtained.

"Rat" Reception Proves Delightful

The 1935 Presbyterian college freshmen were formally introduced to the neighboring belles Saturday evening at the annual Y.M.C.A. "rat" reception. The premiere social event of the school year was held at the home of W. P. Jacobs, acting president of the college.

Many new faces appeared among those in the receiving line. Those composing it were Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs, Major and Mrs. R. E. Wysor, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hunter, Professors Cook, Workman and Fish, Capt. and Mrs. George S. Beatty, Miss Margaret Jones, Ernest Arnold and Turk Osman. Dean M. W. Brown and Mrs. Brown introduced the new men.

Freshmen, distinct with green ties, assembled at the president's home on the campus from which, after meeting their date, they proceeded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs in College View. Here they found a delightful environment. The night was warm, the moon was clear, the scenery was beautiful and pairs of portable chairs had been conveniently arranged in secluded nooks on the lawn.

The gala affair was smoothly and orderly conducted by a corp of Y. M. C. A. cabinet members. Frosh guests were given the chance to make acquaintances and upper classmen the

R. O. T. C. Unit Wins High Honor

Presbyterian college's R.O.T.C. unit was awarded the "general proficiency" and the rifle marksmanship cups by virtue of acquiring 930 out of a possible 1,000 points in the annual summer camp held at Fort McCcellan, Alabama.

In the words of Lieutenant Colonel Bruce MacGruder, commander of the camp this summer, "It's getting to be a habit." For four times in the past six years, the "general proficiency" cup has been awarded to Presbyterian college which has the smallest representation of any of the schools in camp. Also, in the twelve times that the cup has been awarded, P. C. has received it six times, a record unexcelled by any other R.O.T.C. school in this corps area.

This year, P. C. had twenty-eight men at Fort McClellan. These men so acquitted themselves that they accumulated 930 out of a possible 1,000 points given for proficiency in rifle marksmanship, professional knowledge, discipline, and guard duty. Louisiana State came second with 910. Others were trailing far behind. The Citadel, ranking eighth, was second in this state to P. C.

In amassing these 930 points, which incidentally, is 39 points more than last year's class won, the P. C. boys were awarded first place in professional knowledge and in rifle marksmanship—actually the only fields in which a fair estimate of a trainee's worth could be had. This, it is argued, all goes to prove that this "man's college in the Piedmont hills of old South Carolina" still turns out men who are superior in any competition that may come their way. And when one consider's the fact that these men were in competition with men from thirteen colleges in the eight states of the Fourth Corps area one is still surer that this is "some place."

WELCOME!

Our heartiest welcome and best wishes to the new students. We feel sure that you are bringing with you a new spirit and ideals which, when blended with that old fighting spirit of P. C., will lift our school higher than ever before. May you soon learn to love, honor and fight for her as true warriors of the past.

JAMES McCLARY,
President, Student Body.

PROF. MARTIN DIES AUGUST 19

Was Member of Presbyterian Faculty For Forty Years. Native of Virginia.

Prof. Abram Venable Martin, 66, for 39 years a beloved member of the Presbyterian college faculty, died at his home in Clinton early on the morning of August 19, following a critical illness of several months.

Funeral services, held at the First Presbyterian church, were conducted by Dr. Dudley Jones and Dr. L. Ross Lynn. Interment followed in Rosemont cemetery.

Prof. Martin was born on Oct. 16, 1868, near Richmond, Va. He was educated at a typical country school until he was of age to enter the now nonexistent Prince Edward academy for boys. After a brief period of preparation here, he matriculated at Hampden Sidney college where he acquitted himself creditably and was graduated in the class of 1891. His first teaching position was in McMinn academy, Rogersville, Tenn., a post he was compelled to give up a year later on account of a severe attack of typhoid fever. Following his recovery he was advised by physicians to go to Florida on account of his health. He taught for five months in Rock Ledge, benefitting by the Southern climate to such a degree that he soon was able to return to his native state. His health now restored, the young man was able to carry a full teaching job, this time in Newbern. He then decided to spend a year in special post graduate work. He chose as his new alma mater the University of Virginia.

The move was a successful one for in the fall of 1896 Prof. Martin moved to Clinton and broke into college ranks as professor of mathematics at Presbyterian college, a position he ably and faithfully filled continuously until the first of the year when he was forced to retire from the faculty on account of declining health. When the young teacher came here the college was headed as president by Rev. E. C. Murray, D.D. In point of service, Prof. Martin had been connected with the institution longer than any member of its faculty, excepting Dr. A. E. Spencer.

"Rat Parade" Be Held Tomorrow

Tuesday night the Plaza, South Broad street, and the city square will once again ring to the sound of rats singing under duress, of dully marching feet, and sternly-placed paddles, as the annual "rat parade" takes place.

"Piggy" Isom, chairman of the vigilance committee, ,has announced that the parade will begin in front of Spencer hall with the roll call of the freshmen class immediately after supper.

In the words of Mr. Isom, "It will be a good old-fashioned rat parade, with black faces, Clemson songs, the traditional rope, and a gauntlet whose memory is guaranteed to linger on.

Merchants of the town will "fat the calf" by presenting to the rats candy, chewing gum, cigarettes, and cold drinks. The Casino offer a free show to those who are still able to sit down.

Virginia Spratt Goes To Brazil

1935 Graduate To Be Governess To Missionaries' Children In South America.

Miss Virginia Spratt, graduate in the class of 1935, will leave soon to take a position in Garahuns, de Pernambuco, Brazil, as governess for the two daughters of Rev. and Mrs. William G. Neville, who are Presbyterian missionaries in that distant city. Mr. Neville is an uncle of Miss Spratt.

Miss Spratt is to leave Sept. 20 for New York, from whence she will take a steamer for Recife, Brazil. Garanhuns, her final destination, is located about 150 miles in the interior.

Mr. and Mrs. Neville are well known in this city, since Mr. Neville received his education in the Clinton schools and at Presbyterian college. The couple, busily occupied in mission work, felt that someone should be engaged who can give more time to the children's education, and asked Miss Spratt to take charge of them for a year. At the end of that time they will return to the States on their regular furlough which comes every five years.

Committee Gives Freshman Rules

Freshmen must have side-burns shaved off by Wednesday night, and they must respect upper classmen at all times.

These are two interesting rules for freshman control given out by the vigilance committee.

A complete list of the rules follows:

1. All freshmen must have rat caps. Caps must be tipped to upper classmen off the campus.

2. Freshmen must carry matches for upper classmen at all times.

3. Freshmen must follow the Plaza when going to town, stay on regular

Clinton, S. C., Monday, September 16, 1935

Welcome, Freshmen!

Hello, new men! The Blue Stocking wishes to take this opportunity to welcome you to our campus. You have already become a part of us, and already you hold joint ownership in the school, the buildings, the publications, and the traditions of this institution; but we wonder if you are fully aware of just what you are and where you are.

You are a Presbyterian College student, though still in the embryo stage, and that, dear rats, has a significance that we cannot tell you and that you will have to grow to understand. It embodies loyalty, friendship, courage, and manhood, but it means many more intangible things.

You will be molded into P. C. men in the next few weeks and the molding will not be any too pleasant in many instances, but the result will be, we hope, pleasing to both you and us.

Many new, different and fascinating things are facing you for the first time. They are things that are made for your enjoyment and welfare, but don't ever let them go to your head, and don't ever forget, in the turmoil of new and pleasant things, the object that you had in mind when you came to this school. We don't know what that object was, but we urge you to cleave to it at the expense of everything. Keep the vision of the goal constantly before you, and don't deceive, cheat, or fool yourself.

And remember that every man on this campus is your friend until you have forced him to become your enemy.

"Does a College Education Pay?"

That question is one in which we are everyone vitally concerned. Its answer decides whether we are squandering time and money or making an investment that will rpeay us a hundred times. A glance at the news story about last year's graduates printed in this issue should give the answer for P. C. men.

It very emphatically does pay. Last year's men are working and, with few exceptions, at jobs that have a definite future in them. Taken as a whole, they are jobs that only college men can hold down. The fact that P. C. men are holding them shows that we are acquiring an education at an institution that is of recognized merit, that the diplomas that we will receive when the course has been run will mean something much more important than something suitable for framing.

"Reading Maketh a Full Man . . ."

The report of Librarian Jones on the circulation of the library for the 1934-1935 school year (summarized elsewhere in this issue) is indicative of the new and more efficient method of teaching that is being employed in this institution.

As Mr. Jones' report states, "The rise is circulation must be ascribed to the faculty's method of teaching." More and more every year we are drawing away from the old idea of using a textbook as the sole source of knowledge. The text is being used now as a basis for study and is being widely and efficiently supplemented by detailed parallel reading from the library.

This means that where before the student received the knowledge, ideas, and interpretations of one man, he now receives the broader and fuller learning which comes from acquiring the ideas, thoughts, and interpretations of many men. No longer can he finish a history course with the impression that actually the South won the Civil war, or that Germans were butchers of the first order and nothing more.

This new and modern method of instruction gives the student a broader, fuller viewpoint and stimulates a keener and more intelligent interest in his studies. May it even more rapidly continue its replacement of the old, out-moded "textbook" method.

"Won't You Join My Frat?"

With the rush season staring us in the face again, we also are faced with the problems of how to get the very best freshmen in school and still stay within the bounds of gentlemanly action. Always at this time it is a great temptation for the social fraternities to sling a little mud at the boys next door, to make a few caustic remarks concerning their furniture and their radio, as well as their membership and their social and campus rating.

The Pan-Hellenic Council has met and arranged a schedule that assures each fraternity equal rights as to socials and smokers, and has given the fraternities advice and warnings about rushing. This governing body has done all that is within its province to insure fair and gentlemanly action on the part of the various social groups. The rest remains with them.

The question that faces each of them is whether it will endanger its good name and popularity for the sake of a new member, whether it shall play the gentleman or the rogue. The quality of the men who make up the fraternity groups on this campus make the obvious answer a satisfactory one.

Abram Venable Martin

During the past summer months there passed from among us one of the most beloved personalities that the College shall ever know. Those of the faculty who were associated with him and those of alumni of the past years shall always remember Professor Abram Venable Martin. He will be missed sorely by those who knew him well and the college at large. Clinton lost one of her finest citizens, the teaching world lost a scholar devoted to his profession, and the college lost a friend. Of these, we believe the last was the heaviest loss.

Professor Martin served Presbyterian College as a member of the faculty for forty years. He was one of those who came to the institution in its infancy and contributed to and observed its growth. His unwavering faith in the college has undoubtedly been an ever present shoulder to the wheels of progress of P. C.

Whenever possible he was always in his classroom trying to carry on his allotted work in the education of students. Outside the classroom work he always sponsored extra-curricula activities and was an ardent supporter of student government. Perhaps his greatest fault was his stubborn unwillingness to give up his classroom for his own personal interests. He was too unselfish—and so having failed to safeguard his health in his devotion to pedagogy there came a breakdown. His condition became critical and he left us.

Possessing a very keen mind—the product of mathematical study—Professor Martin possessed a keen sense of humor and wit. His was an enviable character. He impressed one with his Christianity—he was a man of God. He abhorred all sham and hypocrisy—he perpetuated honesty and the theory of "playing the game of life fair and square."

In his passing we should not induce sorrow for we know that he lived a life of service and has now gone to his rest, leaving behind him a memory that shall always pervade the spirit of Presbyterian College and lay indelibly imprinted on the hearts of his friends.

BOOK REVIEW

By Keitt Darby

"PERSONAL HISTORY," by Vincent Sheean

Large books of adventure come and go, and those that remain, as this one will, have to be good reading. Else they would perish with the second-rate kin.

Vincent Sheean is a noted war correspondent and general free-lance reporter. His book concerns a period of unique and interesting history. It derives its title from the fact that the history is a partially autobiographical account of his travels in Morocco, Russia, and China, writing and observing the various crises in the poltiics of these countries.

His first experience related is his struggle to get a publisher to finance hs free-lance work among the Moroccans as they made a last ferocious stand against the aggressive and destined victors, the French. This aid secured from a publishing syndicate, he set out and made his thrilling and perilous journey from the French lines to the fierce Riffs. His manner so won the aristocratic chief of these savage tribesmen that they gave him permission to present their whole side of the struggle. His dramatic methods of getting dispatches delivered to his backers make a deal of reading worth any one's time.

His money out, he returns to get more, and the second time makes the dangerous trip, this time seeing to its bitter end the long fight between civilization and savagery, as represented by France and Morocco.

Next in line, Mr. Sheean takes an absorbing portion of China's history under Chang Kai and other war barons. His personal picture of the struggle is the kind of account that historians should strive to imitate. It makes history live.

At the lull in activities, Mr. Sheean makes a jump to Russia directly connected to China by Communist activities. He accompanied Mme. Sun Yat Sen to Moscow and relates her sad existence to her death.

His delineation of Russian life and politics is a good basis on which to study the Soviet, for he presents unvarnished truth and comments concisely on the faults and virtures of this much-discussed country. He is entertained by two American Communists who are very much enthusiastic over the "Cause." He relates the tragic end of the woman whose flame of devotion burnt her up in the throes of disease. He says that a fire went out of his life them.

His return to England closes his book, but he leaves you with the thought that he will never be satisfied to live except in a whirlwind of intrigue, excitement, and adventure.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

Anybody knows that a good proportion of the conversation among members of one sex is about members of the other sex.

Youung women in a writing seminar at Wellesley college were enough interested in each other's opinion's about men to take a written canvass of the class in order to determine each girl's qualifications for her "ideal man."

One list, that of a brilliant poetess, includes these points:

1. He must take a woman as a person, not as a woman.
2. He must be honorable.
3. He must be tolerant n every way—this is most important.
4. He must have a broad interest (character social ease, ntelligence.

Another young author's list was very short:

1. He must be generous.
2. He must be ambitious.

The third list, that of a millionaire's daughter:

1. He should be gracious—the sort of graciousness that goes with a pipe and tweeds.
2. He should be helpless at times.
3. He must be a real person—three-fourths of all men have only a superficial knowledge of life.
4. He doesn't have to have a "moral" character.

Strangely not one of the girls mentioned wealth or social position. After the answers were read in the class a visiting married woman asked for the floor and declared, "You girls have been picturing saints, not men. In the first place, he should be intensely masculine. Then he should be broad-minded—that's about all you can ask."

A physics class out at the University of Montana was being instructed in the laws of the solar system. A pendulum hanging from the ceiling was set to swinging and its path was marked on a flat table. After a few hours members of the class were shown that the angle of the pendulum to the marked course had changed, indicating the turning of the earth.

"Gosh," a young freshman said as he made his way out of the room, "Gosh, but I felt insecure."

The famous Oxford Union resolution of two year's ago hasn't yet ceased reverberatng in the colleges of the Western world. The latest echo comes out of McGill university at Montreal, where a group of undergraduates voted 233 to 83 against support of their government in any war it might undertake.

THE ALMANAC

JACK GASQUE

All Quiet

My word, he said as enemy lead
Bit deep into his tummy.
He creased his brow, and mused "well now!"
As blood and gore came gummy.

My word, he said as shrapnel spread
And blotted uot his liver.
His wings were clipped, his larynx slipped,
His poise got all aquiver.

My word, he said as he slowly bled
And his spleen began to clot.
Then puzzled eyes saw missing thighs,
I'll swear, I believe I'm shot!

I Can't Play a Zither Either Department

Have you seen them? I'm speaking of the "beach-sophisticates." If by any chance during vacation you tossed your bathing suit and toothbrush into a handy suitcase and checked out for one of those sandy fringes along the coast, I'm sure you must have seen them.

They're gay; yea, young and tan. They clutter around the lifeguards in merry poses of reckless abandon, and there you will find them from morning till night. Their bathing suits have that faded appearance of "Look! I've been at the beach all summer!" and their bronzed faces peer at the uninitiated with open scorn.

They run beaming down to the water, pausing perhaps to fling some sparkling jest to the lifeguard; then dash happily in the surf, entirely certrain that hundreds of envious eyes follow their every move.

Their's is a charmed circle—you and I stand back in awe; but, you know, if you could slip up behind one of them sometime when he wasn't looking, you would probably find that he had mosquito bites and athlete's foot just as the hoi-pollio, and at rare moments you might even hear a bourgois belch.

Little Facts You Really Ought To Know

1. Scientists have found that a thin man has a hangover longer than a fat man.

2. Which student councilman quit smoking because he lost his hat and ash-tray in a poker game?

3. And we just can't forget that "natural" pulled by that "Jo-jah" lad who, a wee bit calcimined from promiscuous tilting of the keg, ended up lilting round and round the monument on the square screaming, "My god, I'm walled in!"

4. Chinese people are yellow.

5. Personal nomination for the height of something-or-otherness: The musical clockster whose unfunny-to-us comments between changing the needles on WBT's victrola, has been hired to advertise on an afternoon program by the same company who put up with The South's Favorite (?) News Commentator for so long.

Proletarian Piffle

The brothers Mills with voices pure
Probably don't like literature.
They've probably never heard or seen
Spencer's so-called Fairie Queene.

I doubt if Rembrandt's neatest touch
Would dazzle or excite them much
Or if Promethius and vulture
Come within their scope of culture.

True they're sleek and coin the mon.
They dance and sing and have their fun,
But all through life the stigma clings
(Tsk. Tsk) They miss "the finer things."

Dr. Workman Is Coe's Successor

Took Undergraduate and Graduate Work At University of North Carolina.

The man who fills the vacancy left by Dr. R. L. Coe when he was granted a leave of absence to serve as South Carolina director of the National Youth Administration is John H. Workman, A.B., M.A., Ph.D. Dr. Workman will serve as professor of education for the 1935-1936 session.

He has had several years' experience as a teacher, and as a superintendent of schools in North Carolina. In addition he comes highly recommended for his work as county superintendent of education in Greene county, N. C., 1922-25, and of Carteret county, N. C., 1925-1931.

His undergraduate and granduate work was done at the University of North Carolina, where he received his bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees. He did his graduate work in the field of education and his thesis for his Ph.D. was entitled, "The Administrative Reorganization of the North Carolina Public Schools."

Dr. Workman served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France for one year and has since published a history of his company, Company K, 324th infantry, covering the war period.

He is a native of North Carolina.

Library Circulation Bigger Than Ever

P. C. students are reading as they've never read before—that is what a summary of last year's circulation given out by Librarian Willard Jones shows.

In the school year of 1934-1935 the college's student body of less than three hundred students took 9,112 books from the stack room and used 5,920 books from the reference shelves. This does not include the use of encyclopedias. Never before in the history of the institution has so many books been used.

Literature led the list with over two thousand books taken out. Fiction was next with only fifteen hundred, and was followed closely by the languages with twelve hundred. It is interesting to note that last year, for the first time, fiction was surpassed by other types of work.

Four-year records show that there has been a steady decrease in the amount of fiction read, the circulation dropping from over three thousand in 1931-1932 to fifteen hundred last year. Whether this is due to harder courses or better application on the part of the students is a matter of conjecture.

Librarian Jones' report contains some interesting data: The library was open 194 days. The average number of books withdrawn per day was 77.5, which is the largest on record. The largest number taken out in a single day was 140, the smallest was one. The average number of books used per student was 52.4, which also is a new record.

Dr. Whitelaw New Math Professor

Received B. S. Degree At Miami University, Oxford, Ohio; Doctorate At Wisconsin.

On last Monday Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw assumed the duties as head of the department of mathematics that was temporarily filled last year by Dr. Berry.

Doctor Whitelaw began his undergraduate work at Parks college, Parkville, Mo., but transferred to Miami university, Oxford, Oho, where he received the B. S. degree. In 1929 he received the master's degree from the University of Wisconsin, and in 1932 he received his doctor of philosophy degree from the same institution. Since that time he has held an instructorship in mathematics at that university, which is one of the two in the entire United States which is qualified for graduate instruction in 31 out of 34 of the more important fields of knowledge. It has received distinguished rating in 17 fields of knowledge and has qualified rating in 14 other fields, which record has been equalled by only one other graduate school, and which has been surpassed by none, thus putting it in the foremost rank of American institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Whitelaw is unmarried and is an attractive and pleasant young man. He will teach two courses in freshman math, the courses in introduction to calculus and mathematics of finance, and a new course in business statistics if there is sufficient demand for it.

A Freshman's Impression Of P. C.

When I arrived at Clinton I was greeted by the Y. M. C. A. members and then came on out to the college. Since it was drizzling rain and the skies were cloudy and showed no signs of clearing up I was quite blue and lonely. After my room had been assigned and my baggage had been placed in it I looked over my room and thought, "Well, this is my home for the next nine months so I may as well make the best of it."

I then began trying to make myself a little more at home and began walking around to the other rooms and meeting the other boys. Each time I would open a door I would be afraid that some big bad upper classman would come leaping out at me with a great long paddle and whale the tar out of me. Each freshmen was afraid that another was an upper classman and would naturally feel a little uneasy.

After I had become acquainted with some few boys we got together and went down to the dining hall for supper. As I walked in the dining hall I took a seat and began talking to the one next to me and finding out all about the upper classmen as to how they wielded a paddle. Much to my joy, I found out then that there was not much paddling going on right then but it would begin when all the upper classmen arrived. This made me dread the coming week-end. The food was good but some of my mother's cooking would have tasted much better to me at that time.

As I went into the chapel and began giving the school yells and began to sing the school songs I then started feeling that I was a part of the school and I could not help but feel that I was becoming a little more attached to it. When Coach Johnson had given his little talk on P. C. Spirit this warmed me up a little and I felt a little more at home.

As I looked at the boys around me I noticed that a great many of them were in the fog as bad as I was. And I felt that I was not the only dumb creature of a freshman in the school.

When the faculty was introduced to us I began thinking which ones of them would teach me. And a thousand questions began coming into my mind, such as—"I wonder what he teachers. Gee, but I bet he sure is tough."

When President Jacobs reassured us that the sun did shine here at Clinton it made me feel a little better and gave me something to look forward to for the next day.

When the announcement was made that we were going to get to go in swimming I could hardly wait to see the pool which I had heard so much about. One could hardly help but like the pool because it is a swanky place. I enjoyed my swim very much and it caused me to feel much better. After the swim I began thinking about upper classmen again. I was expecting to get my pants dusted off real good at any minute.

When I went to bed I had plenty of time to think about what I would do the next day, and what had taken place the previous day. My thoughts then turned homeward and I wished in a way that I was back there in my good bed which I was used to.

When I finally dozed off to sleep I began dreaming of home and of my first day's experience at P. C.

Ethiopian Princes At Presbyterian?

Information has just been received that the three sons of the Conquering Lion of Judah, the Emperor of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie, attended Presbyterian college and were taught by a Miss Agnes Moorhead. It is known that Presbyterian is always having one of her graduates in the limelight—after all it is quite a distinction to be graduated from the Calvinistic institution. However, it is something new when syndicates start writing for news stories and photographs of royalty that probably never saw Clinton, S. C. Of course that is just their hard luck.

Just imagine what publicity that woul make for he college—what a scoop for the newspapers had these sons of the Imperial Light of Abysinnia really received their higher education here. The files of the college are being scanned with a vague hope that perhaps these front-page personages really did attend the Blue Stocking college. But it is seriously considered that the news article from which Collegiate Digest obtained their information to the effect that Presbyterian college was the alma mater of the Ethiopian princes probably referred to some Presbyterian college on the mission fields of Africa.

THE RAT SPEAKS

By Robert McLees

"Ladies and gentlemen this is your feature reporter, broadcasting a rat-on-the-street program, through the courtesy of The Blue Stocking. Folks, college having opened, it would be interesting to hear the opinion of the casual freshman as to the qualities most to be admired or deplored in the sophomore. I think this black-headed rat will do to start with—what's your name? Bradner? Rat Bradner, what is your dream sophomore?"

Rat Bradner: "A guy who remembers he was a fat once, and makes allowances."

Rat Donnan: "I wouldn't wat a double A student—jes' average, and athletically inclined—but No conceited star."

Rat Bill McSween: "—— —— —— Say—is this being broadcast? WAIT a minute—I want to detract something!"

"Now, folks, perhaps the upperclassman's idea as to the perfect rat would be of interest . . . this distinguished-looking specimen . . . can we get him up here? . . . How will you have your rat done? Poached or scrambled?"

Soph Eldred McLeod: "I think freshmen should remain in their place. They should not be beat unmercifully but when they get horsey nothing does so much good as a little paddling—"

Junior Yow: (from 6 feet 4 inches up) "Give me my rat long legged . . . it's so tiresome to have to lean over with a coathanger."

Junior Penland: "I would rather have one that can't talk; be sure he's an expert bootblack."

"Ah, there, little lady—ladies, I mean. Folks, now perhaps we can get the frosh co-eds' slant. Can we get the little lady to the microphone? Now, Miss, what is your ideal sophomore?"

Mouse Aggie Jones: 'My ideal sophomore is five feet 8 inches, blond, blue eyes, affectionate delivery, neat, a good dancer—"

Other little lady: "You can't mean HIM! Why, he told me—"

Aggie Jones: "I'll have you know—"

"Ahem . . . ah, pardon me, ladies . . . perhaps this young man will oblige us. Speak into the instrument—there."

Rat Pope: "Most of these here around here are ideal—they aren't unmerciful, generally . . . Mr. Bird told me to come to his room tonight at seven . . . he's gonna explain things to me, he said. I think it's nice and all when they're all so glad to help you and . . ."

Rat Boner: "All sophs are O. K. if you can them seniors. Mr. Hipp is my ideal sophomore."

Rat Horne: "Mr. Hipp is my ideal sophomore . . . or is Mr Hipp a senior?"

Rat Folley: "I like one who never gives more than he can take. Mr. Hipp is my ideal sophomore, too."

'Dear me—folks—dear me . . . just as I suspected—there you are, Hipp, behind me . . . What is your ideal rat, Mr. Hipp?"

Soph Hipp: (between his teeth, glaring around him), 'I want a rat who can TAKE it!!"

"Now folks—let me get another freshman on the air . . . ulk, ah . . . the crowd has disappeared . . . you should have kept quiet, Hipp . . . but life's like that. Here's Mr. Odell Matthews, with nothing on his mind but a new hat. Mr. Matthews, will you express an opinion?"

Junior Matthews: "I don't want to get mixed up with youse press guys. Last year you got me in trouble, and I don't want to be quoted. That keyhole calumnist messed me up at home, and . . ."

"This broadcast has come to you through the courtesy of the NRA (Nervous Rats Association) . . ."

Call Goes Out For Frosh Swimmers

Early Start Made To Gauge Interest and Ability So That Schedule May Be Arranged.

The organization of P. C.'s 1936 swimming team has begun with the opening of the school. Jim Brewer who will have charge of the college pool this year and who is directing the water sports of of the school, saw fit to issue a call last week to all first-year men interested in trying to place on the freshman swimming team. In view of the fact that the tank season does not open until after Christmas this call may seem a bit premaure, but Brewer feels that it will be wise to know what material will be on hand before arranging the 1936 schedule. With this in mind, the freshman candidates have met twice and have held preliminary time trials.

When the first meeting was called last Wednesday, fourteen freshmen reported and expressed interest in water sports. Before the week was gone the candidates met again for time trials and organization. Brewer directed these try-outs and reported that the results gave promise of a strong team. Several of the candidates demonstrated considerable ability and should be valuable men on any team. Although it is still far too early in the season to make any sort of prophecy, a few of the freshmen did exceptionally well. Blily Royall, a new man from Florida, is doing some good swimming, specializing in the breast stroke. George Reid made good time and should do well in the free-style swims. Several men give promise of being good divers. James Boykin showed some skill along this line beside turning in good times on the free-style trials. John Pearson is another spring-board artist. He also does well with the back-stroke. The freshman team should have another fine diver in David Carson. David looks good in the water and will be an asset for his swimming as well as his diving.

P. C. teams have carried good schedules in past years, swimming against Furman, University of Florida, and other good teams in this section. If the freshman swimmers demonstrate enough interest and ability, Brewer plans to arrange a schedule which will include a number of fine meets and will take the swimmers on trips to several schools. Freshmen who have any ability at swimming and diving will find it well worth their while to go out for the team, and this sport offers many first-year men the chance to earn a numeral. The type of schedule that the team will draw depends largely upon the interest that freshmen show in swimming this fall. To date the prospects are unusually good, and a dozen or so frosh should earn trips and numerals in swimming this year.

Volunteer

It was during a recent practice. Coaches Johnson, Eichelberger, and McMillian were slowly scratching their heads in sincere perplexity. Said Coach Johnson, "Gentlemen, we've just got to have another end—we're entirely too weak on the flanks."

Up strode R. Forehand, veteran flankman. Addressing the trio he said, "Gentlemen, your worries are over. I have a solution to offer.

"Name it, my boy!" breathlessly blurted out the three in unison.

"I'll play both ends," he said.

Selected Statements

"Will have one of the best lines in the history of the school." — Coach Eichelberger.

"We'll all be dead if they don't fix that field."—Absalom Lindsay.

"I'm lots better than I think I am."—Roy Forehand.

"We'll be weak at the ends and will miss Bolick."—Coach McMillian.

William S. ("Shorty") Horne, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., captain of the 1935 Presbyterian Blue Stocking football team. Horne is a senior. He plays center and guard.

P. C. Looking To Excellent Team

From Tackle To Tackle Line Is All That Could Be Desired. Backfield Light and Fast.

Looking forward to one of the toughest schedules a Presbyterian college football team has ever faced, thirty-eight candidates for the Blue Hose varsity reported for early practice the first of September. It is going to take a good team to start off against Clemson, then take on Georgia Teach, follow Tech with Mercer, Furman, Newberry, Wake Forest, Erskine, Wofford and The Citadel.

P. C. may not win all these games, but the prospects of an A-1 team are good. From tackle to tackle, Coach Johnson has two lines, one just about as good as the other. Soupy Millsap will hold down his berth as one tackle, "Little Jeff" Prather is back in school this year to do his part on the other tackle. Jim Collings is another tackle destined to play a whole lot. Macon Hipp makes the fourth two-hundred-pound tackle.

At guards we have Baby Ray Shoemaker, who, having spent a pleasant summer at Myrtle Beach is ready for hard work. Pudge Plowden, a mere shadow of himself, having dropped to two hundred pounds, is out to play some football. Captain Shorty Horne is just as good at guard as he is at center. Vic Correll is back at school after a year's layoff. Vic will play some, too. Then there's Billy Moore, a soph, who will probably do his part.

Hutchinson, affectionately known as "Baby Huteh," will be ready to play center a whole lot after he gets over his back which is sprained at the present time. John Steenbergen is playing center, too.

It looked for a while as if we were going to be in a bad way for an end to play opposite Roy Forehand, but Al McSween, Ralph Waldrep and Steele Caldwell are coming along nicely. Jim Addison was late getting out for football, but he is out to play end, too.

In the backfield, we have Mr. Higbe. Very little need be said about him except to comment that he looks as good if not better than last year. Alternate Captain Wilbanks will be calling signals and punting, except when Bill Thompson is in the game in his place. "Goof" Holliday has been at a disadvantage for a couple of years by being out for the same position as Harry Bolick. Now he is out to shine at fullback and he bids fair to shine brightly After watching Bill Degner loyally lead the "Bohunks" last year because of ineligibility, it is going to be good to see him on the field as a running mate for Higbe. "Piggy" Isom, last year's frosh captain, is making a nice showing at quarterback. J. B. Jacobs, Thornwell's gift to P. C., is making threats to shine as a fullback, too. There's another race horse in the backfield by the name of Abbott. His companion, Cappelmann, has been changed from the line to a fullback. We will probably see him backing up the line.

In summing up the situation, it seems that P. C. is ready to take on Clemson or Tech and all the rest of them. It is a very safe bet to make that every time P. C. goes on the football field this year, somebody will know they have been in a football game..

Large Frosh Squad Reports For Practice

Fifty-two Men Out As Candidates For Places On Lonnie McMillian's Team.

What was probably the largest freshman squad in the history of Presbyterian college athletics reported to Coach Lonnie McMillian Thursday afternoon for an initial work-out and limbering up drill. At the last tally, 52 first year men had been issued uniforms.

It is, of course, too early to make any predictions as to the success of the team in the state race. From all appearances, the rat aggregatoin will be lacking in weight but notable for speed. Few, if any, men on the squad weigh over 200 pounds. At this writing the men have not yet been weighed in, but the average for the squad will hardly go over 170 pounds.

Following is a list of men receiving uniforms Thursday: Henderson, Todd, Horne, Moore, Dennard, Atkinson, Stalucker,, Heathaly, Booth, Holcomb, Ballard, Murchison, Bynum, Hinton, Lambright, Clements, J. L., Culp, Clements, C. M., Davis, Reynolds, Rhodes, Shawhart, Evans, Folley, Edmunds, Huntley, Ritchie, Adams.

Burton, Moreno, McSween, Hiers, McCully, Dickey, McCaskill, Carson, Upshur, Wiley, Coleman, McRae, Mixson, Christian, Jacobs, Helms, Shirley, Calloway, Batchelor, Eargle, Boykin, Kimbo.

"We'll Be In There Fighting," Johnson

"We'll be in there fighting as P. C. teams always fight," said Coach Walter Johnson of Presbyterian college in an interview with a representative of The Blue Stocking Saturday afternoon.

"I'm enthusiastic over the way the boys are shaping up. We are going to have a hard-fighting, well-rounded team when we meet Clemson. Tell the students that P. C.'s team won't let them down."

The team looked well in a practice game played Saturday afternoon. The line is strong and heavy and the backfield has speed plus brains. The aerial attack should be clicking splendidly by the twenty-first.

Back In School

VIC CORRELL —GUARD—

Vic Correll, of York, S. C., has returned to school after an absence of a year. He is a junior and is back in his old position on the gridiron, that of a powerful guard.

The largest delegation of students from any foreign country to the United States comes from China.

The territories of the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, all maintain land-grant colleges.

The total number of books in the Harvard university library is now 3,602,040—the largest university library in the world. Exactly 126,935 books and pamphlets were added to its shelves in 1933-34.

Opening Encounter On Clemson Field

Blue Stockings and Bengals Expected To Trot Out Excellent Teams and Battle Royal Is In Store For Initial Contest.

As South Carolina teams swing into the 1935 season, the annual Clemson-P. C. game once again looms as the brightest light on the state football horizon.

In spite of the usual optimistic reports from Tigertown, the idea is gradually circulating that Presbyterian will have a better chance to upset the dope bucket this year than it has had for the past several seasons.

The strength of the P. C. line, especially from tackle to tackle, is easily noticeable. The backfield will lack, of course, a heavy plunging and blocking back; but it will undoubtedly be made up of four of the fastest and most elusive backs in the state. A fast backfield behind a strong line has upset many a dope bucket.

From the stress laid on aerial work during the past week it loks now as if Blue Hose coaches will depend largely upon this method for needed yards in the pinches. Perrin's adeptness at heaving the oval has not been equaled as yet by this year's aspirants, but Thompson and Wilbanks seem to be on the up-grade.

The punting is something of an unknown quality Quarterman, who turned in some fine work last year, is competing in the Camp Perry matches and will not return until the middle of the week. This leaves Wilbanks or Thompson to carry most of the kicking burden.

So now we come to the question of the lineup when the whistle blows Saturday afternoon. At this stage, no two opinions will be alike. To some of the drug store coaches, however, the following looks good: Forehand and Waldrep to hold down the ends, Millsap and Collings on the tackles, Plowden and Correll, guards, and Horne at center. The backfield will probably be made up of Higbe, Degner, Holliday, and Wilbanks, with Thompson and Abbott not far away. Maybe it doesn't look so good to you, but one guess is as good as another.

Whether or not you agree with the above there will be little dispute over what kind of fight the team that does take the field will put up. Win, lose, or draw, the Clemson jungle will see a battle royal whose outcome will be undecided until the last play. Anything may happen and it probably will.

SPORT SHOTS

SADLER LOVE

When Presbyterian's fast-stepping backs and hard-charging linemen meet Clemson Saturday they will tackle one of the best Tiger teams in recent years.

The 1935 edition, molded from 16 lettermen and a wealth of substitute and sophomore material, will be scrapping to hold the state championship captured last yenr. The backfield will be fast and snappy. Randy Hinson, said to be one of the best backs in the state, will bear the brunt of the offense. With the addition of Holberry Lee and a couple of other up-and-coming ball carriers the backfield should pack plenty of trouble.

Brown and Black, the Tigertown color combination holding down the tackle berths, will be remembered from their work last season. A flock of other linemen weighing much more than the backfield candidates can be depended upon to furnish ample support.

On the other hand, the more pessimistic of the Clemson backers point out that great performances will be necessary to eclipse the axhibitions of such men as Captain Henry Woodward, Bill Dillard, Alex Stevens, and others who were lost by graduation.

Every one of the 47 colleges and universities in Pennsylvania has a football squad.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

With the view of acquainting freshmen with prominent upperclassmen, the following group of personality summaries is hereby presented:

Robert Franklin Higbe

This man is distinguished for his ability in all fields. Not only is he an athlete of ability (specializing in shaking the hips in a broken field), but he also plays the zither quite well (tho he will not admit this on questioning). Not only that, but he sings in a high soprano, something quite remarkable for a man with his heavy beard and hairy chest. A senior, he looks quite studious when he dons his spectacles, and it is said that he has wide literary tastes, as he expresses great love for Chaucer, yet, strangely enough, goes in for Gertrude Stein in a big way. He was once caught using profanity, in a moment of weakness, and was so mortified that he hid in his room and did not meet classes for a week. Also, to cap the climax, he was a strong candidate for president of the Y. M. C. A. last year, tho defeated by purely political considerations.

Artemus K. Darby

The name above sounds very imposing to people, but he is known here as just plain "Malicious." A question the writer has just been asked is, "Which one is worse, Darby or his puns?" Our answer is "Darby himself." This reply is guided by the report of his room-mate, who whispers that "Malicious" has "Hal" and a slight tendency toward B. O., the two unpardonable social faults. As all upper classmen know, he is incurably addicted to puns, said to be the lowest form of humor. Then, too, he holds his little finger aloft when drinking coffee (tho he is at his best in this act when sipping tea). Worst of all, he has a radio, and plays it till the wee small hours of the morning in his room just above the writer's. In the afternoons he goes to sleep lulled by the sweet strains produced by the Metropolitan Opera's broadcast.

George H. Cody

Cody is commonly known as the freckle-faced phenomenon from Oklahoma. This celebrated character's wide expanse of freckles and huge grin have given him an unforgetable place in P. C. history. A girl who came down to a dance last spring volunteered the following information, when asked if she knew him, "He dances lewd." Then she added, quickly, "But I like it." He now has a pair of pink pajamas, sprinkled here and there with purple dots. He also has been known to wear green and yellow striped socks. He has already been promised a checkered suit for his next Christmas celebration. Altho Cody lives in the rural town of York, S. C., his ways with women are quite devastating. His latest conquest is verified by the evidence of a picture on his desk inscribed, "Love, Irene." He claims he doesn't drink, but the author possesses a photograph of him sitting on the steps in front of Spencer dormitory with a bottle of Keysone State in his hand, gazing longingly at its contents.

John Benjamin Penland

A native of Gervais street, Columbia, this blonde blizzard vies with Pitt Bird for the honor of being called Columbia's favorite son. His greatest accomplishment is the marvelous way he moves his eyebrows up and down in order to give greater expressiveness to his golden words of wisdom. Penland is one of the pioneers in the Nudist movement which is already taking other parts of the country by storm. He plans to start a nudist colony in Young's pasture soon. Jake, as he is affectionately called by his pards, cut out a coupon requesting information about foundation garments for women, and signed a friend's name to it. All would have been well had it not been for the fact that he forgot to notice the following stipulation on the coupon: "Our representative will call at your home and help you solve your figure problem." Imagine the lady representative's embarrassment on finding that her prospective customer was masculine rather than feminine. All in all, a charming fellow, is this Penland person.

1935 Graduates Find Employment

Teaching Claims More Than Any Other Line. Many Fields of Endeavor Call Alumni.

Last year's senior class is working, and working in a wide field of enterprise. With the exception of five graduates, two of whom are not heard from, members of the class have jobs or are continuing study in higher institutions.

More are teaching and coaching than are following any other profession, fourteen being engaged in this work. Seven are embryo ministers, now attending theological seminary. Four are in medical school. Three are in business. One is attending business college. Three are farming. Two are in music, playing with an orchestra. One is in banking and one an officer in the CCC.

Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, head of the employment bureau of this school, said in an interview that he had had many more applications from schools for teachers than he was able to fill from last year's class. Schools definitely want Presbyterian college graduates.

He stated that the greatest demand was in the fields of French, mathematics, and athletics.

Outlook For 'Y' Work Is Bright

At present the outlook for the work of the Y. M. C. A. for the coming year is very bright. The president has done all that he could during the past summer to better the organization and all that is left to be done is to put his plans to functioning. It is the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. to let every man know that he is a member of the organization and that he is in a way responsible for its success or failure. Various committees, formed by the cabinet, will function throughout the year and will keep the student body well aware of the presence of the organization on the campus.

Two hundred scholarships will be offered by Rutgers University (New Brunswick, N. J.) this year to students living on the campus.

Capt. Beatty Is New Assistant In Military

Makes Excellent Impression Upon Those Who Have Met Him. Thinks Well of College.

In a personal interview with Captain Beatty, new assistant professor of military science and tactics, succeeding Captain Blanton, your correspondent ascertained that Presbyterian college has once more secured for its military department a man who not only knows and lives military, but also radiates a personality that is sure to make him a close rival of our inimitable Major Wysor for the esteem of the men here.

Captain Beatty says that he thinks this is a fine school—no foolin', and when asked if this remark was just formally nice, he replied that he is a very frank and open man, not addicted to false praise, etc. He has watched the boys coming in, and that with the greatest interest, for he likes boys and their work. This scrutiny has revealed to him that the P. C. student is far above the average college man, he says, and he looks forward expectantly to the day when he can watch the corps on the drill feild. He is positive that the corps will put up a fine show, and when warned that he might be mistaken, he replied that he had just spent several weeks this summer at Anniston, Ala., training well over a hundred men who had never laid hand on a rifle before, so he was certain that there could be no mistake.

Captain Beatty has a most enviable record in the regular service, and he states that all desired information can be secured from the librarian, Willard Jones. Major Wysor, on the other hand, states that all information and facts relative to the shady side of Cap'n Beatty's life and career may be had merely by seeing said Major. Captain Beatty is sure to be a great asset to the campus, and he is certain to be liked, for he has a charming daughter who is also at P. C. this term.

Dr. Harold S. Fish Heads Biology Dept.

Graduate of Bowdoin College, and Harvard Ph.D. Succeeds Dr. John H. Davis.

Dr. Harold S. Fish, formerly of the biological laboratories of Harvard university, assumed his duties as head of the biology department of Presbyterian college on last Monday, filling the vacancy left when Dr. John H. Davis severed his connection with the college to accept a position as head of the department of biology at Southwestern university, Memphis, Tenn.

Dr. Fish is an A. B. graduate of Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Maine, where he majored in general zoology, vertebrate zoology, histology, embryology and botany. He taught biology for two years at Colby college, Waterville, Maine.

At Harvard, Dr. Fish took advanced training in biology and research, receiving the degree of doctor of philosophy. He served four years as an assistant in the biological laboratories at Harvard, from which service he comes directly to Presbyterian college.

To quote the dean: "He's a whale of a man in more ways than one."

Y.M.C.A. Cabinet Welcomes Frosh

The Y. M. C. A. began its year's work Tuesday morning with a cabinet meeting in Dr. Kennedy's classroom. The majority of the cabinet members were present. At this time the plans for welcoming the new men were discussed and members of the cabinet assigned special duties for the remainder of the week.

All trains and busses were met throughout the day and the new men were shown to the college where they were welcomed in the lobby of the Administration building. Identification cards were placed in a prominent place on the new arrivals so they could more easily learn one anothers' name.

On Wednesday night an informal reception was held in the gym at which time the new men were introduced to the members of the faculty and were allowed to break the ice. Refreshments were served during the hour.

Carnegie Institution (Washington, D. C.) astronomers are conducting studies of a very faint nebula said to be 1,330,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles away.

The United States has a higher proportion of college graduates than any other nation in the world. There is one for every 44 persons.

THE PARADE GROUND

By Edgar Stanton

New officers! Red Potter slides into the highest cadet rank with all the grace and ease of an old-timer. Captains Wilbanks, Wyatt, and Forehand are straining at the bit to be up and at their new charges. Plaxico, second ranking man in the corps, and Captain Wilson, are also primed to set forth upon their new careers with all the vim and vigor of spirited war horses. Freeman, as Sergeant Major, has acquired a vast amount of self-confidence which was certainly lacking before. As for the lieutenants and sergeants, they feel their importance as much—maybe more—than the higher ranking officers. The whole advanced corps is ready for battle!

Well, the Presbyterian college junior class came through in great style this summer at Fort McClellan, Ala., as usual, and walked away with all the honors, leaving such famous R.O.T.C. schools as Clemson, Citadel, and Alabama trailing in the dust. Roy Forehand, now captain of Company "C," made the highest individual score with the machine gun. The entire class took the machine gun trophy (which proves that Major Wysor's efforts are extraordinarily fruitful at times). The class also took first place in rifle marksmanship—a tribute to our faithful, old Sarge. Cadets Upshur and Quarterman, having made the Camp Perry rifle team, are now at the nationa matches firing with the Fourth Corps Area R.O.T.C. rifle team. Luck to you, fellows!

As is known, Captain George S. Beatty has joined the military department in the capacity of assistant professor of military science and tactics, succeeding Captain Blanton who is now at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Captain Beatty, besides being a charming fellow himself, has blessed our campus with a beautiful young daughter, for which we offer our most appreciable thanks He has brought us another assets in his son, George but we must admit that we are more thankful for his sister. All in all, we have plenty of blessings and thanks, but we sincerely hope that Captain Beatty will be kind to our poor little freshmen who are most apt to be needing kindness.

As is known too, we have with us a new "Major." His last name is still Wysor. Close observations would seem to indicate that he is getting along fine, and it is sincerely hoped that his disposition will improve with age and promotions. Last year, this gentleman was feverishly struck with golf, and since it is rumored that his game has improved we predict a more enjoyable future for the advanced corps, for his ups and downs in golf serve as an excellent barometer. It is also rumored, however, that he wishes no comments to be made upon his status in the golfing world, that being a sensitive point. Let that be a warning, fellow soldiers!

This is always the best part of the year for the military men. The freshmen bring both humor and pathos into the army in vast quantities, and discipline is never as lax as during the first part of the year. Fun is to be had by all, but that, unfortunately, is not the attitude taken by the military deparment. No definite announcements have yet been made as to how the corps is to be run this session, but they will be forthcoming. Last year, the cadet officers were given an unusual amount of authority, and were even allowed to "bust" men in the lower ranks and replace them. It is hoped that so much power will not be vested in the cadet officers again, for wiser (an unintentional pun) heads are more capable of judging in such matters.

Unusualities: Captain Hank Wilson is plans and training officer. What's that? . . . Diminutives E. Stanton and B. Legare are platoon sergeants in the same company . . Red Potter and erstwhile Captain R. E. Wysor, Jr., have the same rank now, but what a difference! . . . The freshmen are really very sweet and say that they enjoy drill. Anyone believe that? . . . Pudge Plowden is still trying to sell his basic uniform . . . It has been raining a great deal lately . . . Sarge really does not have flat feet.

Collegian Places Must Be Earned

All staff positions on The Collegian, college literary magazine, must be earned, announced Editor George E. Oliver this morning.

Mr. Oliver stated that the appointment of a staff would follow the same plan that was employed by the previous editor, Charles Carson. By this plan the staff is made up only of men who have had work accepted by the editor for publication. In short, the staff of each issue will be made up of the editor, the art editor, the associate editor, and the contributors to that issue.

Mr. Oliver also stated that he desired work submitted now and that contributions from every member of the student body would be gladly received and thoughtfully considered.

Arnold Announces Y.M.C.A. Cabinet

Due to the failure of several men on the Y.M.C.A. cabinet to return to school this year, several changes have been made in the cabinet.

The secretary, Bill Chalmers, will not be back this year, so a new man will have to be elected.

The officers and the cabinet members are as follows: E. J. Arnold, president; Lynn T. Jones, vice-president; R. R. Potter, E. D. Patton, W. C. Keller, J. E. Ratchford, G. H. Cody, C. R. Johnson, J. McClary, C. H. McLeod, Buck Patterson, J. K. Collings, T. D. Talmage, J. T. Seawell, W. M. Degner, J. M. Commander, H. H. Gray, W. R. Williams, E. F. MacLeod, Tom Newland, S. M. Hughes, F. R. Johnston, C. M. Hudson, M. W. Bird, J. E. Patrick, G. F. McInnis, E. E. Stanton.

Vassar college is considered to be the most expensive of the women's colleges in the United States. It costs approximately $1,350 to cover the yearly expenses of each student.

opportunity to renew acquaintances by well-planned "shuffles" which occurred every five minutes. Short proms furnished ample time for the couples to merrily question one another and to discover each other's characteristics.

Refreshments, consisting of punch and cake, were prepared and served by The College Dames, who assisted greatly in making the party a success.

The Y. M. C. A. cabinet deserves commendation and should be highly praised for its fine reception. Over three hundred attended which is unofficially believed to be the largest attendance at a similar affair in the history of the school.

Freshmen Get First Taste Of P. C. Life

Assembled fo rthe first time Tuesday night in the chapel, the new students held a lively pep meeting and were welcomed by Coach Johnson, E. J. Arnold, president of the Y. M. C. A., and James McClary, president of the student body.

President Jacobs introduced the speakers with a few forceful and often humorous remarks, closing with a hearty invitation to call on him and Mrs. Jacobs at any time except "all at once."

The faculty, through Dean Marshall W. Brown, who also is handling the administrative details of the president's office, welcomed the newcmoers, too. A swim in the college pool followed the assembly.

Additions Made To Business Curriculum

Because of increasing interest of college students in business careers, several courses along economic lines have been added to those already listed in the current catalog of Presbyterian. These courses are business psychology, business statistics, business English, and labor problems

The course in psychology for business and professional students is intended to be useful to them in the fields for which they are preparing themselves. It is designed to help the individual meet problems arising in his dealings with and contacts in the business world.

A knowledge of business statistics is almost requisite to the modern business man. Everything in every field is being staticized these days and it becomes necessary that the individuals in the business and professional worlds know how to read the records in these statistical reports.

Business English is a course designed to be very helpful to all students, but particularly to those of business administration and economics. The study in general will be the composition of business letters and business documents.

Business in its social aspects is filled with strife and dispute. Realizing this, the college has added a timely course in labor problems. A study will be made of the various problems which have and may arise in the industrial fields and how best they may be coped with. Any American student should find such a course interesting in view of the recent and current strife in industry.

STUDENTS VOTE 28TH HOLIDAY

Annual "Day Off" Selected As That of Georgia Tech-P. C. Game Next Saturday.

On last Thursday at a meeting of the student body, the students of Presbyterian college voted to take Saturday, September 28th, the day of the P. C.-Georgia Tech game, as this year's football holiday.

It is the custom of the administratoin to give one holiday during the year so that students may attend one football game away from the campus. The selection of this day is left up to popular vote.

Last year the day taken was the day after Thanksgiving and the faculty gave the following Saturday, allowing the students three free days. This year, however, the faculty made the reservation that the holiday must come on a day when a game is being played.

The only two days suggested were the Georgia Tech game and the Clemson game. The Tech game won in the popular vote.

Quarterman And Upshur Return

Have Been Competing In National Rifle Matches At Camp Perry. Their Team Places Fourth.

Begrimed, weary, and sleepy from two days and one night of travel, Lee Quarterman and Tom Upshur arrived at school late Friday afternoon. For the past eighteen days they have been participating in the national rifle matches at Camp Perry, on the banks of Lake Erie, near Port Clinton, Ohio. They were members of the Fourth Corps area team, which placed fourth in the national matches.

The Seventh Corps area won first place, with the Third Corps Area second, and the Ninth third. The camp lasted from September 1 until September 18.

Quarterman and Upshur were chosen to represent this corps area at the R. O. T. C. camp at Anniston, Ala., this summer, getting their positions on the corps team by way of elimination matches.

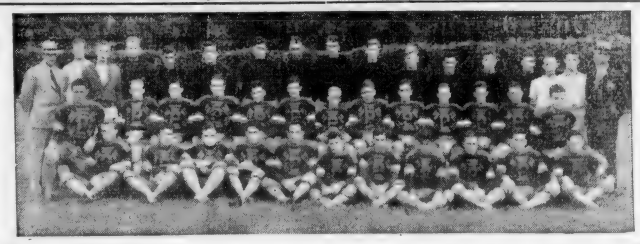
"Those fellows up there could really shoot a gun," said Quarterman. "They could throw a washer in the air and fire through the hole in it, pasting a piece of paper over the hole before throwing just to prove that was where the bullet actually went."

Quaterman told other stories of their shooting ability. One of the most interesting was that of a man who could throw a piece of money in the air and shooting it once, swing his rifle a second time and hit it again before it struck the earth.

Both Quarterman and Upshur are lieutenants in the Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. unit and are members of the senior class. Quarterman is a valuable backfield man on the football team, being an expert at booting the ball.

Alumni Luncheon In Atlanta Saturday

An alumni luncheon will be held at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel in conjunction with the Presbyterian college-Georgia Tech football game, September 28th.



William P. Jacobs, acting president of the school, is inviting all members of the Georgia alumni group to this luncheon as his personal guests. He states that any other alumni who can find it possible to attend will be welcomed and are urged to be there.

The luncheon will be held at 12:30, plenty of time before the game starts. Mr. Jacobs states that it is being arranged to sell tickets to the alumni attending the luncheon at a special rate.

I.R.C. PREPARES PLANS FOR YEAR

First Meeting Wednesday Night. Vacancies To Be Filled By Competitive Examination.

Henry Calvert, president of the International Relations club, announced today that the club would begin its activities this year at a meeting Wednesday evening at seven o'clock. The club will have many things to discuss in the way of plans for the current year and it is hoped that all members will be present. One of the things that will be under the discussion of business matters will be the day and time of meetings this year.

There are some vacancies which have occurred in the limited membership of the club and will have to be filled. It has been the custom to take care of such a matter by competitive examination on current events. Calvert has expressed the hope of the club that many of the student body interested in world affairs and the promotion of international peace would be looking forward to possible membership in the club.

In regard to the year's program, the president mentioned that several debates on various international questions would be held. The club also plans to open some of its more important meetings this year to the student body. It is further designed that discussions this year will not be confined to the political strife of international interest, but that they will include economic, industrial, educational, vocational, and athletic tendencies relative to the world at large.

Some new books for the International Relations club have been received in the library and the titles will be posted as soon as the books have been catalogued.

E. R. Andrews is vice-president of the club and Charles Steenbergen is secretary and treasurer. Among those not returning are Paul Van Sant, Abbot Lake, Charles Carson, and L. A. McCall, Jr.

Freeman Moves Up In Air Corps

Powell Freeman, Presbyterian college graduate of 1934 and at present an army air corps cadet, visited his parents here in Clinton from September 1st to the 5th.

Mr. Freeman, after receiving his A. B. degree from this institution in June, 1934, entered the air service as a student at Randolph Field, Texas, in July, 1934. He remained there for eight months and was then advanced to Kelly Field, Texas, and after four months of training received his wings on June 22, 1935.

One hundred and fifty-four entered with him at Randolph Field and only fifty-nine finished with him, the remainder being weeded out along the line. At Randolph he was a first sergeant.

Mr Freeman is now serving as a cadet at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La. He is supposed to serve one more year there before becoming a full-fledged airman, but it is rumored that because of the tenseness of the Italian-Ethiopian dispute he may receive his commission in a few months.

While at P. C. he was captain of the varsity track team and holder of the state record in the javelin throw. His record was bettered last spring by Blackwell of Clemson. He was a member of the student council in 1932-33, advertising manager of the Pan-Sac and alternate captain of the swimming team. Socially, he was a Beta Kappa.

ATTENTION, ALUMNI

Graduates of the class of '35 are asked to send Willard L. Jones a postcard with their names and addresses. They will receive The Blue Stocking and membership in the Alumni Association without cost.

Members of all other classes are asked to read the notice on the back page if they wish to receive future copies of The Blue Stocking.

DEADLINE SET FOR MAGAZINE

George Oliver, Editor, States Material For First Issue Must Be In By October 11.

Editor George E. Oliver has announced that the deadline for material to be published in The Collegian, school literary magazine, is October 11th.

Mr. Oliver states that no material will be considered that reaches him later than this date. He has given several assignments and is calling for contributions from the student body. As announced last week, positions on the staff are earned by the acceptance of material.

Mr. Oliver says that he is expecting to put out, with the cooperation of the student body, one of the best magazines that has been on this campus. The greater portion of last year's writers are back in school, and are writing seriously for the publication.

ANNUAL "RAT PARADE" HELD

First-Year Men Are "Warmly" Welcomed In Ceremonies Last Tuesday Night.

Once more P. C. tradition reigns and freshmen are formally (or informally as the case may be) "initiated" into the student body by "rat run." Last Tuesday night freshmen once more blacked their faces, grasped firmly a long grass rope and trudged up town.

That "rat run" got off to its usually auspicious start behind an accomplished freshman band, gently and firmly persuaded by the upper classmen. "Head Man" Isom and "Assistant Head Man" Bird were very instrumental and effective as executives.

In the lead of the parade was the proverbial drum major in the person of "Rat" Moore. Then came the band. "Rat" Dennard was leading the freshman column. "Rat" McSween was the man who brought the procession to a close. Very lustily and at the same time, nonchalantly, he sang such classics as "Seeing Nellie Home" and "Wake Me Early, Mother, For I'm To Be Queen of the May," as other freshmen sang the time-worn and ever-pertinent refrain, "We'll Ride Ole' Clemson on the Rail."

Having detoured by the "Presidential Mansion" to give fifteen lusty cheers for the Blue Hose, and then having detoured again to serenade the "Home of Peace" on the Thornwell campus, the parade arrived up town where light refreshments were handed out by local merchants.

Very touching and slightly nostalgic was the rendition of a Florida hymn by four rats from the noble state of sunshine and tornadoes. The hog-calling contest was inspiring and the onion-eating contest was, to say the least, dramatic. It brought tears to the eyes of those who participated.

Several of P. C.'s frosh co-eds were present at the festivities on the town square, but for reasons of their own they were somewhat hesitant about joining the procession of their classmates. One upperclass co-ed was present, who, not being able to resist the power of mob psychology, seized a belt and lent her hand to making the occasion a walloping success.

To the "rat" gridmen the privilege was given of refraining from running the gauntlet of upper classmen. Though no accurate check was made on the time, bystanders maintained that the state record on the hundred-yard dash was broken and re-broken a number of times as eighty freshmen dashed through the gauntlet.

A fitting close to the evening's entertainment came in the form of a free show for the new men. Here they had opportunity to rest and reflect on the experiences through which they had just passed.

Charles Selected As Sports Editor

The editor of The Blue Stocking announces the appointment of Preston Charles as sports editor of The Blue Stocking. Charles has served on the staff of the paper for the past three years, beginning as a reporter in his freshman year. In 1933-34 he served as assistant sports editor and on the present staff he has held the position of associate editor.

The editor feels that he is fortunate in being able to secure so capable a man to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Sadler Love, sports editor since January.

BLUE HOSE FALL BEFORE POWER OF TIGERS, 25-6

Waldrep Scores Only P.C. Touchdown. Clemson Makes Impressive Showing In the Season's Opener. Calvinists Fight Hard But Are Outclassed.

Fighting gamely but without avail against a heavier and more experienced foe, Presbyterian college's blue-clad gridiron warriors went down Saturday before a great team of Clemson Tigers, by a score of 25 to 6. The Hose touchdown was made by Ralph Waldrep, substitute end, who grabbed a fumbled ball and ran 50 yards for the score in the waning moments of the game. The game was played in the broiling summer heat of Clemson's Riggs field.

The Tigers almost scored in the first quarter after a 40-yard run by Berry, but the alert Hosemen broke up a forward lateral and recovered the ball near their own goal.

The second period, however, told a different story. The Clemson backfield sliced thru to thefive-yard line and took the ball over in four tries. Later the Bengals added another score in the second frame after a 70-yard march down the field, featured by aerial heaves. The third touchdown by Clemson came after a partially blocked punt which was run back to the P. C. 18-yard line, from which point the Clemson backs carried it over in short gains. The final Tiger score was late in the fourth period, after Hinson had made a long punt return, and short gains and a pass carried it over for a 25-point lead.

The great moment, from the P. C. standpoint, was the spectacular run of Ralph Waldrep, a substitute end, who, in almost the last few seconds of the game, abstracted the oval from Lawton's arms, and departed rather hurriedly with the purloined pigskin, not stopping until he had traveled 50 yards to the Tiger zero marker. This play was undoubtedly the most thrilling of the entire game, from the spectator's viewpoint.

During the first two period the two teams felt each other out, with Clemson showing some superiority. After an exchange of punts during which Robbie Higbe, flashly blue-clad halfback, made a neat 15-yard return, the Clemsonites got the ball and Quarterback Berry cut thru right tackle for a beautiful run of 40 yards, placing the ball on the visitors' 15. Then came a break in favor of the Presbyterians, as a forward lateral failed to click, and P. C. recovered the bounding oval. Another drive attempted by the Tigers came to naught, as the period came to a close.

Then Clemson turned on the juice. Lawton, Neely's great broken-field runner, made a beautiful punt return and Clemson settled down to business. With Lawton making 18 yards, other backs made short gains to place the ball five yards from the goal. Then came a tense moment. Three times Clemson's hard-driving backs hurled themselves against the gallant P. C. linemen, but they still lacked a yard. Finally Wiles butted through for the touchdown. The try for point was blocked.

Clemson's Tigers were thirsting for still more blood, however, and they were not long in tasting it. After the kickoff and a P. C. punt, Folger made a couple of good gains thru the line, and Berry passed to Horton for 7 and again for 23 yards. Finally Folger broke thru the line for 8 yards and a touchdown. Again the try for point went low. Clemson 12; P. C. 0.

Just before the half the Presbyterians perked up a bit as Holliday broke thru the right side of the line and nearly got away, but he was stopped in Clemson territory after a 10-yard gain. A moment later the half ended.

As the second half began, the clawing Bengals started what seemed to be a touchdown drive, but a pass over the goal gave the ball to the Hose.

A Sane Stand

Acting President William P. Jacobs is taking a sane and sensible stand as regards the relation of the administration of this school to the student body—that of friendly cooperation and help. He seems to feel that we, the students, have reached a stage of maturity where we can and should control our own affairs.

If his action in lifting the administrative ban on hazing proves typical of his attitude toward the student body, we are indeed fortunate in having as our head a man who takes a broadminded and impartial view of our students' relations. The matter of hazing is primarily a question that rests on the shoulders of the student body, and it is a matter that they alone can satisfactorily settle. The result of last year's administrative interference stands as a bright commendation of the present leader's action.

This action as regards the reduction of scholarships when the holders pledge a fraternity is further proof of his approval of and confidence in our student body. We feel that the matter of joining a fraternity is purely personal, and while we can understand the point of view that prompted the previous ruling we feel that lifting it has added greatly to the freedom and self-dependence of the students as a whole.

Everywhere on the campus we are hearing enthusiastic comments on the attitude that Mr. Jacobs has taken. The students are definitely for him and the things that he is attempting. He has already done much to establish a more friendly feeling toward the administration from the students and we are expecting him to do even more in the future.

We are taking this opportunity to urge that every student give Mr. Jacobs his complete support in all that he is attempting, and that every student take advantage of his offer of personal interviews when things are not going to suit the students.

Shall I Join a Fraternity?

That is a question that is paramount in the minds of practically every freshman in college. And it is a question that demands an immediate answer. Further, it is a question to which no group answer can be given—every man in the class must decide this matter for himself.

The answer to this question will, in some instances, mean the choosing of life's pathway as the freshman now stands at the cross roads of life. To others, the answer will not be nearly so significant, but no member of the class wll find himself unaffected by his answer to it.

Dean Brown on last Tuesday morning gave several reasons why fraternities should not be joined. We are confident that the Dean, as a fraternity man, was not attacking the fraternity system when he mentioned only reasons why these social groups should not be joined—we believe that he was merely urging extreme caution on the part of freshmen, and his speech was one that every thinking fraternity man can appreciate and value.

As he stated, money is an important question in joining any social group. There is no such thing as a fraternity that doesn't cost the members, and to join one when you are unable to carry the necessary expenses is to take unfair advantage of both yourself and the organization.

Study and social life will mix very successfully as has been proved number of times on both this and hundreds of other campuses. But the man who joins a fraternity should be certain that it will work out in his case as well. Despite manifestations to the contrary at this season of the year, fraternities are not the most important parts of school life.

To state the other side of the question: C. H. Freeark in a booklet entitled "A College Career and the American College Fraternity System," lists several reasons why fraternities should be joined. They are: Membership in a fraternity is a concentrated experience in human association. The bulk of fraternity men came from the great stabilizing force in America, the middle class, consequently the organization spirit in fraternities is determined largely by this class of students. It is a wholesome spirit and tends to keep the group within reasonable limits of good conduct and worthy performance. Fraternity men are urged by their brothers to do as good scholastic work as possible, for no group likes to find its chapter at the bottom of the list in scholarship. There is no other experience in life at the same age that provides all-around training in the same length of time, as that completely self-governing organization, the fraternity chapter. Social instruction and the opportunity to practice the social graces are benefits offered by the fraternity that cannot be had from any other college organization.

These are the chief points both for and against the social organizations. You who are asking yourself the important question of "Shall I join?" must weigh them in the balances for yourself and sanely and logically decide the answer.

Just Why ARE You Here?

That is a question that has been the subject of numerous college publication editorials but with each new group of students it becomes again a live, and pressing question.

You new students have come for reasons as numerous and varying as your names; some to be athletes, some to be scholars, some to eat of that ephemeral glory that is college leadership and honors, some to have a "good time," and some for no reason at all. No one will completely achieve the goal that he had in mind when he entered this school, and it is well that such failure is inevitable. For, basically, the most valuable thing that you can get in college is preparation for life. And concentration on any one of these fields will cause failure in achieving the main objective.

Take the case of the grind: From his immense study he secures an astounding and practically useless bundle of details that will take him practically nowhere in life unless he chooses teaching as a profession. He has lost more than he can ever regain, lost something that mere knowledge cannot repay—he has lost the ability to enjoy true comradeship, to gloss over the serious tragedies of life with a certain superficial buoyancy.

Or consider the athlete: His athletic work has given him a body that is far superior to that of the average man; but, after all, what is a body? Without the ability to think clearly, without the abiliy to look on another's physical weakness without being patronizing toward him, without the understanding that the body is merely the shell in which the man himself lives, athletes make, not a man, but a forest god such as the fictitious Tarzan is.

Look at the receiver of college's transient honors: He is placed in a position of laedership—truly, he has an advantage over the others, but, if he neglects either of the other two he is doomed. He must learn that leadership means responsibility and work and that all that glitters is not gold.

No, each of these is receiving a portion of what college has to offer — neither is receiving all that college has to offer. There is, after all, only one reason that will satisfy that nagging and persistent question of "Why am I here?" and that is that we are here to learn to live on a bigger scale than we could have otherwise; we are here to learn to know and understand friendship and congeniality; we are here to learn to laugh with and at life in all its varied forms. If we are merely learning to be scholars, if we are merely learning to be athletes, if we are merely learning to be leaders, then time, money, and effort are being criminally wasted.

BOOK REVIEW

By Stuart Campbell

"NOW IN NOVEMBER," By Josephine Johnson

To those of us who have begun to tire of those writers who attempt to crush us by sheer weight of words or who weep through countless pages because "we are so lost, so lonely, so forsaken in America," the simplicity and beauty of Miss Johnson's prose comes as a welcome relief. In her novel of farm life the author makes her characters seem real, ordinary folk. The majority of people living on a farm do not think of themselves as majestic or as people who are part of a vast drama of life. They are little concerned with events outside of their own family sphere. It is his type of farm family which is portrayed in "Now In November."

This Pulitzer prize novel is the story of a famly which tries to eke out an existence on a mid-Western farm. The book covers a period of ten years ending in November of the drouth year. The final tragedy is foreshadowed from the first and skillfully worked up to. From the time that the father says there is a mortgage on the farm until the ordeal of the drought year there is an undertone of fear offset somewhat by the traditional hope of the farmer that the next year will produce a fine crop. The extreme introvertion of the three daughters results in insanity and suicide for one and failure of the other two to find normal happiness.

It is hard to find more beautifully written prose than that employed by Miss Johnson It is, however, unnatural for anyone to discover as much esthetic beauty in everyday things as the characters in this book do. In this respect the author departs from the realism which characterizes her novel. One cannot but be impressed by the extraordinary descriptive power and the skillful work of Miss Johnson in this her first novel.

THE PARADE GROUND

By Edgar Stanton

This has been the big week for the sophomores. New corporals have been "made." Judging from past experiences (my own and those of others), it may easiy be said that the unfortunate sophs who did not advance need not worry, for "busts" are certain to come sooner or later. 'Tis inevitable. This will leave vacancies, and uppers and comers can step right in. Also, being a first-class private is no mean accomplishment, besides being a stepping stone to higher things.

Dear old Sarge is about ready to call out the varsity Squiff Ball team for the first fall practice. He plans to have a championship outfit next spring when the season opens, for many of last year's letter men are back in school. Freshman practice will start immediately after the varsity is going good. All freshmen who care to play, see Sarge during this week. There are two manager's positions open too, and freshmen who desire to make some fine trips apply at once. Sarge is anxious for the new men to show interest in this most delightful sport.

Interest among the freshmen has been running high as concerns the co-ed team managership. This shows a fine spirit, and as to be highly commended. Unfortunately, however, there have been so many applications that the office of the P. M. S. and T. reports enough to last for the next ten years. In order not to disappoint so many men, plans are now going forward to have a manager for each member of the team, which will give positions to twelve or fourteen. To be certain that the best men are selected for the jobs, all further applicants are requested to see Sarge or Captain Beatty at once, and to turn in the names of those who might possibly be interested. Please be prompt.

The band is priming itself for great things in a musical way this year. There are more applicants than there have been at any time in the last five years. New belts and caps have been ordered by the military department in order that the musicaleers may appear to the best advertisemen than a neat band (provided that it can play music). Plans are now on foot for the band to go to the Furman game, and possibly to several others.

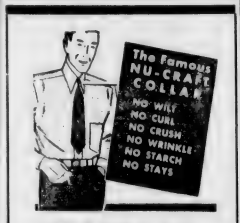
Bagatelles: Major Wysor permits smoking in his classes, but all who chew must bring their own spitoons. . . . Funny thing, but those who make the advanced course laud the R.O.T.C. to the loftiest skies . . . All who are rejected condemn same said R.O.T.C. mightily . . . Sarge offered to take some of the students to the Tech game for expenses plus five dollars chauffeur's fee. . . . Some school spirit. Wonder which one in particular? . . . Bob McLees, illustrious painter, artist, writar, lover, etc., regrets tremendously his home guard status . . . So does Keyhole Charles.

Chapin-Crawford Marriage In August

The Rev. Oliver W. Chapin and Miss Jeannette Crawford were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crawford, on North Broad street, Clinton, Saturday, August 31st.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. M. Johnston, of Greer. Miss Emma Little, of Clinton, was the bride's only attendant. James Isaac Copeland, of Clinton and Peabody college, Nashville, was the groom's best man.

The groom, preacher, and best man were P. C. graduates of the class of '31. Chapin graduated with the B.D. degree from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1934. Since that time he has been pastor of the Presbyterian church of Margaretville, N. Y., where the couple will make their home.



Mrs. Chapin received her A. B. degree from Winthrop college and M. A. from the University of Pennsylvania. She has been teaching in the schools of Chester and Columbia.

The government of China has decreed that military training in all colleges in Canton, China, shall be compulsory.

Summer Activities Faculty Members

Summer School Work Claims Several. Others Scatter Over Various Sections of Country.

The reporter scratched his head and thought of Stephen Foster. Evidently, the faculty agreed with the composer, for they were practically unanimous in declaring that there is "No place like home" for spending a summer vacation. Presbyterian summer school accounted for six weeks of the time of Professors Spencer, Graham, Coe, Sturgeon, Huntley, and Woodworth.

Dr. Jones and Business Manager Hunter also spent the summer at home, although the latter was kept exceedingly busy for several weeks by young people's conferences.

Dr. Stephen Huntley turned fisherman on the coast, near Conway, after some time at Montreat. Professor Graham also vistied Montreat, where a good many P. C. men spend their summers.

Dr. Spencer, after teaching in summer school, spent over a week in Asheville, and attended a conference of church-related colleges there. Dr. Woodworth went to Dr. McQuilken's conference.

Dr. Kennedy spent his summer mostly in York.

Coach Walter Johnson and Librarian Willard Jones spent most of their time scouting for students, as did Field Representative Turk Osman. However, Coach's summer was made interesting, to say the least, by the calling out and stationing in the strike area at Pelzer of Battery G, Coast Artillery, which he commands.

Dean and Mrs. Brown broke the monotony of ceaseless treks between their College View residence and the Administration building with a trip of several hundred miles through the New England states, visiting the Arcadian National park at Bar Harbor, Maine, and viewing the Great Stone Face among other things.

Major Wysor, Captain Beatty, and Sergeant Young spent six weeks with the seniors at Anniston, Alabama.

Dr. Fish, successor to Dr. J. H. Davis as professor of biology, has probably the most interesting vacation to report, for despite much time spent in Cambridge, he with friends took a trip up through Canada, New Foundland, Nova Scotia and the vicinity, camping out at night. The picturesque Cabot trail which they transversed is in many places too narrow for two cars to pass; consequently, at intervals along the trail wide places for that very purpose are provided.

Prof. Swedenberg spent his summer partly at the University of North Carolina doing research work.

Like Dr. Fish, Dr. Whitelaw, who succeeded the late Professor A. V. Martin, reports at least one interesting incident for the summer—a trip through western Kansas and Nebraska to observe the damage done by last spring's flood.

The number of college students in the United Statse has increased approximately 900 per cent since 1900, while the population of the country has increased only 63 per cent.

Lighting System Nearly Complete

Bulbs and Transmitters All That Is Need To Finish Job. Will Be Installed Early This Week.

Johnson field soon will be lighted, according to a statement issued to a representative of the Blue Stocking Friday afternoon by Coach Walter Johnson.

The poles have been set, the placing of reflectors already made and wiring completed. According to Coach Johnson's statement, all that is needed to make the field as bright as noon is the light bulbs and the transmitters, and these are expected early this week.

When this equipment is completely installed, Presbyterian college will have one of the finest lighting systems for night athletics of any school in the South. The total system gives out 72,000 watts, several thousand more than the amount given out by any other system in the state.

Wingate Marries Miss Alexander

Many freinds of T. H. Wingate, of the class of '34, were delightfully surprised this summer upon receiving the announcement of his marriage to Miss Frances Alexander, of Charlotte, N.C., on Sunday, August 25th.

Wingate will be remembered as editor of The Blue Stocking and associate editor of the PaC-SaC, besides the many other offices he filled during the four years he was at P. C. He is now editor of The Independent, newspaper at Kannapolis, N. C.

Mrs. Wingate received her education in the Charlotte city schools and Queens-Chicora college. Their future home will be in Kannapolis.

Round-Trip To Tech Game, $3.25

Students can secure round trip tickets to the Georgia Tech game for $3.25, announces Coach Walter Johnson.

He says he is anxious that every P. C. student be present at the gridiron encounter in Atlanta next Saturday and that he is doing his best to make it possible.

He thinks that he can secure popularly priced students' tickets to the Tech game, and he has expressed the hope that each student will so arrange his budget that he will be able to go.

P. C. EXPECTS TO HAVE GOOD MUSICAL ODRGANIZATIONS

Director Harmon Plans To Add Several Instruments. Group Is Working Diligently.

Off to a good start in both band and orchestra, Director Paul Harmon says that he has one of the best prospects in recent years for a pair of fine organizations.

The band faces a number of good trips to various P. C. football games and hopes to be a star unit of the military corps this year. Harmon says that the number of freshmen out for the band now is far in advance of last year's new men. In addition to sophomores Gray, Heeth, Patterson, Brown and Darby, there are some ten or tyelve freshmen already out, with others to join later, perhaps. Freshmen players include: trumpets, Culp, Reid, Horne; drums, Nelms; saxaphones, Wylie, Cousins; bass drum, Smith; trombones, Black, Hinton.

There is also Harmon, Wallace, Mann, McInnes, Shoemaker, and Chapman, who are the advanced members of the band.

It is the hope of the band to have more showy uniforms than last year. Director Harmon intimates that negotiations may produce white harness, white caps, covers, red and blue capes, and possibly other ornaments. Some of these are already ordered, he says.

As for the orchestra, there has been more than usual interest evinced among freshmen who are musically inclined. The past week and a half has been devoted to try-outs of new talent, most of the "practices" being of this nature. Many freshmen who are band members also have tried out for orchestra positions. Among these are Hinton, Culp, Horne, Smith, Cousins, Wylie, and Reid.

Although the loss by graduation of three mainstays of last year's orchestra made large gaps in its setup, Director Harmon says that he will be much surprised if the orchestra does not succeed in surpassing last year's fine reputation by the addition of an amplifying system and new uniforms. "At least," he says, "we'll be as good as we were last year."

There are several last year's players in the orchestra again this year. These include Harris Gray, R. L. Clark, Harmon, Mann, Shoemaker, Wallace, and MacIntosh.

The orchestra is expecting to play quite a few dances between now and next May. It has ordered about 25 new orchestrations this year as a starter.

The last year's library has been cut and weeded to the very soundest and most reliable selections, insuring a pleasing and notable range of numbers as a basis for the additions of this year.

The plans of Director Harmon include the addition of second trombone and third trumpet to the brass section, making five brasses in all. He expects a fuller, more rounded result with this combination. Otherwise, the set-up is the same, three saxophones, brass, drums, and piano.

The great amount of labor that goes toward the organization of both band and orchestra is certainly deserving of some encouragement from the school as a whole. His best efforts are being extended and he is to be commended for the results so far. His organization is very cooperative, also, contributing materially toward this year's successful beginning and fine prospects.

Predictions

This column presents capsule sketches of the possibilities of state teams as the 1935 season opens:

CLEMSON — Big, strong, fast and powerful. Blessed with an abundance of good material, and this year's probable state champ.

FURMAN—Clemson's closest rival for titular honors. Better than most people think. Only the Tigers can beat them.

CITADEL—Over-rated, but stronger than last year's outfit. Will place third in state race.

P. C.—Good enough not to disappoint Blue Hose fans, but power not distributed evenly enough to let them make a big splash in the Palmetto pond.

WOFFORD — Stronger than the team that tied P. C. last year. Sophomores a big help. Will finish about fifth in the state race.

CAROLINA — Handicapped by lack of material but will play over their heads in every game. Will finish third if they beat Citadel.

NEWBERRY — Won't win many state games, but capable of causing an upset or two. Won't beat the Blue Stockings.

ERSKINE — A shade better than last year's edition, but lacking in weight. Will end up near the bottom of the ladder.

P. C. To Face Strong Tech Team Saturday

FRESHMAN TEAM DEVELOPING RAPIDLY UNDER McMILLIAN

Several Candidates Give Promise of Being Formidable Players. Large Squad Reporting Daily and Work Progressing Nicely.

With less than two week's practice behind them Lonnie McMillian's freshman football team is beginning to shape an offensive which should develop into a powerful attack. From the fifty-two candidates, who reported at the beginning of the season Coach McMillian has formed four teams and has started scrimmage. In the early work on fundamentals several men have shown that they know football. With players who have distinguished themselves in high schools and prep school competition, P. C. may well expect a freshman team that will go places.

Although it is still too early in the season for the rats to demonstrate their full power, a number of the freshmen are already showing up well. In designing his attack, Coach Lonnie will have good backfield material to call upon. Moreno, a quarterback from Savannah, is calling signals for the team that is now the pick for a first string. He is already showing ability as an offensive man and should stand in well for a place on the frosh team. The "rats" have found a powerhouse in June Moore, who is running at fullback. He makes his power felt most when clearing the way for a ball-carrier and at present seems to be the best blocking back. His ability to stop up holes will make him a valuable defensive player. There is an abundance of good material with an eye on the halfback posts. Ed Lambright is a promising back whose running should be a strong point of the frosh attack. He is a speedy and dependable back who stands out in spite of the number of able candidates out for his position. Another ball carrier who has shown up well in practice is a flashy back named Reynolds. He is the contribution of Washington, Ga. His record there gives reason to expect great things of him. Dennard is another able candidate who is making a fair bid for a place on the frosh eleven.

Coach McMillian's offensive will not be limited to a running attack. He is already beginning to build a passing attack around Holcomb, Batchelor, and Folley. These three men are already showing by their blocking and tackling that they expect to see much service at end this year. In the line the main problem of the Blue Anklets has been to find a center. In an endeavor to get a good man on the pivotal position, Coach Lonnie has converted Murchison from guard to center. If Murchison continues to show the ability that he has demonstrated in practice, he will probably earn a permanent berth in the center of the line.

The leading candidate at guard is "King Kong" Gazes, a recent addition to the squad. In spite of his 209 pounds Gazes is a speedy lineman and handles his weight well. The other heavyweights of the line are two rangy tackles, Bussell and Evans. Both of these men are sure tacklers and hard-charging blockers.

There still remains three weeks before the opening game with the University of South Carolina. In this time Coach McMillian will probably make changes in lineups for there are a number of excellent players who are working hard and who will make themselves heard from this season. Shackelford, Culp, and Henderson are turning in performances which make them threats for positions on the first string. Regardless who may land places on the freshman team, it is certain that the "rats" will be able to put an experienced and able squad on the field.

1935 Frosh Schedule

Oct. 11—Carolina at Columbia.
Oct. 18—Newberry at Newberry.
Nov. 2—The Citadel at Charleston.
Nov. 8—Clemson at Clinton.
Nov. 14—Wofford at Clinton.

ASHBY JOHNSON

A Presbyterian college team with ample reserve power, an almost unheard-of athletic prenomenon, is taking the field this year. In past year's the Blue Stockings have had to depend upon sixty-minute "iron men." This season, however, Coach Johnson will have not only his first-string seasoned veterans but also capable substitutes with which to fill in gaps left by injury. In recent practice the work of the reserves has almost equaled that of the regulars. With two or more men fighting on almost equal terms for every position, Coach Johnson should spend no sleepless nights with visions of a team crippled by irreparable gaps in the line-up. It is the players who are doing the worrying; no one can be sure of a place on this year's eleven.

WALTER JOHNSON
HEAD FOOTBALL COACH

In twenty years of coaching at Presbyterian college Walter Johnson has made an enviable record and established a reputation as a great team-builder. His talents for developing material are at their best when he is working on ends. The number of all-state flankmen that P. C. has turned out is an indication of how well Johnson has done this part of his job. With the memory of Lynn, Copeland, Pinson, Yearout, and Waldrep still fresh, the absence of good end material at the first of the season was quite a shock to all P. C. sport followers. When early practice opened, Roy Forehand was the only experienced player to report for end duty. Presbyterian supporters began to wonder where a man would be found to hold down the other flank assignment. However, Coach Johnson has shown his followers that he can still build ends when they are needed. Joe Bradley is rapidly developing into one of the most dependable tacklers on the squad and is also making himself valuable by breaking up plays before they start. Al McSween is doing exceptionally good defensive work and is blocking like a veteran. The sophomores' best contribution is Ralph Waldrep, who looks like sure-fire to take up the duties left to him by his brother, Frank. Yes, P. C. can always find ends!

The Presbyterian Blue Hose are well represented in the athletic conferences of the section. A study of the P. C. schedule will reveal that among the school's nine opponents are representatives of four Southern football leagues. After the initial encounter with Clemson a member of the Southern conference, the Calvinists will oppose a team from the Southeastern conference. In playing Georgia Tech, the Blue Hose will be up against a member of the strongest conference in the South. This Southeastern conference is made up of the major teams of this section who broke away from the old Southern conference. All other teams outside of the state association which the Hosemen will meet are members of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association. The S. I. A. A. has about thirty-members and is the largest conference, numerically, in the nation. With a heavy schedule before them the team may make a bid for fame in four football circles.

OPENING GAME FOR TORNADO

Presbyterians Play Georgia Outfit for First Time. Following Tiger Game, Local Team Expects To Put Up Stiff Fight.

With the annual Clemson fracas again a thing of the past, the Blue Hose are settling down to another week of strenuous practice for Georgia Tech, the next hurdle they will have to leap in P. C.'s toughest schedule in years. The Hosemen are little the worse for their fatiguing opening battle in the Tiger stadium, and will probably be in good shape to face the Rambling Wreck.

"SHORTY" HORNE, CENTER

P. C. supporters are cheered by the continued good showing of their new backfield men in the Clemson game. Although they were not expected to show as much stuff as last year's backs, they performed surprisingly well in consideration of the loss of Perrin, Bolick and others from last season's team. Men such as Degner, Jacobs, Abbott, and Thompson, who saw little service last year, are expected to step out in better form against Tech, and, now that the tension of the season's beginning has been eased, they will undoubtedly be vital parts of a powerful backfield machine. Of course there are the other backs who are practically assured of starting positions, viz., Higbe, Wilbanks, and Holliday, but frequent changes will be necessary—and desirable—with so much good material to pick from. Besides the backs already mentioned, there are two new men from junior college, Jeff Boland, former Clinton high school star, and Coon Weldon, another good running back.

P. C.'s line, considered by dopesters to be rather weak, may show up better against Tech than is expected. Nelson, a new man, seems to be good on one tackle and should pair up well with Millsap. Guards are there galore and certainly there is no cause for worry in this department. Pudge Plowden, at center, should be much improved over his last season form, since he now weighs a mare 200 pounds and is faster on his feet than before. The ends will be taken care of by the veteran Foy Forehand and probably Joe Bradley.

Although it is extremely difficult to say how the Golden Tornado stacks up, it is safe to predict that the Blue Hose will have more than they can handle. Winning by the skin of their teeth in a 12 to 7 victory over Clemson in last year's opener, Coach Alexander is taking no chances on allowing the public to witness a giant-killing in Atlanta Saturday. Certainly, if by any chance the Atlanta team should lose, overconfidence can not be blamed.

Several backs have been showing up well in Tech practise sessions recently. One good man is Konemann, Columbia ace, who has shown ability as a back, Street, a great line plunger, and Edwards, a back, who does his running more toward the flanks, have been starring in late workouts.

The Tornado starting lineup, altho it is hard to tell this time before the game, may sound something like this: Ends, Gibson and Morgan; tackles, Chance and Lindsey; guards, Wilcox and Brittain; center, Preston; backs, Sims, Konemann, Street and Edwards.

Altho Tech supporters consider P. C. not much more than a fairly easy opener, a fair amount of interest is being shown by local fans. It will be remembered that the Calvinists made quite a good impression on their last performance several years ago in Atlanta thru the brilliant play of the famed Stamps-Wilson combination. Since the P. C. student body recently selected next Saturday as their football holiday awarded them annually by the faculty, many of them will be there to cheer the team on.

History Of Frats On P. C. Campus

Information Given To Enlighten Freshmen Who May Receive Bids To Organizaitons.

In view of the fact that last Monday the rushing season commenced, a little information about the six national fraternities represented on the Presbyterian campus should be gratefully received by prospective pledges.

Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity was founded January 1, 1921, Newark College of Engineering, Newark, N. J. In 1928, Phi Delta Tau (local, founded 1925) petitioned and was granted a charter as Eta chapter. Incidentally, the Presbyterian chapter was the first to be installed in South Carolina.

Alpha Lambda Tau national fraternity developed from Alpha Lambda, a local fraternity founded at the reorganized Oglethorpe university in 1916. The Rapier club, organized in 1925 on the P. C. campus, was granted a charter as Iota chapter of Alpha Lambda Tau on the 12th of November, 1927. Willard L. Jones, librarian, was a charter member of both the local and the eventual national chapter.

Beta Kappa national fraternity was first organized in 1901 at Hamline university. Alpha Eta chapter on the campus was chartered in 1930, having previously been Epsilon chapter of a defunct national fraternity, Chi Tau, and still earlier (1923) the Omega, a local club.

The Kappa Alpha order was founded at Washington college (now Washington and Lee), immediately after the close of the Civil war in 1865. Beta Pi chapter, of this campus, was installed January 19, 1924, absorbing the Aesir club, a local association which had existed for a number of years previously, and was the third chapter of K A. to be established in South Carolina.

Pi Kappa Alpha, founded in 1868 at the University of Virginia, was one of the first two fratermities to install chapters on the Presbyterian campus, Mu chapter being established December 9th, 1890. The other, the Phi Phi Phi fraternity, organized at some college in Texas, grew only to include two chapters, and remained active only until shortly after 1900.

Pi Kappa Phi was founded in 1904, at the College of Charleston. Contacts and friendships developed through intercollegiate relations resulted in the installation of Beta chapter here on March 16, 1907, the fraternity becoming a national to accommodate the expansion.

When the college administration banned fraternities in the spring of 1909, Pi Kappa Alpha and Pi Kappa Phi ceased to exist officially on the campus. In June, 1920, the ban was removed. Beta chapter of Pi Kappa Phi was reinstated on the 5th of February, 1921, and Mu chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha followed suit on October 12th of that year.

In 1923 the Pan-Hellenic council was organized in an effort to promote greater harmony during the rushing season, Graham Miller being the first president. The second president, J. J. Cornwall, at present with George A. Copeland & Son, of this city, first succeeded in persuading all the fraternal groups to go in together in the matter of banquets and dances, and since then that system has been retained.

The oldest university in South America is the University of San Marcos, in Lima, Peru, founded in 1551.

"NIGHT CALL" or TREACHERY VIA PHONE

The phone in Spencer brought a call to Preston Charles, popular campus personality. "The Charlesite," as the scrawny but lovable little man is known, was finally located and sent to the Bell Co.'s device on the first floor. In response to his eager "Hello" a timid and effeminate voice informed him that it was Elizabeth, of Greenville, calling. The Charlesite, all agog with excitement, blurted out a barrage of questions.

"Where are you?" he asked.

"At Kellers Drug store," she replied.

"I'm coming right up!"

"But Preston, dear, I'm just passing through Clinton and can't stay but a few minutes."

"Then come down to the school."

"But I haven't thee time."

"Oh gee, oh gosh!" cried out the excited "Charlesite" in quivering strain. "Can't you stay for just a little while?"

A negative reply cooled his heated emotions to some extent. Forsaking the present for the future, he asked for a date on week hence, and was rewarded with a tentative appointment on the following Saturday night. And then something happened. The demure Elizabeth's voice suddenly adopted a tone startlingly masculine.

"Elizabeth, your voice seems to be changing," said the diminutive "Charlesite" in profound puzzlement.

"And why not," replied Alva (Tootsie) Tuten. "You don't think I can talk like a girl all night without slipping, do you?"

And the poor little "Charlesite" is still meeting sick call.

Thoughts Conflict At Sight Of Trophy

However, Presbyterian Cadets Do Not Regret Efforts Put Out To Win Cup.

(By Tom Plaxico)

We have an idea that a glance at that large silver trophy in the rotunda of the Administration building sends a small tinge of pride through the mind of any loyal son of Presbyterian college when he realizes that his alma mater has been judged "the most proficient" of all the schools and colleges represented in the summer camp for R. O. T. C. schools in this entire corps area.

But also, we imagine that the majority of these grateful sons fail to grasp just as much as they might when they read the name of their college so many times on that award which "seems to be in the habit of staying in our own showcase." At any rate, let's imagine what flashes through the mind of one of the senior cadets when he reads those last words on that cup — "Presbyterian College 1935."

If this particular cadet is inclined towards pessimism and towards thoughts of things unpleasant, we imagine that he remembers, first of all, six weeks of life beneath a blistering Alabama sun from which no refuge at all could be had, since no shade was closer than a half-mile. We imagine he thinks of the times he was so fed up with army red tape, army cooks and food, and army practices that he learned to cuss-out the whole outfit at the slightest provocation. And then, perhaps, he remembers most vividly the long hikes, the heavy and unwieldy packs, the hot water in his canteen, and the constant excursions up and down the small mountains of that 'balcony to the other world"; nor does he forget for one minute the three-mile walk to the rifle range and the dust and perspiration which collected on him to make him the most pitiful aspect that he ever hopes to be. And then this cadet possibly recalls the rain clouds which often forced him to put himself and his whole fortune on top of a bunk where he sat wondering if his tent would be the next one to fall down. Then, no doubt, he thinks of the first three days of confusion and hard work when he cleaned the rifle issued him of an unbelievable amount of cosmoline, and when he stood in line a whole afternoon to get his first equipment from his Uncle Sam. And when this senior reflects over the 24 hours of torture when he kept vigil over a sleeping camp, we are sure he turns away with enough unpleasantness in his mind to last him the remainder of the day.

But now lest you ge tthe idea that these fellows made martyrs of themselves so that their school could keep custody of this valuable trophy, let's imagine what the cadet officer who made himself like the camp from the first day on, thinks of when he reads the same words we mentioned above. We imagine that he gloats first over the thought that he has done his level best to bring honor to his school; and then he possibly chuckles as he remembers some of the valuable friendships he made among the 735 trainees from the eight Southern states represented there. He also, thinks longingly of the happy social connections he made in the town of Anniston and vicinity during some of the numerous delightful dances he attended during those six weeks. And then, when he thinks of the real personal profit he received by learning about army practices, customs, and habits; when he thinks of how much better he is able to serve his country after becoming really acquainted with Uncle Sam's army; and when he recalls the good fun he had with other jolly and carefree men of the South, we imagine he turns away saying, "It wasn't so bad, after all."

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

A PERUSAL OF PERSONALITIES
William Blackwell

This kinky-haired specimen is called "Cab" by his closest friends, because of his close resemblance to Cab of musical fame. His one fault is a habit of using his roommate's soap and towels and occasionally razor blades and other paraphernalia. One of his many accomplishments is his ability to imitate barnyard animals, which makes him the life of the party at fraternity socials. Socially speaking, by the way, he is among the highest rating college boys in Clinton's society whirl. He dates a scrawny specimen nicknamed Skinny Minny. His greeting is a cheery "Hooooooooo"—a sound made in the depth of the larynx in a somewhat lower tone than that of a hog-call. As to honors, he is only a sophomore, but was chosen recently to be vice-president of the well-known Lewdist club, said to be the foremost social organization of the campus.

Odell Atwood Matthews

Vieing with the young man mentioned above for fame on our campus is Odell Matthews, called "Pop" by his associates. Altho he is a junior, a certain freshman, spying him on the campus the other day, inquired of an upper classman, "What's that freshman doing without his rat cap" Ranking with Roy Forehand as one of our outstanding ladies' men, he breaks feminine hearts with reckless abandon, leaving a trail of destruction in his wake. Like our friend Cody, he delights in wearing gay clothing, specializing in purple pants and pale green neckties. Oftentimes in the early morning hours his roommate has been frightened almost into fits by seeing "Pop" headed out of the room with a wild light in his eyes, but he found out later that the towel around his neck was only for purposes of drying and with no suicidal intent. He likes to indulge in fistic competition. Starting off his pugilistic career by a brawl with E. F. MacLeod, the tiny bell-ringer, he is now thinking of going out for the varsity next year, after that brilliant victory.

Thomas Lemuel Estes

One of Estes' greatest accomplishments is his popularizing of the word "smuck. (Note to freshmen! Meaning an unusually good-looking girl), another original P. C. expression. He is rather absent-minded, and once had to ride all the way from Clinton to Greenwood at six o'clock in the morning to return a friend's car keys. He often becomes involved in curious accidents, such as the one in which he ran the elevator thru the roof of a home-town furniture store. Another time, while walking around in the attic of Spencer to hide an upper classman's huge paddle (he was a freshman then), he stepped in a weak place. Inmates of said dormitory were then astonished to see a human leg protruding thru the ceiling in the hall. An hour later the young man was extricated none the worse except for a slightly scraped leg.

Dating at Converse, he was ousted by the bouncer because he insisted on accepting a girl's invitation to come up to her room and help eat a cake she had just received from home. When a freshman he had to steal a white rooster for fraternity initiation. No sooner had he started out with the purloined chanticleer than a car full of Clinton policemen rode up and carried him to the local calaboose. Being at a tender age, however, they gave him his freedom on promise of good behavior.

One of Tom's most endearing characteristics is that he gets a late date with somebody's smuck at every dance. In fact, nobody's date is considered safe from such an eventuality.

P. C. Personalities In Rhyme

There's a certain young writer of fame—
Penland is the gentleman's name;
With legs like a duck,
He has terrible luck
When attempting to dance with a dame.

In Spencer resides our Odell;
("Pop") Matthews will do just as well)
Tho not noted for looks,
Or for studying his books,
With girls he raises plenty of hell.

The Blue Stocking

Plans Go Forward For Johnson Night

ALL ALUMNI ASKED TO BE HERE FOR NEWBERRY GAME, OCT. 11

Homecoming has been scheduled for FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11TH, when the Blue Stockings will meet the Newberry Indians in the 21st renewal of the conflict between these traditional rivals. The game will be at night under the lights being installed on Johnson field.

This year marks the 20th year that Coach Walter A. Johnson has been making Presbyterian college teams famous as clean-playing, hard-fighting elevens. Next to Zupke, of Illinois, Johnson is the oldest coach in point of service at one institution in the United States. The second generation of P. C. men are now under his guidance. The Alumni association has designated this Homecoming as JOHNSON NIGHT in tribute to the man who has meant so much in building and maintaining the spirit of P. C.

The night game, the only home game of the season, makes it possible to arrange an ideal program for the alumni. The biggest student body ever assembled at P. C. will see the biggest and best Homecoming ever staged. At 5:00 P. M. there will be a barbecue supper in Judd hall, followed by the annual Alumni association meeting there at 5:30. William P. Jacobs, '14, P. C.'s acting president, will make the address. This meeting will be followed by class and fraternity reunions. At 8:00 P.M. the game will start, and between halves there will be fireworks, a drill, and band concert.

The Alumni association is again making a drive to have every alumnus here for Homecoming and to build up the membership of the association. DUES OF THE ASSOCIATION INCLUDE A YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BLUE STOCKING, which will keep you in touch with the activities of the college. Clip the coupon on this page and send in your dues today.

To: Willard L. Jones, '28, Sec.-Treas., P. C. Alumni Association, Clinton, S. C.

I am enclosing my Alumni Association Dues ($3.00) which include a subscription to The Blue Stocking:

men. The ball see-sawed back and forth for a bit when Jacobs' punt was partially blocked and Horton caught it on the run to carry it to P. C.'s 18. A few line plays put the pigskin nearly on the goal and Folger went over for another six points. The place-kick for extra point was wide. Clemson 18; P. C. 0.

Another Clemson drive, however, played out as the fourth period began, and punts were exchanged. The Tigers intercepted a pass and started out again, but were repulsed on their opponents' 20-yard line. As Hinson ran a punt back 25 yards, Higbe tackled him beautifully with a flying block that put the Clemson quarterback out with a badly injured arm. A pass and a couple of line plays put the ball on the three-yard marker and Pennington plunged over. He then caught a pass for the point. Clemson 25; P. C. 0.

In the final stage came a great moment for a substitute end playing his first varsity game. Ralph Waldrep, lanky wingman, went charging in on Lawton and snatched the bouncing oval from the air. Although Waldrep was never noted for speed afoot, he scampered straight as an arrow toward the Tiger goal, and opposing backs were unable to recover from their surprise in time to go after him. Not long afterward the game ended.

For P. C., undoubtedly the best man on both offense and defense was Robert Higbe, the snake-hipped halfback. Offensively, this eel-like back was P. C.'s biggest and only threat, while on defense he was literally all over the field, making tackles that other backs should have made and that with a ferocity that is rarely seen. Weldon and Abbott also showed up well, the former on defense and the latter in carrying the ball. In fact, Weldon nearly got away in returning one kickoff. In the line P. C.'s best was Shorty Horne, who played a beautiful game. Millsap and Forehand also played steady games.

The pleasing aroma and flavor of Turkish tobacco is almost necessary if you want a good cigarette.

Turkish tobacco is more costly when you take into account that you have to pay 35c a pound duty, but we have to have it to blend with our mild ripe home-grown tobaccos.

It helps make Chesterfields milder, it helps give them better taste. Just try them.

FALL TRACK TO BE INSTITUTED

Turk Osman To Coach Cross-Country Team Here. Will Perform Between Halves of Football Games This Season.

A new venture in Presbyterian college athletics which is expected to prove interesting to the student body is that of fall track. Turk Osman, college field representative, announced Tuesday that he will coach a track team for the fall months. This will take the place of cross-country, a sport carried on here year before last.

The difference between the new type of fall track work and cross-country is that the race is to be one and one-half or two miles instead of the three miles generally associated with the latter sport. The meets will take place on the track instead of on dirt roads. They are to be held between halves of football games, and spectators probably will be interested much more than formerly in fall running.

Osman has written to all the most prominent schools in the Carolinas and Georgia in an attempt to get meets. Already one has been scheduled with Mercer university in Macon on the date of the P. C. football team's meeting with the Georgia Baptist institution. Then later on in the season it is expected that a state meet will be held.

This new type of track work has been highly successful in the North and in Europe, and it is hoped that South Carolina will have it as a permanent fixture. The scoring is on the teamwork basis. The fewer men a team has toward the end of the first ten men finishing, the smaller is their score, and the team making the lowest score wins.

Although Colin Hudson, crack two-miler, will not be able to participate, due to an injury, three other men with previous experience in distance running are out for the team, George McInnes, Preston Charles and R. F. Stowell. The first two named made block letters in that event last spring, while the latter has had previous experience a Colby college where he attended school last year. Others trying out for the team are Abram Briggs, John Latimer, C. W. Wannamaker, Roy Hutchinson and Alvin Chapman.

Many Students Journey To Tech

Holiday Given Saturday Enables Local Group To See Game. Alumni Also On Sidelines.

The annual football holiday granted by the college for the game with Georgia Tech enabled a large number of P. C. students to take in the contest and also to enjoy the week-end in Atlanta. Many attended the dance given by the Anak honor fraternity Saturday evening. Many old grads also were present.

On the east side of Grant field was a large group of P. C. rooters, composed of 50 to 75 students and a much larger number of alumni. Unfortunately, however, no cheer leader was present and there was, therefore, no organized vocal encouragement for the team. Practically all the P. C. boys at Columbia seminary, at Decatur, took in the game. Jimmy Green, one of the greatest quarterbacks the Blue Stockings ever boasted, sat on the sidelines with Coaches Johnson and Eichelberger. Other outstanding P. C. athletes, Mike Caskey and Searcy Elliott among them, also attended the game.

The bus chartered by "Stormy" Weathers carried 20 students and all report a rousing time of it. The vehicle left Atlanta shortly after 12 o'clock and reached Clinton at about 8:00 a.m. Sunday.

Several fraternities at Georgia Tech were paid visits by brothers from Presbyterian. Men belonging to Beta Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi and possibly others, met numerous of their brothers at fraternity houses in Atlanta.

The Anak dance was an enjoyable feature of the week-end. All visiting men from P. C. were admitted free of charge and quite a number took advantage of the opportunity to meet the young ladies in and around Atlanta.

FLOOD LIGHTS NOW COMPLETE

Dr. S. C. Hays, of Clinton, Takes Lead In Equipping Johnson Field For Night Events.

A dream has been realized. The ambition and goal of many months of thought, persuasion, cooperation, effort and labor has culminated finally in tangible form. Johnson field, at Presbyterian college, is equipped for night athletics. There is no finer lighting system in the entire South.

Night football is the answer to the cry of the office worker, tied indoors by business throughout the long autumnal evenings, tantalized by the thought of gridiron gambols going on unseen; it is the answer to the need for larger gate receipts to balance trembling athletic budgets.

Almost to a man, those approached on the subject expressed pleasure at the prospect of games which would not conflict with business or other games.

On October 11, Homecoming day, at 8 p. m., the athletic field will be flooded for the first time with broad beams of light. Forty-eight 1500-watt lamps, an aggregate of 72,000 watts, provide twice the power of any system in the state. Powerful reflectors came from the Giant Mfg. Co., of Council Bluffs, Iowa, pioneers in the field of large-scale lighting, equippers of numerous institutions in the East, West, and Middle West.

Back of the realized dream are many forces. Firms generously sacrificed profits in order that the equipment might be secured as reasonably as possible. Acknowledgement is due to Mr. Taylor of the Taylor-Colquit Co., for the poles which he furnished at a reduction of more than a third. The courtesy of the Industrial Supply Co., supplied globes and accessories at cost. B. R. Austin and his helpers of the Southern Bell Telephone Co. devoted their services entirely free of charge, completely installing the system, putting up the 52-foot poles. Scores of contributors responded liberally to make it possible.

He gave not money alone.

He worked wholeheartedly, enterprisingly and enthusiastically. He gave without stint of his time, his talent for persuasion, which literally put the idea across, and his unique ability to organize, which brought his brain-child finally into actuality.

To him we offer tribute as a worthy son of Presbyterian college.

He is Dr. S. C. Hays, president of the Presbyterian College Alumni association.

NYA Furnishes Aid To Many

National Youth Administration projects are proving of great value to the college administration as well as to the 49 students who put in their hours of work, according to Capt. George S. Beatty, who is in charge.

Campus beautification jobs keep most of the men busy policing grounds, tending shrubs, revetting a concrete wall, and improving athletic and laboratory equipment. Eight of the workers are assistants to professors, and several co-eds on the N. Y. A. do office work where it is needed.

Student leadership also is utilized with J. E. Ratchford as supervisor and H. D. Cranford assisting. N. Creech and Miss Frances Spratt keep the records of the thirteen who are allowed to earn a maximum of $18 a month and the rest who may get half as much.

Attention of all students is called to the fact that pictures for the school annual will be taken in Nichols' studio during the period of Sept. 30 to Oct. 12th inclusive.

The studio, located in the block below the Clinton hotel, between the campus and town, will be open on all week days between the dates above, and all students are urged to cooperate in every way possible with the staff of the PaC-SaC in order that there will be no delay in producing the book.

QUARTERMAN SUFFERS INJURY IN TECH GAME

Presbyterian Back, Playing First Game of Season, Hurts Head. Is In Local Hospital.

Playing his first game of the year Lee Quarterman, senior back and stellar kicker, was injured when tackling the Georgia Tech star Konemann in the P. C.-Tech game played on Grant Field, Atlanta, Saturday afternoon.

Late in the game Quarterman tackled the Tech ace back and was knocked unconscious. It was about an hour before he regained consciousness.

He was brought to Clinton where he was placed in the Hays Hospital.

It is believed that he is suffering from a slight concussion. His condition, though serious, is not believed to be dangerous.

Hospital authorities this afternoon stated that unless there was marked improvement in his condition soon, specialists would be called in.

Quarterman for the first two weeks of school was at Camp Perry, Ohio, where he was competing in the National Rifle matches as a member of the Fourth Corps Area team. He returned to school on September 20 and the Tech encounter was the first game he has played in this year.

JACOBS WAS INFLUENTIAL HERE DURING DAYS AS STUDENT, '13-'15

(By Robert C. McLees)

With characteristic quiet assurance, William Plumer Jacobs, Jr., last June assumed the acting presidency of the college his grandfather founded and his father fostered. That it runs in the family does not explain why a man of affairs should forsake the path of private interest to devote valuable time toward the financial stabilization of a college which had been dealt a staggering blow by the depression. Nor does the fact that the situation offers an absorbing problem which must intrigue his rained analytical mind.

Presbyterian college is HIS college. As such, he has responded to her cry for capable leadership. "Jake" stands on his own feet—for a "Jake" he passed through her halls. From the first he was a natural leader and organizer.

The class of 1914 in which he graduated was one of the most enterprising in the history of the institution, founding and publishing the first volume of the PaC-SaC, which reveals him as undoubtedly its most versatile member. Its multitude of illustrations was the work of "Jake, '14," as well as much of the editorial material. An exceedingly busy man today, Mr. Jacobs is writing, and he is the author of several books and numerous articles, principally dealing with aspects of industry and advertising. Possibly his hobby had its origin in those years when he served on the editorial staff of The Collegian, '14, '15.

His ability to drive home a point in simple yet forceful language is attested by the enthusiasm of his listeners after an address. Yet he is regarded as no paragon, he modestly admits that, thought he took part in every declamation, debating and oratorical contest while an undergraduate, he never won a prize. Nevertheless, he was president of his literary society.

"Jake" "managed" in every field from the glee club, and the orchestra in which he played cello and bass viol, to the football, baseball and basketball teams.

Purposely his crowning glory has been placed last. Of all his many honors, above the vote as most influential and popular student, or even that to him was given the first block "P" ever presented by the college, is the fact that he alone might claim credit as the establisher of football and basketball as serious sports on the Presbyterian campus. Taking upon himself the responsibility, he circulated a petition obtaining the consent of the faculty and trustees to their establishment. As the condition of consent imposed was that the college assume no financial obligations, he personally acted as coach and guaranteed an $800 salary to E. L. Booe, an outstanding athlete and recent graduate of Davidson college. It was a success. Football came to stay. "Jake" was the logical manager and also acted as field captain and quarterback.

His graduation did not terminate his interest in the college, and he has continually served her in one way or another—graduate manager of athletics, several times president of the Alumni association, culminating in his acceptance of the acting presidency.

Such a personality deserves cooperation. When "Jake" says "Fellers," it is no oratorical figure. As a loyal son of P. C., he is speaking earnestly to his younger brothers.

Presbyterian No Match For Tornado In Atlanta Saturday. Passing Attack Only Method Successful In Gaining Ground.

The Presbyterian Blue Hose fell fighting bravely against the powerful and speedy Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech last Saturday in a game at Grant field, Atlanta. The score was 33 to 0.

After Tech's first touchdown early in the first quarter it seemed for a while as if the Presbyterians would be slaughtered by the Technicians without any show of fight, but the plucky Calvinists then set to work to show that they also had offensive power. Holliday's pass to Waldrep was good for 20 yards as the Tech backfield went to sleep. Another aerial was incomplete, but Holliday then passed ot Jacobs for 10 yards, placing the oval on the Tornado's 34-yard marker. A couple of plays later Higbe caught one for five, but P. C. was forced to kick.

As Tech scored another touchdown directly afterward, it again seemed as if there would be a walkaway, but the gallant blue-clad team took courage at the following kickoff. Wilbanks, 160-pound quarterback, caught it on P. C.'s 12-yard line and ran like an antelope right straight through the middle of the field. Finally he cleared all but one man and in attempting to get by him another came up from behind and made the tackle on the Tech 49-yard line. Shortly afterward, Tech intercepted a Presbyterian pass, however, and this magnificent run and the good blocking which made it possible went for naught.

The Presbyterians' only really serious threat to score came in the middle of the second period. Goof Holliday flipped a pass to Wilbanks for 18 yards to place the ball on the Golden Tornado's 24-yard stripe. Another pass combined with two line plays by Holliday took it to the 13-yard mark, but on the next play a Tech lineman intercepted an aerial and Tech's goal was safe.

The first score for Tech came in the first quarter. A series of running plays brought the ball deep into Calvinistic territory, and at the 16-yard line Tech pulled its highly successful forward lateral. Hays went back to pass and Konemann caught it. As he was thrown to the ground by a P. C. end, the former passed the ball back to Sims, the Jacket quarter, who raced over the goal line.

After P. C. had made its short-lived drive in the first quarter Tech went into action again, as Appleby and Edwards tore through the line for two or three gains of several yards each. Edwards passed to Konemann for 20 yards and after a moment the former tore off right tackle for 20 yards more. Plays through the center of the line failed to make the touchdown, so Edwards circled right end for the necessary score.

Tech's third score came in the second quarter. A Tornado man broke through and intercepted a pass meant for Higbe and raced 50 yards to the Blue Hose's 10, where Holliday dropped him. Here the Presbyterian's held and got possession of the oval on a pass over the goal line. After another exchange of punts Tech went to work. Konemann tore out around right end for 21 yards, and two more plays carried the ball to the 4-yard stripe, where Hays went over for the touchdown.

Early in the second half, a fumble by Jacobs, P. C. halfback, gave the Georgians the ball on the P. C. 35. A strong running attack and a couple of passes were enough to take the ball over.

The final touchdown was made by Street, after Tech had gained possession of the ball on the visitors' 46-yard stripe. A beautiful passing attack at this juncture, including the neat forward lateral, completely baffled the Presbyterians and the Tech boys had no trouble in scoring. This made the final score 33 to 0.

Now We Can Eat

It has been the policy of the present staff to refrain from discussion of food in these columns, and we still feel a little skeptical about mentioning it. This editorial is prompted by the belief that praise is due someone for the improved quality of our meals.

And they have definitely improved over last year. There is a wider variety of food from which the dining student may choose; this food is served in larger proportions, and prepared in a better way than last year. We can now hear the dinner bell ring without feeling apathetic; we can invite our friends to dine with us without being apologetic; we can eat with relish.

We don't know just who it is that deserves the praise for this improved condition—whether it is the administration, Mrs. Hunter, the board of trustees, or someone else—but we do know that we are deeply thankful for the improvement.

A Healthy Advertising Medium

Presbyterian College has two able mediums of advertising itself. The student publications can, and to some extent do, improve and enhance the reputation of this institution. The Blue Stocking, weekly nwespaper, and The Collegian, quarterly literary magazine, have a good circulation outside the campus and with every new issue make new friends for the school.

But these publications are handicapped by the size of their appropriations from the school. Each of them is forced to be practically self-supporting, making their maintenance almost solely out of their advertising. The limited size of the student body makes the advertising rates extremely low and thus it is difficult for these publications to do justice to the school.

The Blue Stocking is often forced, as in this issue, to revert to the four-page form when advertising cannot support a bigger, better six-page issue. The addition of these two pages would amply repay the school for their cost, repay it in student publication prestige, in valuable advertising, and in friends and reputation. However, the appropriation made to The Blue Stocking is so small that it cannot bear the expense of these additional pages.

The Collegian last year, for the first time in many years, became a magazine worthy of the name. The quality of its material, the beauty of its illustrations, and the uniqueness of its format and lay-out have gained favorable recognition for it both in this state and in adjoining ones. It stands at the threshold of a larger and more successful year, but it is handicapped by money.

We are not asking that these publications, which primarily are student enterprises, be placed on administrative support. We are asking that the school appropriation for their publication be large enough to give them a chance to be among the best.

The profits to the school would be many. Such an appropriation would not be a gift; it would be a wise investment.

To all girls whose big moments are playing football this season, we optimistically dedicate the following:

He made a run around the end,
Was tackled from the rear,
The right guard sat upon his neck,
The fullback on his ear;
The center sat upon his back,
Two ends upon his chest,
The quarter and the halfback then
Sat down on him to rest.
The left guard sat upon his head,
Two tacklers on his face;
The referee was then called in
To sit upon his case. —Log.

We wonder if any boy on the campus ever received a letter from home without shaking the envelope several times to be sure he had not overlooked a check.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

PERUSAL OF CAMPUS PERSONALITIES

Oliver Cheney Luey

A most sinuglar character is Mr. Oliver C. Luey, of Lake Mills, Wisconsin. He is an unusual combination of the dude and the so-called "good old fellow" types. Some have noticed on first meeting him that he bears a faint resemblance to Stan Laurel of movie comedy fame. (Don't blame him—just be thankful it isn't Joe Penner). He is a great lover, in his quiet way, and prefers brunettes, which shows that he is very independent in his judgment. The other night he came in from a date and his girl's pet dog followed him to his room. Although Ollie gave him a couple of swift kicks in the teeth, the canine remained outside all night howling at the door.

The gentleman from Wisconsin is crazy about two publications, the Reader's Digest and The Chicago Tribune, from which he continually quotes glibly as if it were portions of scripture. He sits around these afternoons hovering over the radio listening to the fortunes of he Chicago Cubs. (Anything from Chicago is all right with him including Al Capone). Luey speaks with a characteristic accent, and it is practically unintelligible to most of us. Lastly, we might mention that he is said to be secretly married.

Lawrence Harry Mixson

Once heard speaking, this young man is unforgettable. He has that slow drawl, which, combined with the Charleston accent, compels attention. He has never been known to get up early in time for breakfast, but says he intends to before he graduates "just to see how it feels." The young Charlestonian has a bad habit of sneezing in class so loud that even a freshman English section would be awakened. If in class he is asked a question, such as, for instance, "Name the capital of China," and he answers, "Peorin," he invariably replies, when corrected by the professor, "Well, that's pretty close anyhow."

One of Mixson's more evil habits is that of getting late dates with other boys' flames when they come down for dances. (It saves taking the trouble of getting a date yourself, he says). At one time, however, he picked out the wrong girl — or rather the wrong boy. He found out Saturday morning that she was his date from then on.

Campus Calumnies

One freshmen has a very unique method of keeping his schedule from being lost. . . . Instead of tacking it up on his wall as soon as he had registered, he very carefully placed it in the mail box. . . . The BLAKELY TWINS are very designing young co-eds. . . . Dropping handkerchiefs as a way of attracting men went out with Queen Victoria, but apparently they have not found it out yet . . . Or is it just another of those quaint old customs that are coming into vogue again? . . . QUESTION: Who is the tall, blonde, poker-faced co-ed from Thornwell who gave a young swain the go-by the other night. . . . They were sitting in the parlor having a friendly scuffle, as all young lovers will do, and he accidentally scratched her hand. . . . She went upstairs to get some mercurochrome to put on her wound, and the Fairfax firebrand is still waiting for her to come down. . . . An upperclassman said to a young rat the other day, "Frankly speaking, is ignorance bliss?" . . . The suspicious youngster replied, with a blush, "Aw heck, ,you're just trying to make fun of me, using those big words."

Facts Every College Boy Should Know

1. Robert Higbe is not particularly interested in classical music.
2. Jack Gasque is satirical.
3. Dr. Brimm wears winged collars.
4. William Blackwell's hair resembles closely that of Cab Calloway, but neither claim kinship.
5. Pudge Plowden is several pounds overweight.
6. Dr. Kennedy is very critical of the "rice in price" of fatback.

Lula Bell

Now Lula Bell was nice and swell
She previously was quite a belle.
But darn a dame who laughs and sings
And coyly knits on "tiny things."

Annie's Cousin Fanny Brown
(Nice boy, this Gilbert!)

She was a farmer's daughter and her name was Fanny Brown,
Her father was the plowman of a somewhat rural town.
She milked the kine and shucked the corn and shrank from sly cabal—
In fact, she was a very unsophisticated gal.

One day a traveling salesman from his buggy did alight.
"The inn is full," he said, and "Can I bunk here for tonight?"
"Why, yessuh, city feller," drawled the farmer with a shriek,
"For room and board and outhouse we charge thirteen bucks a week."

The slicker sidled up one day and winked at Fanny Brown,
And she was so verra, verra shy she gazed upon the ground.
But the salesman was a smoothie and made quite a bit of time,
And we threw this last bit in, my dears, to make the darn thing rhyme.

To depart from innuendo, well, it happened in this way:
The traveling salesman's papa oiled his shotgun up one day.
Thus departing from tradition and avoiding further strife,
He aimed the gun at Fanny. She became the salesman's wife.

Oil-Lit Orations

He figured figuratively that to figure was quite fine,
He wondered if one wondered would one write one's best or worse,
And he shot himself with slingshots seeing such a sorry verse.

After the disastrous defeat of P. C. at the hands of the Clemson Tigers many and dire predictions have been made about the team's fate at the hands of various other state teams. One remark recently heard was that the Blue Hose would do well to win two games this season. This statement seems to me really ridiculous. Let's look at the facts.

First of all, it must be realized that the Hose were not in good shape to face such a tough team last Saturday. This is not by way of furnishing an alibi for our defeat, but merely in appraising the team. With only about twenty days to get ready for the opening game, few teams can get in their best form, and this was one of the times in which P. C. was just not ready. The team should show up much better in future games, with such a harrowing experience behind it.

Then, too, P. C. has never shown its best form in early season games. An instance of this characteristic is the season of 1932. This time the team played poorly during he early part of the season, as witnessed by the 52 to 0 slaughter administered by Mercer. In the final game, however, the Blue Hose ran thru Citadel to the tune of 27 to 0, the biggest upset of the year in South Carolina football. Another big surprise for which the Blue Hose were responsible was the instance several years ago when P. C. beat Erskine, 44 to 7, after a disheartening series of earlier conflicts. And to cap the climax, the best year a Johnson-coached team has ever had (1930) was marked by a 28 to 7 defeat in the regular opening game with Clemson. Later on, the team went to town by winning nine others and not allowing any of the last seven opponens to cross the Garnet and Blue goal line. All of which goes to show that P. C. should not be judged by her opening game.

With improved spirit and better condition of team members, the P. C. footballers should be much improved for games from now on. Jeff Prather's presence will help mightily to bolster up the forward wall, and steady improvement by Joe Bradley will cut down on gains by opposing end run specialists. Coach Johnson's talk to his men early last week after the Clemson game apparently put more pep into the boys. During the course of his little talk he told his men that they had the unique distinction of being the only P. C. team which had ever been decisively defeated by the Tigers. The practice sessions last week, consequently, were marked by a greatly increased amount of vim and vigor.

The game with Furman next Saturday promises to be a thriller, with neither side having a great advantage. Of course, Furman is expected to win, by at least a touchdown or two, but it is safe to say that the Calvinists will put up the hardest-fought game of the season. If you doubt this, ask anyone who has seen P. C.-Furman games for the last several years. The writer has seen every clash between these two schools from 1926, the year P. C. won second place in the state, up till the time the annual game was dropped, and each year it was our most bitterly-contested engagement. The poorest team our school has had in 12 or 15 years, that of 1928, held the Hurricane scoreless until the last few minutes, and the Purple was triumphant by a mere 6-0 margin. Furman is thought to have a not especially strong offense, so she will probably find it exceedingly difficult to score more than once or twice, if she does that well.

First-Year Men Show Up Well In Varsity Scrimmage. Injuries Take Out Several.

The freshman squad, which has been kept hard at work, continues to impress watchers with its power and speed. The rats have spent most of their afternoons in scrimmage among themselves. In these drills the candidates are demonstrating their individual talents and separating the best from second-best. Last Wednesday the team met its first outside competition in the form of the P. C. varsity.

The way in which the new men acquitted themselves in that practice was a credit to them and to Coach McMillian. Playing most of the time on the offensive, the freshmen made occasional flashes of brilliant playing which carried them down the field through the varsity defense. Running plays met with little success against the superior line of the regulars, though several nice gains were made by the frosh backs. The rats resorted to an air attack which proved so successful that the freshmen were able to score on their big brothers.

When the rats took the defensive for a short time late in the practice, several members distinguished themselves. Moore, who backed up the first-year line, tackled with accuracy and determination that stopped several varsity plays at the line of scrimmage. Atkinson's work as a defensive end was one of the high points of the practice. He is a hard man to take out and is a sure tackler. Coach McMillian seemed pleased with the work of his tackles, Evans and Boswell.

The hard work-outs through which McMillian has been sending his charges are beginning to show up in the form of injured players. The usual "Charlie horses" and pulled muscles are keeping the number who report to practice reduced. A few more serious injuries are cutting down on available material. "Little Shorty" Horne suffered the first bad hurt of the season when he tore the ligaments of his right hand during an early scrimmage. Henderson, who, like Horne, is a center, is temporarily out with a foot injury.

The pivot position of the freshman team seems to be jinxed, for so far no one has been found to handle the assignment at center. The squad is weakened for the time being by the absence of Moore from his usual place at fullback. He received a leg injury during the scrimmage with the varsity and has been forced to miss practice for several days. Gordon Helms is being hindered by a severe "Charlie horse," but has continued to fill his ball-carrying assignments in practice. Fortunately, none of these injuries are permanent, and the freshmen should be able to throw their full power against the Carolina frosh in the opening game.

According to reports, the P. C. yearlings will need all their manpower when they go against the Biddies. The university has another big freshman squad which has plenty of weight and experience. That is only the first of a difficult five-game schedule which the P. C. freshmen are facing. There is no way of estimating the comparative strength of the untried freshmen teams, and little can be told about the ability of the Blue Anklets until they have been tried in an actual game. However, P. C. supporters are watching the freshman team hopefully and expectantly.

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

Freshmen, take notice! On Thursday morning, October 10th, the freshmen in the cadet corps will be permitted to enter an elimination contest to select the best-drilled freshmen of the school. This contest will be open only to freshmen, and only to those freshmen who have not had any previous military traning. The contest will be on the school of the soldier and the manual of arms. The big reward for the victors is quite worth working for, so get busy, freshmen!

First prize is to be a new pair of Freeman shoes, and is to be donated by the firm of Hipp and Adair, local dealers in men's wear, etc. A second prize of two dollars and a third of one dollar are to be awarded to lucky winners by Uncle Sam's senior representative on our campus. In the past a great deal of rivalry has arisen over these little contests of skill and knowledge among the freshmen, and they give the first-year men a very good chance to find out just how little they know about the military world — or how much. At any rate, the fun begins October 10th.

The military department announces that it will send the band to Greenville next Saturday for the P. C.-Furman game—probably by means of the Dream Train. If this is the means of transportation used, the larger members of the band, namely Junior Wallace and Rat Cousins, will have to walk, for said Dream Train has suffered several hedapses lately when upon important missions, especially when escorting the P. C. musicaleers (in this case, the glee club). The band also will go to the Wofford game to lend its support to the local leather toters when they confront the heaviest line in the state. Long live he band!

The comedy of the coming week will be played and enacted on the rifle and pistol range of the college by the Clinton players for the benefit of experience and pleasure. No charges are to be made. Twill be a five-act play consisting in its entirety of a pistol match featuring the P. C. team and the Clinton cops, though why the Clinton cops should need or even have pistols in such a religious community is not understood. The Clintonians boast such veterans as Officer Young, noted sharpshooter and father of one of our most conspicuous co-eds, Nancy Y. Unfortunately, (this for the benefit of those who have never attended a pistol meet) shooting is done at a target, instead of at the opposing team.

Some [illegible] football at high school, Red Grange, Illinois famous "77," has scored more than 1,100 points on the gridiron. This is believed to be the world's record.

BLUE STOCKINGS MEET FURMAN IN GREENVILLE NEXT SATURDAY

P. C., In Third Game of Season, Will Face Powerful Hurricane Outfit In What Is Expected To Be a Punting Duel.

When the Blue Hose meet Furman Saturday, they will go up against the team that is considered one of the best, if not the best, defensive eleven in the state.

The Hurricane has a veteran line that will be hard to pierce. Coach "Dizzy" McLeod has spent most of the practice season trying to develop an attack that will equal his team's defensive strength. He has succeeded in building up an offense around hard-charging June Scott. This back has done some sensational running in practice sessions and looms as the principal scoring threat for the Purple. Another cog of the Furman offense which is working smoothly is the pass-snagging of Luther Maddox. These men give McLeod reason to believe that his team is capable of attack as well as defense.

Punting should be the feature of the P. C.-Furman game. The Hurricane has an asset in the kicking of "Rip" Stevens. This backfield star has turned in some spectacular punting, repeatedly booting the ball for distances of 60 and 70 yards. With Wilbanks, Jacobs, and Quarterman to call upon, the Blue Stockings will be well able to hold up thier end of a punting duel.

After an opening game with Piedmont college, Furman will be in excellen physical condition. Scott has a wrenched knee, Culclasure is suffering from a shoulder injury, and Shivers is handicapped by a hurt nose. All of these men will have time to recover before Saturday and should be in top shape for the game.

The probable starting line-up for the game:

Suicide

It's all over town—the rumor that Max Baer is dead. According to the boys up town, Max was travelling from New York to California via airplane, when the pilot yelled, "St. Louis." Max thought he said, "Joe Louis"—and jumped overboard.

Predictions

When the smoke of the 1935 gridiron campaign has drifted away, South Carolina teams will have finished in the following order:

CLEMSON.
FURMAN.
CITADEL.
CAROLINA.
WOFFORD.
PRESBYTERIAN.
NEWBERRY.
ERSKINE.

Around the Circuit

Wilburn Clary, star Carolina halfback, was made a colonel by Governor Johnston for scoring the first Gamecock touchdown of the season . . . .

J. E. Griffith, Furman's star lineman, once made Ripley's Believe It or Not by punting a ball twenty yards behind him while playing in Florence High's backfield . . .

Shorty Horne was listed at center on The State's all-star team of the past week-end . . .

Randy Hinson, brilliant Clemson backfield ace, will be out for several weeks. He received a dislocated elbow when chopped down by Presbyterian's versatile Robbie Higbe.

Boland's Name Not On Roster

Through an error of The Blue Stocking, the name of Jeff Boland, graduate of Louisburg Junior college and former star back of Clinton High, was omitted from the P. C. varsity roster published last week. Boland is a light, fast man on the squad.

BLUE STOCKINGS FALL BEFORE GEORGIA TECH

P. C. were the beautiful run by Wilbanks on kickoff and the good passing attack the Hose displayed in the first and second quarters. Goof Holliday played one of the best games of his career at fullback as he stopped runners time after time, and especially as he threw passes with almost uncanny accuracy. Lee Quarterman, playing his first game of the year, did well while he was in, but during the last quarter he tackled a Tech man and was knocked unconscious. Although he is now in a local hospital recuperating from a head injury, it is thought that he is not seriously hurt.

Wilbanks, as usual, played a good steady, heady game at quarter. His kicking was up to the usual high standard. In the line Horne played a whale of a game. It seemed as if this boy was in just about every play. Waldrep also did well, and Bradley showed great improvement in his tackling. Julian Freeman, who substituted at guard for some time, was one of the best defensive men on the field.

For Tech Appleby, Edwards and Konemann were outstanding on offense. Preston, huge Tech center, was going great guns in his position, as was also Fitzsimmons at guard. The whole Tech line played well and never allowed the visitors more than a yard or two at one time on scrimmage plays.

Home-Coming, Newberry Game Friday Night

RUSH SEASON ENDED TODAY AT FOUR P. M.; QUIET HOUR BEGINS

Fraternities' Lists of Men To Whom Bids Are Given Turned In This Morning. New Men To Choose Tomorrow.

This afternoon the official rush season of the six national social fraternities on this campus came to a close as quiet hour began at four o'clock. This period of silence will last until four tomorrow afternoon and during this twenty-four hour period no fraternity man can speak to a freshman about fraternities.

At eleven o'clock this morning the officers of the six fraternities submitted to Dr. A. E. Spencer, chairman of the faculty committee on social organizations, lists of the men to whom they were giving bids. Dr. Spencer will mail each of these men a notice informing he that he has received a bid from a fraternity. Tomorrow afternoon these men will meet with him and state on paper their first, second, and third preferences in fraternities. He will check their choice with the bids they have received and write them down as pledges to the group nearest the top of their list that has given them a bid.

The quiet hour beginning at four terminates three weeks of the most orderly and quiet rushing that this campus has seen in several years. Each of the social organizatoins has followed a plan made by the Pan-Hellenic council which allowed them three socials and two smokers. The period from Saturday until four this afternoon has been filled with the usual intensive, last-minute rushing.

During the twenty-four hours of silence no fraternity man can approach a new student on fraternities. This period is designed to allow the new men time to thoughtfully consider the various social organizations in a completely unbiased manner.

The men who accept bids will be pledged on Tuesday night. It is believed that this group will include over fifty per cent of the 120 freshmen who are in school this year.

College Press Body To Meet At Clemson

October 31 and November 1 Are Dates For Gathering. Plans Now Being Shaped.

The 1935 session of the South Carolina College Press association will be held at Clemson college on October 31 and November 1.

The program and entertainment of the delegates is now being planned. Among the scheduled events is a dance, a reception and a banquet at Starr to be given by Wilton E. Hall, publisher of the Anderson Independent and Daily Mail.

Prominent literary and journalistic figures have been asked to judge the various competitions which include awards for the best news story, short story, essay, editorial, etc., published by a member publication during the preceding year. Among the famous writers who have accepted are Drew Pearson, co-author with Robert S. Allen of the Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round, a syndicated comment column which appears in three hundred daily newspapers, and Antoinette Swindler, editor of Poetry World.

Editor Hugh Holman and Sports Editor Preston Charles will represent The Blue Stocking at the convention.

The material to be entered in the contest is being selected by the editor and Prof. H. T. Swedenberg.

George Oliver, editor of The Collegian, will represent that magazine. He has announced no plans for selection of contest material yet.

PHI'S PLEDGE WILLIAMS

The Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity announces the pledging of Neal Williams, a sophomore.

Injured Saturday

Captain Shorty Horne of the Presbyterian Blue Stockings suffered a dislocated shoulder early in the Furman game Saturday. It is feared that this injury will keep him on the bench during the Newberry battle Friday night.

Library Receives Sixty New Books

Librarian Willard L. Jones has announced that some sixty new books have been received at the Presbyterian college library and will be catalogued within the next week.

These books, all non-fiction, deal with a wide variety of subjects. The major portion of them are reference works, although the political and social sciences are well represented. A few are in the field of advanced biology.

A complete list of these new volumes will be carried in next week's issue of The Blue Stocking.

P.C. Library Seeks Pamphlets, Books On South Carolina

The library asks all friends, students and alumni to contribute books, pamphlets, and manuscripts connected with the history of South Carolina. The library is anxious to add to the valuable collection given by Captain Ellison A. Smyth and the material collected under the supervision of Dr. Dudly Jones.

Big Celebration To Mark Coach's 20th Anniversary

Many Former Students Expected Here For Gala Occasion. Team of 1915 To Be Presented.

Lighting System Be Used First Time

Fireworks, Drills and Band Concert To Feature.

On next Friday night a Presbyterian college football team will for the twenty-first time meet the Newberry Indians, and for the first time play a night game on Johnson field. It is fitting that the innovation of night football should come when it does, for on that night Coach Walter Johnson will be honored for his twenty years of service as football coach at P. C.

Friday night will be a big night in the history of the school. It is Homecoming day, which is always a glamorous occasion. It marks the beginning of night football at the school; it honors Johnson as a man and as a coach, and it presents a Presbyterian team playing its traditional rival.

During the halves of the contest there will be fireworks, drills, and a band concert to lend color to the already glamorous event.

The lighting system under which the night game will be played is the newly installed 72,000-watt system, which is one of the best in the South.

The Alumni association has been "ballyhooing" the occasion for the past two months and it is believed that more old P. C. men will be present than have ever been to a Homecoming game before. Letters have been written and The Blue Stocking sent to all alumni for the past three weeks.

All the living members of Johnson's first P. C. team will be present and it is hoped that the Newberry team which opposed them twenty years ago will be there also.

There will be a barbecue for the alumni and guests and a meeting of the Alumni association, to be addressed by Acting President William P. Jacobs.

Glamor, color, tradition; these are the things that P. C. offers spectators as she celebrates the twentieth anniversary of her most beloved figure.

PURPLE HURRICANE DOWNS BLUE HOSE, 23-0, SATURDAY

Presbyterians Hold Furman For Two Periods. Improvement Is Seen In Team's Playing But Push To Score Lacking.

Although the Blue Stockings displayed tremendously improved form and outplayed their opponents part of the time, they were forced to bow to a superior Purple Hurricane, and lost by a score of 23 to 0, on Furman's Manly field.

P. C. supporters were much heartened by the appearance of their them Saturday, as it showed fine spirit and fight against the Purple Hurricane. The third quarter of the game was entirely dominated by P. C. The Stockings also played good ball during the first half, but Furman managed to capitalize on the breaks that came their way enough to score a touchdown and a field goal.

The last quarter proved disastrous for P. C., as their regulars became tired and the Furman speed merchants started going to town. The Purple had the ball on P. C.'s 3-yard line at the end of the game and it seemed likely that they would score again, but the whistle blew to end the game.

The nearest P. C. got to the enemy goal line was the 29-yard stripe. During the third quarter Jacobs recovered a Furman fumble on the opposite 42-yard stripe. From there the Hose executed a beautiful forward-lateral play, starting with Holliday, thence to Forehand, and finally to Higbe. The last named ran to the Hurricane's 29, but a moment later a Furman back intercepted a Presbyterian pass and the threat was ended.

One of the prettiest plays of the game was another forward lateral, Holliday to Forehand to Thompson, in which the latter was run out of bounds for a total of 21 yards. This happened early in the third period, but no result was forthcoming, as the Hose could not get past midfield.

During the first period the Hurricane played its second stringers, who kept P. C. on even terms, but as the quarter ended the Furman regulars went in. At the beginning of the new period the P. C. fans got a thrill when Holliday dropped back to pass, started to run with the ball, and then hurled a bullet-like pass to Bradley, who, standing almost in the clear, managed to get his hands on the ball but could not hold it.

A minute later Jacobs, P. C. halfback, made a magnificent punt over the safety man's head for about 75 yards but it was called back because both sides were offside. On the next play Jacobs fumbled but recovered enough to get off a good one for a somewhat shorter distance. With the ball in midfield Furman then set to work and, after making 17 yards on the following play, completed a 15-yard forward pass. Another running play set to carried the ball to the 10-yard line. In four plays the Hurricane had their first touchdown, with the extra point added.

After the next kickoff a Furman man intercepted one of Hollidays several heaves and had the ball on the Garnet's 29-yard line. A couple of plays failed to gain, so Bob King, guard Purple and, dropped back into

JOHNSON HELPED BUILD COLLEGE ATHLETIC PLANT FROM NOTHING TO PRESENT FINE, MODERN UNIT

(By Hugh Holman)

The story of his life is in one sense the story of the school that he has done so much toward making it what it is. For the past twenty years of Walter Johnson's life have been given to Presbyterian college.

On April 3, 1883, in Milwaukee, he was born of Swedish parents, and the clean, courageous blood of his Viking ancestry has shown nobly in all that he has done since.

He received his education at the Milwaukee public schools, going from the South Division high school to Battle Creek college. Since completing Battle Creek he has studied at the University of Wisconsin, Illinois university, and Northwestern university. The last year he was at his alma mater he was coach of track and football.

In 1913 Johnson came to Clinton to take charge of the athletic activities of Presbyterian college, an institution of about 185 students. Fourteen men reported for his first football practice, and yet out of that fourteen he molded a team that won five of seven contests and had two all-state men on its roll.

In these days there were three sports on the campus: football, baseball, and basketball, and he coached all of them.

In December, 1917, he left Clinton to join the American Expeditionary forces in France. He served as a top sergeant until the end of the World war, and returned to his coaching duties in August, 1919. This was the only break in his coaching record and during the 1918 season, which was the only one that he missed, only three games were played.

Under his direction Presbyterian college sports have developed from practically nothing to the high standard that they have today. Four other sports have been added to the three sports in which the school participated when he came: track, boxing, tennis, and swimming. Johnson has coached all of these at one period or other in their development.

The athletic plant has developed from bare, unfenced fields to what is considered one of the best small college plants in the nation. And it was largely through his instrumentality that the Leroy Springs gymnasium was built in 1924, the W. Cyrus Bailey stadium erected, the Brack and Johnson field completed, the Springs indoor swimming pool made, and the Young practice field secured. To Walter Johnson goes a large portion of the credit for the vast development in athletics that this school has seen in the past twenty years.

And his activities have not stopped with coaching, though his job has been a man-sized one. He is a member of the Clinton Rotary club, formerly a member of the Clinton Chamber of Commerce, a Mason and a Shriner. He is captain of the local unit of National Guard, Battery G, 263rd Coast Artillery. That was on real duty at Pelzer in August of this year, and which was considered one of the best outfits in camp at Fort Moultrie this summer.

When the writer asked him for a statement about his twenty years of work here, he merely grinned his famous, hearty grin and said with his characteristic modesty: "I've seen the athletic plant built from nothing to what I consider one of the best small college plants in the country. When I started we played schools like Bailey Prep and the Clemson freshmen. Then we play Tech, Clemson, Mercer and Furman. I've never had a team that wouldn't fight."

That was all—nothing about what he had done to make that plant what it is, nothing about the important part he has played in bringing boxing to this state (it began at this school under his direction); nothing about the vastly significant role that he played in the organization of the Palmetto

Dr. Jones Named Synod Moderator

Dr. Frank Dudley Jones, professor of psychology at Presbyterian college, was elected moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of south Carolina at the annual meeting of the church court in session in Rock Hill last week. He presided over the deliberations of the body and will serve until the next session of the synod a year hence.

Dr. Jones succeeded Dr. George Andrew Nickles, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Charleston, a graduate of Presbyterian college.

Walter Johnson: An Appreciation

Some institutions are blessed with a guiding spirit, a dynamic force that not only exemplifies the spirit of the institution but adds to and strengthens that spirit. Such an institution is Presbyterian College and such a force is Walter Johnson.

The fact that he is now directing Blue Stocking athletics for the twentieth year makes him an unusual figure; with the exception of Zupke, of Illinois, unique in sporting annals. And that fact alone is enough to call forth a Johnson night. But we are confident that the fact that this is his twentieth anniversary as P. C. coach is serving merely as an excuse for the demonstration of admiration, respect, and esteem that is scheduled for next Friday night. Johnson Night is a tribute, not to a football coach, but to a man.

In the past twenty years Walter Johnson has made men, hundreds of them. Along with the men he has made great football teams, but always he has placed his boys above the team. Fair play, hard work, clean sportsmanship, many attributes —these are the qualities he has instilled in the boys that he has sent out as P. C. men.

He has always shown a devoted love for this school, an unflagging energy for all those things that make it better and stronger, a strong devotion to the men who make up its student body.

He is the "grand old man" of South Carolina athletics. It was largely through his instrumentality that two of the state's most popular sports came into being—boxing and baseball.

Elsewhere in this issue there is a detailed account of his athletic record. We are here paying tribute to the man, the builder of men, the fearless champion of fair play, the dynamic force.

Our hats are off to you, Coach Walter Johnson —the finest exponent of P. C. spirit!

Another World War?

The most deplorable international action of the past few years has happened—Italy has begun its war of conquest in Ethiopia. The world is once again turned into a vast stage for the action of the ever-recurring drama of Mars versus blind Justice.

Truly, Italy's conquest is an internationally unpopular one, and rightly so. The day should have passed when might makes right and power of arms is of more importance than power of justice. It has not. England and France stand waiting, apparently ready at any moment to leap into the fray. The other nations of the world are prepared to intervene. But their intervention would only increase the graveness of the situation. England and France are horrified at the moral issues in question. It is splendid that they have so far evolved as not only that they can now take this attitude, but before they force it upon Italy let them remember that she is but repeating a page of history that they themselves have written.

The United States has remained aloof from the entire situation. Our prayer is that it shall remain so. Let Congress and the President never become so inflamed with moral righteousness that this nation shall enter another Quiotic struggle such as the last attempt to make the world safe for American capitalism which masqueraded under the self-righteous title of a war for democracy.

The League of Nations is the agency that alone is empowered to deal with the situation. That it has failed is a pathetic and graphic illustration of the farce that Wilson's dream has become. But the failure does not license other nations to thrust the world again into the holocaust of war on an international scale.

We are not, in any way, attempting to champion the cause of Mussolini, nor do we in any sense sanction the methods by which he is rewriting the pages of the history of colonial conquest. But we do feel that the Italian-Ethiopian quarrel is simply a quarrel between two nations. For the African nation to be wiped from the face of the globe would be tragic, but is their death sufficient cause for a catastrophe as gigantic and horrible as the resulting world-wide war would be?

"Render To Caesar . . . "

The staffs of college publications often wonder if the students really know what makes the issues of the magazine, the newspaper and various programs possible. The average student possibly doesn't give much thought to the question. The issues come out and the students take for granted that they will keep on coming out; and they probably will for many reasons.

But perhaps the most important reason for their coming is the support of local business concerns who lend support to these publications through the medium of advertising and make possible their periodical appearance. Due to the small allotment of funds from the college administration, the publications necessarily look to advertising to balance the budgets. About fifty per cent of the advertising is from national concerns, the other fifty is subscribed by local business firms.

It was once that college publications here had trouble in securing enough news material and literary work to put out large issues. This is not criticism; it is a fact. Now these publications under the supervision of students have progressed to the point where they cannot afford to print all the material available and the staff thinks itself lucky to be printing as much as they do on the available funds. In fact, if it were not for the local advertisers the students would not be getting as large or as many issues of the college periodicals.

Now, since the local stores and business institutions are making it possible for the student body to enjoy a weekly paper, a quarterly magazine, and souvenir programs for the partial benefit of the athletic association, is it too much to expect that the students will in turn lend their support to these P. C. backers by buying in Clinton? It is not expecting too much. The student body will realize this if and when they stop to think about it. There are those who are gladly cooperating with their supporters by shopping locally for everything that can be bought in the little college town. This number should include the entire student body.

And there is always more than one item attached to such a move. As long as the students are going to buy locally they should purchase only from those merchants who are advertising in the college publications. In short, buy from those who make possible our school publications.

American Youth Doesn't Want War

We, the young people of today, are faced with a world preparing for war. Italy is forcing the issue in Ethiopia; Great Britain is rushing her navy to the Mediterranean, the United States is steadily increasing its military expenditures and following policies which threaten to plunge us into the melee. The League is a peace organization in name but is powerless to avert war unless Italy retracts and Italy will not retract as long as there is a possible chance to gain land and resources. War in Europe seems inevitable.

The United States must not be drawn into the mess. The young men of America are too valuable to waste in a squabble between selfish nations in Europe; American resources are too valuable to blow up in gun powder.

We feel the need for constructive and dramatic demonstration against the rising war tendencies of our nation. We must bear down strongly on peace education. We must demonstrate our determination not to be cannon-fodder for future wars.

BOOK REVIEW

By Stuart Campbell

"LUCY GAYHEART," by Willa Cather

In her latest book, "Lucy Gayheart," Miss Cather again goes to the Middle West for her setting. In this novel she presents the tragic love story of Lucy Gayheart. The story is very light but exceedingly well done. However, there are few resemblances to Miss Cather's former masterpieces.

The main character is Lucy Gayheart, daughter of a small-town watch repairer. The story is told by one of her fellow townsmen twenty years after her death. Lucy goes to Chicago one winter to study and teach piano at the same time. She falls in love with a concert singer much older than she. She gives her suitor from "back home" the impression that she has been the singer's mistress. Harry, her suitor, promptly marries another. She is to marry the singer the next October but he is drowned that summer in Italy. Lucy returns home where she longs for a kind word or look from Harry. The next December Lucy is drowned while ice-skating, after a last rebuff from Harry.

The novel is done in an excellent style but it lacks the depth one would expect from the author of "Shadows on the Rock" and "Death Comes for the Archbishop." For any one who desires more than a light story written expertly this book is clearly a disappointment.

Elmer Smith Buchan

The young man whose name appears above hails from the lower part of our state, in the section known as "God's country." He is very boisterous, not to say obstreperous, and delights in punching everyone in the solar plexus with his outstretched finger, a thoroughly reprehensible habit. "Stupe," as he is affectionately called by his friends, is, however, such a lovable character that few can bear ill-will against him.

Like Estes, Mixson, et al, his constant desire to make late dates with girls up for dances (on someone else's bid, of course). The writer himself is one of the few who have not been the victim of his wanton attitude in such matters, altho many social lights have not been so fortunate. History fails to relate whether or not he was able to get a late date with Bill Thompson's ex-girl, but if he didn't it wasn't his fault. Thompson, by the way, is still wondering just who it was that did get the date.

Stupe, as stated before, is a very lovable character, and has a genial and engaging personality. By a recent vote he was named the cutest in his class. He will undoubtedly make good as a circus clown some day.

Elizabeth Blakely, the tiny but dynamic little co-ed, was naming over her courses the other day to a friend. Swimming, tutored by the blond Jim Brewer, happened to be one of them. The friend asked, "Which is your best course?" Her answer came quick as a flash, "Jim Brewer."

During the week-end in Atlanta, George Oliver and Stupe Buchan practically purchased the entire town. They were ably assisted by Ed ("Speedy") Andrews, who followed them around paying them out of every scrape they got in.

According to a recent announcement at the dining hall, Carl Johnson has decided to enter the ministry. This momentous decision goes to show the influence of a good woman on him.

Montague Jacobs has been wandering down the hill behind the gym of late, and, by the way, is very touchy on the subject, so please don't anyone mention it to him.

Julian Freeman is now unattached for the first time in four years and says he is ready to meet the girls half way. Pinkhead Potter also voices the same sentiments. George Oliver, however, stands aloof and insists that he is not interested in females of any size, shape or variety. He concludes, "And that's my story and I'll stick to it."

Since the recent sketch of A. K. Darby (Artemus, to you), several interesting items have come forth about this culture-conscious character.

One concerns the work of this burr-headed specimen on the F.E.R.A. last year. Darby was loading the wheelbarrow on the tennis court while a fellow worker hauled the debris away. When the young fellow came back with the empty wheelbarrow Darby was nowhere to be found. High and low he looked and the culture cultist was still missing.

The student making the search was a good detective, however. Who would have thought, on looking up at the sky and seeing a kite in the distance, that this would have had any connection? This man, however, was a good detective, being a former student council member. So he put on his false mustache, gum shoes, and, magnifying glass in hand started out on the trail.

His efforts were soon rewarded. After a tramp of many miles he walked upon the object of his diligent search, seated peacefully by a purling brook, flying his kite, and at the same time contemplating the beauties of Mother Nature.

Another authority had it that Darby always worked with his grass hook near the open window of Norman Creech's room, where he would swing his scythe rapturously to the rhythm of Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C Sharp Minor, or other classical pieces of music which happened to be on the radio at the time.

Over one-half of all the funds received by the University of North Carolina since its founding have been contributed by its friends and alumni.

The Little Lighthouse

It was a little lighthouse
Standing far out in the bay.
And all the sailors loved it
'Cause it made it bright as day.

One day a little seagull
To the lighthouse did assert:
"You're really not a shining light,
"You're just an extrovert!"

And the flightly little seagull
Went along his tactless way,
Little dreaming that his cruelty
He never could allay.

Now the sturdy little lighthouse
Bowed its head in deepest woe,
And its little light once noble
Flickered with a feeble glow.

And when Neptune rocked the rolling sea
It made the sailors say:
"Where is the little lighthouse there
That made it bright as day?"

One day a smuggler's seaplane,
Taking more than it could stand,
Dropped a case or so of spirits—
Quite a bit of contraband.

Well, it landed on the lighthouse
And it made a direct hit.
"Eureka!" said the lighthouse,
"Here's where I get really lit!"

And when Neptune rocks the rolling sea
It makes the sailors say:
"God bless our little lighthouse,
'Cause it makes it bright as day!"

Today's Success Story

(A Copyrighted Feature Bearing All the Stamps of Illiteracy).

Clarence Kilowatt was a typical college junior. He still wore the sweater with his high school block letter, smoked all his friend's cigarettes, studied once a month, and haggled with the washwoman over prices.

His life ran smoothly along in a current with the others, and he still thought that he had a good chance of being president of the United States.

He made D's, C's and occasional B's, and once when he made an A on Bible, his father sent him an extra dollar.

All in all, he was a pretty typical sort of fellow any way you looked at him (bird's-eye view, side view, view from the American side, etc.)

One day a group of the boys were sitting out under the elm tree on the corner of the campus smoking and talking about people and things, when they heard a queer sound that seemed to be coming from the dimly lit interior (inside) of the gym(nasium).

Suddenly who should come screaming out of the door but Clarence. —Well, who should?

He was flailing his arms about wildly, and from the maddened red face ominous eyes bulged in abject terror. (A few chords, Professor).

He ran screaming to his room, laughingly whacked his room-mate into a thousand pieces with a bowie-knife, read over an old physics test paper, and jumped into the forest where he went swinging away through the trees with a shriek.

The astonished spectators rushed headlong into the gym to find out the cause of this little drama.

"What's the matter!" Replied an urchin ('39) who was butting his head against the wall, "Why he actually won a package of cigarettes on the Canteen punch board!"

Doctor W. L. Poteat, of Wake Forest, has recently published a book for young people of college age, entitled "Step Light." It is divided into four sections and discusses the evil effects of alcohol on the human system.

FIRST P. C. FOOTBALL TEAM WAS ORGANIZED BY JACOBS IN 1913

Everett Booe, Star Player for Davidson College, Was First Coach. "Red" Thomas, of York, Captain. William P. Jacobs Assumed Financial Responsibility and Directed Efforts In Initial Season.

Early in 1913 several students at Presbyterian college, encouraged by a few who had played football in high school or in other colleges, determined to request the faculty and board of trustees the privilege of establishing inter-collegiate football at Presbyterian college. Active in this direction were J. W. C. Bell, a freshman from Arkansas, who had played high school football and later was selected all-state tackle on Coach Johnson's first team; Rufus E. Sadler of Rock Hill, who had played football at Clemson, and Wm. P. Jacobs, of Clinton, who had played football at Davidson college. Sadler dropped out of school that year and Jacobs took the leadership in circulating the petition among the students and making the request of the authorities.

The petition was granted and announcement was made at commencement, 1913, upon the condition, however, that the entry into inter-collegiate football and basketball should not involve the college in any financial loss. It became necessary, therefore, for Jacobs to personally direct the entire operation, buy the uniforms, employ and pay the coach and all other expenses.

The school had no football field and no gymnasium. Both football and basketball were played on an old plowed field, now the northwest portion of the College Plaza. The western goal-post was actually in Professor Martin's cow lot. There were no grandstands. The uniform consisted of mole-skin trousers and a cheap jersey. The players provided all other equipment. Coach Everett L. Booe coached all athletics at a salary of $800.00 a year.

Newberry defeated Presbyterian college both at the state fair and in a return game at Newberry by the identical score of 51 to nothing. Furman defeated P. C. at Greenville, 65 to 0. It was the first year in inter-collegiate football for P. C., Furman and Newberry. Only the Citadel, Carolina and Clemson had teams prior to that year. Wofford and Erskine came into the picture a year or so later.

Financially, the season was a success for P. C. and Jacobs, who financially underwrote the enterprise, did not lose, for the football season paid the coach, financed itself and also basketball and baseball.

Jacobs played quarterback, was the manager of the team, served most of the season as alternate captain with the elected captain, a freshman named Thomas, from York. Jacobs also naturally served as assistant coach. At no time during the season did Booe have a sufficient number of men out to practice to form two teams. But even under these handicaps, P. C.'s first venture was a success.

At the end of the season the first Block "P" club was formed, called the "Wearers of the P," and the first certificate was awarded to Wm. P. Jacobs. It is framed and hangs in the college gymnasium at present. Among the other players receiving football awards for the first year were: Coach Booe, honorary; J. W. C. Bell, of Arkansas; B. T. Brown, of Bishopville; Rev. Robert Woodson, of Starkville, Miss.; H. E. Hicklin, of Rock Hill, and Rev. A. H. Miller, a missionary in Africa.

INDIAN TILT FORMERLY BIGGEST GAME

The game with Newberry next Friday night promises to be an unusually interesting one from several standpoints. One is the new lighting system, which will be used for the first time for a game. Then, too, the celebration of Walter Johnson's twentieth year as coach at Presbyterian college will bring back memories of past days of P. C.'s football glory under the Johnson regime.

The P. C.-Newberry game, altho won most of the time by the former, has always been attended by great rivalry. In days gone by it was P. C.'s biggest game of the season. In fact, the annual encounter between these two schools was formerly as important to the two student bodies as the Furman-Clemson game is now. In recent years, however, enthusiasm has cooled down a great deal, and this contest is important now merely because it is Homecoming game.

P.C.-NEWBERRY TILT GENERALLY A THRILLER

This game always has been particularly interesting to the writer, tho it does not seem to have such a great hold on the public. The most nerve-wrecking football game this scribe ever sat thru was in 1932. The Blue Stockings started out with a rush, as if they were going to win in a walk. As they neared the Indian goal line, the P. C. quarterback called for a pass. As he dropped back to throw the aerial a Newberry man came thru, intercepted it, and ran all the way down the field for a touchdown. From then on till the end of the game Newberry seemed to have the upper hand. Finally P. C. launched a belated drive and carried the ball down to the goal line, where the redoubtable Harry Bolick carried it over. After the point was kicked the score was tied, 7 to 7. A profound sense of relief swept over the P. C. stands.

There was still more to the game, tho. Newberry started down the field and a backfield man swept around our end, taking the ball to the 5-yard line. The referee blew his whistle to end the game.

LEE GRIFFITH'S BIG MOMENT

And then there is the story they tell about Lee Griffith, the huge tackle from Arkansas, who made both all-state and S. I. A. A. for two years. He was hurt in a previous game and could not play against Newberry in the 1925 setto. During the game, which the Indians won easily, he ran up and down the sidelines crying like a baby (a 210 pound one), and pleading to be allowed to get in the game.

P. C. AERIAL ATTACK TO FEATURE

The Blue Hose forward and lateral passing attack ought to be a big feature of the game with Newberry. Goof Holliday is a dependable man at flipping the oval and Waldrep and Forehand have shown their stuff in receiving it. One of the prettiest forward-laterals ever pulled off was the one in last year's game with Newberry, in which Forehand caught the ball and, as he was about to be tackled, shoved it over to Bob Perrin for a total gain of about 30 yards.

Fall Track Men Round Into Form

The fall track men are continuing with their work and are slowly rounding into shape for the first meet, which is with Mercer at Macon, October 12. Another meet has been arranged with Furman, and it will take place on October 26. Still another is being negotiated with Carolina, and it is expected that these teams will fall in line soon.

Among the candidates not mentioned last week are Phil Adams, Tom Estes, John Woodward, and Bradner. The first two named have won their block "P" in the mile, and are expected to run well in the fall meets.

The meet with Mercer will be a three-mile run, while the others probably will be one and half or two miles.

All told, these are four letter men out for the fall event, and these will form the nucleus of the team. Only five men will be carried to Macon for the meet there, but it is thought that at least ten will make the trip closer home.

FRESHMEN BEGIN 1935 SEASON AGAINST CAROLINA THURSDAY

Contest Will Be Played In Florence. McMillian Has Promising Aggregation To Put In Field.

The Presbyterian freshmen will open their football schedule Thursday against the frosh team from the University of South Carolina. The opening tilt will be played in Florence as a feature of the county fair which will be in progress there. This game will give the Blue Anklets a beginning against some mighty stiff competition, for the Biddies have a strong aggregation this year. In their game against Newberry last week the Carolina rats won an easy and decisive victory, running up a score of 28 to 0. In this game the Biddies displayed a versatile and powerful attack. The P. C. rats may have trouble defending their goal against the heavy backs whom the Newberry freshmen could not stop.

However, the P. C. freshmen will not go on the field unprepared ot give a good account of themselves. In the weeks of practice Coach McMillian has shaped a very promising team from his material. In the scrimmages of the past week the rats have displayed power, both offensive and defensive, which makes P. C. supporters optimistic. The running attack led by Lambright and Reynolds, two fast-stepping half-backs, has proven effective against the Blue Hose varsity and against the freshman reserves. Coach McMillian has trained his men in a clever pass attack which will enable them to take to the air assured of success. The freshmen offense is greatly strengthened by the blocking of Moore at the fullback position. His interference enables many plays to click. This Moore is one of the most promising backfield blockers the school has had for a number of years.

The rats' defense is built around two big, powerful tackles, Boswell and Evans. The work of Davis and Murchison at guard adds to the defensive strength of the line. The center assignment has finally been conferred upon Henderson, whose tackling makes him valuable in backing up the line. Ends seem to be the strong point of the frosh squad. Atkinson and Holcomb are shining on the flanks, and are two of the outstanding members of the squad. The reserves at end are unusually good, with Shamheart and Batchelor playing fine ball on the second string.

P. C. is watching with interest the development of the freshman team this year, for the varsity will lose its best material through graduation in June, and it is this rat team that will have to fill the vacancies. The freshmen look good in practice, but they have never been seen under fire. There will be an unusual amount of interest in the Thursday opener against the Carolina frosh, and all Presbyterian sports followers will be on the watch for outstanding candidates.

Johnson First Team Won Five, Lost Two

Twenty Years Ago. In 1915, P. C. Had Fourteen Men On Squad. Coach Scrimmaged With Boys.

Twenty years ago Coach Walter Johnson put his first Presbyterian college football team on the gridiron. This was the third team that the school had, William P. Jacobs having organized intercollegiate football but two years previously.

The squad was made up of but fourteen men, a number so small that the coach was forced to scrimmage with them. In practices one side of the line played against the other. Yet these fourteen men contained in their midst some of the greatest figures ever to appear in Presbyterian college athletics: Chick Galloway, who was later voted the most valuable player in American league baseball in 1925 and who is now baseball coach at P. C.; Lonnie McMillian, who was twice voted all-state end and who now coaches Calvinist frosh football and varsity track and basketball; Hugh Eichelberger, who was three times all-state tackle and is now P. C. line coach.

The group of fourteen men, apparently doomed to dismal failure in all their games, made the amazing record of five wins out of seven starts.

The record of the year speaks for itself:

P. C. 16; Wofford 6.
P. C. 20; Furman 12.
P. C. 0; Citadel 11.
P. C. 60; Erskine 0.
P. C. 13; Clemson Frosh 7.
P. C. 14; Carolina 7.
P. C. 13; Newberry 20.

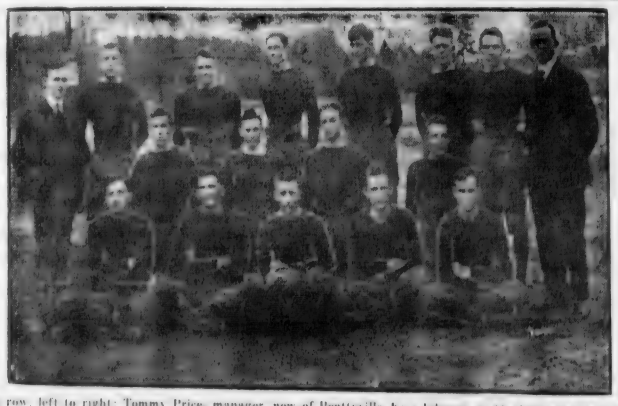
Homecoming Will Draw Good Crowd

Indians Will Bring Versatile Outfit For Duel With Walter Johnson's Blue Stockings.

The big interest of the homecoming game with Newberry will probably lie in the duel between Robbie Higbe, the snake-hipped P. C. halfback, and Ed Beck, versatile Indian, who plays the same position. Higbe's main virtue is his ability to run in a broken field, and in this department he probably is as good as any back in the state. Beck, on the other hand, tho not quite so sensational a runner, is the main cog in Newberry's passing attack and is also an unusually good punter. In running, by the way, his specialty is skirts around the wings, and at this position he may be very dangerous, since P. C. is not notably strong defensively at the ends.

Another good backfield man which Newberry boasts is Kirkland, a fairly heavy man and a good line-plunger. McIntosh, a halfback, will help Beck run the ends.

The Indians have a veteran line which should prove a staunch obstacle to the inroads of P. C. backs. On the end they have Furen and Koch, men with plenty of experience on the wing positions. Gibbons, at one of the tackles, also is a man with much experience, and has shown up well so far. Morgan, at guard, has the weight and knows his position well from past years of playing.



The Newberry team will probably be a tough one for the Blue Hose. Newberry has the advantage of being the underdog, and the Calvinists may suffer some from over-confidence. P. C. is not expected to show great offensive power, except in the forward passing line. The aerial ability displayed against Georgia Tech and Furman should go much better with Newberry. Goof Holliday, who showed himself to be a great passer in the Tech game, probably will be whipping them over to Higbe, Jacobs and others with reckless abandon, since this seems to be P. C.'s only consistent method of gaining ground.

Laterals also are expected to be a feature of the homecoming tilt. Coach Johnson has several new ones which he first used in the recent contest with Furman, and a wide open game is expected. This feature, together with the Higbe-Beck feud, should make the game an unusually interesting one.

One P. C. Man To Receive West Point Appointment

McSwain To Name R.O.T.C. Member

Will Be Guided In Appointment By Recommendations of Administration and Unit Officers.

Honorable John J. McSwain, of Greenville and Washington, representative in congress from the Fourth district, in which Clinton is located, spoke informally Tuesday morning to the students of Presbyterian college about the selection of a man from the institution he is to appoint to West Point in the near future.

Mr. McSwain was introduced to the student body and faculty of the institution by Acting President Jacobs, who pointed out that the congressman had always been a close friend to this college, and that Mr. McSwain was an important figure in the life of the nation, being chairman of the military affairs committee of the house of representatives, which has control over the destinies of R. O. T. C. units, in which P. C. is concerned.

The congressman caught the attention of his hearers in his opening remarks by saying that he had a gift worth $250,000 to give to some senior or junior of Presbyterian college. In explaining his statement, he told how this opportunity was worth even more than money since it assured a young man a brilliant and care-free future and offered him a position of social advantage and a freedom from ordinary monetary worries. The speaker facetiously told how the daughters of millionaires fall for the West Point uniform, adding that this also gave an important feature to his offer.

In speaking of the methods he would employ to select the young man who would get the appointment from the institution, Mr. McSwain told how he had formerly resorted entirely to a competitive examination, believing that was the only true way to test a boy's ability and to get a partial check on his character; but that now he was giving the appointment to P. C.'s R. O. T. C. unit since it was located in his congressional district. He affirmed the political alliances did not count in the appointment, since he was interested in getting the best men of the country to become officers of the U. S. army in coming years. He set down the requisites for the appointment in further explaining that the applicant must be a bona fide resident of either Greenville, Spartanburg, Laurens or Union counties; that he must have, above all, character, scholarship and military temperament as seen by his officers here in the unit, and that he must be physically fit.

In speaking about the R. O. T. C. in general, the speaker told how he had made it a policy in congress to work for adequate, safe and sound preparation for any emergency which might come to the country. The R. O. T. C., he thinks, does just this, since it is not aggressive, but provides defense anyway. He recounted the efforts he has made to foster interest in the R. O. T. C. and thus make the national defenses more sure. To do this a law has been passed permitting about 1,000 of the R. O. T. C. graduates each year to be trained for one year at the pay of their grade in the reserve corps. After the year is up, 50 of these men will be selected on the basis of their work that year for permanent commissions in the regular army.

In closing, Mr. McSwain expressed the hope that many of the P. C. boys would try for this appointment, and that the lucky one would uphold the ideals of America that have been exemplified by so many national heroes such as Washington and Pershing.

Gives Appointment

CONGRESSMAN J. J. McSWAIN

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

This is an age when everyone is interested in the opinion of the man on the street. The other day I talked to a freshman about military here at our college, and was quite amused at his ideas thereupon. He proclaimed military science the "doggone toughest thing I've ever struck. I was in the National Guard for three years before I came here, and now I am no better off than if I had never seen a gun. This is an educated army, and the Cap'n is giving us hell. Boy, does he give us a fit!" Etc. And that seems to be the concensus of opinion among the freshmen.

The theory (held by some people) that a strong nation will not attack a weak, unarmed nation is severely refuted by the ambitions of our illustrious Il Duce, and the resulting Italian-Ethiopian mess. This noble Italian obviously has no regard or respect for such theories and he means to let nothing prevent him from fostering his gainful desires. The scrap promises to be a battle royal (particularly as regards the Ethiopians) and is dictator vs. monarch, so no pervent propagandist can pull the rest of the world in by shouting, "Save the world for democracy!" It will take another more clever slogan or war cry to start us loading our rifles this time.

As an entertaining and informative novelty, sixteen juniors and sophomores will put on a combat demonstration between halves of the homecoming game Friday. To make the battle realistic, blank ammunition will be used in the regular army rifles. It is possible that, to make the thing more interesting, freshmen may be used as enemy (targets). At any rate, this demonstration will give many of the on-lookers their first sight of warfare (even if it is sham), and will give the old grads a chance to reminisce and tell the wife and kiddies how they used to cavort around with guns and bullets.

That beloved friend of the juniors and the indispensable savior (and destroyer) of mankind on the battlefield, Ruth(less) Machine Gun, will clash with those same amiable juniors, for the course in machine gun instruction, manipultaion, and disassembling begins Monday. The P. C. juniors have heretofore rated as the most formidable and skilled machine gunners of all the R. O. T. C. schools in this area, and indications are that this year's batch will not disappoint, but will carry on and strengthen the precedent established by worthy predecessors.

The freshmen are showing rapid improvement on the drill field for a most commendable reason — increased interest on the part of the company commanders and their subordinates. Knowledge plus interest equals results. The advanced corps has the knowledge, and now that the interest has arrived on the scene, results are appearing everywhere. However, 'tis necessary that the freshmen themselves absorb some of this interest as well as the information concerning military that Captain Beatty drills into them, for a disinterested sculptor will never create a masterpiece no matter how much he knows; the past three w[illegible] hundred extras have been p[ut]

A sent to all alumni of the school a ve[ry] effort to arouse interest in Homecoming and Johnson day.

Georgia Alumni Of P. C. Gather

Acting President Jacobs Addresses Reunion of Former Students In Atlanta Saturday.

The Georgia alumni of Presbyterian college met in the Pompeian room of the Atlanta-Biltmore for a luncheon prior to the P. C.-Georgia Tech game Saturday.

William P. Jacobs, acting president of the college, was host to a group of 50 P. C. graduates. A few members of the school staff and their wives also were present.

An interesting fact was the bringing together of William P. Jacobs, president of the college, grandson and namesake of the founder; Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university and son of the founder of P. C., and Dr. Dillard Jacobs, son of the founder and business man of Atlanta.

An alumna present at the meeting was Mrs. William H. James, formerly Mattie May Neville, daughter of the Rev. W. G. Neville, D.D., LL.D., president of the college from 1904 to 1907.

The luncheon was spiced with brief talks from sons of the college. Dr. Dillard Jacobs, Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, Dr. Ellis Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church in Atlanta, the Rev. T. W. Simpson, trustee of the college, of Brunswick, Ga., were called on for talks by Dr. S. C. Hays, of this city, president of the P. C. Alumni association, who presided at the luncheon.

William P. Jacobs gave the principal address of the occasion, which marked the first state gathering of P. C. alumni in Georgia.

He sounded a significant warning of the growth of radicalism in thinking and emphasized the need of Christian education in developing men and women with their feet planted solidly on the ground of conservative and constructive thinking.

I.R.C. Organization Holds First Session

Much Business Transacted. Arrangements Made For Filling Vacancies In Membership.

The International Relations club on last Wednesday evening held its regular bi-monthly meeting. Many business matters were discussed and plans for the year's program were outlined.

Lynn Jones was appointed chairman of the program committee, with Preston Charles and Edgar Stanton serving with him. Charles Steenbergen, secretary of the organization, was appointed as chairman of the membership committee.

Two moves were made and tabled for consideration, one to allow coeds membership in the club, the other to fill all vacancies occurring by competitive examinations.

A resolution to the effect that all meetings would be conducted under parliamentary order was adopted by the club. It was suggested that all members read up on the rules of parliamentary order and that at an early date Prof. H. T. Swedenberg be asked to discuss the rules with the club.

The year's programs were discussed and plans formulated. President Henry Calvert suggested a program on discussion of the Olympic games to be held in Berlin next year. Other plans for debates and roundtable discussions of current international problems were made.

The program of the meeting consisted of a recount of some of the humorous and interesting happenings of last year's Model League of Nations by Hugh Holman. Following this was a short discussion of plans for this year's meeting of the Model League. Many expressed their desire to attend and it is hoped that a large number will be able to do so.

Before adjournment Mr. Charles, of the program committee, announced that he would ask Major Wysor to discuss the Italo-Ethiopian situation at the next meeting, on Wednesday evening at seven o'clock in the economics lecture room.

All students interested in membership in the I. R. C. are asked to see Dean Brown concerning when the date of the test will be.

Plans are going through at the University of Georgia to welcome President Roosevelt to Atlanta during Thanksgiving week.

HURRICANE DOWNS BLUE HOSE, 23 TO 0

the backfield and booted the oval between the goalposts for three more points. The score remained thus until the end of the third quarter.

Just after the last quarter began Furman intercepted another of Holliday's passes and got the ball on the 22-yard line. From that point Griffin got loose and ran rough-hod over several P. C. would-be tacklers, dodging the safety man. King failed to get the point.

A few minutes after the kickoff, Furman got the ball in midfield, and commenced a drive which, led by Rohr, Scott and Griffin, went to the one-yard line where Scott burst thru for the touchdown. The extra point was good, making the score 23 to 0.

In the last minute or two the Calvinists lost the ball on a fumble of the kickoff. With only 27 yards to go, Furman almost made a touchdown after Foster's 16-yard run. On the last play Cappelmann smacked Scott for a loss, and thus the game fortunately ended.

The Presbyterian were well-satisfied with the playing of their team, and it was evident that the squad was much improved over their form in the Clemson game. The Hurricane, on the other hand, displayed form considerably below that expected of them and it is evident they will have to show great improvement before they may expect to give the Tigers a close battle. On the other hand, P. C. may get along rother well from now on if their playing in other games is up to the standard they displayed Saturday.

The big star for the Presbyterians was Frank Holliday, 180-pound fullback. This boy was all over Furman's backfield making tackles behind the line of scrimmage and backing up the line generally. Then, too, his passes were accurate as usual. Robbie Higbe also played a good game, both offensively and defensively. Jacobs, the star punter, did some good work in the backfield too. He outkicked the much-touted Stevens by several yards on the average.

In the line, Horne, of course, stood out as the best of them all until he was hurt in the first quarter. Correll, who substituted for him, played outstandingly, as did Bradley and Prather, especially the latter. Hutchinson did well at his roving center.

Generally speaking, the P. C. line held remarkably well, and had it not been for bad breaks such as intercepted passes, the Hurricane would not have made more than a touchdown or two. Forward passes were resorted to frequently in dangerous territory in an effort to score, but several were intercepted, and Furman thus was placed in scoring position.

The outstanding men for Furman were Griffin, Scott and Rohr in the backfield, while the best of the linesmen were Dorn, Shivers, King and Burrell.

"The Intercollegiate Peace association," writes Dr. Morgan," was organized in 1906 by a small group of college professors upon the suggestion of two women in New Bedford, Massachusetts, who wanted to use their means in the cause of the promotion of peace."

The contest has been conducted annually for the past thirty years. Last year, 132 colleges in 21 states competed, with 568 orations. This year will mark South Carolina's entrance into the contest.—The Johnson (Winthrop college).

Color Harmony

For the benefit of Joe Louis, Haile Selassie and P. C.'s own "Columbo," the writer of this column make a few alterations to a popular tune.

"The object of my affections
Can change my complexion
From black to gravy-brown—
Anytime she holds my hand
And says let's go to town!"

Skull Practice

A well-known Clinton lady was conversing with a member of the P. C. football team when the grid star began shuffling away. "I've got to go to skull practice," he said.

"My word," said the lady, "aren't your skulls tough enough without having to practice on each other?"

Memories of Kate Smith

When P. C.'s Baby Blue Hose open their season with Carolina on the 10th, they will be facing a team that boasts a line averaging 212 pounds. Putting our rats up against a team like this is what we call real hazing!

P. C. 20--NEWBERRY 6; HOME-COMING IS SUCCESS

BLUE HOSE WIN THRILLING GAME

Thompson and Wilbanks Star As Calvinists Down Traditional Rivals Under Floodlights.

Walter Johnson's twentieth Presbyterian college football team scored 20 points on their Homecoming night to defeat the plucky Newberry team, who marked up 6 points themselves.

The game was the big event of a huge Homecoming day celebration and came off before a crowd estimated at 4,000. Played under the new 72,000-watt lighting system, the contest was a fitting climax to Johnson's twenty years of coaching at P. C.

The main feature of the game was the running attack shown by both teams. The Presbyterian gridiron men at last started their offense to clicking and they made many a gain thru the Indian line and also around ends. The Lutherans, on the other hand, also made many short gains from scrimmage. The P. C.. touchdowns came as a result of drives down the field, while the Indians scored on an intercepted pass, with a run of 49 yards by Kirkland.

During the half Hank Wilson directed ceremonies in commemoration of Coach Johnson's twentieth year at P. C. over the amplifier which also carried play by play announcements as the game progressed.

William P. Jacobs, acting president of P. C., made a speech in praise of Johnson's past record at the college and his training of young men in high ideals and sportsmanship. He read messages of congratulation from various dignitaries from all over the state.

Several valuable gifts were presented to Johnson by various groups. A. W. Brice, of the 1915 team, the first coached by Johnson, made a presentation in behalf of the team, and James McClary placed a gift in his hands from the student body. The town of Clinton, thru Mayor Silas Bailey, and Captain Shorty Horne, for the football team, also presented gifts.

After the ceremonies a group of men from the R. O. T. C. unit staged a thrilling sham battle. The lights were turned off and the effect was quite colorful as the riflemen and machine gunners fired blanks at each other. Fireworks lit up the field from time to time during the battle.

The Blue Stockings began showing their stuff early in the game. Opening up with their passing and running attack, they started on the 46-yard line of the Indians and clicked off several gains to cross the Newberry goal finally on a 13-yard run by Bill Thompson. A pass of 13 yards, Jacobs to Higbe, was a factor in gaining the touchdown. During this march Frank Holliday, P. C. defensive back and pigskin thrower, was hurt and carried off the field.

The next period the Presbyterians displayed consistent superiority over the Indians, and after a few minutes Higbe's nice punt return put the ball on the Lutherans' 35-yard marker. With a first down in the offing, the P. C. team tried a fake reverse, with Thompson carrying the ball thru the line. Straight down the middle of the field he went, with red-shirted tacklers sprawling after him. Finally, as three of them seemingly had him hemmed in at the 10-yard line, he cut to the right and crossed the goal line untouched.

Another touch of color was added in the third period as Kirkland, Newberry back, leaped high in the air, snatched a P. C. pass, and raced down the field like an antelope for a touchdown after a 49-yard run. The try for point was wide.

During the final period Robbie Higbe made a beautiful punt return of about 40 yards, carrying the ball to the Indians' 21-yard marker. Thompson a little later passed to Jacobs, who fumbled, and Forehand recovered on the opponents' 3-yard line. Bill Thompson, with a nice hole opened for him, went over thru tackle.

During the latter part of the second period Newberry made a magnificent

War Demonstration Spectacular Affair

Those present at the P. C.-Newberry football game on last Friday night were treated to a realistic demonstration of modern warfare as a crack squad from the Presbyterian college R. O. T. C. unit gave a demonstration of a squad in attack, between the halves of the game.

The giant floodlights were turned off, and by moonlight and to the accompaniment of bright and noisy aerial bombs a squad moved on a sector held by infantrymen. Machine guns sputtered as the dauntless warriors marched into them and rifles spit from both attackers and attacked. However, only one man's life was "lost" and the relentless wave of men finally engulfed the sector and silenced the guns that had been singing defiance for the previous few minutes.

Led by Francis Gregg, the demonstration was graphic and effective, and particularly appropriate at this time when the world seems on the verge of another gigantic struggle.

Alumni Enjoy Dance Friday

On last Friday night a dance for the alumni was given in Copeland hall. Thought not an official part of the school program for Home-coming, it served as a fitting close to an almost perfect day.

Music was furnished by the P. C. orchestra under the direction of Paul Harmon and was enthusiastically received by all those who attended. A fairly large group of students and alumni were present and all expressed pleasure at the way the dance came off.

JIMMY SEAGLE DIES IN WRECK

Popular 1935 Graduate Meets Death Saturday Morning When Car Collides With Truck.

James Monroe Seagle, graduate of the class of 1935, was killed at 3:45 Saturday morning when the car he was driving struck a truck four miles north of Newberry. June Truesdale, who was with him, suffered slight injuries.

Seagle was returning to his home near Camden after attending the Homecoming celebration at Presbyterian college Friday afternoon and night.

Truesdale, who is a graduate of the class of 1931, said that he was asleep when the accident occurred and therefore knew nothing of the circumstances.

A coroner's jury decided that Seagle came to his death in an unavoidable accident. At the inquest Dr. Frank D. Mower testified that Seagle had a crushed chest and a fractured skull which was sufficient to cause instant death.

Seagle's body was taken to Camden where he was buried at three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

While at Presbyterian college Jimmy made a large number of friends. He was a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, and the Blue Key, national leadership organization. He was one of the gamest and best fighters that the school has ever seen. He fought the flyweight division. He was voted the most cheerful member of his class last year, and he never walked into Spencer hall, where he roomed, without a song on his lips.

In his death P. C. lost one of her finest sons and every upperclassman of this school a valued friend.

War In Africa Is Wysor's Subject

Question of Whether Conflict Will Spread Depends On Political Fears and Alliances.

"It is said that the people of the United States will not stand for another war—the people of the United States will stand for anything, if it's put over in the right way!" said Major R. E. Wysor in a talk on the Italo-Ethiopian situation before the International Relations club on last Wednesday night.

Major Wysor sketched the outstanding points in the controversy and pointed out the fact that the quarrel is not a new one but began decades before. Italy is not going to forget their disastrous defeat at Aduwa some forty years ago, he said.

"The unusual part of the situation is that Mussolini had given the world warning of what he was going to do and nobody believed him. Statesmen usually talk big and do little, but Mussolini is doing exactly what he said, and Europe doesn't know what to do about the situation."

He said that the question of whether this would develop into another big war was dependent on political fears and alliances. England must protect her territory which almost surrounds Ethiopia. France will not enter unless forced to, for she fears that Germany would quietly annex Austria while the attention of the world was elsewhere. Still the situation, according to Major Wysor, is dangerous and potentially explosive.

"There is no reason why we should enter such a war, but the speeches and proclamations of neutrality that are being made today are almost exact duplicates of those made in 1914 and 1915," Major Wysor said.

Turning to the military aspects of the Italian conquest, he pointed out that Ethiopia was probably the best natural fortress in the world. Then he gave diagramatic illustrations of the three points from which Italy was advancing. He stated as his personal opinion that Italy would center its attack on an attempt to cut the railway

HONOR JOHNSON ON 20TH SEASON

Gathering of Alumni Is Interesting Event. Veteran Coach Presented With Tokens of Esteem From Many Sources.

On last Friday Presbyterian college and its alumni paid tribute to Coach Walter Johnson's twenty years of faithful service at the biggest Homecoming the school has ever seen. The official program began with an alumni banquet and ended with the closing whistle of the Presbyterian victory over Newberry, though a dance for the alumni, not an official part of the program, served as a fitting climax to the day for many.

Though no official estimate is available, it is certain that more old graduates were on the campus for this occasion than has ever been before in the history of the institution.

At the banquet, held in Judd hall, many announcements of interest to the Alumni association were made and an address was given by Acting President William P. Jacobs.

The feature of the day came under the newly-installed floodlights of Johnson field where the Blue Stockings won their decisive victory over the Indians in the twenty-first P. C.-Newberry encounter.

Between the halves several tokens of affection and esteem were given Coach Johnson. Silas Bailey, mayor of the city, presented a gift from the city of Clinton and the alumni. Al Brice made the 1915 team's presentation; James McClary, president of the student body, made the school's presentation, and Shorty Horne, captain of the 1935 team, made the players' presentation. William P. Jacobs made a brief talk of appreciation on Johnson and his twenty years of service to the college.

The band paraded on the field and played the Presbyterian alma mater and then the Newberry alma mater.

The giant floodlights were cut off and a crack squad from the R. O. T. C. unit, led by Francis Gregg, demonstrated a squad in attack to the accompaniment of aerial bombs and machine gun fire.

The final event of the game closed the day, one of the biggest celebrations ever held here and a fitting tribute to the greatest exponent of the intangible but real quality, [illegible] — Walter A. Johnson.

Newberry Man Writes Letter

Editor, The Blue Stocking:
Clinton, S. C.

Dear Sir:

I've often heard of the P. C. spirit, but I truly saw it displayed last night.

A. P. C. man left Clinton after the dance to drive to Florence, but after reaching Columbia heard of the tragic death of his best friend (near Newberry) with whom he had just had supper, and turns around, comes back to Newberry to be of any assistance and to assure his family that he was not in the least intoxicated, which the public is so prone to say. "Shiek" merely said, "It might make it lighter on his mother."

Sincerely,
"A Newberry Man."

Johnson Receives Many Messages

Hundreds of letters and telegrams of congratulation were received by Coach Walter Johnson and the administration last week on the twentieth anniversary of Coach's service at P. C.

They came from all over the South and the United States, and were from the most prominent men and coaches in the nation. They uniformly expressed congratulations on the years of service and the strong influence for clean play and sportsmanship that Johnson has been in the South.

Tin Badges

The faculty committee on honorary fraternities has announced that the organizations on this campus that are not actively functioning must cease to be. This directly strikes three groups, Sigma Upsilon, literary; Gamma Sigma, journalistic; and Pi Kappa Delta, forensic.

These organizations have been mere empty names and tinsel honors for the past three years. Men have been elected to their membership with apparently no regard for ability; this excepts Pi Kappa Delta. The benefits to be derived from being a member of getting one's picture in the PaC-SaC and being able to write a meaningless Greek word after one's name.

They are of no purpose on the campus. They do nothing, say nothing, are nothing. And yet there is a definite need for organizations of this type. There are several men in this institutoin who can write and are vitally interested in writing. These men need and would use an organization that would furnish them a place to discuss ideas, exchange thoughts, thrash out problems, and strengthen that flame of literary desire that is burning in their breasts.

The present evistence of two useless literary groups prohibits organizing a third that would be of some use, for the school is entirely too small to support even two such fraternities. The fact that the other two are present on the campus is doing a definite injury to this group of students.

We suggest that the present groups be completely abolished and that a new and active group be organized, drawing its members because of interest and not friendship or social affiliation. The new group might become one of the old ones with different members and principles, or it might assume an entirely new name. The latter seems to us to be the most preferable. There is no reason why such an organization should be Greek in nature. The men who would make up its membership would, we hope, be men of sufficient common sense to realize that Greek letters are nothing and that it is what goes on in the group that really counts and not what the club is called.

Outside the Pale

Rush season is over and a large percentage of the freshman class has affiliated with one social organization or another. But there are those who apparently are left out in the cold. It is to them that this editorial is written.

You have not pledged a fraternity. In some cases it has been due to financial reasons, in some to purely personal preference, in some to the fact that you have not received a bid.

In no case let this make you feel that you are a social outcast in this school. Poverty is no stigma; don't feel ashamed if that has kept you out; but rather feel proud that you have showed discretion where others have showed foolhardiness.

If the cause is personal preference, feel proud that you have been able to disregard the assaults that fraternity men have made on your individuality.

If the cause is not receiving a bid, rest assured that you have not been insulted and that no slur has been cast upon you. There may be a hundred reasons, none of which are defamatory. And besides, fraternities are notoriously bad in their judgment of good men. Some of the greatest men that this institution has turned out have been outside the pale.

THE PARADE GROUND

By Edgar Stanton

The freshmen, as all freshmen do and have done upon the arrival of uniforms, are strutting proudly hither and thither in their new regalia—future aristocrats preening their feathers. It must be noted that Major Wysor worked terribly hard to get these uniforms in time for home-coming. Besides improving the appearance of most of the freshmen tremendously, the corps, when assembled, really looks like an army now. And it must be noted also that these freshmen are going home to show the folks (most particularly the best girl and her folks) just how a real soldier looks. Long live Uniforms!

The officers, and the non-commissioned officers too, are to be congratulated on the appearance and drill of their companies. The P. C. cadet corps has shaped up sooner and better than usual this year. While congratulations are in order, let a few be offered to those who are drilled as well as to their superiors, namely the freshmen and sophomores. They make up the bulk of the corps (physically at any rate—with the exception of Fudge Plowden) and deserve credit for some hard work, for that is what it has taken to make some of this year's crop of new men become military conscious.

The corps regrets that it has had some football casualties during the past week—Horne and Wilbanks in particular. A movement is now on foot to give them wound stripes and to secure for them the Free Cross for Distinguished Service on the battlefield. We should pay more attention and respect to our noble warriors wounded in action. Please do not let this be an incentive to honor seekers, for these medals are few and far between, and our football team cannot spare any more veterans.

"God helps those who help themselves." An old adage, but still true. And the same may be said of Uncle Sam and his R. O. T. C., or, to be more explicit, of Major Wysor and his military science. Those men of the corps who expect pay for disinterested illness in military are going to find themselves both sadly disappointed and immediately replaced. Those who apply mental and physical prowess to both fields of military science, theoretical and practical, will be duly rewarded by and from Major and Uncle. To repeat, "God helps those who help themselves."

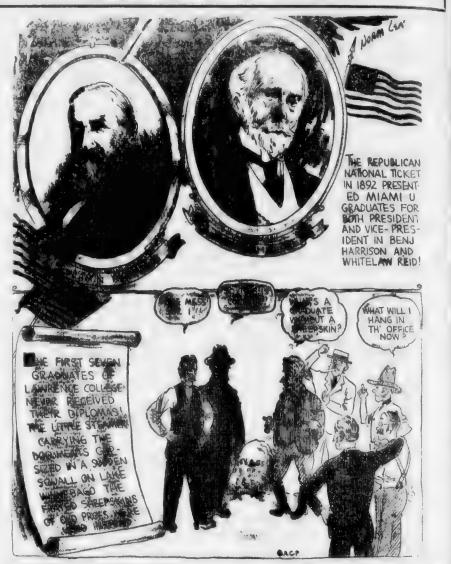
Alva Tuten

The first time his present roommate heard the name of this prominent character he immediately called him "Darn," which, with the lower-state pronunciation of Tuten, forms the expression, "Darn tootin'. Since that time, however, the name has been corrupted to "Don," meaning a ladies' man of wide experience. He is sometimes called Silent Don, on account of his quiet demeanor.

The story of Don's life is quite touching, so poignant in its tale of tragic loves. His saddest experience is the affair with the tall blond co-ed with the serene expression on her face. Early in the spring Don's fancy began to turn to thoughts of love. Singling out this fair young maid, he immediately started his campaign for her hand. Then, as all lovers must do, they had to part, this time, however, only for the summer. He wrote her ceaselessly, every night in fact, and she answered every couple of weeks with a post card. To cap the climax of his courtship, he sent her a 50-pound watermelon of finest Fairfax quality.



Don came back to school again to resume his studies and so did his girl friend. But, alas—then came the fatal evening: he was spurned (for details, we refer you to the September 30 issue of The Blue Stocking). Now he is running off to Winthrop every week-end. He is also trying to collect the 39 cents he spent purchasing the watermelon.

Don is well-known for his extremely ticklish ribs. One punch with a finger at his mid-section is enough to set him wild with howls of terror, and with fists swinging in all directions he resembles a quaint old Dutch windmill. Not at all particular about whom he hits in these wild spasms, he often strikes perfect strangers, depending on who is nearest. The writer, by the way, has a cut lip and a cracked jaw—the result of being too close when someone sneaked up from behind to punch Don in the ribs.

Glimpses Around the Campus

A freshman asked the other day, "Do you think Italy will beat Utopia?" . . . BILL DEGNER, who has been somewhat of a fixture at a certain home just off Calvert avenue these evenings, is now, apparently, being routed by MARION ("One Ball") PARHAM, the burr-headed countryman from Dillon . . . We've heard fictitious stories about the camera being broken by grotesque-looking individuals, but at last we find one that is really true. . . . During the big rush for PaC SaC pictures, the subjects were badly delayed by the inaccurate camera, when it cracked up (especially as ERNEST ARNOLD had his portrait snapped . . . Nichols, the genial photographer, intends to use the $600, the price of the ruined machine . . . ELIZABETH BLAKELY, the cute coed mentioned last week, was full of wrath on seeing her name in print, but the author appeased her with a stick of chewing gum.

FROSH LOSE TO BIDDIES, 7-6

BLUE HOSE TO PLAY MERCER ON SATURDAY

Night Game In Macon Is P. C.'s Next Encounter. Georgia Baptists Have Excellent Team.

The P. C. Blue Stockings will face on Saturday night an opponent of about their own strength—the Mercer Bears, in a game under the floodlights at Macon. With only a fair showing behind them, the two teams should put on a good battle, with plenty of interest for the spectator.

Last year a feature of the game was the great showing of Robbie Higbe, P. C's hip-shaking halfback, and Alan Bloodworth, the Mercer triple threat man. The latter scored on the Hose last year with a long run-back of a punt, while Higbe made a coupic of good runs and made some flashy run-backs of punts.

The Mercer team is much improved over last year. Most of the old men are back, and will show their stuff much better than in their ill-fated struggle last year in which the Hose defeated them, 7 to 6. The line is about as heavy as P. C's, which is not light in the least, and is very strong. Williamson, at center, has been playing well so far this season, and at end Nesmith has shown up as a real star. A sub, Bazemore, played a great game against Navy and will probably be there to go against the Presbyterians.

Coach Lake Russel of the Bears, has always been noted for putting out a smooth-working team, with a deceptive attack. The Mercer running attack, led by Bloodworth, will be matched by P. C.'s best bet, their passing attack, which went off well against such teams as Georgia Tech and Furman. Laterals are expected to be combined with the forwards also.

Jeff Prather probably will go good at tackle, and the improvement of Joe Bradley indicates that he will be a potent factor in stopping the Bears' end runs. Shorty Horne, the dynamic little guard, will be sorely missed from the line-up. He has not yet recovered from the injury to his shoulder received in the game with Furman.

The line-ups probably will be as follows:

Presbyterian		Mercer
LE	Bradley	Hempel
LT	Prather	Tyson
LG	Correll	Williamson
C	Hutchinson	Gilbert
RG	Plowden	Ward
RT	Millsap	Curry
RE	Forehand	Nesmith
QB	Wilbanks	Bloodworth
LH	Higbe	Varner
RH	Jacobs	Thomas
FB	Holliday	Porter

Local Squad Pulls Surprise Of Week

Doped To Lose Game In Florence By Big Score, Presbyterians Play Carolina On Even Terms.

P. C.'s fighting freshmen returned Friday from their opening game slightly the worse for wear but covered with glory. The rats lost to the University of South Carolina freshmen, 7 to 6, after putting on an exhibition of spirited football. The game, which was played at the Florence county fair, was a fine demonstration of what a good little team can do against a good big team. Fighting every minute of the game, the Blue Anklets played on even terms the heavy Biddies whom pre-season dope picked as the best freshman aggregation seen in this state for a number of years.

With the lack of weight more than made up for by speed and spirit the Presbyterian yearlings displayed a brand of football which gives promise of a successful season. The P. C. rats used a well balanced attack which depended largely upon speed and decention. The defensive work of both teams was worthy of praise. In the P. C. forward wall the tackling of Davis and Murchison made the center of the line almost impenetrable. Both teams found it difficult to make any sustained drive against the opposing tacklers, and the scores of each team came as the direct result of unexpected turns of fortune.

Carolina drew first blood when they scored early in the second quarter. Ed Clary, the Biddies' star back, intercepted one of Moreno's passes and ran it to the 25-yard line. Clary and Manly worked the ball to the four-yard line and then met a brick wall. After three unsuccessful tries against the Anklets' line, Clary followed beautiful interference around end to score the touchdown. Dearth furnished the margin of victory by place-kicking the extra point.

The Presbyterian score followed close on the heels of the Carolina counter. When the Biddies kicked off after the touchdown, Moreno took the ball and lateraled it to Dennard, who had replaced Reynolds at halfback.

Concerning Moral Victories

Said erstwhile President John McSween

To Lonnie Mac one day,
We won a moral victory, pal,
In that game Saturday.

Said Lonnie Mac to President John,
I've heard that said before.
But for a change I'd like us to have
The long end of the score!

Looks Good, Huh?

College football teams are secured, it seems, through contracts of paid representatives with possible grid material during the summer months. It also seems that the various colleges 'bear down' about once each two or three years. In other words, Carolina is at present without a strong team. About three years ago she had the best group of players in the entire Southland. These boys are gone, and an unimpressive selection of mediocre talent represents the State University. Therefore, the university went out and collected a strong freshman aggregation during the past summer. These boys are expected to replace the present varsity in a year or two and bring grid glory to Carolina. On Thursday evening the Baby Blue Hose out-played the heavy Gamecocks in Florence, losing only by a one-point margin. In the not-distant future, these teams will represent the varsities of the two schools. Basing their argument on the strength of the present freshman team, Carolina supporters predict a rosy future for their alma mater. P. C.'s frosh proved their equality with Carolina—looks good, huh?

Runners Get Two More Opponents

Meet With Wofford Day of P. C. Game, and With Furman On Friday, October 25th.

Turk Osman, coach of fall track, announces that he has added meets with two more schools—Wofford and South Carolina. He says also that there is a good chance that this fall sport will be added to the list of P. C.'s minor sports, if enough interest is shown.

The meet with Wofford is scheduled for November 23, the date of the P. C.-Wofford football game, which is homecoming day for the Methodists. The tracksters will strut their stuff between halves of the game in a two-mile race on the track. It will be interesting to see if P. C. can produce anyone capable of licking Robertson, Wofford's state champion in the two-mile event last spring.

The meet with Furman is to be moved up to October 25, the day before the game between Furman and Mercer, instead of the same day, as originally planned. The race will be three miles long, across country roads.

The meet with Carolina is a little indefinite, but Osman is practically sure of having it. The date is, of course, undecided as yet.

If enough meets can be arranged and enough student interest shown, it is possible that fall track will be made a minor sport and a captain elected soon.

P. C. FRESHMEN OUTPLAY CAROLINA CHICKS

One of the biggest surprises of the week-end in football, altho it was not so prominent a game, was the fine showing of the P. C. frosh team against the Carolina rats. For the third time within recent years the Blue Hose yearlings outfought, out-gained, and all but beat the Biddies, only to lose by the same score, 7-6.

The Little Hose were outweighed no less than 40 pounds to the man in the line, and almost as much in the backfield, but the team as a whole displayed clearcut superiority over their opponents. Their performance will be an inspiration for their varsity brothers to show that P. C. spirit and fight which is so much talked about, but which is alleged by some not to be there this year.

DENNARD MAIN COG IN ATTACK

The rats have shown that they also can learn to execute lateral passes smoothly. The biggest thrill of the Thursday game with Carolina was the magnificent run by Rat Dennard, who took a lateral pass almost on his own goal line and ran down the sidelines for 80 yards, finally being tackled on the Carolina 15-yard line. This little 130-pounder was the main cog in the P. C. attack, and during the second half he made the Carolina defense look foolish as the Anklets threatened time and again to score.

Don't think, tho, that this was a one-man team. Every one of the little Hosemen played heads-up football against a team that was supposed to beat them by at least four touchdowns. Varsity men, sit up and take notice!

BLOODWORTH IS CRACK MERCER PLAYER

When P. C. takes the field Saturday against the Mercer Bears she will be facing a team much improved over last year. One of the brightest stars Mercer ever had is the present quarterback, Alan Bloodworth, the triple-threat man who was so outstanding in last year's game with P. C. He is a great punter, a good passer, and a shifty broken field runner. It will be interesting to see if he can outshine our own Robbie Higbe, the man with the fast-moving hips.

GETS OWN PUNT FOR GAIN OF TWO YARDS

We noticed, by the way, an inetresting incident of a recent Mercer game. Bloodworth, back in punt formation, was badly rushed and got off a poor kick which traveled straight up in the air. When the ball came down a Georgia man touched it and a Mercer player fell on it for a gain of 2 yards.

At least that's one way of making short gains when they're needed.

comeback in an attempt to score. A 46-yard march carried them to the 35-yard P. C. line, but here their attack broke down. After their score in the third period they set in to outplay the Blue Stockings for that quarter and marched to the 17-yard line. A long pass intended for Furen was deflected from the latter's hands by Wilbanks sufficiently to make him drop it.

The P. C. team showed much more power and drive than it has exhibited so far this season. With Thompson and Higbe starring on offense for the Presbyterians, the Blue Stockings registered good yardage. The P. C. defense, however, was weak in midfield, but held well enough in front of the goal. J. B. Jacobs and Wilbanks did some spectacular punting. Hutchinson, in his usual position of roving center, made some great tackles. So also did Plowden and Bradley. These two men turned in about their best performance.

The Newberry offense was good at times, but did not hold up as far as the goal line. Ed Beck and McCormish did some nifty running thru the line. Undoubtedly the best man in the Lutheran forward wall was Furen, the great end. Gibbon also played well at tackle. The Newberry team made two of the greatest goal line stands seen here in many a day as they twice held the Blue Hose for downs near the goal, once on the 1-yard line.

The line-ups:

P. C.	Newberry
LE—Bradley	Furen
LT—Collings	Gibbon
LG—Correll	Spezza
C—Hutchinson	Johnson

RT—Prather	Miller
RE—Forehand	Koch

Figures that have attracted men: Venus de Milo, Ruth St. Denis, Jean Harlow.

Figures that have attracted women: $3.98. —Auburn Plainsman.

FROSH LOST TO BIDDIES, 7-6

The P. C. interference formed rapidly and Dennard streaked off towards the goal. He raced down the sidelines, and could not be stopped until he was forced out of bounds ten yards from the Carolina goal. On the next play the same speedy back flipped a pass over the line for the score. Atkinson, who played an outstanding game at end, was on the receiving end of the pass. Dennard attempted a drop-kick in an effort to tie the score, but the ball went wild.

From that point on the game was a defensive struggle. Neither team made a serious threat, although several nice drives were started. The ball moved up and down the field, with neither team having any decided advantage. Much of the credit for the fine showing of the P. C. rats is due to the yearling guards, Murchison and Davis, who contributed fight and spirit to the squad. Boswell played an excellent game at tackle and added strength to the team by his punting. P. C. has found two outstanding backfield men in Lambright and Moore. The rats' success on offense is due largely to the blocking and running of these backs.

Perhaps the greatest source of pride to Presbyterian college is the show of spirit which the freshmen made. Fighting against heavier men and with odds heavily against them, the freshmen contested every yard and fought with a determination which was pleasing to Coach McMillian and to the school.

The starting line-up for P. C. was: Atkinson and Holcomb, ends; Boswell and Evens, tackles; Murchison and Davis, guards; Henderson, center; Moreno, quarterback; Lambright and Reynolds, halfbacks; Moore, fullback.

It is better to ask a girl, "Whom do you love best?" than it is to ask, "Do you love me best?" This fact is according to Professor Floyd Ruch, of the psychology department of the University of Illinois.—The Gamecock.

Students at the University of Georgia are allowed unlimited cuts if they make the dean's list (an 87 average). They must take all tests and written work. Freshmen are not allowed such privileges for their making the list.

RESOLUTION

Whereas, It has pleased the Supreme Archon of the Universe in His all-wise providence to call James M. Seagle from this world unto Himself above; and,

Whereas, At Presbyterian college he was a devoted member of Beta chapter of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity;

Be It Resolved: That we, his brothers, deeply mourn his departure from among us;

That we acknowledge the debt we owe Jimmy for the privilege we had in knowing and loving him; for the inspiration he gave and will always give us in straight thinking and correct living; and for the indelible impression he has left on our chapter as a whole and on ourselves individually;

That a copy of these resolutions be sent his sorrowing parents, and to the campus publication at Presbyterian college.

At U. N. C., students are suddenly becoming addicted to viewing the "stiffs" in the dissecting labs. A study of the reactions of the uninitiated is interesting. A supposed he-man turned pale around the gills and got weakness in the knees. A supposedly effeminate freshman walked up and nonchalantly finished an ice cream cone as he surveyed a half-dissected corpse.

For beauty I am not a star,
There are others more handsome by far,
But my face—I don't mind it,
For I am behind it.
It's the people in front that I jar.

(With apologies to The Johnsonian).

In a recent questionnaire conducted among Florida S. C. W. girls revealed that radios helped them to study. Some said that the music helped them to study by suggesting a soothing state of mind, others said that by reminding them of home it made studying easier. No mention was made of the effect of, or attitude on, radios as expressed by non-owners in the same dormitory.

Nearly every college that exchanges publications with The Blue Stocking has reported gains in attendance, from crowded classes to the addition of new members to the faculty, this being the result of such increase.

ALPHA LAMBDA TAU LEADS IN SCHOLARSHIP; GIRLS ARE TOPS

Fraternity Men Ahead of Non-Frat Students. Girls Thirty-Three Per Cent Better Than Boys. Beta Kappa's Second.

The co-eds at Presbyterian college are the best students on the campus, and the fraternity men are very slightly better than the non-organization men. That is what a scholarship report for the year 1934-1935, issued by Registrar Lillian Brown on last Friday, showed.

The quality point ratio (which is the number of semester hours taken divided into the number of quality points earned) for the girls was 2.06, while that for the men was only 1.37. This means that the average girl on the campus averaged slightly better than a bare "B" while the average man averaged a fairly good "C."

The average for all fraternity men was 1.38 while that for non-fraternity men was a meager .03 lower.

Of the fraternities, Alpha Lambda Tau led with the average of 1.94, while the Beta Kappa's, with an average .31 lower, came second. The Alpha Kappa Pi's trailed the list with 1.12, and the Kappa Alpha's were but slightly better, being .07 above the ratio of the bottom-rounders.

The summary follows:

Alpha Lambda Tau	1.94
Beta Kappa	1.63
Pi Kappa Phi	1.38
Pi Kappa Alpha	1.22
Kappa Alpha	1.19
Alpha Kappa Pi	1.12

Medlock Says God Interested In Man

Defends Fundamentalist Stand Against Scientists' Attacks. Speaks At 'Y' Meet Thursday.

That man is not an infinitesimal and forgotten bit in a vast universe, but is rather of primary importance to that universe was the assertion of Rev. M. K. Medlock, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Goldville, in an address delivered to the Y. M. C. A. last Thursday night at its regular weekly meeting.

Mr. Medlock condemned the self-styled intelligentsia who try to relegate man to the animal stage and who attribute his development to a process of evolution. These humans, according to Mr. Medlock, are not authentic sources of information. "Only Christ can speak with authority on such matters and to him we must go."

"It is true that man is a mite upon a speck lost in the vast celestial sphere but to God he is more. God is interested in that speck — our world — because man is on it. He is interested in the mite—man—because he is of His own creation and image. Man is insignificant to the universe; to God he is a child."

In conclusion Mr. Medlock asked three questions of the audience: "What are you worth to P. C.?" "What are you worth to the church?" and "What are you worth to life?" His answer to all three was "You are worth exactly what you have to share . . . No life in the service of God is a failure and no life outside the service of God is a success."

STUDENTS ARE AGAINST WAR, SURVEY SHOWS

Are "Wise" To Propaganda of Special Interests. Divided On U. S. League Entrance.

Madison, Wis. (By A.C.P.)—The college youth of America definitely does not want war, and can be expected to oppose vigorously and actively any effort to drag the United States into the general European war many experts predict will arise out of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

This is the belief of Associated College Press correspondents who have just completed a survey of student opinion on the subject.

Outstanding among the conclusions reached as a result of the survey are these:

1. While most American students are in decided sympathy with Ethiopia in the present undeclared war in Africa, opinion is divided as to the wisdom of the United States joining the League of Nations in the application of aggressor penalties against Italy, with only a minority in support.

2. Today, more students than ever before are prepared to view with cynical skepticism the flag-waving jingoism and propaganda so successfully used to drive America into participation in the World war.

3. The flood of books, pamphlets and magazine articles exposing the origins of past wars, and particularly the world war, has found a wider circulation among college students and instructors than among any other group of the American public as a whole.

4. The number of "conscientious ob-

Keller To Lead Christian Frat

Handicapped by the failure of President William Chalmers to return to school this year, Gamma chapter of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian fraternity, has begun its year's work.

Meeting the first evening with a president, it was necessary to elect a leader, Chester Keller, former vice-president, was selected for that office, and Ernest Arnold was elected vice-president. These two new officers immediately assumed the responsibilities of their respective offices, and announced that by the support and aid of other members of the organization they would endeavor to make the work of Gamma chapter outstanding.

The aim for the year is "to develop the ability of the members in public speaking, manifest an earnest interest in all Christian phases of activity on the campus, and seek to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ in all walks of life."

WAR SPIRIT GRIPS CAMPUS AS ANNUAL DINING HALL WAR COMES

While distant guns boomed ominously in Addis Ababa, the hot breath of Mars swept the Presbyterian campus into guerilla warfare Wednesday in front of Judd Hall.

A. P. C. sophomore went Isaac Newton one better Wednesday, for while the latter watched an apple fall and started a scientific revolution, the former watched an acorn fall and started one of the bloodiest revolutions the campus has seen in many a day.

While professors and squirrels stood by in amazement, excited students lashed to a frenzy by a thrown handful of jumbo acorns from an unknown source, soon filled the air with these flying missiles.

A detachment from Alumni hastily threw up fortifications in the drainage ditch which slopes down from the sidewalk, while the heavy artillery of Spencer and Smyth stationed itself in the grove behind the Administration building.

While Time-keeper McLeod stared starkly at his watch, waiting for the creeping minute hand to give the signal for the dinner bell and subsequent end of the fracas, the raging conflict assumed gargantuan proportions.

A wild shot crashed through the pane in the front door of the mess hall, but the sound that seemed to shake the very trees which had given birth to these death pellets, was that of the fallen, screaming and moaning on the field.

Then there was that strange moment in all battles. That moment when all is so still, that one can hear the crumbling of time in its endless fall. Grim-faced students made preparations for a final charge — a crushing climax! Cold sweat beaded on foreheads that only a moment before had wrinkled over problems of physics or French. Muscles were tensed to the breaking point; the attack balanced on a hair-spring.

Then suddenly the war came to an end as abruptly as it had begun.

The familiar clang of the dinner bell crashed across the tense little panorama, and the churning of many heels in the rush for food, crushed the war forever into oblivion.

GEORGIA BAPTISTS RALLY IN LAST HALF TO WIN NIGHT GAME

Clinton Cops Lose In Pistol Contest

New-Created Small-Arms Team Captures First Match. Wide Margin Between Scores.

In the first pistol match ever to be fired at Presbyterian college, the P. C. team made up of Tom Upshur, Malcolm Gillis and John Chapman, defeated the Clinton police force team on last Thursday afternoon by a score over a hundred points higher than the cops' record.

The match was fired on the regular range. There was a round of slow fire at fifteen yards, a round of rapid fire at the same distance, then a round of slow fire at twenty-five yards and a round at a bobbing target at twenty-five.

Captain George S. Beatty and Sergeant Sterlin Young were responsible for the meet.

Spencer Is Hall Of Hardy Men

Only Courageous Souls Prowl Its Corridors When Night Falls. G-Men, However, Have Situation Well In Hand.

Spencer Hall is the world's greatest exponent of Darwinism. Only the fit can, or do, survive. These hardy souls that live in this dormitory must possess the hearts of conquering lions and dauntless courage of Viking seamen.

For when night falls only those courageous mortals that fear not death, and are willing to wrecklessly gamble with their lives in a grim game with Death, venture into its terror-ridden halls. For there, to the crash of broken plates and the screaming crescendo of broken furniture smashing its way down three flights of stairs, the ever-recurrent drama of primitive strife is nightly re-enacted.

The G-men, with no respect for danger, rush valiantly into the fray and attempt to check the roaring streams of water and the cold, wet smack of dripping towels. But these primitive warriors have a certain savage cunning that permits them to duck quickly behind doors and assume a facial expression that shouts innocence to the world at large. As a result, the G-men receive nothing but an occasion prisoner and a complete and intense knowledge of the feeling of cold water and broken pottery.

It has been declared that henceforth those caught indulging in this primitive sport will be sent home to their primeval forest to frequent the civilized haunts of colleges no more, and as a result the air of Spencer is no longer filled with pottery, profanity, and profusion of water.

Collegian Becomes S.C.C.P.A. Member

The Collegian, college literary magazine, has been accepted as a member of the South Carolina College Press association, according to a wire received by Business Manager Henry Calvert from J. D. Kinard, president of the association, on last Thursday.

The magazine previously had not been in the association, although it was cordially invited to join last year. The staff of this year's magazine applied for membership and prepared the material to be submitted for the state competitions to be held at Clemson college in conjunction with the State College Press convention on October 31 and November 1.

Mr. Kinard's wire this morning confirmed acceptance into full membership.

This means that every publication of the student body of Presbyterian that is eligible is now a member in good standing in the statewide organization.

Holliday Makes Only Presbyterian Touchdown. Calvinists In Lead At Half. Pass Attack Fails To Click.

The Blue Stockings from Presbyterian college went to Macon Saturday intent on breaking up Mercer's homecoming night game, but they were overpowered by the bruising Bruins, and went down under to 14 to 7 count.

During the first half the Presbyterians played Mercer on even terms, putting across a touchdown in the last two minutes of the second frame. In the second division, however, the Bears put on new vigor and, after wearing the visitors down, shoved across the winning touchdown on a long run by Bloodworth. The Mercer team already had tied the score in the third quarter by scoring on a 58-yard drive down the field following the kickoff.

Both teams missed opportunities several times. In the first quarter, Higbe recovered a fumble by Bloodworth, Mercer's nifty quarterback, on the enemy 8-yard line. The Blue Stockings thus had a fine opportunity to put themselves ahead, but they were unable to penetrate the staunch Bruin defense. In the same quarter the Bears put on a drive to the P. C. five-yard line, but there it bogged down and the Presbyterians punted safely out.

Shortly before the end of the half, J. B. Jacobs, playing with a plaster cast on his left hand, leaped up in the air to intercept a pass, making the ball P. C.'s in midfield.

Higbe, Thompson and Holliday went through the line to make it first and ten. Then Higbe tore around left end for 30 yards. With the ball on the 17-yard marker, a pass from Holliday to Bradley carried it to the four-yard line. There Holliday scored after three tries had proved ineffective.

Although the Presbyterian team played Mercer off its feet during the first half, the latter division of the game was mostly Mercer's. At the kickoff Mercer started a drive that carried all the way to the goal. Bloodworth made the score with a 12-yard jaunt through tackle and then kicked the point.

Shortly after the final period began Mercer again punched through for a score. After a short punt by P. C., Bloodworth again cut through tackle, this time for a run of 46 yards. It seemed as if he had been cornered several times, but he managed to elude the secondary and capered across the goal after a magnificent run. He again kicked the point after touchdown.

In the last quarter the Calvinists had another scoring opportunity which they failed to utilize. After Joe Bradley had recovered Bloodworth's fumble on the 12-yard line, the Hose were in good position for a touchdown. Two line plays yielded nothing, however, and on the third down a Mercer man intercepted a forward pass, making it Mercer's ball, first and ten.

The stars for P. C. were mostly in the backfield. Thompson and Higbe made some nice runs, the former on end runs and the latter on punt returns and off-tackle plays. Wilbanks played a good game at quarter and Holliday backed up the line well, although his passing was somewhat below his usual style. Bradley played a

Oink! Oink! Grunts the Hog

It is an old maxim that liberty is excellent but license deplorable, but it is one whose truth makes it worthy of repetition. And license has replaced liberty in the dining hall of this school. No longer do students come to the tables of Judd Hall and eat in a manner that is a mirror of good breeding. The actions of a large portion are reflections of the training which they have received at home.

We do not doubt for one minute that this training has been excellent. We believe that the student body of this school is made up of men who have been brought up in homes where good manners and gentlemanly conduct is inbred. We do lament the fact that the liberty of the school dining hall has caused so large a number to forget that training they have received and to revert to the savage customs of their far-removed ancestry.

In one sense eating at this school has become a practical demonstration of Darwinism. Only the fit survive, and that is not as it should be.

Something needs to be done and done quickly. Such a deplorable situation should not be allowed to continue. We are not primitive enough to enjoy fighting for our food.

We suggest that a definite seating arrangement be made in Judd Hall. This would eliminate the push and scramble to get in and get seated and would allow a leisurely and dignified entrance to a place provided for a dignified and orderly human function.

We further suggest that a student be chosen to sit at the head of each table and act as a proctor to see that only actions befitting gentlemen be indulged in at that table. He would probably be a senior, and certainly a man with enough force of character to direct the manners of the table and of enough culture to direct them properly.

We further suggest that fraternity groups be seated at fraternity tables with the head officer of the organizations at the heads of the tables. This would account for a large percentage of the student body, and account for them satisfactorily.

We believe that the inauguration of this system of seating and control would appreciably relieve a situation that is sadly in need of remedy. The actions and manners that we acquire in college, coming as they do in these most formative years of our lives, are the actions and manners that we will use, to a large extent, throughout our lives, and it is essential that they should be only of the best.

Lights Out! Crash!

As long as a man's actions injure only himself they are not a menace to society, and do not rightly come under the jurisdiction of others. When [illegible] abuse, but the [illegible] upon whom they encroach.

The breaking [illegible] hour is an encroachment upon the liberties of others. We believe that it is only right that men as young as we are should play and play wholeheartedly. We shall never question how any man spends his time, either with play or work, so long as the manner in which he spends it does not personally affect how we spend ours. But to fill the halls of a dormitory with noise and crashes while others are studying, to switch off the lights when others are using them is action that borders closely on the criminal.

You are stealing from the man across the hall, stealing just as much as if you had walked in his room and taken books or money. And you are stealing something that can not be replaced, something intangible but far more valuable than money or books can ever be. You are stealing time and opportunity.

Let us have fun, certainly; but let us have fun of a nature that will not injure the man next door, that will not deprive him of his liberties. Throwing water and cutting lights are harmless actions in themselves. When they disturb others they cease to be harmless.

Are the Girls the Smartest?

According to the figures on scholarship averages given out by the Registrar, the girl students in this school are more intelligent than the boys, or at least apply themselves better. According to this report, the girls are thirty-three per cent better, at least as regards grades, than the boys are.

We do not believe the figures can be accepted on face value. To begin with, the girls are here in such a small number that one student whose grades are exceptionally high will appreciably affect the whole average of the group. But this is not the real reason why we believe figures in this case lie.

The girls in this institution have no extra-curricular activities. When classes are met school is over. The remainder of their time can be taken up either with pleasure or study. On the other hand the boys are faced with numbers of things that demand and receive their time. Fraternities, student government, honorary societies, publications, laboratory work, athletics, all of these are drains upon the time of the man student. The girl has none of them.

Then, too, with few exceptions the girls live at home and come to school as day students. The majority of the boys live in the dormitories. Campus life is a definite distraction from study, which the girls do not have to combat.

We are not attempting to answer the question that forms the title of this editorial. We are saying that the figures given out by the registrar can not be considered too literally.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

CAMPUS PERSONALITIES

Coleman Cross

Just call him "Windy"—that's what he was nicknamed during his first week at P. C. Endowed with a delightful low-country accent, his words, tho not set off with a pleasing voice, are indeed musical to the acoustics. He is especially good when repeating his favorite expression, "You gawt a ceegarette?"

"Windy's" physical appearance is imposing indeed. He has dark black curly hair, cut short in the well-known Wilbanks manner. He has a superstition that dictates constant wear of the same suit of underwear for a month at least, and sometimes he has been known to go as long as six weeks in the same set of undergarments.

His favorite sport is sleeping. The writer has seen him many a time in the room of someone from whom he had just bummed a "ceegarette" sprawled out on the bed fast asleep, with mouth open wide as if ready to swallow a Judd Dining Hall sausage in one gulp.

The career of this notorious character is, however, about due for an inglorious end. The other day he received a note reading as follows: "You have been pointed out to us as the most dangerous personality on the campus, so take warning and desist from your downward path or you will receive an unpleasant visit from us.

On reading this Windy jumped up and howled with terror; ran and bolted the door; then jumped in bed and hid his head under the cover.

Now he goes around with a bodyguard—Lindsay, Beeman, et al; has hollow eyes, and jumps at the slightest noise. Undoubtedly the spotted and stained career of Windy Cross is due to be blotted out unless he repents of his evil ways.

The Blue Stocking is certainly fortunate in having such a column as "The Parade Ground" to enlighten the student body on military affairs. One highly interesting bit of technical matter concerning the art of war came out in a recent issue of The Blue Stocking. The notice made the suggestion that one of the military officers at one corner [illegible] "The Parade Ground" from a road engineering course [illegible] P. M. Crime Doesn't Pay!

Now Gibbon Hayface had a gun
Pop! pop! he'd shoot, and oh, what fun!
One day he aimed it at the man
Who worked behind the candy stand.
He took a pound of gumdrops free
And dashed away with childish glee.
They took him to the judge who said:
"Let's hang Hayface 'till somewhat dead."
"My word," quoth he, and munched away,
"Aren't gumdrops rather high today?"

And From Our Hollywood Correspondent:

Little Nell: "Have you seen Becky Sharp?"

Legree: "Now, she moved didn't she?"

Little Nell: "Yeah, through about a dozen reels."

Legree: "Don't get technicolor."

(Enter Lydia E. Pinkham).

Lydia: "Say, wasn't I supposed to be in on this joke?"

Little Nell: "Don't be simple!"

Lydia: "H---! I'm not: I'm compound!"

Together: "Good-night, all."

Life's Little Mysteries

I've always wondered:

1. What the "it" was, that the Greeks had a word for.
2. Whatinthell it was that fifty million Frenchmen couldn't be wrong about.
3. Who the P. C. student was who said a cow's udder was "Moo!"
4. How the missionaries and the cannibals ever got across the river, and where they were headed anyway.
5. Whether the governor of North Carolina or the governor of South Carolina landed under the table first.
6. Why people at the South Pole don't stand upside down. (And I take astronomy!)
7. Where the characters in comic strips go in the last square when with a "zup!" they go shooting backwards, leaving their hats and shoes in midair.

Little Facts You Really Ought To Know

(Try them—ha! ha!—on your roommate).

1. Children at birth weigh, as a rule, less than any other member of their family.
2. Warning to freshmen: Hutchinson of West "B. G." Virginia, backed Maxie Baer and the Chicago Cubs. So don't lay your simolians with him on Furman against Clemson. He boasts that the farm laddies "ain't got chance one."

Passes Feature Blue Hose Win

Holcombe, Moore and Atkinson On Receiving End; Reynolds and Culp Do the Tossing. P. C. Line Performs Well. Yonce, Newberry Guard, Stands Out.

Displaying a versatility of attack that was equal to the one last week, the P. C. freshman football team turned back a gallant and fighting Newberry eleven at Newberry Saturday was wild and the score stood 26-0 in outset of the contest the Blue Sox had the situation well in hand and played deep in the Papooses' territory throughout the sixty minutes.

The first touchdown was scored on a pass from Reynolds to Holcombe, Moore crashing the line for the extra point in the first period. The next score came in the second quarter on a 20-yard pass from Reynolds, the Washington, Ga., flash, to Atkinson, the Florida 'gator. The try for the point failed. The third division was scoreless. In the fourth quarter, Culp tossed a low pass to Atkinson for another touchdown. Atkinson's try for the extra point sailed true and the score stood 20-0 for P. C. The final score came on a short pass from Culp to Moore. The kick for the extra point was wild and the score stood 26-0 in favor of the P. C. warriors.

Coach Lonnie McMillian's proteges were never even threatened to have their double marker crossed, and were on the aggressive most of the time, making seven first downs to their opponents' two. Heirs displayed the remarkable ability of his educated toe by averaging 45 yards on seven well-placed boots.

"Trigger" Ritch, substitute for Lambright, got off for several long gains into the enemy's territory that will thoroughly establish him as a threat from now on. On several occasions he had the Newberry eleven bewildered by his fleet-footedness.

Reynolds was outstanding in the accuracy of his passing, with the flashy end, Atkinson, on the receiving end most of the time. Newberry failed in their aerial attack to equal that of P. C.—eight of their passes falling incomplete, while the Calvinettes were charged with only three miscues out of ten attempts.

For the Blue Sox, the whole line was outstanding, with Murchison and Boswell breaking through repeatedly for tackles that cost the Newberry

PEN-SLANTS OF SPORTLAND
By "JAKE" PENLAND

The writer of this column offers the following tribute to that fine, beloved little character who so tragically met his death:

A Tribute To Jimmy Seagle

The warm and cheery spark of life,
The friendly, pleasing smile,
The mannerisms that we loved
Are gone—he's heaven's child.

So rich, so cherished, so sincere
A friendship could we claim
Of him who made this world so bright,
A warm and glowing flame.

He's gone—he leaves us full of grief;
We'll miss the little man—
But surely God will guide him to
A better, richer land.

Casualty

Unless the authorities at P. C. can persuade Al Moreno to reconsider and return to school, the frosh gridsters will lose one of their flashiest, most valuable brethren.

Moreno claimed a shortage of money as his reason, and quietly headed for his home in Savannah. The erstwhile quarterback is not only a skilled performer on the football field, but is said to be an accomplished boxer as well. And if there are two things we'll need most next year, they are a quarterback and a boxer. True?

P. C. Runners Lose To Mercer Team

Charles Leads Local Runners, Placing Third. Other Blue Hose Men Trail Far Behind.

P. C.'s cross-country team lost out in its first meet to the boys from Mercer university at Macon Saturday night between halves of the Mercer homecoming game with P. C. The score, based on the teamwork, lowest-score-wins idea, was 18 to 43.

The Presbyterian men, although more experienced than the green team from Mercer, failed to come up to expectations. Prince Charles, veteran distance man, pushed two Mercer men and came in third. Tom Estes, the next man in line for P. C. was seventh, while Doug Patton placed tenth.

The time of each man running was recorded by one of the officials, but since the course was never measured off exactly, these clockings, of course, would not be of any interest. Suffice it to say that Charles, P. C.'s leading man in the meet, was ten seconds behind the winner and five seconds behind Mercer's second place man. After the first three the field was widely separated.

The summary of the first ten positions is as follows: First, Smith, Mercer; second, Blancks, Mercer; third, Charles, Presbyterian; fourth, Yates, Mercer; fifth, Wallace, Mercer; sixth, Snow, Mercer; seventh, Estes, Presbyterian; eighth, Couch, Mercer; ninth, Higgins, Mercer; tenth, Patton, Presbyterian.

The race was approximately two and one-quarter miles in length. The two teams began by running the first half miles on the field under the lights, after which they headed out to a country road. Circling around, they came back and ran two more laps on the track in finishing.

Turk Osman, coach of the P. C. cross-country team, said that he was well-satisfied with the showing of his men, since they were running on an unfamiliar course and doing it for the first time at night. He expects them to perform in much better style at Furman next Friday afternoon when they take on the Hurricane tracksters.

CAROLINA WALLOPS CITADEL

The big news at present writing is Citadel's defeat at the hands of Carolina by the lopsided score of 25 to 0. It was generally thought that The Citadel would have no trouble winning by a touchdown or two. Now Citadel's team, reputedly costing enthusiastic alumni 25 grand, lost to an opponent with a record not so good by the same number of points.

The explanation is said to be overconfidence on the part of The Citadel, coupled with the fact that Carolina was keyed up and rarin' to go. This is one of the few times in recent years that a Carolina team has shown such pep and fight. This might be compared to the time when Carolina, rated several touchdowns the underdog, tied Auburn's great team, 20 to 20, two or three years ago.

WHAT! NO GAME?

The Blue Stockings now face an open date in their schedule. After that they play Wake Forest and then comes another open Saturday. Why does this condition have to exist? Open dates, it is said, are often harmful to a team, making the men stale and causing them to lose interest in the practice sessions. Any game is better than none. It would be helpful to have even a very weak team on the schedule, rather than none at all.

Student body interest also wanes a great deal during times when there is an open date. It is hard to get up enthusiasm for a team that does not play while all the other teams are fighting it out on the gridiron.

We are criticising no one, for it is not anyone's fault. Probably the reason is that smaller schools do not wish to play the Blue Hose for fear of being beaten, and larger ones do not wish to run the risk of an upset by a team they get no credit for beating. But all the same, we long for the old days of bigger schedules, such as the one of 1930, the year P. C. won the S. I. A. A. championship with a terrific schedule of ten games.

ON PUNTING

Have you noticed what fine punting the Blue Stockings have exhibited this year? Between J. B. Jacobs and Rex Wilbanks, the team hasn't a thing to worry about in this department. These two boys hail from Thornwell Orphanage. Is it something they feed 'em over there that makes them that way—or what? In the Furman game, it will be remembered, Jacobs got off a punt for about 80 yards, the longest punt made in the state in some time.

Roy Stevens, the highly touted Furman punter, lost out in the kicking duel he engaged in with the latter, by an average of one or two yards.

Speaking of punting, the freshman eleven, in the great game they played with Carolina, averaged a little more than 20 yards per kick thruout the contest. With a good punter this rat team of ours should be right up at the top, but such kicking as this certainly will be costly in future games.

Varsity And Frosh Rest This Week

The Blue Stockings, both varsity and freshman team, will take a much-needed rest next week-end after the tough games they have already gone through.

The varsity came out of the Mercer tilt with no serious injuries and will be in good shape for the game on November 2 at Wake Forest where they will take on the Demon Deacons.

The remainder of their schedule is as follows:

November 2—Wake Forest at Wake Forest.
November 9—Open.
November 15—Erskine at York.
November 23—Wofford at Spartanburg.
November 28 — Citadel at Charleston.

The freshman team, by their smashing defeat of Newberry and the great game against the Carolina rats, have served notice on other teams that they will be extremely hard to beat.

The rest of their games are as follows:

November 2—Citadel at Charleston.
November 8—Clemson at Clinton.
November 14—Wofford at Clinton.

The main trouble with P. C. seemed to be that the line was not playing well, especially on defense. The backfield was forced to make most of the tackles and consequently they were worn down too much to put on effective scoring drives.

Professors' Sins Are Uncovered

Joe E. Moore, of North Carolina State college, is an enterprising fellow, and a gentleman of parts in the psychological field. He has recently published, in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Psychology, a treatise giving the results of an experiment he undertook to discover the annoying habits common to the college professor. Mr. Moore had a class of 123 elementary psychology students study 112 professors for two weeks and then turn in a report on the teachers' annoying habits and mannerisms.

Twenty-five unpleasant things were listed. Heading the list of mortal sins, according to the testimony of 76 students, was "rambling in lectures." Then came "twisting mouth into odd shapes," with 63 earnest young psychologists recording their aversion to this pleasantry. "Frowning" came next, with 55 votes, then "playing or tinkering with objects"—type of objects unspecified—and next, "cocking head" polled an even 50 votes. The list runs on like that for quite a little while, various attitudes and mannerisms being listed.

There are professors who did not know, perhaps, that "standing in an awkward position" is very painful to some students, and definitely retards their concentration. Similarly, your careful pedagogue will not "walk around too much" nor will he affect "odd color combinations in clothing." And it is de rigeur to speak in "complete statements" and not scratch the head nor "talk too low."—(By A.C.P.)

rats plenty of yardage. June Moore played the same powerful game he did last week and continues to get in the enemy's hair, both on offense and defense.

Yonce, the Newberry right guard, was outstanding in the line and proved a literal demon in diagnosing plays. Aside from Yonce, Newberry had practically no other outstanding gridmen, but they fought with a will and a desire to win although they were outclassed in every department.

Nation's Enrollment Shows Increase

New York. (NSFA).—Reports from colleges throughout the country indicate an increase in enrollments averaging almost 3 per cent. This figure is based on unofficial advance figures which indicate that there will be more than 20,000 additional undergraduates studying this year and that the total number will at least equal the record figure set in 1929-30.

The gain is most marked in the Mid-West, where student ranks are apparently increasing three times as fast as they are on the Atlantic seaboard. Colleges polled beyond the Alleghanies show an average student gain of 10.6 per cent over last year, as against three per cent in Eastern schools.

More money at home, plus the feeling that new jobs are opening up, is believed mainly responsible for the 1935 jump. The National Youth administration is playing an important part, many registrars believe.

What collegiate America thinks of war is best expressed in the editorial from the Northeast Missourian, student publication of Northeast Missouri Teachers' college, which was reprinted in the October 7 issue of The Blue Stocking.

HONOR FRATERNITY TAPS FOUR SENIORS, ONE JUNIOR

Blue Key Pledges Plaxico, Potter, Wilbanks, Holliday and Freeman. Total Membership Is Now Eleven.

President Phil Adams announced Friday the tapping of four seniors and a junior by Blue Key, national honor fraternity. These men are: Tom Plaxico, Frank Holliday, Rex Wilbanks, and R. R. Potter, all seniors, and Julian Freeman, a junior.

Plaxico is editor of the 1936 PaC-SaC, a captain in the local R.O.T.C unit and a member of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet, The Blue Stocking staff, and Alpha Lambda Tau social fraternity.

Holliday is a lieutenant in the military unit, a regular on the varsity football team, a member of the varsity boxing team, and socially a Phi Kappa Pi.

R. R. Potter is the highest ranking senior in the R. O. T. C., a member of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet, and The Blue Stocking staff, and was for three years a member of the student council, and is president of the senior class. Socially he is a Beta Kappa.

Wilbanks is a captain in the R.O. T. C., vice-president of the senior class, a member of the varsity football team, and the varsity track team.

Julian Freeman is sergeant major in the R.O.T.C., president of the junior class, a member of the varsity football squad, and socially a Beta Kappa.

These new men bring the total membership of this honor group to eleven, the old men being Phil Adams, Alan Guerard, James McClary, William S. Horne, Joe Bradley, and Roy Forehand.

I. R. C. Discusses Italy, Ethiopia

The International Relations club met in its regular session last Wednesday evening in the economics lecture room at seven o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Henry Calvert, who presented the speakers on the program for the evening.

The program continued the discussion of the month, the Ethiopian situation. The talks were by Lynn Jones and Colin Hudson. Dean Brown summed up the present trend of the affair with an interesting discussion of the league and Italy in relation to sanctions.

Mr. Jones took for his topic, "In Defense of Italy." He assumed that he was a native of the Latin country and defended the Italian actions from that viewpoint. He recounted the history of his country in Africa and the constant and unfair attempted inroads of the Ethiopians into Eritrea and Italian Somaliland that they might have a place on the coast.

In referring to Ethiopia, Mr. Jones brought out the lack of any continuous national feeling among the natives of Ethiopia. "It is not an organized state but a land filled with many tribes who are continually fighting among themselves. When my country recognized Haile Selassie as head of Ethiopia, it was rightly as "King of kings."

Following this interesting defense of Italy's side of the war, Colin Hudson gave the present military aspects of the war. With the aid of a large map, he graphically described the movements of the armies in Ethiopia. Vividly he stated the hardships that the Italian troops were undergoing and discussed their chances of accomplishing their apparent goals.

Dean Brown, the next speaker, at the invitation of Mr. Jones, disputed the rights of Italy in the aggression of war with Ethiopia. He pointed out the fallacies of Mussolini and the Italian diplomats in relying on historical background for excuse to expand and to assimilate the little African state.

After this refutation, the Dean merged his discussion into a detailed account of the sanctions question. He brought out the sides of the proposed sanctions and discussed the probable stand that Italy would take.

An interesting point brought out in the Dean's discussion was that to effect that Italy would probably be perfectly willing to give England any part of Ethiopia that she wanted just to get part of this little barren country. 'Italy would be willing to give up anything that she doesn't have."

Local Sorority Pledges Thirteen

Alpha Psi Delta Puts New Girls Through Amusing Hell Week. Revert To Childhood.

Not to be outdone by their Grecian brothers, P. C.'s modern feminine Greeks also put on a rush season and as a result thirteen fair freshmen have been making a bid to hold the center of attraction on the campus.

Under the leadership of Grand All Powerful Potential Felicitious Eleemosynary Grand High Councilor Elizabeth Blakely, known to her closest friends as president of Alpha Psi Delta, had a very successful rush season in spite of keen competition. Other officers of the local sorority are Miss Frances Spratt, Assistant to the Potentate, informally the vice-president, and Miss Sara Cannon, Keeper of the Sacred Records and Chancellor of the Exchequer, or secretary-treasurer.

Those pledged to sacred bonds were Misses Elizabeth (call me Lizzie) McGee, Helen Roper (alias Cowboy) Mahaffey; Nancy Young, Sara Salters, Shannon (my name's Shan, I do all I can) Simpson, Reta (leave off the Rio) Chandler, Helen (I'm Alan's sister) Guerard, Irene (I'm the Babe) Dillard, Verna (Mc) McLeod, Frances (Fran) Shaw, Laetitia (I can't spell it, so call me Tish) Jones, Joyce (put on the Re) Pitts.

Believing firmly that children are to be seen and not heard, the sisters of Alpha Psi Delta have done their best during the past week to place their protegees in the public eye.

Monday morning, the aforementioned sorority's pledges came to classes gaily adorned in cotton hose and a minus of cosmetics. This lasted only one day as the pledges complained that certain parents were getting the idea that cotton hose might be a worth while economic measure.

Not to be foiled by one failure, on Tuesday morning the Greekettes arrived on the campus "Where Men Are Maids" adorned as little school maids, carrying nursing bottles. The next day, the co-ed pledglets wore dresses inside out. Several claimed that they were only wearing out old clothes but it was easy to see that this was merely a feminine ruse.

Other amusing and entirely worth while schemes to prove the ingenuity of the coming generation were made evident later in the week. When questioned about such ingenuity, the president modestly said, "I owe it all to my Alma Mammy."

Five Million Italian Youths Trained To Militarism and Mussolini's Rule

By Jonathan B. Bingham, Chairman, Yale Daily News.

The Italian youth has but two ideas in mind, to become a soldier and to follow Mussolini. At least that is the case with the million boys and girls who belong to the great Fascist youth movement, the National Balilla institution, for their motto is, "Today Ballillas, tomorrow soldiers, always Fascists." And there is ample evidence that they believe heart and soul in that motto.

There is nothing spontaneous about the Italian youth movement, entirely imposed from above as it is, and with every other organization suppressed. The control is in Rome, ostensibly in an executive committee, but actually in the hands of one Renato Ricci, a young man himself, who is responsible to Mussolini. Regional and local committees carry the orders down to the individual groups of boys and girls, these being organized into boys from ten to fourteen and from fourteen to eighteen, and girls the same.

Although membership is not compulsory, the pressure of social opinion is so strong and the social prestige to be won in these societies and their parents but make the growth of the organization prodigious, a million and a half in the last two years to a total of over half the youth of the country. The Fascists claim a unit in every village, no matter how small, throughout Italy.

While the girls in the movement are proud to consider themselves as mothers of future soldiers, militarism is already a reality to the boys. As the visitor is shown through a "Bililla house," or movement club-house, his youthful guides will display the greatest pride in the arsenal, a formidable array of rifles and machine-guns that are far from toys. The effort to make war seem glorious to these children is further seen in the provision of motorcycles and other equipment that are naturally exciting and attractive.

Perhaps the most appalling aspect of it all is that, although undoubtedly every young boy is envious of his older brothers on the way to Ethiopia, militarism is to him not so much a matter of hysteria and wild excitement, as an essential, accepted part of his existence without which life would hardly be conceivable. The teaching of discipline and unquestioning obedience are an expressed purpose of the Balilla organization and contribute largely to this result.

However, it cannot be denied that the young Fascists are offered numerous [illegible] Besides the [illegible] and rather unessential practices in their own homes, every effort is made to provide equipment for sports, even in the smallest towns, where there is likely to be a combination of club room and gymnasium, and some sort of athletic field.

FUTURE BRIGHT FOR CHEMISTS

Dr. Whitmore, of Penn State, Says 90 Per Cent of Chemists Employed. Speaks On Neo-Pentanes At A.C.S. Meeting.

Professor H. E. Sturgeon and organic chemistry students, Henry Calvert, Hugh Holman, M. D. Gillis, and Colin Hudson, attended the regular fall meeting of the South Carolina division of the American Chemical society in Greenville last Thursday evening.

Following a banquet, the speaker of the evening, Dr. Whitmore, of Pennsylvania State college was introduced.

Dr. Whitmore was formerly of Northwestern university and Harvard. He is the author of several books on syntheses and on mercury compounds. He has also written many articles for magazines and journals.

At the University of Chicago, Dr. Whimore directed extensive research in the field of organic mercury compounds. His work in this special chemistry has gained him wide recognition.

Since he has been at Penn State he has been working on the halide reactions of neo-pentanes.

In informal talks before the formal address to the assembly, Dr. Whitmore expressed great confidence in the future of chemistry. He stated that if 10 per cent of the unemployment were reduced there would be no unemployed chemists. that is, none worthy of the name chemist.

He further stated that there is no excuse for a good chemist to be without a job. However, it is necessary to have more than the necessary technique and knowledge of chemistry to keep that job. The ability to mix with and to get along with people is necessary, as one is usually in a cooperative position. He stated some incidences for illustration.

In his formal address, Dr. Whitmore gave a graphic and easily understood explanation of the complex reactions and rearrangements within that field of chemistry which has been his specialty for the past five years; namely, neo-pentanes. He made his talk so simple and expletive that one could almost imagine that the carbon atoms of organic compounds were living animate things. So vividly did he paint the carbon atoms that one expected Dr. Whitmore to go into the love-life of them at any moment.

Dr. Whitmore was received most warmly. Thirty-eight attended the banquet and seventy-five heard the address.

Following the evening's discussion, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon called a meeting of the session. Prof. Sturgeon is secretary of the South Carolina division of the American Chemical society.

FIRST MONTHS GRADES ARE POOREST IN SHOOL'S HISTORY

259 "D's" and 224 "E's" Appear On First Month's Reports. Only 18 Frosh Not Deficient.

As shown by the list of "D's" and "E's" posted last Wednesday, the marks of the past month indicate that the present student body of Presbyterian college is the most deficient in their studies in the history of the school. This fact remains, regardless of what might be the present undetermined cause.

Following are tables of statistics on the first month's marks of this year as compared with those of the first month last year:

1935 Class

	D	E	Incomplete
Seniors	39	15	9
Freshmen	118	107	3
Total	259	224	16

1934 Class

Special	1

1935 Class

	No.	deficient in 1 or more subjects	% deficient
Seniors	62	38	60.3
Juniors	71	48	67.6
Sophomores	72	50	68.4
Freshmen	118	100	84.7
Special	3	2	66.6
Total	329	238	67.5

It is interesting news to note that only 18 in the freshman class failed to make an "E" or a "D." Eight of these were co-eds and 10 boys.

In the first year biology course 66 out of 75 were in the "D" or "E" class, or 88.8 per cent.

In the first year chemistry class, 40 out of 75 made "D" or "E," showing a deficiency of 53.4 per cent.

The freshman math course showed a deficiency of approximately 80 per cent and the education courses about the same.

Delta Chi Alpha Pledges Three

Honorary Christian Leadership Fraternity Taps Tate, Wardlaw and Compton.

Chester Keller, president of Gamma chapter of Delta Chi Alpha, national honorary Christian fraternity, announces the pledging of three men by that group. These men are: Manson B. Tate, Saxe, Va.; Hubert Wardlaw, Marietta, Ga.; and R. M. Compton, Jackson, Ga.

Tate is a junior, entering Presbyterian college last year from Presbyterian Junior college, Maxton, N. C. Wardlaw is a sophomore, and Compton a senior transfer from Georgia Tech. All of these men have shown a deep and sincere interest in the work which this grop sponsors.

This brings the total membership of Delta Chi Alpha to nine men.

Delegates To Go To Press Meet

On next Thursday morning the Presbyterian college delegates to the South Carolina College Press association will leave for Clemson college where the annual state convention will be held.

Representing The Blue Stocking will be editor Hugh Holman and Sports Editor Preston Charles, and representing The Collegian will be Editor George Oliver, Art Editor Robert McLees and Managing Editor Sadler Love.

The convention, which will last two days, will consist of talks, tours, round table discussions, a banquet, and will close with the annual Tiger ball.

At this meeting will be announced the winners in the various contests for firsts in the state. These contests are: for newspapers, news stories, editorials, and features; for magazines, short stories, book reviews, poetry, formal essays, informal essays, and sketches. The local publications have entries in all of these with the exception of the book review.

Barnard Girl Wins "Story" Contest

A Barnard senior, Elizabeth Hall, is the winner of the national college short story contest held by the magazine "Story" in which 3,324 universities and colleges representing every state participated. Miss Hall's manuscript, which was awarded the first prize of one hundred dollars, is titled "Words Are a Story" and appears in the November issue of "Story" published October 15.

Miss Hall is twenty-one years old and a native New Yorker. Before attending Barnard she attended Stone's Road academy and Swarthmore. She worked for one year as an advertising copy writer in a department store basement, an experience which she says "was probably more educational than any formal training."

She describes her favorite occupations as "swimming, cooking and receiving large checks from editors which seldom happens to me."

"They Shall Not Pass This Way . . ."

There was a surprising number of failures and deficiencies on the campus during the past month. A number that, according to an official estimate, was larger than ever before in the history of the institution. Numerous explanations and alibis can be made—and have been made.

"The courses are harder." Perhaps they are, but if so that is no excuse for failure on the part of the students. At least theoretically they have come here to acquire a knowledge of man's greatest cultural and scientific achievements. That the courses are harder means that they are more nearly getting what they want than they ever have before. If harder courses mean more failures, then too many have come to college with the wrong aim in view or are cheating themselves in their manner of acquiring that aim.

"The professors have been unfair." That is a gross misstatement, and makes a reflection, not on the professor toward whom it is directed but rather on the student who makes it. We do not believe, after over three years in this institution, that a student ever receives a "dirty deal" at the hands of a professor unless he has "asked for it."

"We simply haven't studied." If this is true, then we, as a student body, are in the same boat with the man who couldn't see the forest for the trees. We have never maintained, and never shall maintain that college is a place set aside only for study and mental cultivation. We firmly believe that the social, the athletic, the extra-curricular sides of college are of great importance, and that the man who fails to get his share of them has, at least in one sense, failed in college even though he be valedictorian of his class. But we find it impossible to forget for one moment that, after all, the foundation of college is knowledge, that basically the diffusion of that knowledge is the purpose of its existence. And remembering this, it seems rather silly to us that students should spend time, money, and energy at an institution and receive in return only a fraternity pin, a block letter, or an empty title.

"The professors have not put the material 'across to us'." Having classes under but four men this year, we feel that we have not first-hand authority by which to judge this statement. If it is true—and we do not even hazard a guess as to whether it is or not—several things are being cheated: the student because he is not receiving what he rightfully expects; the college because those who are paid to carry out its purpose are "letting it down"; the organizations because a slur is being placed upon them.

Those reasons stated above are a fairly good summary of opinions on this campus. Whether all or any of them are true we can not and do not say. We do say that whatever the reason for the great onslaught of "D's" and "E's" may be, it should and must be stopped.

"Boo" Says the Boor

It has reached the stage where no one can rise in any type of gathering, with the exception of fraternal groups, in this school without being met with a flood of the well-known Bronx Cheers. Be he the most insignificant freshman on the campus, be he leader of the student body, or be he faculty member, the same outpour of boos and jeers meets him.

Were the announcements made in these gatherings matters that affected no one on the campus this ungentlemanly conduct could be tolerated if not applauded. But these announcements are not of no significance to us. They are, rather, of vital importance, because, to a large extent, we live by them. Booing and jeering drowns out the speaker, and the message, trivial or important, that he has to make often never reaches those to whom it is directed.

This leaves him with two alternatives. He can either post it on the bulletin board or he can have it published in this organ. The bulletin board is notoriously poorly read, and vandal hands often destroy or distort the material for those who would read. The Blue Stocking comes out but once a week and thus forms no medium for the spreading of last-minute knowledge.

So to cheat a man of his right to make an announcement in chapel or the dining hall is to cheat him of his right to bring any message that he may have before the student body.

We are not so interested in the bad taste of the practice—we can tolerate poor manners. We are interested in the encroachment on our rights, for we can not tolerate inconsideration.

Peace When?

"Plowshares and pruning hooks" have not been made from the implements of tragic destruction; rather we are forging our plowshares and pruning hooks into more powerful weapons of war. Blazoned across the headlines of our daily papers and loudly acclaimed from the halls of Congress is the message, "Peace, Peace," "When there is no peace." Recent months have unfolded harrowing evidence that peace is not permanent. Pacifists have stood by and seen their fondest hopes and noblest ambitions for perfecting peace crumble before the disastrous, short-sighted, shallow-thinking monsters who call themselves men. Creations for peace that seem to be Divine have not survived under the bombardment .As stubble before the roaring flame, they have all been swept away. Only the charred and dilapidated documents remain to show that any attempt to create peace has been undertaken. All seems lost! All seems hopeless! Where to turn in "peace parleys" has become a "night-mare" to the pacifists. Peace conferences have failed! Peace treaties have succumbed! The slogan of the last tragic war, "The war to end wars" has been rearranged to new accompaniment and today it is being sung in all nations, "The war to create other wars." Disarmament campaigns have turned into campaigns for bigger and better airships, bigger and better artillery, bigger and better warships, bigger and better trained men. You ask, "Where are we headed?" Toward peace! Peace! It takes no prophet to interpret the swing of the pendulum at this hour of tension and blood-tingling expectation. Thoughts of peace are present, but the greed of war is blasting the final thread, the last hope of peace into war! War!

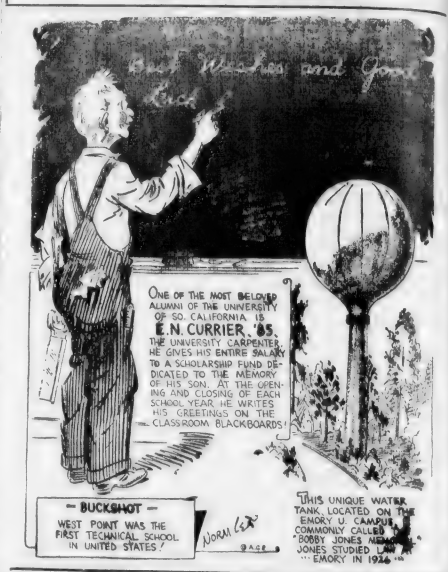
The Collegiate World

We learn by remote control that the girls in a certain boarding house at the University of Wisconsin now have placed little placards up beside the phones in the house. The placards say, "Gentlemen guests will please not answer phone calls."

It is a development of an embarrassing situation of last spring. One day the dean of women called the boarding house and a deep masculine voice answered, "Third floor."

"Escort Incorporated"



It's a new firm doing business on the campus of Washington university, St. Louis.

It's like this—four BMOC' (big men on campus) have pooled their charm to make it easier for the campus girls to date them. They accept applications for a date from any girl provided she will furnish the money. The remainder will come from the men—their prestige, charm, their own cars, and the evening's good time.

We do not know whether the boys retain the option of submitting an expense account after the party.

A story is now going the rounds, of a student whose law school fees were raised from $40 to $50. Canny, he looked at his college catalogue and the catalogue said fees were $40. So he sued his college administration for the extra $10. The whole law school faculty was lined up against him, but the judges gave the boy the nod. He won.

Hose Meet Deacons Saturday

Frosh Prepare For The Citadel

First Year Hosemen Much Improved Team, Despite Loss of Quarterback. Play In Charleston Saturday.

With the aid of an idle week-end the freshman team is perfecting its attack and strengthening its weak points. The lay-off has given the injured members a chance to recover to a considerable extent and greatly improved the general condition of the squad. This pause in the middle of the schedule also affords an excellent opportunity of looking over the record and prospects of the rats.

The creditable performance of the freshmen against Carolina and Newberry gives indication of a successful season. These games also revealed certain weaknesses in the squad which the lay-off offers a chance to remedy. The rats lack weight and have been forced to build their offense chiefly on deception and speed. The running attack has functioned best on swift end runs and quick cut-backs over the tackle. Depending on Lambright and Dennard as ball-carriers, the freshmen have used this type of play to great advantage. The rats have found the pass to be their most powerful weapon and have used it with very satisfactory results. All four touchdowns against Newberry were scored on passes. The combination of Reynolds to Atkinson gives promise of being especially effective in the future.

The principal weakness of the freshman team in its initial game was in the kicking department. The punting average of that game was less than 20 yards, and the absence of a sure kicker to convert after the touchdown gave the victory to Carolina. During the past two weeks, however, the need for a dependable kicker has been met. Hiers, who has won for himself a place on the starting line-up, has shown up well in both branches of kicking. His punting is far above the average, and his toe is becoming educated in place-kicking goals. Another good punter has been found in Culp, a triple-threat back who has been showing up well in recent practices. The addition of kicking ability to the team's assets gives the rats a much more powerful outfit.

The squad has been considerably weakened recently by the loss of two fine backfield men. Morena, who held the regular post calling signals, has dropped from school. Culp and Hiers have been running at the quarterback position and either of them is capable

Game To Be Staged At Wake Forest

North Carolinians Have Powerful Team. Week's Rest Enables Locals To Get In Condition.

The Blue Stockings face on next Saturday the Wake Forest Demon Deacons, their most formidable opponent of the last part of their schedule. After resting last week-end, the Hose should be in good shape to meet the North Carolinians, with Captain Bill Horne in the lineup again.

Several injuries have cropped out among the Hose first and second-string men, but it is thought that practically all of them will be able to take the field against the Deacons. Roy Forehand has an injured shoulder, and Alfred Plowden is suffering with a twisted ankle. Johnny Hutchinson, substitute center, who has shown up so well in the last two games, is having trouble with his back again. Probably all of these will be in shape by the time the Wake Forest game rolls around, however, with the possible exception of Forehand.

The Blue Hose varsity, with only a few starting players out of the lineup, opposed the Bohunks Friday in a regular 60-minute game, the third string men using Wake Forest plays. The Hunkies used the Deacon's deceptive system with good effect, coming out ahead to the tune of 14 to 12.

The varsity scored once after a short drive down the field, when Jeff Boland carried the ball over, and another time when Boland made a touchdown on a pass. The third stringers also made one touchdown on a pass, Degner to Montague Jacobs, and temporarily had the lead at 7-6. In the last minute of the game the Bohunks recovered a lateral fumbled by Boland on the varsity four-yard line. After one play had lost 15 yards, Degner faded back to pass and, not finding a receiver, went around end for a touchdown. After the point was kicked, the game ended with the Bohunks in the lead.

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

In the very near future, students in R.O.T.C. will be required to engage in another form of training in order that they may become worthy sons of their Uncle Sam. Physical drill is the new addition to the former schedule. The whole corps will be given this setting-up exercise two mornings a week during the winter months and every drill period when spring comes again. This exercise will be most advantageous for building stronger bodies for those students who do not engage in any form of athletics, and will give them training in cadence and rhythm at the same time.

The practice of judging the best-drilled company at the end of each week will be continued throughout the schol year. The companies are ranked on the basis of appearance, method of carrying out the drill schedule, efficiency in the execution of movements, and promptness in doing the work for the day. "B" company was awarded a holiday for noteworthy performance the first week this award was made. This policy is designed to keep up interest in the drill work, and to bring about a spirit of competition in the corps. We imagine interest will be greatly increased when the holiday comes on some cold morning in December; for the steel fo a rifle can get mighty, mighty cold at times.

In the contest sponsored by Major Wysor and by the store of Hipp and Adair, L. P. Sullivan was judged first place, J. L. Clements was judged second, and P. N. Moore third. These awards carried substantial gifts along with them. Only freshmen who had no previous military training were allowed to compete for these prizes, but later on in the year another similar contest will be held when all sophomores and freshmen will compete for the awards. All men in these two classes should begin preparation for this event now, for by the old adage, "Practice makes perfect."

Furman Runners Defeat Blue Hose

P. C.'s cross-country team, smarting under a defeat at the hands of Mercer week before last, went down before Furman Friday afternoon in Greenville, by a score of 35 to 19..

Still in poor shape, the P. C. trackesters were unable to do much against the Furman team. Furman men came through in the front almost five in a row except for the second place, which was captured by Charles, of P.C. Tom Estes, former mile runner, was expected to show up well, but a pulled muscle in his side handicapped him greatly. John Woodward came through to be next in line for the P. C. runners, however.

The summary of the meet is as follows: First, Arnold (F); second, Charles (P); third, Purser (F); fourth, Greer (F); fifth, Heindrick (F); sixth, McCann (F); seventh, Woodward (P); eighth, Estes (P); ninth, Patton (P); tenth, Johnson (P).

The times of the first two men in the race were 14:12 and 14:20, respectively. No other times were recorded.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

Here and there on the campus:

"CAB" BLACKWELL, kinky-haired Florentine, went over to Thornwell orphanage the other night with a friend to get a date . . . So charming was the young lady that he (in the manner of Hugh Herbert) went off and forgot to get the date, after half an hour of sparkling conversation . . . DON TUTEN, the Fairfax Firebrand, has started back going to see the girl who walked out on him recently . . . Don says that, after all, one must have social diversion . . . He is dusting off her picture now in preparation for putting it back on his bureau again.

Louis Anderson went into economics class the other day and started to sit down, but found that someone was occupying his seat. He whispered (since the class was already well under way), "Get out of my seat, you dumb cluck!" The other gentleman refused to budge, however. "It's my seat," he answered.

Nonplussed, Anderson looked around him. What he saw there filled him with dismay and wonderment. A sea of strange faces surrounded him. Ah, at last he understood! Striking out with the speed of a 100-yard dash men, he started for the door and tore out of the room. The class resounded with chuckles of delight and murmurs of amusement. Louis was in the wrong class.

A 240-pound freshman, just in from another college last week, was assigned to room with C. H. Jacobs (own brother to our Montague), but as the floor in Smyth dormitory is not unusually strong, he was forced to move to another part of the hall. 480 pounds is just too much for an ordinary floor to stand up under.

This is the third school the aforementioned freshman has attended. First he went to an agricultural college, named Abraham Baldwin, or some similar name. Here, however, he was started off in a course in shucking corn, so he decided to change to Mercer. Being of a very changeable disposition, however, he left again, for P. C., where he now finds plenty of god old country food without the customary country chores.

NEXT! THE DEMON DEACONS

The Blue Stockings face a strong foe next Saturday, the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest. This team, one of P. C. traditional foes, is well prepared for the game. Although their team is rated as not as good as usual by authorities, it is certain that the Baptists will be as much as the P. C. varsity can handle. With a strong defense and a good passing attack, the Deacons probably will make it an interesting afternoon in competition with our team's good passing work.

P. C. ALWAYS "PUTS OUT" FOR WAKE FOREST GAME

The Blue Hose always have played brilliant football against the usually heavier Wake Forest men. Wake Forest has come out in front very few times in past history. This is true, not because P. C. so often had the superior team, but rather because of the superiority in pep and fight that our men exhibited. Probably our greatest victory over Wake Forest was the one in 1930, in which a lighter P. C. team played the Deacons off their feet and won, 13 to 0. This, by the way, was the game in which J. B. Copeland, our all-state end, kicked two field goals.

MIDGET SLUGS TWO 210-POUNDERS!

In a more recent game an amusing incident occurred, in which a P. C. halfback was put out of the game for slugging two Wake Forest players. Later it was found that the culprit weighed only 120 pounds, while his hapless victims tipped the scales at 210 pounds each. The officials must have been seeing things that day, or else the little backfield man had courage considerably above the average!

VIEWED FROM A BUS-TOP

The Clemson-Carolina event was indeed an unsuccessful event from my standpoint. Not having the necessary $2.40 for admission, I was forced to view the first half from the top of a Clemson bus. Spectators were crowded on the tops of autos in every available place near the fence. Sandwich salesmen did a rushing business to boys standing on motor vehicles. Just before the half, however, the driver of the bus ran over in high dudgeon and ousted the sports gallery from the top of his auto.

Next to me stood an urchin of eleven or twelve. "Who is number 54 for Clemson?" I asked of the crowd.

"That's Manuel Black," he piped up. "He promised to get me in free with the team, but I didn't get to see him before the game. He's my first cousin, you know."

PREDICTIONS . . . ?

Since predictions as to results of football games seem to be all the rage these days, it would seem that this column should contain some. Since I do not wish to commit myself in print, however, I shall not include any in this issue. Still, I have found a few brave spirits on the campus who do not mind making predictions a week before the game, so elsewhere in this issue I have placed a list of predictions (with scores) as to the result of the Wake Forest game. Try your hand next on the Erskine game, and as many predictions as space will allow will be printed.

Following are predictions of the score of the P. C.-Wake Forest game next Saturday, submitted by various students:

BLUE HOSE MEET DEACONS SATURDAY

The regulars seemed a bit off form in their game with the Bohunks Friday, but several more days of practice should make them much better on defense against Wake Forest plays. Three or four of the men who probably will start against the Deacons were not in the scrimmage, a fact which accounts for their poor showing.

Several new men who have been doing well in recent practices and the last two games may start the game in North Carolina Saturday. Hipp has been doing well at tackle and seems to be getting ahead in the race for a regular place on the right side of the line. Glenn Beeman, one of the scrappiest guards who even went to P. C., may show up on the field when the whistle blows at Wake Forest in view of his performance against Mercer and in scrimmages last week. Then Bill Degner, a clever runner off-tackle and through a broken field, also has shown great improvement after an early season handicap of a bad leg. He has shown that he deserves to see much service from now on.

As for the Wake Forest team, Jim Weaver, the Deacon mentor, has a strong team ready for the Calvinists. First of all, there is Kitchin, who is field general for the Baptists, and is understood to be about as good as any quarterback in the South. The Deacons have a heavy and fast line, one that Clemson and Furman found almost impossible to penetrate. Their backfield is good all the way around, and Kitchin, the aforementioned quarter, throws passes with deadly accuracy.

The Blue Hose can match the passing attack of the Deacons, with Holliday's and Jacobs' bullet-like heaves, but they cannot match the power of the Wake Forest line and backfield. There is one point, however, in which the Hose probably will have the advantage. This is the kicking department. The Hose have out-kicked every team they have played so far this season, and probably will keep their record clean in this respect.

The line-up for P. C. probably will be as follows: le, Bradley; lt, Prather; lg, Correll; c, Horne; rg, Plowden or Beeman; rt, Hipp; re, Forehand or Waldrep; qb, Wilbanks; lh, Higbe; rh, Jacobs; fb, Holliday.

of handling the assignment. The other loss, which may be only temporary, is Dennard, the little speedster who was the shining light of the Carolina game. He is being kept out of practice by an injured knee but may see service before the season is over.

If the work at practice is any indication, the frosh squad is now a much better and more powerful outfit than the team which swamped Newberry in the last game. Aside from the advantage of an improvement in the punting and running departments of the game, the team will be in good physical condition. A week without any game has given the rats a chance to get over most of the injuries from the first two games. When the P. C. frosh go to Charleston this week-end to take on The Citadel rats, they will be the favorites to take the game.e It is the last game away from Clinton and the Anklets are anxious to bring home the bacon.

Five Million Italian Youths Are Trained To Militarism and Mussolini's Rule.

on the banks of the Tiber near Rome, ment is found in the Foro Mussolini, where three or four marble-lined stadia, a similar number of huge swimming pools, and gymnasiums and tennis courts galore attract hundreds of byos and girls every afternoon. One receives the impression, however, here as in the camp presently to be described, that too much effort was expended on the spectacular and too little on the practical, there being space for little but mass formation athletics.

Adjacent to the Foro Mussolini is the Accademia Fascista, the training school for leaders of the movement, organizers of sport, and camp officers. They learn not only physical training and drill, but the best ways to instill the spirit of Fascism into their charges, the latter being admittedldy considered the most important of all.

Nearly all Balillas have the opportunity to attend a camp for a month or so during the summer. Many of these are not dissimilar to our simple boys' camps, but the ideal towards which the state is striving is totally different. One of the best examples of this type is to be found at Ostia, where a magnificent modernistic building, with a stream-lined tower and much chromium plate, is the "camp."

With the exception of the remarkably big beds in the dormitories, there is no place in the shining angular-furnished rooms for relaxation or comfort, and the playing field or drill ground is a walled-in enclosure without a shade-tree. Here, as everywhere, discipline is the key-note, and, as the children march to their various exercises, not many smiles are to be seen on their faces. Mussolini, whose pictures and sayings are everywhere on the pastel-tinted walls, is their god, their ideal, and they must be true to him.—Associated College Press.

The construction of a new recitation building at Howard marks another step in the college's ten-year expansion program. This program will be completed by the centennial celebration in 1942.

COLLEGIAN FIRST IN STATE, BLUE STOCKING WINS SECOND

Results of Contests At State College Press Meeting At Clemson Place Presbyterian Publications In High Position.

The literary magazine of Presbyterian college, The Collegian, is the best college magazine published in South Carolina, and the school newspaper, The Blue Stocking, is the second best newspaper, being surpassed only by The Parley-Voo of Converse college. That was the decision reached by the judges in contests held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the South Carolina College Press association held at Clemson college on last Thursday and Friday.

Dr. J. C. Metcalf, of the University of Virginia, who judged the magazines, said in connection with his decision that the strong editorial policy, the great attempt to stimulate interest and the excellence and discriminating use of art work was wholly responsible for his choice of The Collegian as the outstanding literary magazine of the state.

The Editor and staff of The Raleigh Times, who judged the newspapers, said in explaining his decision that he felt the choices he had made were obvious when the newspapers submitted to him were carefully considered.

The announcement of these awards was made at the close of a formal banquet that was the official end of the meetnig of various staff members and editors of the state.

The convention began on Thursday at noon with a motion picture. A banquet followed the show and a trip was made to Anderson, where the mayor of the city greeted the delegates, and where a thirty-minute broadcast was made over radio station WAIM. Following a banquet at Hotel Calhoun, the delegates visited the Anderson county fair where they were guests of the city. A visit to The Anderson Independent offices at midnight closed the day.

A business meeting was held Friday morning, but the chief business transacted was the amendment of the constitution, the admission of the College of Charleston and Limestone college to the association, and selecting of The Citadel as the next host to the organization.

The remainder of the afternoon was free and the delegates assembled at 7:30 for the formal banquet where Dr. D. W. Daniel, of the Clemson faculty; Charles Garrison, city editor of The Greenville Piedmont; and Dr. E. W. Sikes, president of Clemson, made brief addresses on journalism as a life work.

Following the banquet the delegates attended the Tiger ball, where they danced to the music of Joe Haimes and his orchestra.

Fifty-two delegates from the various schools of the state attended the convention. Editor Hugh Holman and Sports Editor Preston Charles represented The Blue Stocking, and Editor G. E. Oliver, Art Editor Robert McLees, and Managing Editor Sadler Love represented The Collegian.

By the point system, considering all twelve of the contests, The Citadel Shako came out first, the Winthrop Journal second, and the Presbyterian Collegian third, with 16, 10, and 9 points, respectively. The Blue Stocking, on the point system, placed eighth.

The Collegian won second places in the short story ("Prelude," by W. I. Nexsen,the poetry ("A Gypsy Girl Sings," by Nexsen), and third in the play, ("As You Like It," by R. C. McLees), out of six contests.

The Blue Stocking won second in the news story (the P. C.-Carolina boxing match, by Sadler Love), out of three contests.

A summary of the results follows:

Best magazine: P. C. Collegian, The Citadel Shako, Winthrop Journal.

Best newspaper: Converse Parley-Voo, P. C. Blue Stocking, Clemson Tiger.

Best sketch: Winthrop Journal, Converse Concept, Lander Erosthesian.

Best essay: Coker Periscope, Lander Erothesian, Converse Concept.

Pledge Dances This Week-End

First Pan-Hellenic Feature of Year Comes Friday and Saturday. Burnside To Play.

Presbyterian college's dance lovers will engage in their initial Pan-Hellenic feature for the school year this week-end when Dave Burnside and his orchestra visit the campus as guests of the P. C. fraternities.

This occasion will mark the annual observance of pledge dances, a series of dances given each fall in honor of the new pledges to the various fraternities here. As usual, there will be three dances in the series: the regular pledge dance, to which new pledges are admitted free, on Friday night from 10 until 3; a tea dance from 4 until 6 on the afternoon of the 9th; and a final dance which lasts from 8 to 12 on the night of the 9th.

The dances will be held again in Copeland hall, above Kellers drug store. Two hundred and fifty invitations have been sent out by the Pan-Hellenic council, and a record crowd is expected.

Dave Burnside's orchestra is making its first appearance at a P. C. dance, but it comes here with high commendations. It contains twelve pieces and a torch singer, and is well known in this section of the South. It is playing at present over WBT in Charlotte, N. C., and goes from here to play in the Band Wagon night club in Nashville, Tenn.

Recent engagements for this orchestra include appearances at the Poinsett hotel in Greenville, the Hotel Charlotte in Charlotte, Isle of Palms Casino in Charleston, the Biltmore Country club in Asheville, Myrtle Beach, S. C., and in Savannah, Ga., where this band played several programs with Loretta Lee when she appeared there.

The twelve players with Burnside are all excellent musicians with an ambition to remain at the top of the ladder of musical fame. All, consequently, have worked hard to put this band where it is today — the coming musical organization of the South, and one that is predicted to follow Hal Kemp, Kay Keyser, Jan Garber, and other Southern bands to national popularity.

As this is the first college dance for a great majority of the freshmen, it is expected that there will be an unusually large number of girls in Clinton for the occasion and that this first event of the college year will be a colorful and enjoyable one.

R.O.T.C. Unit Organized Here In 1920 With Col. Glasgow As Commandant

Rather interesting is the history of R.O.T.C. on the Presbyterian college campus. In September, 1918, the college agreed to suspend the regular curriculum and to use the plant and equipment in training men to qualify as second lieutenants. Only such courses as had been approved by the government, such as mathematics, chemistry and French, were used. This was done in colleges all over the United States and these units were called the S.A.T.C. (Students' Army Training Corps).

Some of those who remember P. C. in the days of the war tell of Laurens dormitory being turned into an infirmary when the flu epidemic broke out. Some 25 men were confined in Laurens and not a man of them was lost. The P. C. campus was a regular military post. The students were required to rise at 5:30 a. m. and police the campus. Sick call came at 6 o'clock a. m. In the spring of 1919, the S.A.T.C. units were withdrawn from colleges and Second Lieutenant Ray L. McFarland, who had been in charge of training, was released.

In the spring of the same year in which the S.A.T.C. was withdrawn, the college made application for a unit of the newly organized R.O.T.C. In November, 1920, Col. E. L. Glasgow, U.S.A., retired, became the first real commandant.

A little checkup shows that enrollment in the R.O.T.C. has ranged from 100 in 1920 to 230 in 1927. The 1935 enrollment is 201, which is just six more than the enrollment last year.

Colonel Glasgow remained in charge until the summer of 1929, when Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., then a captain, came to relieve him. Major Wysor has had as assistants First Lieutenant A. N. Taylor, infantry (DOL), 1927-32, and Major W. L. Blanton, infantry, 1932-35. This year we have Captain G. S. Beatty, infantry, as assistant professor.

Those who reminisce tell of the days of old government issue uniforms which had only two sizes, too large and too small. Our tailor-made uniforms of today marked quite an advancement. Then, too, it was not until 1927 that enough band instruments were issued by the government for the organization of a R.O.T.C. band.

If one looks through the old PaCo SaCo, he can find some good laughs in the R.O.T.C. section, but don't laugh too loudly. Your R.O.T.C. picture will be in the annual and perhaps another chapter of R.O.T.C. history will be written ten years from now and someone may look 'way back to the 1936 annual.

THE COLORS

The above soon will be a familiar sight on the campus when the corps begins to conduct battalion parades and battalion reviews each week.

Matheson Is Made Bailey Commandant

P. C. Graduate and Former Assistant Here Promoted To High Position At Prep School.

R. G. (Christy) Matheson, Presbyterian college graduate of '21, recently has been appointed commandant of cadets of Bailey Military academy, Greenwood. Before his recent promotion Mr. Matheson held the position of assistant commandant of cadets at the same institution.

While at P. C. "Christy" was a versatile member of the student body, taking part in numerous extra-curricula activities. He was an honor student, a wearer of the "P" in track and baseball, a member of the Owl club, and distinguished himself as being the first student elected editor-in-chief of The Blue Stocking. After graduation from P. C., Mr. Matheson won an M.A. degree from the University of South Carolina.

General Moseley Honored At Dinner

Major Wysor, Captain Beatty and Cadet Johnson Represent P. C. Unit At Greenville.

Major R. E. Wysor, Captain George S. Beatty, and Cadet C. R. Johnson represented the R.O.T.C. department of the college at a dinner given at "The Pines" in Greenville Friday night in honor of General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the Fourth Corps area.

Two hundred and fifty regulars, national guards, and reserve officers were present for the occasion.

Other R.O.T.C. units represented were Clemson and Wofford.

Home Guard-Army Game Being Planned

Grand Finale of Local Football Season Getting Attention. No Date Set for Classic.

Plans for the Presbyterian college football classic already are under way. Major Wysor has announced that the annual Army-Home Guard game will be played as the climax of the season. This great struggle, which each year is looked forward to by the student body with enthusiasm, will be one of the athletic highlights of the fall term. Althoubh there are still several weeks before the game can be played, interest of the students already has started to turn in its direction.

It is still too long before the game for any definite plans to be made, but the arranging of general matters in regard to the game already have started. No definite date has been set for the game but it will be played immediately after the close of the varsity football schedule. The general rules regulating the game will be practically the same as those of past years. However, instead of picking a team from each company, one squad will be selected from the entire battalion to defend the honor of the Army against the Home Guard. The Army team will be chosen from the military students of all four classes. The Home Guard team will be made up of the non-R.O.T.C. men and will come almost entirely from the junior and senior classes.

The eligibility rules are rather strict. No student will be allowed to compete in the intra-mural game who has ever been a member of any or-

DEACONS DOWN BLUE STOCKINGS

Blocked Punts Responsible For Two Wake Forest Touchdowns. Presbyterians Lack Offensive Drive In Friday's Game.

Walt Kitchin and his Wake Forest brethren took advantage of numerous breaks to register an 18 to 0 victory over Presbyterian's Blue Stockings in the former's second home appearance of the season Friday.

Blocked punts paved the way to scores on two occasions. In the first quarter, Glass, Deacon end, hurled himself into the pigskin, picked it up and dashed 35 yards for a touchdown. Morris blocked another in the third period and Shore recovered. A touchdown followed.

The Deacons mixed the ingredients of deception, accurate passing and power to concoct a winning mixture. Kitchin, Morris, Daniel and Glass stood out in a fast-driving eleven that kept the Blue Stockings at bay throughout the setto.

The Hosemen were weakened by the absence of Robbie Higbe and lacked offensive drive. Shorty Horne, diminutive, dynamiting captain and center, was the defensive star of the day. Correll, McSween and others also gave good defensive performances. Macon Hipp, replacing Collings, gave a good account of himself at right tackle.

The North Carolinians registered twelve first downs to P. C.'s five, and gained 107 yards with their aerial system. The Hosemen got 71 yards on four completed tosses.

The game's highlight occurred in the first quarter when Kitchin passed to Morris for a gain of 53 yards. In the closing stages, Daniel got loose in midfield and galloped 50 yards to score, but the play was called back and the Deacons penalized for holding.

The Hosemen played their opponents on even terms during the first half. Wake Forest came back strong and dominated the second half play. P. C. made a valiant thrent just before the game ended. Climaxing a line drive by a completed pass of 20 yards, they gained the one-yard line as the contest ended.

Rex Wilbanks gave a fine punting performance. Two of his boots were for 70 yards and his average was high for the game. Jacobs, Abbott and Thompson aided Wilbanks with the offensive burden.

P. C. entered the game without the services of three first-stringers. Higbe is suffering from a leg injury. Collings and Forehand also are on the injured list. These three stars undoubtedly would have strengthened the Hosemen's bid for a victory.

National Officer Visits Local Frat

J. Harold Johnston, of New York, national secretary of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, visited the chapter at Presbyterian college yesterday.

Mr. Johnston is secreatry of the National Fraternity conference, the organization of fraternities, in addition to his office in Pi Kappa Alpha.

Pi Kappa Alpha's chapter at Presbyterian was first established in 1890. The chapter was re-established in 1921 when fraternities were again admitted to the college. The president of the local chapter is C. R. Lemons.

Dr. D. J. Brimm, professor of Bible at Presbyterian, is one of the oldest living members of Pi Kappa Alpha. He served as counselor princeps from 1890 to 1893, and grand high councilor, 1893-94. Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., and Dr. F. D. Jones also are members of Pi Kappa Alpha.

The General Is the Army

In any organized group the standard of excellence is, relatively speaking, no higher or lower than the standards of its leader. Especially is this true of the army. A good general will have a well-disciplined, highly informed soldiery to fill his ranks. The "lousy" commander, besides setting a poor example, cares not about his men, who care still less about him—resulting in a weak, inefficient organization.

Here at P. C., we have a commandant whom we know to be of the best. Therein lies the most powerful explanation of Presbyterian College's exceptional cadet corps — a corps as outstanding in knowledge of military theory as in efficiency on the drill field.. We are proud to have a leader who commands respect and demands obedience, one whose popularity among all students is unquestioned, and who has enough sincere regard for us to remain at our school for three years after his regular term of service has expired. Two of the most gratifying characteristics of our Major are his straightforwardness in every matter, and his impartiality as regards his relations to the entire student body. The everlasting admiration of the Presbyterian College cadet corps is his—because of his superiority as a leader, his ability to impart knowledge, his enduring congeniality, and above all, his true manliness.

Athletics has its Walter Johnson, scholasticism has its Dr. Brimm, but the R. O. T. C. has its Major Wysor — as true an embodiment of the far-famed P. C. Spirit as has ever existed in the past or ever will exist in the future.

Cooperation

Somebody somewhere said sometime something like this, "United we stand, divided we sprawl." Maybe that is not exactly what he said, but that is what he meant. We have the word, cooperation, thrown at us so much that at times we are inclined to think that the idea has grown trite.

We will, however, risk the danger of being accused of "falling back on trite expressions" in order to utilize this opportunity of stressing an ever-important point. A glance over P. C.'s R.O.T.C. record for the past few years will reveal that our unit has won the general proficiency cup at Fort McClellan four times out of the last six times this award has been given. It seems to "ye umbal correyspondent" that the cause for this effect can be found in one word, cooperation.

In the past few years our R.O.T.C. men have gone to camp with the purpose, not to have a good time, but to place the trophy back in our trophy shelf in the place that has been cut out for it.

Cooperation at camp would do very little good if a spirit of cooperation had not prevailed here at P. C. Perhaps it seems that we are hiding the thesis of this expository piece rather deeply in a maze of words, but we should like to get over this idea:

Since its establishment, our unit has climbed steadily upward. Of course a great part of the credit is due to our instruction and we would not belittle in any manner that instruction, but it has taken something more and it will take something more if we continue to climb.

From the seniors who have had the greatest experience, it will take the calling forth of all the potential powers of leadership and example setting. The juniors must remember that if a freshman carries his rifle like a double-barrelled "squirrel shooter," it is not from a spirit of bitter enmity on his part or because he is entirely devoid of mental faculties, but just because we all have to learn. It might be well for the juniors to remember that they still have a lot to learn.

It might be well for the sophomores to remember that they, too, still have a lot of learning to do. The entire field of military knowledge is not to be absorbed in one year.

To those freshmen who possibly have the idea that upper-classmen sit up nights thinking up new and novel means of torture, we would say that they have only to show a spirit of willingness to learn to get along.

To all of us, we will say that military textbooks, though rare and beautiful things, really have some important facts inside the blue covers. Don't take our word for it; find out for yourself. And still don't forget that "united we stand, divided we sprawl."

The R.O.T.C. and Presbyterian College

In our college life there is no phase, no aspect, which has a more far-reaching importance than the R.O.T.C. The entire sophomore and freshman classes are vitally concerned in military activities, as are the more outstanding and more developed members of the junior and senior classes.

During his four years at P. C., a student derives many pleasures, reaps many benefits from his soldierly duties and functions. The first two years teach him the value and necessity of obedience; the essentials and details of proper carriage, erect bearing; the fundamentals of drill; the art of coordinating mind and body; the genuine pleasure of being a vital part of a smoothly-working, rhythmic whole; the enjoyment of closer friendships among "comrades in arms." The last two years in the military unit bring into full bloom the leadership abilities of the youthful cadet; foster self-control, mental development, physical exercise; encourage aggressiveness; render complete the necessary feeling of independence; aid with monetary remunerations. Indeed, there is no other organ, no other activity, in any way associated with college or university, which has a more varied or marked influence on the general mental, physical, and social development of a young man. We have at Presbyterian College one of the highest-rating Reserve Officers' Training Corps units in the South, whence one of the most outstanding student bodies in the South.

Someone has suggested that the R.O.T.C. can be held responsible for the famous P. C. Spirit, known in the entire South. Certainly, a large proportion of our athletes do receive R.O.T.C. training. And without fear of contradiction, we can say that our R.O.T.C. unit does embody the real spirit of Presbyterian College.

BOOK REVIEW

Keitt Darby

"PATHS OF GLORY," by Humphrey Cobb

Having heard various rumbles of critical approval, with here and there the amazing occurrence of a burst of enthusiasm from hardened critics, I took myself off to discover the cause for this dropping of posies and loud acclaim.

The book proved to be "Paths of Glory," a novel by Humphrey Cobb. It truly deserves all the praise that one man can exhibit without losing his status of "quietly mad." After all, what can one do when he finds a book in these times of the rare vintage of honesty.

No more does the tradition that has grown up among authors exist—the tradition of romanticising all the human emotions. Mr. Cobb starts in the telling with an ease and a lack of dramatics that is in itself dramatic. The reader can follow the action from the position of one of the men in the trenches or in the ranks.

There is a sort of quiet fury which pervades the book, a preachment against the inflexibility of discipline in particular—the war in general.

More than the mere plot of the story, there is the private thought of one man and then another, all inexorably drawn into the web of circumstance surrounding the petty and horrible selfishness of a commander.

The action concerns itself with the movements of a French division. The horror increases when an attack fails and the commander wants men shot down in sections for cowardice, when they really were all heroes. The main part of the book is concerned with the trial and sentence of unfortunates who were so unlucky as to be chosen for examples.

There is no sustained air of unendurable excitement at any place in the book. The quality makes the points which the author desires to enforce stick in the mind with dazzling clarity. Read it and get the full enjoyment from one of the best of the war books.

THE PARADE GROUND

By Edgar Stanton

There are very few persons—among those who are acquainted with P. C.—who know that our school has a military unit. This is due almost entirely to the attitude of the students here. All of the P. C. cadets (except the freshmen) look upon the uniform as a necessary evil—something to be shed as soon as possible after drill, and to be worn again only on bumming trips. In the first place, the most gracious gentleman or the most brilliant genius may be found in ordinary garb. In the second place, P. C. uniforms are not dreadful in the least. In the third place, the military record of our school is the most upstanding record of all R.O.T.C. schools in the south, and certainly should be broadcasted as such. Henceforth, let no man be ashamed of the P. C. uniform—let all spread its glorious tradition wherever they go.

All boys like military — most boys are extremely interested in it. Parades are the most glamorous part of a military program in any school, but that part does not concern us. However, parades are possible. One afternoon a week, for one hour, the corps could parade through Clinton with the band, supplanting drill for that morning. Sports make the only conflict. It seems, though, that the men of the corps would have enough interest in military to miss one hour of some sport once a week, in order to advance the R.O.T.C. of Presbyterian college. Many have expressed themselves as favoring parades — see the commandant and the coaches to make them possible.

Freshman uniforms are not all in yet, but a large majority of them are. Enough, we are sure, to include about fifty fellows who could be caught (if one tried) parading before a mirror, beaming with all self-satisfaction, and saying, "Boy, just wait 'till mama sees me now. Oh! Boy." We might add that girls as well as mothers are mighty fond of khaki pants and shiny buttons. Maybe the postman is the one to tell us about this though.

This year as never before, the manager of the rifle team can really have something to work for. Formerly, this position was just another scheme to make a poor freshman look foolish when he was told by the Major that his friends were merely playing a trick on him. But this year the rifle team will make at least two trips — one about the first of November, and a four-day trip in April to compete with similar teams of Clemson, Wofford, N. C. State, and Davidson. Doubtless, a manager will be taken along for—the rifles must be clean. Send in your applications now.

The Parade Ground and its author are glad — they even rejoice—to see that the Kampus Keyhole recognizes the good fortune of The Blue Stocking in having such a column as the Parade Ground to grace its pages. The Parade Ground almost regrets, however, that it cannot say the same for the Kampus Keyhole, for the writer of that strip spurts forth the filthiest drivel ever to disgrace the pages of this publication. Why anyone as ignorant of and prejudiced again military and the R.O.T.C. as this columnist should shower false calumny upon the military mouthpiece of The Blue Stocking is inconceivable. Certainly no one has ever gleaned any true, helpful information from the Kampus Keyhole—'tis ever faithful to the lewd visions of its producer. Certainly the Parade Ground is neither a menace to morality nor an injustice to this sort of columning, and is at least informative. Amen.

R. O. T. C. Plays Big Part In College Life

Major Wysor Is P. C. Commandant

Now Serving Seventh Year At College. Largely Responsible For Excellent Record of Institution's Military Unit.

After having been stationed in various parts of the North, South, and West, and once outside of the United States, our commandant, Major Robert E. Wysor, Jr., has decided that "P. C. is best of all."

"Duty here," said Major Wysor, "is the most pleasant to which I have ever been assigned. I have never seen a more cooperative and loyal body of men than P. C. men, not excepting my own school, V. M. I."

Major Wysor has been on duty here as professor of military science and tactics and commandant of cadets since 1929, an unusual term of service. Military science has been in the curriculum of Presbyterian college for fifteen years, and during this period we have had only two P. M. S. & T.'s. The average length of service in the same school is three years. During this fifteen-year period, we have had five assistant officers.

Major Wysor is a native of Virginia, but has not been back there except on visits since he entered the army eighteen years ago. He attended Virginia Military institute, and after graduation worked for two years for the Dupont Powder company. Then came the war, and he was called to Chickamauga Park, Georgia, to the training camp there.

After a brief period at Chickamauga Park, Major Wysor was ordered to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and it was from this post that he was ordered overseas. Major Wysor went into the war as a second lieutenant of infantry, was promoted to a first lieutenancy, and came out of the war a captain.

Arriving home from France, he was ordered to Atlanta, and served at two posts there — Fort McPherson and Camp Gordon. After being stationed at Camp Jackson, in Washington, the Major was stationed at North Carolina State college, with the R.O.T.C. there.

Then came a period at Fort Benning, Georgia, the largest infantry school in the world, and the school through which all of Uncle Sam's officers must go. Following his service at Fort Benning, the Major went into the "foreign" service, being stationed in Panama until 1929.

In that year Major Wysor received a cablegram from army headquarters ordering him to report to Fort Knox, Kentucky. On the trip back to the States, however, he received another message ordering him to report at Presbyterian college. He had never heard of the school and had not the slightest idea where Clinton, South Carolina, was.

Somehow or other, Major Wysor managed to find out where Clinton was and made his way here, and evidently he likes Clinton and P. C. better than anywher eelse, for he has been here longer than any other place, including his childhood home.

Captain Beatty Is Serving First Year

Assistant Professor of Military Science Has Outstanding Record of Service. Winner of Distinguished Servcie Cross.

Captain George S. Beatty, in becoming the new assistant professor of military science and tactics here, is beginning service at his fifteenth station, including his overseas service. During his eighteen years in the army Captain Beatty has made an enviable record.

Born in North Carolina, he spent most of his early life there, and when war came he entered the army through the training camp at Chickamauga Park, Georgia. After being commissioned as a second lieutenant, he served brief periods at Fort Oglethorpe,Georgia, and Camp Greene, North Carolina.

Captain Beatty went overseas and fought in France in 1918. After the war, he was stationed in Germany for about a year, and when he reached the States he was sent to Camp Pike, Arkansas.

From Camp Pike, Captain Beatty went to Fort Benning. Following his training at Fort Benning, he was stationed at the following posts. Camp Lewis, Washington; San Francisco, California; Panama; another period at Fort Benning; Fort Knox, Kentucky; Reading, California; and Fort Thomas, Kentucky. It was from the latter post that Captain Beatty came to P. C.

While in France, Captain Beatty served as battalion adjutant and regimental intelligence officer. He has received several honors, including the Distinguished Service Cross, the Purple Heart, and the Oak Leaf Cluster.

The official army records give this account of how Captain Beatty won the Distinguished Service Cross:

"Having remained at battalion headquarters, after the relief of his battalion, when the German barrage preceding the second battle of the Marne opened, Lieutenant Beatty, realizing the gravity of the situation, voluntarily went out through heavy destructive fire on a reconnaissance of the front lines and obtained information which could not be secured in any other manner. He encouraged the troops by his disregard of person danger, and gave directions for the defence of the positions. It being necessary for him to remove his gas mask in order to accomplish this mission, he was seriously burned by mustard gas."

Sgt. Young Valuable Member Local Staff

Has Served At Many Posts Over Country. Came Here In 1931, and "Likes P. C. Fine."

'Way back in January, 1921, a sturdy young man came down to Knoxville from the mountains around Cumberland Gap, Tennessee, to join the army and see the world. This young fellow was Sterlin Young and he wanted to go out and see some of the "furriners" he had heard about 'way back in the hills.

The army seemed to need a good man about that time so they took the recruit in, and began the difficult task of training him. The army couldn't do much with Sergeant Young on this side of the Pacific, so they sent him over to Hawaii. Sergeant Young managed to escape the wiles of the hula hula dancers and the various other intrigues of the Hawaiian Isles, and after three years in the mid-Pacific, returned to native shores.

Young was in the twenty-second infantry until 1931, and while with this organization was stationed at many different posts over the country. In March of 1927, Corporal Young was given an extra stripe to sew on his sleeve and took up the rank of sergeant.

In 1931, Sergeant Young was placed on the detached enlisted men's list, and was sent to Clinton to help with the R.O.T.C. Sergeant Young says he likes P. C. fine and will stay as long as they will let him and as long as he is wanted.

IMPRESSIONS OF MILITARY TRAINING AT P. C.

SENIOR

"What a difference a few year's make," the average senior probably is exclaiming to his fellow classmate. Three years ago he quaked and squirmed in ranks because he was afraid some big, hard-boiled officer was going to make things hard for him. Three years ago this senior most probably picked out some officer after whom he patterned his actions; and three years ago this same fellow thought the R.O.T.C. was an excellent device for making one's shoe bill exceptionally high.

But now this mature soldier has realized that, after all, everyone connected with his training is just as human as he is, and that the R.O.T.C. is an excellent invention to develop his self-confidence, his initiative, his personal bearing, and his personal conduct as a whole.

No longer does the senior pattern after someone higher than he in the corps; but on the contrary, he seeks to make himself a worthy example for some freshman to follow. No longer does he think in terms of himself, but now in terms of the corps as a whole; for he has learned that an organization such as the R.O.T.C. must have coordination before it can attain its highest proficiency. Consequently, he is more than willing to sacrifice personal ambitions in order that he may become a cog in the wheel that comprises the corps.

After three years, the senior has learned that discipline and respect for higher authority are two vital factors in army life. He ,then, respects orders coming down to him, and demands that those under him do the same for the orders he sends down. He has seen that the spirti in which a man carries out an instruction, largely determines the success of the undertaking, and that the real soldier never stops to "reason why," never stops to "make reply"; but cheerfully and to the best of his ability, does the thing his superior wants him to do.

And then, after these years of experience and training, the average senior is thinking seriously about the matter of duty. First of all, he owes a duty to himself to always conduct himself in a gentlemanly manner, and to train himself so he will be a person in which everyone can take pride.

Then, he owes a debt to his forefathers to protect the institutions property and lives that they have left in the care of the present generation. He owes it to the spirit of America to make this country a safe place for real civilization to exist. He owes a debt to our national heroes of the past to pass on down to worthy hands the things for which they died.

And, last of all, each citizen of America has an obligation to posterity in seeing that the American of the future can live and prosper without hamperings of any heathen(and blood-thirsty military power. We must give our posterity the same privilege that we had ourselves — the right to enjoy real life.

The common-sense thinker can look at conditions in the world today and see that some institution such as the R.O.T.C. is the only possible sure way to pay this debt to our forefathers, to provide for the things of the future, and at the same time to meet personal demands in such a way that one can take pride in himself and know that he is valuable to society and to himself.

JUNIOR

To be elected to the advanced corps gives us quite an additional sense of pride in our unit and in ourselves. We feel as if the work so far has been to some extent acceptable, and we have a further chance to prove ourselves to be of real stuff. Then, too, the advanced men are more responsible for the drill and general discipline of the corps. They are the first assistants to the second-year men who are the real commanders.

The third year of R. O. T. C. training brings quite a change in the training system. Up to this time it should have been the aim of every man to learn as much as he could; now the tables are turned and he must show what he has learned by teaching and leading others for whose training he is held largely responsible.

Through this teaching and leading a grenetr sense of responsibility is developed. Each man is held definitely responsible to perform a certain duty, and each man should feel a pride in his duty, even if we all can't be first sergeants. Initiative is not neglected in this development. The great principle of R.O.T.C. training is stamped in the mental storehouses of the new men more forcibly than ever: To train men for leadership in civil and military life, hesitancy or delay. We soon learned that all military science and tactics is not taught in Basic I. Our first month's grades showed us that we were not possessors of all knowledge, as we had supposed, and we began to look over the outline of our year's work with interest. When we got over the shock of finding out that there was other learning in the school which we had not mastered, we realized that an interesting year lay before us. A course which includes such matters as military history and campaigns, operation of the automatic rifle, and the science of scouting and patroling holds interest for anyone desirous of amassing useful information. Every sophomore can find a subject to suit his interests in the many phases of the Basic II training.

The struggle for military advancement which is a regular part of the sophomore year began with the opening of school. Most members of the class have worked with an eye to making the advanced corps and competition has been rather keen. Even since the appointment of corporals there has been little let-up, for a lot of changes may be made before the end of the year. There has been an unusual amount of enthusiasm aroused this year by talk of appointments to West Point and entrance into the regular army through the R.O.T.C. With such prizes in view it is no wonder that enterprising sophomores wish to turn in a good record in military. The sight of senior cadet officers gives the second-year man an objective which seems well within reach and a reward worth working for. The present job of the sophomore is one of marching and study, but his future is one that glistens with visions of sabres and buttons and embellished stories of camp life.

When the sophomore returns to school with the memories of his freshman year still in his mind, one of his first impressions is the change in his position in the military deparmtent. As soon as he reaches the drill field, he realizes that the second year has brought with it certain definite responsibilities. He feels that he has become a more useful unit of the training since he is instructing as well as learning. Whether he is given command of a squad or not, he feels that he is a veteran in the ranks and as such must set a good example for the new men.

When we returned this year with some military experience behind us, military training took on a different aspect. We gradually came to realize that we were to serve as instructors and swelled with pride at our new importance. When Major Wysor gave us a short lecture on the dignity of our position and impressed us with the fact that the non-commissioned officers are the backbone of the army, we would not have changed places with the major of the battalion. It was quite a thrill to see that when we yelled "squad right," a group of freshmen would do something that looked somewhat like a squad right. We began to believe that the army was a great old organization, after all, a sort of utopia with "every man a general." It required only a few days of taking orders from the senior cadets to show us that we were not the supreme commanders, but a sense of pride still remained.

Most of the members of the sophomore class were curious at the beginning of the year to find out what our new instructor would be like. We had been hearing conflicting reports for several months, but finally learned that we were to study under a Captain George S. Beatty. We went to our first class critical and at the same time somewhat awed and disturbed. We knew that we were under observation, and we mentally put our new professor of military science and tactics on trial. We learned at once that we could work well with Captain Beatty, and started into our course in Basic II without Presbyterian college's excellent R. O. T. C. unit influenced me, as it did many other members of my class, in my decision to attend P. C. I had always wanted military training, and looked forward with a great deal of anticipation to the time when I would be a cadet in this fine military unit.

We freshmen were given our "first baptism of fire" when Major Wysor lectured to us on the fundamentals of the training we were to receive here. He told us how important discipline and promptness were in the training of a college youth to be a future reserve officer in the army of the United States: We readily saw that a strict attention to these vital factors would help us along towards the goal we hoped to reach after four years — a second lieutenant in the reserve army of our country.

We met our assistant professor of military science and tactics, Captain Beatty, while registering, and then later on in his class room. We came to know him better through his interesting lectures on the purpose and origin of the R.O.T.C., and on the first steps in becoming a soldier of our country.

At present, we have spent about six weeks in the R.O.T.C. During this time we have received our uniforms and rifles, have learned something of the position of the soldier, the manual of arms, and the basic movements of a squad. In addition, we have seen just what is expected of us, and we have begun to take pride in the welfare and advancement of the unit to which we belong.

Perhaps we should still be looking forward to the future for the benefits we want from our training here, but even though we have been here only six weeks, we can get a fair estimate of the mental and physical benefits we shall get from the remainder of our Basic I course.

Our only hope is that the training will be as advantageous to us in the coming weeks as it has in the past few. Then we shall feel justified in putting our talent to work to make this a better corps than it has ever been before.

Citadel Freshmen Trounce Anklets

Presbyterian Frosh Score First But Bull Pups Then Take Charge of Contest.

Saturday The Citadel freshmen swamped the Presbyterian college rats in Charleston by the score of 28-6. Although the game was not quite the walk-away which the score indicates, the Bull Pups had the visitors outclassed for most of the game. The Anklets played good football for the first period and threatened to take charge of the contest. The P. C. rats drew first blood by scoring in the first quarter. The lone tally came as a result of a pass from Reynolds to Atkinson in the end-zone. They failed to make the extra point, and from then on The Citadel controlled the playing.

Led by Smith, the Bull Pups' backfield ace, the Charleston boys scored during the second period and took the lead by kicking the extra point. In the second half the power and weight of the big Citadel team made itself felt. The Pups scored twice in the third quarter and again in the fourth. The P. C. rats made a second bid to score when they crossed the goal on a play involving a lateral pass. The play was called back, however, when the pass was declared illegal.

Much of the blame for the P. C. defeat may be assigned to faulty blocking. The big Citadel linesmen broke through to stop plays before they reached the line of scrimmage. The defensive work of the Presbyterians was creditable but the interference failed to function properly. The pass attack still serves as the freshmen's best weapon.

Huntleys Announce Birth of Son, Nov. 2

Doctor and Mrs. Stephen M. Huntley announce the birth of a son, in Charlotte, on November 2.

Dr. Huntley has been professor of French at P. C. for the past four years. Mrs. Huntley, before marriage, was Miss Mary Peck Hay, of Florence. Doctor Huntley also is director of the Presbyterian glee club and is popularly known throughout South Carolina.

ganized school football team. By this rule all men who have played either freshman or varsity football will be barred. There is one exception to this regulation. Each of the two teams will be allowed to play one man who has been on a freshman squad. This man will serve to regulate the teams while on the field. No varsity man is eligible to play with either team.

The Home Guard already has begun calculating its strength this year and promises to put a powerful eleven on the field. The non-military men have many of their last year's stars back and have gained several good men from the present junior class. The battalion, too, can put a strong team into the game. Most of the members of the team which defeated the Home Guard last year still are in the Army. In addition, the freshman class numbers in it several husky-looking specimens. It is difficult to estimate the chances of either team for both will have excellent material to call upon. The anti-army men are confident of victory and the rumor is that some are going so far as to wager two to one that the R.O.T.C. will be downed. The military men, on the other hand, are convinced that they will be able to repeat last year's victory.

Anyway, all the amateur gridsters who expect to compete have started shining up their brass knucks and getting out their black-jacks in anticipation of P. C.'s rough-and-ready football classic.

Mr. Matheson's post graduate days have been ones of various experiences. He was for six years a teacher of English in Columbia high school, leaving Columbia to go to Blacksburg, Va., to accept a position as assistant professor of English at V. P. I. Then followed successively dean of students, dean of the faculty, acting president, and president of Presbyterian Junior College for Men, Maxton, N. C. Last year he returned to his alma mater, P. C., to become assistant to the president. From P. C. he went to his present work at Bailey.

Mr. Matheson is a "qualified instructor" in military science and tactics. He should take to his new position a wealth of experience in the handling of student problems and student discipline. His variety of experiences and contacts should make him a valuable man for the post which he now holds.

Mild and yet they Satisfy —how do you do that?

Well, to start with, we take tobacco from our own Southland — mild ripe tobacco with lots of natural flavor but no harshness or bitterness.

THEN AS A SECOND STEP—
We blend this home-grown tobacco with spicy, aromatic Turkish tobaccos from across the seas. These Turkish tobaccos, you may know, have a flavor and fragrance entirely different from our own.

AS A THIRD STEP—
These tobaccos are cross-blended—welded together—the best way we've found to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette.

THAT'S WHY CHESTERFIELDS ARE MILD AND YET THEY SATISFY

COLIN HUDSON CHOSEN FOR RHODES SCHOLARSHIP EXAM

Will Represent Presbyterian College At Columbia Dec. 12, As Candidates Are Interviewed.

IS VERSATILE MEMBER OF LOCAL STUDENT BODY

Holds Several Positions of Responsibility On Campus.

Dean Marshall W. Brown has announced that Colin M. Hudson has been chosen to represent Presbyterian college in the examination for Rhodes scholarships to be held at Columbia on December 12.

To place first in this examination means two years of study at Oxford university, England, financed by the endowment left by Cecil Rhodes, founder of Rhodesia and England's African empire, as a means of promoting good will and understanding between England and the United States.

Hudson is a senior at this school. He is an honor student, widely noted for his scholastic ability. On the nationwide comprehensive examinations given to sophomores of all American schools in 1933 he made the highest grade in P. C., amassing over 1400 points, and was among the upper one per cent in the United States.

He is business manager of the 1936 PaC-SaC, last year was managing editor of The Blue Stocking, and is an associate editor on the present staff. He is a member of Chi Beta Phi, national scientific fraternity, a cabinet member of the local Y. M. C. A., a member of the International Relations club, and a member of Kappa Alpha social fraternity. For the past two years he has been a member of the varsity track squad, running the two-mile and being one of the outstanding track men in the state.

Last year Presbyterian college was represented by two men, Frank Guess and Phillip Tiller.

Colored Singers Please Audience

Y.M.C.A. Hears Program of Spirituals By Clinton Group At Thursday Night Meeting.

The Bell Street Octet, members of the Bell Street choir (Negro), rendered a program consisting chiefly of spirituals last Thursday night at the Y.M.C.A. One of the largest crowds of the current year attended and accorded the visitors a unanimous applause.

The double mixed quartet opened the song service by singing "My Mind Stayed On Jesus." The male quartet followed, giving "Don't Forget To Kneel and Pray," "Keep Me From Sinking Down," and later "Kentucky Babe." The female quartet then sang "Get Away To Heaven" and "Jericho." The octet closed the program by singing "Swing Low Sweet Chariot."

The selections were well chosen and the octet and quartets blended nicely in lustily rendering the realistic songs.

Those singing in the ocete and quartets were: Amanda Gary, Laura Shell, Mima Lee, Lucinch Miller, Columbus Harris, Gene Gary, Marion Taylor and John Wallace. Ruth Alexander was the pianist.

College Editors For Roosevelt

Editors of college newspapers, magazines and yearbooks favor the reelection of President Roosevelt, according to the results of a poll recently conducted by "Pulse of the Nation," a monthly magazine of opinion edited by Alberdt J. Beveridge, Jr. The complete returns, announced November 1, gave Roosevelt 408 votes, Borah 52, Frank Knox 26, Herbert Hoover 23, Norman Thomas 23, Governor Alfred Landon 22, and other candidates from 1 to 8.

The separate poll for parties showed: Democrats 386, Republican 183, Socialists 45, Independents 20, and Communists 10. The Democratic party led in all sections of the country except New England, where the Republican party was ahead. Complete returns are listed in the November issue of the magazine.

DANCE SERIES FOR PLEDGES

Six National Fraternities Combine To Stage Entertainment For New Men. Burnside Plays.

The six national fraternities of Presbyterian college entertained their 74 pledges with a series of dances during the past week-end, at which the music was furnished by Dave Burnside on his orchestra.

According to reports of seniors, these dances were by far the best and largest they have attended in the past three years. The dances were said by alumni who attended to have been the best and most orderly in many years. Never before had there been as many out-of-town girls here for the fall dances.

The music of Burnside and his orchestra, the decorations of Copeland hall, and the beautiful dresses of the girls combined to throw a spell of enchantment and a holiday spirit over the surroundings. The dances were by far the most enjoyable event so far in the school's social calendar.

There were three dances in all: the pledge dance Friday night, a tea dance on Saturday afternoon, and a final dance on Saturday night. The pledges were invited to the dance Friday night, consequently there was a bigger attendance than at either of the other dances. The tea dance on Saturday afternoon from five to seven was said by many to have been the best of the series. After this dance, the students entertained their dates at dinner at the dining hall.

It is to be hoped that the other dances of the school year will equal this series for real entertainment.

Six Tennis Courts Near Completion

Government Workers Adding Finishing Touches. Johnson and Owens Promote Work.

The problem has been solved for those tennis lovers who have been suffering for the lack of a place to play. The courts back of the dining hall that were started the early part of last year are now at the point of completion. They are expected to be finished within the next week or ten days.

The city FERA workers were brought here and put to work on them. They have been working approximately three weeks and now their job is almost finished. After a few more finishing touches, the courts will be in shape for team workouts to commence. About the only thing that is to be done now is the wiring of the backstops. There are to be six courts in all. They will be divided into tiers with three courts on each tier.

The courts are to be mostly school courts, but also are open to the city. Students at the college, however, will have the preference.

Coach Johnson and Robert S. Owens, of Clinton, assumed leadership in promoting construction of the courts.

I.R.C. Hears About Efforts For Peace

Oliver Discusses "Peace and the Plain Man." Potter Reviews Book By Arthur Henderson.

Propagated plans for peace was the subject for discussion at the regular meeting of the International Relations club Wednesday night.

George Oliver discussed briefly, "Peace and the Plain Man," a book by Norman Angell just received by the club. In his discussion, Oliver brought out the plain man's outlook on the progress and achievement of world peace by various movements in the world.

" . . . The book drones on through the discussion of problems, questions, and propositions made trite by their discussion in the past and attempts to outline the complete failure of all past and current movements toward world brotherhood. It is dull and uninteresting and I do not recommend it," said Mr. Oliver.

Richard Potter was the next speaker and brought to the club a review of "Labor Shows the Way."

"The book roams along for the first ninety pages," began Potter, "but the rest of the book is very interesting and I recommend that each member read it.

"Henderson gives us the socialistic solution to world peace: an international government.

Potter concluded with a summary of the socialistic labor view of world peace.

Several members expressed definitely their intention of attending the Model League of Nations to be held December 6 and 7 at Winthrop college, Rock Hill.

Before adjourning, the list of new books in the library was given to the club members. The list is as follows: "Labor Shows the Way," by Arthur Henderson; "Peace and the Plain Man," by Angell Norman; "Democratic Governments in Europe," by E. P. Chase; "International Security," by J. C. Jessup. All these books are 1935 publications.

Pamphlets which the club has secured and which contain interesting and digested material are: "America's Capacity to Produce and America's Capacity to Consume"; "The Formation of Capital"; "Rivalries In Ethiopia," by E. P. MacCallum; "Vanishing Farm Markets and Our World Trade," by T. W. Schultz; "International Economic Relations."

AVON PLAYERS TO APPEAR HERE WEDNESDAY EVENING

Widely Known Shakespearean Actors Will Present "Othello" Before Clinton Audience.

SPONSORED BY Y.M.C.A. AND LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

Stage Production Is Under Direction of Joseph Selman.

A real treat is in store for the drama lovers of Presbyterian college and Clinton. On next Wednesday night the Avon players, best of the traveling Shakespeare companies, will present the tragedy, "Othello," at Florida Street school.

This nationally famous group of players has been making an extended tour of the South and they have been enthusiastically received by large audiences at the largest cities and best college centers. Press comments on their performances have been particularly enthusiastic. Said The State, of their performance in Columbia, "The presentation was such as to appeal to the most cultivated taste."

The company will present the Shakespearean tragedy, judged by some to be his best, with elaborate stage settings, unusual and authentic costumes, and effective lighting. The play is under the direction of Joseph Selman, who is widely known for his Elizabethan directions. The arch-villain and prototype of cunning evil, Iago, will be played by Robert Selman, who has wide acclamation in the classic role of Hamlet. Louis Lytton will portray the ill-fated Othello, and the talented Marta Kytle the pathetic Desdamona. A large and experienced supporting cast accompanies these noted actors.

The production is being brought to Clinton under the joint sponsorship of the Presbyterian college Y. M. C. A. and the Clinton high school.

Admission for college students will be 25 cents.

FRESHMEN FALL BEFORE TIGERS

Two Blocked Punts Responsible For Victory of Jungaleers Here Friday Night, 20 to 7.

By taking advantage of two blocked punts the Clemson frosh downed the P. C. first-year team, 20-7. The game, which was played Friday night under the lights of Johnson field, was packed with thrills from beginning to end. The two teams were perfectly matched and fought hard for every inch of ground. The deciding feature of the game was Clemson's readiness and ability to take advantage of breaks that came their way. The defensive power of both squads was exceptionally good ,and scoring came only as a result of sudden spurts of spectacular playing.

Early in the first quarter it became evident that neither team would have an easy time. The only scoring of the first half came as a result of a blocked punt. The Blue Anklets were forced to kick deep in their own territory. Before Hiers could get the ball away, Pennington, the Tiger's ace linesman, broke through and blocked the kick. Clemson recovered on the P.C. 15-yard line and drove the touchdown over in five plays.

The score only made the P. C. rats redouble their efforts, however. They took the ball and turned loose a relentless attack. With Reynolds and Lambright doing most of the ball-carrying, the Anklets rolled up three first downs on a seventy-yard drive. In the closing seconds of the period Reynolds passed the ball to Atkinson, giving P. C. the ball on Clemson's six-yard stripe. Before another play could be run the half ended, and thus the scoring opportunity was lost.

The second half started much like the first. The young Tigers could make no headway against the tackling of Murchison, Davis, and Atkinson. The Presbyterians were set back by the failure of their passing attack and made little gain for the first few minutes. Again it was a punt blocked by Pennington which enabled Clemson to score. Culp's kick was knocked down and carried for a score by Tiger linemen who broke through and rushed the kicker.

When Clemson kicked off after the score, Ritch took the ball on the 15-yard line and laterallled it to Dennard, who streaked down the sidelines and crossed the goal without being touched. The play, however, was called back and P. C. received a 15-yard penalty for clipping. The Anklets would not be denied their score, nevertheless. They opened up with a series of spectacular runnings plays and carried the

Red Cross Is Field For College Men

Organization Can Use Graduates In Varied Activities.

The college student who pins on the Red Cross membership button in this year's annual membership roll call links himself with an organization he remembers at home or sees in projects of relief and rehabilitation throughout the country.

After graduation he will find that there are many calls for college trained young people in all phases of the work of the American Red Cross. If the graduate likes excitement he can find it in Red Cross disaster and emergency operations everywhere. Last year there were 128 disasters—floods, fires, tornadoes, shipwrecks, epidemics of disease hurricanes and storms. The man whose mind and body are geared to the quick thinking and effective action of the gridiron or diamond is invaluable in disasters of these types.

A program of health and safety education supplements the Red Cross services of relief and rehabilitation, and volunteers can find work here that will be valuable to the community and of great benefit to their own careers.

Courses of instruction are given in first aid and life saving, and with the nationwide interest centered in programs now under way which are planned to cut down the high total of fatalities through accidents on the highways, in industry and in homes, graduates who volunteer in these fields will find ample opportunity to use their trained brains and hands.

Instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick goes along with the bedside nursing in the Red Cross public health nursing program, and college-trained young women will find a special field of activity here, as well as in many other projects developed because of the needs of the last few years.

Case work offers opportunities for those trained in social service, and braille transcribing, volunteer work in the chapter office or in roll call headquarters, the production of garments and surgical dressings, motor corps and canteen service, offer further opportunities for young people who want something worth while to do in the months that follow graduation.

Clinton, S. C., Monday, November 11, 1935

"A Prophet Is Not Without Honor . . "

For the first time in the history of the school the literary publication, The Collegian, has received recognition in the state, and recognition of the highest form. It was chosen the outstanding magazine published in South Carolina at the annual state college press convention held on October 31 and November 1.

To place full credit for this distinction on one man would be silly and unjust. It, of necessity, rests on several, but the statement of the judges that the award was given in spite of the quality of the material published and because of the sane, competent, and discriminating method in which what material available was edited and made into a magazine narrows the honor considerably.

The man who did the art work aided greatly in making The Collegian the best literary publication in the state, but he was only an extremely important cog in the machine that made that magazine superlative. It was the editor who set the tone of he publication, who chose discriminatingly, who slowed down those who would take the bit in their mouths and gallop away and spurred on those who would lag behind. It is almost solely to his credit that the judges of the contest could remark that the magazine showed refreshing variety and a definite attempt to stimulate interest. He was a tyrant, as anyone who worked on his staff will tell you, but his was a "benevolent tyranny." Ruling, he guided the staff to secure the best that they had and blended these varying products into a composite and pleasing whole.

We believe that to that man, Charles E. Carson, goes a large portion of the credit for Presbyterian College's recognition as a producer of literary ability.

And, contemplating this, we think of certain awards that were made last May for students who had been outstanding in extra-curricular activities other than athletics. And, remembering the choosing of individuals to receive these Gold P's we also remember that this man's name was conspicuous for its absence.

The editor of The Blue Stocking, the president of the student body, the president of the Y.M.C.A. the editor of The PaC-SaC, and the man who had proven himself the best debater were chosen. Without detracting in any way from the honor that they received and without intending to cast any reflection on their having been chosen, we feel that no man in the group came nearer earning this reward than last year editor of The Collegian.

We are fully appreciative of the fact that this editorial is coming a little late as a comment on those awards. It is coming late simply because the results of the press convention gave facts to back up the belief that we have held since the selections were made. Having waited until we have received official approval of our personal belief that Carson rendered a real service to the school, we feel that we can now express that belief without being accused of "going off half-cocked."

It is commonly believed that the award was not given Carson because of the spirited opposition he gave in the editorial pages of this paper to several moves that the administration made. We agree that he often was in the wrong and he often expressed his beliefs a little viciously and untactfully, but we would be the last to deny anyone his freedom of speech, and we have whole-hearted admiration for the courage that permitted him to openly express the beliefs that he held. We further believe that if the award was withheld from him because of these editorials it was withheld unjustly.

We realize, of course, that much time has passed since the awards were made and that nothing that we are saying can be of any effect. We are merely taking this opportunity to pay tribute to a man who did more for this school from a literary standpoint than any other has ever done, and at the same time to lament the fact that he failed to receive the honor that he deserved.

The New Calvary Is In Vain

Seventeen years ago today the guns of war were ceased. Peace on earth and good will toward men had at last come into its own. War would raise its ugly head no more. By the blood of the world's youth and the thunder of the world's guns violence and bloodshed in wholesale form were blasted from the surface of the globe.

Today Italy is conducting a conquest in Ethiopia that is strangely reminiscent of those days when war was god of all that he surveyed. England, having carefully tested the sharpness of their teeth, is letting her war dogs growl ominously. The old philosophy of might and imperial greatness has set millions of young Germans to the duel and the drill field again. France, through Laval, makes speeches on peace, but carries on impressive war maneuvers on the German boundary. The Slavic countries, declaring that they learned the pitiful lesson of unpreparedness in 1914, are marching daily to the strains of martial music. The United States maintains an extremely efficient military organization. Japan makes no bones about her military ambitions. The only world-wide organization for peace, the League of Nations, finds itself helpless in every crisis because the red planet Mars is exercising so drastic an influence on the nations that make it up.

Seventeen years ago today the guns of war were ceased? No, seventeen years ago the world, being in a rather disrupted state of mind, talked itself into the biggest joke that has ever been played on it. Blood, maimed youths, shattered lives, torn homes, warped loves, almost endless rows of crosses cry aloud a lesson to all the world. And it is all in vain, the world continues on in its deaf and sightless manner.

How long, oh, Lord, shall youth burn itself out on a new Calvary and, burning itself out, die in vain?

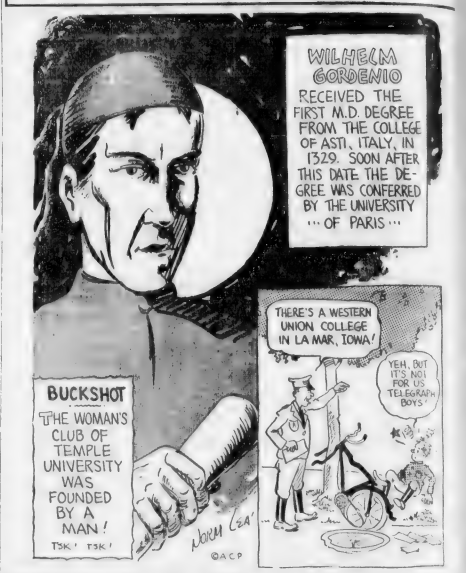
In Behalf of Wimpy



Wimpy, we salute you! There are few characters in public life today who have been so widely emulated by their fellow men, and it has long been an established fact that the highest form of praise is that of being imitated.

The eulogization of this outstanding figure of American current life today is carried even to our own campus. Step forward, ye parasites! We find ourselves infested with students who "bum" everything from a match to a meal from their fellow students. As the school year progresses these Don Quixotes will become even more exacting in their demands.

College "Wimpies" deal mainly in such articles as pennies, nickles, dimes, hamburgers, cigarettes — in short, anything in common demand that has no great value. Because the article that he wants is so small, the "Wimpy" gets it merely for the asking. He knows that most people will not bother to refuse. Besides, such refusals are usually embarrassing because the "Wimpy" has an uncanny habit of "striking" his victim when the unsuspecting one is in a crowd and hesitates not to yield for fear of being called a "piker."

We are glad to say that these Wimpies constitute only a small part of our student population. Students who are financially "on their uppers" do not indulge in such small practices. However, it is to be regretted that the very existence of such professional parasites makes matters even more difficult for those ordinarily upstanding students who are temporarily financially embarrassed. The latter naturally cannot obtain assistance as readily as the former because they hesitate to ask for such assistance, not being endowed with that "brass" inherent to the "chiseler."—Kentucky Kernel.

STUDENT OPINION

NOW YOU'RE TALKING!

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

It has recently been announced that the R.O.T.C. will put up only one team against the Home Guard in the school's intramural football program.

Formerly there was a team put out by each company in the R.O.T.C. unit; now there is only one team for the Army. Why is this, I should like to know? The Army outnumbers the Home Guard two to one in total number of men; yet the military men are unwilling to put their company teams up against the Home Guard. A glance into the records shows that there are 206 members of the R.O.T.C. here at P. C., and only 91 in the Home Guard. Is it fair to put a team with twice as much material to choose from against another and say that both have an equal chance? No, of course not.

One might argue against this by saying that it is fair for P. C. to play another school which has only about half the student body our school has. It must be remembered, however, that college football is different from intramural ball in this respect. Superiority of teams in intercollegiate playing depends mainly on the resources a school has with which to give athletic scholarships. In intramural sports, it is safe to say, in general, that a team with more men to draw material from is in a better position, since the players are as a rule well-distributed between the various groups in the competition.

For these reasons I cannot understand why the Army began the custom last year of putting out only one team instead of three as they formerly did, unless they were afraid of being defeated. Is it possible that our brave, courageous defenders of our homeland have not the courage to face outsiders on the athletic field, except at two-to-one odds? Surely not!

Wellington once said that his victory was won on the playing fields of Eton. If this is true, wouldn't we hate to be led on the field of battle by a bunch of pseudo-soldiers who are so chicken-hearted in athletics? If all R.O.T.C. units are in such a low state of morale as this, we certainly want to keep out of war until a new and braver generation grows up!

Seriously, though, we Home Guard men challenge the Army to play us on an equal basis, by putting out three teams, or even two. This would give more Army boys a chance to play, and would also add interest to the humdrum round of classes and study. What about it, Army? —C.

Food for Thought

Clemson's Tigers defeated P. C.'s Blue Hosemen by a 25 to 6 score in the season's opener. These same Tigers recently trounced Carolina's Gamecocks by a 44 to 0 count. If P.C. were to meet Carolina's Gamecocks this season, no doubt the patrons of Judd hall would be dealt out choice chicken every day from now until the end of May. True?

How'm I Doin'—

YORK WILL BE SCENE OF GAME

Injured P. C. Players Now Back In Line-up After Enforced Absence Will Bolster Strength.

ERSKINE HAS STRONG TEAM THIS SEASON

Several Players Would Be Welcome Additions To Any Squad.

Higbe, Forehand, and Hutchinson will be back in the line-up when the Presbyterian varsity football team opposes Erskine at York next Friday, November 15. With all men now in the line-up and no injuries reported, the Hose will be able to put forth their full strength against the A. R. P.s.

During the past week the team has given its time to study of Erskine plays. This week the bohunks will run these plays against the varsity defense. The varsity itself has some fancy new plays which will give a little more variety to the already deceptive P. C. attack.

Erskine's team, though rather light, is understood to be one of the hardest-fighting aggregations in this part of the country. Last year(the Hose were expected to win in a walk, but the Fleet had the score tied until the last quarter, and the game ended 13 to 6.

Although the Erskine team is not regarded as very formidable it has a few very outstanding players. Whiteside, quarterback, is one of the shiftiest runners ever to cavort on a South Carolina gridiron. Jim Pressley, their fullback, is also good at carrying the ball, being a line plunger of note. The most well-known of the Flying Fleetmen is Lod Mann, an end of recognized ability. This man would be a welcome addition to any team in the state. Gettys, the other end, has been showing up even better than his mate, although his ability has not been recognized to that extent. At any rate, P. C. will have a hard time gaining around the ends, with this pair holding down the flank positions.

The P. C. offense ought to function well against Erskine, with Higbe, Holliday, Thompson and others carrying the ball. On defense, however, the Hose may not do so well. Erskine has a nice set of backs, and P. C.'s line is not outstandingly consistent in holding against the enemy.

Probable line-ups:

P. C.		Erskine
LE	Bradley	Mann
LT	Prather	Furr
LG	Correll	Miller
C	Horne	Ford
RG	Plowden	J. Pressley
RT	Hipp	Cofer
RE	Forehand	Gettys
QB	Wilbanks	Whiteside
LH	Higbe	Weir
RH	Weldon	DePhillips
FB	Holliday	Jim Pressley

Call Goes Out For Boxers, Swimmers

Walter Johnson, director of athletics at Presbyterian college, has issued a call for boxing and swimming team candidates.

Boxing will be only for those who are not out for football and will be coached by Johnson personally.

Swimming will be directed by Jim Brewer, assisted by Hank Wilson.

Water polo is being played by the swimming stars and it is planned to add water polo to the swimming meets programs.

Schedules for these sports have not been completed at this time.

McLendon Boasts Fine Beaufort Team

Dana McLendon, '28, is principal and coach of the Beaufort high school. His football teams have lost only five games out of 51 under his coaching. This season the Beaufort team has played and won six games without being scored on.

Parker Jones, another P. C. graduate, is teaching in the Beaufort high school and is McLendon's assistant in coaching.

Intramural Tennis Program Arranged

Weather Has Been Holding Up Start of Matches. Many Good Players To Be Seen.

With matchings already made, the annual intramural tennis tournament will be under way as soon as weather conditions permit. Many seasoned tennis players are in the list of competitors for the championship. The tournament is sponsored by Blue Key, and is directed by one of its members, James McClary.

The tennis tournament was won last fall by Red Potter, and he is defending the intramural crown again this time. His opponent in the finals last year, whom Potter defeated by a small margin, was Norman Creech, captain of last year's frosh racketmen. He also is competing in the tournament this fall.

Other players prominent in local tennis circles who are competing include Tom Estes, Doug Patton, Dill Ellis, Hick Harvin, Cab Blackwell, Charles Steenbergen, Frank Johnston and Tom Upshur. Of the new students in the competition most are of unknown ability, but Worrell Haslam, R. K. Stowell and George Beatty have demonstrated marked skill. Two others in the tournament who rate well are John Woodward and Piggy Isom. The former was defeated by Creech last year in the finals of the frosh tennis tournament, and both played on the freshman tennis team.

"KING KONG" CAPPELMANN has recently come out with a black eye. According to his story, he ran into a revolving door in the dark.

DOUG PATTON also nurses an injury which is attributed to the same sort of accident. His is a severe cut on the forehead just above the eye. "And just before the dances," he mourns.

BILL THOMPSON and BUCK MARKS, two stormy petrels from Alumni dormitory, were seen over in Laurens some nights ago calling on the trash man's daughter. Thompson has evidently forgotten about his old standby, Gussie.

DON TUTEN, out riding the other day with a girl, apparently got too fresh and the fair female ousted him from his seat and deposited him in Goldville. Don is still soaking his feet in hot water.

JOHNNY HUTCHINSON, rotund specimen from West Virginia, was caught recently addressing a letter thusly, "Dearest Doodgie Flop." Since then his friends have forgotten that he has another name and they are now calling him by the new cognomen.

ROBERT McLEES, tight-fisted Scotchman who runs himself ragged collecting fraternity dues, went hog-wild at the Anderson fair several days ago. The delegates at the Press convention, of which Robert was one, were taken to the fair, and Robert had as his date a young thing from Coker. Forgetting all his financial ambitions, he proceeded to sink the huge sum of $1.50 in gambling machines.

ERVIN GREEN, tall and slim pugilist, apparently is more at home in the squared circle than he is on a sofa. When, at his fraternity room the other night, a girl moved within two feet of him as he was seated on the sofa, he cried out in terror and ordered her to move to another part of the room.

ROY FOREHAND is still demonstrating that he really deserves his title of the schol's ladies man. The other day he saw a picture of a Sumter girl on a freshman's desk and immediately he made a bet of 50 cents that he could get one without meeting the girl. He then sat down and wrote her a letter, and she immediately replied with a photograph.

The writer of the column, Parade Ground, finally comes forth from the intellectual lethargy that has held its fell tentacles on him for lo these many months of column writing and ventures a reply to the Keyhole's appraisal.

SPORT SHOTS

P. C. SHOULD TAKE THE LAST THREE

After a hard and rather unsatisfactory season up to this time, the Blue Hose should have a very good chance of taking three games in row. Several injured players are now back in the lineup and they will strengthen the team a great deal.

The Erskine game comes next Friday at York. The Flying Fleet has a fighting team this year, but their lack of experience and reserves counts greatly against them. The Blue Hose ought to win this one by two or three touchdowns.

The next game, with Wofford, comes on the 23rd of the month, and is the Terrier homecoming day. The Orange and Black probably will fight much harder than ordinarily, since this is homecoming, but the fact that they lost so many good men from their fine team of last year will still hurt them. Their tie game with Erskine indicates that the Terriers have nothing out of the ordinary to offer in the way of first-class resistance. However, P. C. will have done a good day's work if she beats the Terriers by a touchdown or two.

Citadel, the last game on this year's docket, is probably the hardest contest of the three. Citadel's backs, Ferguson, McCredie and others will be constantly threatening. The Hose offensive strength should function well enough to win, however. Altogether, signs seem to point to a P. C. victory this year.

P. C. vs. ERSKINE

The Hose take on Erskine at York next Friday. Of course we expect to beat the Flying Fleet, but you can bet your life it will be a hard-won victory if P. C. does come out ahead. These Erskine teams have a habit of putting up about the hardest fight seen in any state game when they play P. C. Last year the Hose were barely able to win by a score of 13 to 6. Another time in recent years, it will be recalled, P. C. was expected to win and it was only in the last quarter that they were able to make a touchdown and make it a 6 to 6 tie.

Only once in the history of the two schools has Erskine won a game. That was about ten or twelve years ago, and Erskine won by a margin of 21 to 7. The rest have been either tie games or victories for P. C. Lt's hope the Fleet doesn't play over their heads and pull an upset this time.

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

The corps R.O.T.C. officer will visit the college on the 19th of this month for a brief inspection. The impression made on this gentleman may have a great deal to do with the standing of the corps during the annual spring inspection which is a most important event in the life of our students. Last year, the corps looked like a first-class unit for the fall inspection, whether it was or not, and since the corps has a much better appearance now than it did at this time last year, the corps commander should be decidedly impressed with our general excellency. Let all concerned take notice and act accordingly.

Did You Know—

That 65,000,000 men were mobilized during the late war.

That 29,000,000 were killed or wounded in that war.

That the total casualties were 37,000,000.

That out of 71,000 gas casualties in the United States Army, there were only 1,000 deaths.

That the total army appropriation for 1929, U. S. army, was $2.10 per capita. Per capita consumption of tobacco, $17.50.

That deaths from automobile accidents yearly exceed the battle deaths of the Argonne in which we had 1,500,000 men engaged for 47 days.

That the war cost the United States $1,000,000 an hour for over two years.

That our expenditures in the World war would have carried on the Revolutionary war for 1,000 years.

Seven eclipses have and will occur during 1935, the maximum tnumber that can occur during a single year. The combination will not occur again for 550 years.

Notice!

All juniors and seniors are urged to carefully study the ballot for the superlatives published on the front page of this issue and to decide the proper men for the various honors, so that the voting on Wednesday morning can be quickly and efficiently done.

NYA Grants Aid 100,532 Students

Financial assistance for 100,532 needy students in 1,514 colleges and universities in this country and Puerto Rico is being provided by the National Youth administration, according to figures released by Aubrey W. Williams, executive director.

The quota for each college represents 12 per cent of the enrollment of the institution as of October 15, 1934. The selection of students to receive aid is from among those who without this help would be unable to attend or remain in college.

The responsibility for the program on each campus rests upon the shoulders of the president of the institution. All students on the NYA payroll must be employed in socially-desirable work on and off the campus. On the campus they are engaged in research, clerical, office, library and laboratory work, while off the campus activities include community education, health and welfare projects.

ball to the Clemson six-yard line. Moore bucked the line for four yards. Then Reynolds, who had led the running attack, carried the ball over for the Anklets' touchdown. "Little Shorty" Horne placekicked the extra point.

In the final quarter the Tiger Cubs clinched their victory by driving up the field 60 yards to their third touchdown. Davis led this attack and carried the ball on two plays that netted over 20 yards each. P. C. attempted tally was broken up when Clemson intercepted two passes and managed to keep possession of the ball.

Much of the credit for the good showing of the P. C. rats was due to the fine pair of guards, Murchison and Davis. Atkinson also played a whale of a game on defense and offense. The outstanding backfield man of the game was Reynolds, who running and blocking were largely responsible for the P. C. score.

The tiny yes-sir army man may continue to bring forth his dull conventional platitudes and no one in the student body will know or care what is written in the Parade Ground. In the meantime, the readers of the paper will continue to pass over the column for material of greater interest, in which class one might even place our weekly book review feature.

The Keyhole suggests that a copy of The Blue Stocking be sent to O. O. McIntyre, the well-known New York columnist. Mr. McIntyre would, no doubt, be proud and happy to see that the youthful author of the weekly R.O.T.C. space-filler has thought enough of the Broadway columnist's product to lift outright from it such expressions as "thingumbobs" and "bagatelle." We refer this new edition of McIntyre to Roget's Thesaurus for appropriate synonyms.

And while Mr. McIntyre is chuckling with delight on finding a youthful follower, the student readers will continue to regard the military column in the light of another McIntyre expression, "Zero in enthusiasm," which so aptly applies to that hodge-podge of military information.

Y.M.C.A. MEDAL TO BE GIVEN

Special Award Given By Anonymous Student To "Most Useful" Cabinet Member.

E. J. Arnold, president of the Presbyterian college Y.M.C.A. announced at a recent meeting of the "Y" cabinet that a special award will be given to the most useful member of the cabinet. It is to be in the form of a gold-filled medal and is to be especially designed to signify outstanding Y. M. C. A. service on the P. C. campus.

The donor of the medal, who is a member of the student body, desires to remain unknown but wishes to express his vital interest in Y.M.C.A. work by this anonymous token. His only requisite was that the winner be a member of the "Y" cabinet.

An announced group will select the cabinet member who they deem has been most valuable as the one to receive this award. It will be presented on March 26, with the expiration of the present Y. M. C. A. year, at the last cabinet meeting.

Tennis Tournament Moves Along Slowly

Intramural Sport Expected To Get Well Under Way This Week. Two Men Advance.

The annual tennis tournament is progressing slowly so far, but it is expected to gain momentum and be well under way during this week. Very few matches have been played off as yet.

Two men have advanced into the second round by virtue of forfeits. Doug Patton got past the initial division as a result of Buchan's default to him. Pudge Plowden, the rotund football players, evidently could not find time off from his duties as canteen manager and consequently gave the match to Stowell.

In one of the early first round playoffs, Jake Penland defeated Hafley in a hard match. Penland lost the first set, but soon found himself and disposed of the tall freshman to the tune of 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Edgar Pitman, the man with the cannon-ball drive, found little trouble in disposing of Ernest Arnold. He won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-1.

In the last match played up to the present writing, two freshmen, Berry and Dyes, had an interesting afternoon of it. After a tough fight, Berry won over his diminutive opponent, 6-8, 6-3, 8-6..

Probably the most important match of the second round will be between Patton and Potter. Due to poor arrangement of the roster, these two were placed against each other. Potter, it will be remembered, is the defending champion from last year. Patton, on the other hand, also went far in last year's tourney, and will furnish some strong opposition to last year's winner.

Board Of Trustees Leaves Things 'As Is'

The board of trustees of Presbyterian college met on last Thursday in a meeting that was believed to be for the purpose of selecting a president for the institution.

Although an official statement concerning their action is not available, they apparently arrived at no decision and the administrative body of the school remains the same, with William P. Jacobs serving as acting president.

The officers of the various student organizations, publications, and fraternities presented a petition to the board requesting that Mr. Jacobs be made permanent president.

Avon Players Give "Othello" Here

The Avon Players, under the direction of Josef Selman, presented "Othello" last Wednesday night at the Florida Street school. This production was jointly sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. and the Clinton high school.

"Othello" is very rarely given, especially in the South, because of the race of its hero. Also entertainment of this nature is not often available to students at Presbyterian college. For these reasons Shakespeare's tragedy of the Moor "who loved wisely but too well" was doubly appreciated.

The Avon Players is one of the best Shakespearean troupes in the United States and their treatment of "Othello" was excellent. With the exception of Roderigo, all the parts were well acted. Outstanding were Robert Selman as Iago, Louis Lytton as "Othello"and Marta Kytle as the beautiful Desdemona.

Although the scenery and costumes were not up to press notices, the staging of the play was remarkable considering the inadequate facilities afforded at the school.

The visit of the Avon Players to Clinton may inaugurate a movement to bring more outside entertainment to the students here. Anything out of the ordinary has been made conspicuous by its absence at P. C.

THREE MEN ARE NOMINATED FOR "WHO'S WHO"

Book of Outstanding Students In American Colleges Being Published Second Time.

McCLARY, FOREHAND AND POTTER CHOSEN

Local Representatives Are Selected By Faculty.

James McClary, Roy Forehand, and Richard Potter have been selected by the faculty as the men entered from Presbyterian college in the national "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The committee that is compiling this book developed the plan of an annual Who's Who for the college student two years ago and published the first volume last year. The plan is to publish a compilation of biographies of the outstanding students in America, chosen by the presidents of the student bodies of the colleges and universities and checked by the dean of the school. No school can nominate more than one per cent of its total enrollment.

The committee states as its purpose: to serve as an incentive for students to get most out of their careers; to serve as a means of compensation to students for what they have already done; to serve as a recommendation to the business and social world; to serve as a standard of measurement for membership comparable to such agencies as Phi Beta Kappa and the Rhodes scholarship award.

The qualities upon which students are nominated are character, scholarship, leadership in high standard of politics, athletics, and other forms of extra-curricular activities, possibilities of future usefulness to business and society.

McClary has as his chief honor the presidency of the student body. He has been outstanding in boxing, military and Y.M.C.A. work. He is a member of Blue Key honor fraternity and Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Forehand is a four-letter athlete, president of the Pan-Hellenic council, vice-president of the student body, and outstanding in military activities. He is a member of Blue Key and Beta Kappa.

Potter is president of the senior class, major in R. O. T. C., member of the staffs of all publications and was for three years a student councilman. He is a member of Blue Key and Beta Kappa.

EDITORS FOR CLASS ISSUES ARE CHOSEN

Penland Named For Junior Edition Next Week; Ashby Johnson For Soph Number Dec. 9.

At a meeting of The Blue Stocking staff on last Tuesday night Jake Penland was selected as editor of the junior class issue of the paper to be published on November 25, and Ashby Johnson was chosen to edit the sophomore issue to be published on December 9.

Mr. Penland at present is assistant sports editor on The Blue Stocking and has been a staff member since his entrance at Presbyterian college from the University of South Carolina last year.

Mr. Johnson is frosh sports editor, having served on the staff since the beginning of this year.

The selection of the staffs for these issues is entirely up to the editors, the only restriction being that all members must be from the classes that are putting out the issue.

Fall Track Men Oppose Wofford

Presbyterian Runners To Meet Terriers In Extra Attraction At Spartanburg Saturday.

P. C.'s fall track team will oppose Wofford next Saturday at the P. C.-Wofford football game as an extra attraction of the Methodists' annual home-coming day. The meet, a run of two miles, will take place on the track between halves of the football game.

For the first time this season freshmen will be allowed to run in a meet. Two of the rats out for the team, John Bonner and Alvin Chapman, are in good shape, having been working out on country roads nearly all fall. Preston Charles, John Woodward, and Ashby Johnson are others who will probably compete. Phil Adams, who placed second in the mile in the last state track meet, has been working out recently and it is hoped that he will be able to take the marks against the Terrier runners.

Very little information is available concerning the Wofford team. About all the definite dope that can he procured is that Neil Robertson, flashy two-miler of last spring, is in good form and is favored to come in first in view of his fine showing last spring when he beat Hudson, P. C.'s crack distance man, for first place in the two-mile event.

PUNTING DUEL MAIN FEATURE

Only Five First Downs Made In Course of Game. Jacobs Does Excellent Kicking.

PRESBYTERIANS SCORE IN FIRST, FOURTH PERIODS

Wilbanks, Holiday Star In Backfield. Whitesides For Fleet.

Altho the Blue Hose displayed consistent superiortiy over Erskine, they were forced to wait for breaks in order to score their two touchdowns against the fighting Seceder aggregation and win with a 13 to 0 score in the game played at York last Friday.

P. C.'s first score came early in the second quarter, after an exchange of punts had worked greatly to Erskine's disadvantage. Instead of punting from within the shadow of the goal posts, the Seceders elected to run with the ball. Weir, the lanky A.R.P. back, started around right end but dropped the ball, and there it was grabbed up by a pair of alert Hose linemen. A couple of plays carried it to the seven-yard line, from which point Weldon took it on a double reverse around left end for the initial touchdown. The try for extra point failed.

From then on until the last period the game was hard fought, with P. C. having the advantage throughout. Probably the best back on the field was the small but elusive Erskine back, Albert Whitesides. The little Seceder quarterback gave the P. C. linemen plenty of trouble as he time and again wove through for short gains up to eight yards. With scarcely no support he managed somehow to get by the P. C. line, but was always stopped by the secondary before he had advanced very far.

The second touchdown was made early in the fourth quarter as P. C. got the ball inside Erskine territory. This time the Blue Hose passing attack worked and Bradley snagged one out of the blue for 18 yards, placing the ball well within the scoring region. After making short gains on two or three plays, the ball rested on the nine-yard line. Holliday smashed thru for five yards. On the next play Wilbanks took the ball after faking a reverse to the left side of the line, and as the Erskine sucked over to meet it he sneaked down the sidelines for a touchdown. Thompson kicked the extra point.

Late in the game Erskine became desperate in their attempt to score, and Whitesides threw a long pass to Gettys for 26 yards, but one or two plays later the game ended.

Only five first downs were made altogether. Erskine made three of them and the Hose chalked up the other two, one of which was aided by a penalty. Altho the Blue Stockings were outdone in the matter of first downs, they clearly had Erskine on the run most of the time and the latter never made an offensive threat.

The P. C. aerial attack did not func-

"Y" Deputation Goes To Columbia

A deputation team representing the local Y. M. C. A. presented two programs in Columbia on Sunday, November 10th. The first was given at the University of South Carolina, and the second at Columbia college. E. J. Arnold, Wandell Williams, and the quartet made up of J. K. Collings, Harris Gray, H. G. Wardlaw, and John Hinton composed the visiting group.

Arnold, leader of the program, read the Scripture, Psalms 18:1-6, and led in prayer. Two talks were given. Wardlaw spoke on "God Is My Refuge and Strength" and Williams spoke on "God Is My Rock." The quartet gave two selections, these being "My Anchor Holds" and "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken." The same program was given at both schools.

On December 8 the Presbyterian Y.M.C.A. will send a deputation to Winthrop college, Rock Hill.

The Next Editor

In about two months the next editor of The Blue Stocking will be selected by vote of the student body. The staff of this publication will nominate a man for that position and the nomination will be opened for the student body to name whom they please.

We would be among the last of those who would deny to the student body its right to appoint its officers when it is capable of doing so, but we do feel that often the group names men who are not capable enough or are not sufficiently experienced to successfully edit this publication. Too often they let personal friendship and fraternity loyalty name men that cool reasoning would have left unnamed.

There is, after all, only one group that can know exactly who is best equipped to edit this paper, and that is the staff itself. There may be men in school who are better writers and better executives than any man on the staff. We do not believe that they could be as successful in editing the paper as those who are less talented but have learned by experience how to conduct such a job.

We are not suggesting that the right to vote on the editor of The Blue Stocking be taken from the hands of the student body — we hope that it never is. We do not believe that the entire student body would be definitely benefited by taking the nomination from their hands.

We, therefore, suggest that a Committee on Student Publications be formed to nominate men to edit not only The Blue Stocking, but the PaC-SaC and The Collegian. The staffs of these various publications would still name their staff nominations and these nominations would be added to by the committee. This committee would be made up of two representatives from the staffs of each publication selected by the publication, three students not on publication staffs and two members of the faculty chosen by the staffs of the publications.

It would be the duty of this committee to nominate men to fill the offices. The student body would be permitted to select by vote the man they wanted from those nominated. The committee would insure that no man of obvious ability was omitted from the race and that no man without ability was entered in it.

With nominations, the duties of the committee would cease. It would have no part in molding the policy of the publications, in determining the members of the staff, or of censoring material published.

Freedom and the College Press

By Glenn Frank, President, University of Wisconsin
(Reprint from The Daily Cardinal)

The freedom of the press is never won. It is a right that must be continuously won, for the forces that disbelieve in its validity and dislike its vitality are sleepless. And these forces surround and snipe at the amateur press of universities no less than the professional press.

The freedom of the professional press finds its most serious enemy in patronage.

The freedom of the amateur press has most to fear from paternalism.

A press that is not free is worthless, whatever else it may claim by way of virtues. If I were a great manufacturer, I should think twice before I should spend much money advertising my wares in a newspaper that colored its news and designed its editorials to corner contracts, even if its policies catered to all my most cherished prejudices. For I would realize—at least I think I would realize—that a press so suppliant could not long hold the confidence of the public. And public confidence is the one commodity a newspaper must keep at the head of its inventory if it is to remain valuable to its advertisers, to say nothing of its profounder obligations.

The professional press must keep patronage in its place unless it wants to stick to the level of a kept press.

The same principle applies to the amateur press of universities. A student newspaper that is not free, within the ordinary boundaries of decency and under elementary obligations of sportsmanship and good taste, is worse than useless. But the passion of paternalism is powerful. Maturity finds it very difficult to believe that immaturity should be trusted with freedom. Maturity dislikes to see immaturity make mistakes, despite the fact that much of maturity's wisdom was learned in the harsh school of experience. When a student newspaper speaks its mind freely about the persons and policies of a university, when its comments, skating on the thin ice of that discourtesy which marks the boor, the pressure upon the university administration to censor and control the newspaper is always insistent. But I am sure that censorship and control of the student press by university authorities is a last resort weapon that can find justification only in rare circumstances.

When university auhtorities maintain a censorship of a student newspaper, it ceases to be a student newspaper and becomes an administration newspaper. In which case, why not publish an official paper and be done with it? I hope The Daily Cardinal will always be a student newspaper, proving that it appreciates its unhampered freedom, by mastering the art and amenities of a clean, courageous and critical journalism.

BOOK REVIEW

Stuart Campbell

"VEIN OF IRON," by Ellen Glasgow

Miss Glasgow, in her latest book, writes of a staunch Presbyterian family in the upper valley of Virginia, the Fincastles. The first Fincastle was a Scotch minister who settled in the valley with his congregation. All the men of the family were ministers, and as a result the family home was known as the Manse. The Fincastles were rugged folk, rugged in both doctrine and body.

By the beginning of the twentieth century the family consists of the grandmother, her maiden daughter and free-thinking son, the latter's invalid wife and daughter, Ada. Ada is the main character of "Vein of Iron." It is a story of her struggle to find happiness and security in the turmoil of war, boom, and depression.

She does not marry her childhood sweetheart, who marries her long-standing rival. Ada has a child by Ralph and the shock of this disgrace kills her grandmother. The family moves to Queenborough, Richmond in disguise, where Ralph marries Ada after his divorce. He is injured just as the depression begins and the family is almost destitute. Ada's father goes back to the valley to die and soon after Ralph gets the Ford agency near the Manse. The Fincastles go home to the security of their old home.

"Vein of Iron" is teeming with expert characterizations both of the people of the valley and those of Queenborough. The portrait of Virginia life in the period from 1900 to the present is drawn exceedingly well. Miss Glasgow has dropped the light style of "The Romantic Comedians" and "They Stooped To Folly." "Vein of Iron" is realistically written in a powerful manner.

This novel has placed its author in the forefront of contemporary American writers. It has been widely acclaimed by critics and is a Book of the Month Club selection.

CARSON REPLIES

Hotel Canton, Canton, Ga., Nov. 15, 1935.

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

I want to thank you and your paper for the fine tribute you offered The Collegian and me, as last year's editor of that magazine. Perhaps your editorial was over-complimentary, even flattering, but it is gratifying to me to know that the 1934-1935 Collegian yet lives, and that the time and efforts of its editor were not in vain.

Rather by far would I have one editorial commendation by my contemporaries and successors than all the golden Ps and Qs and XYZs that faculty and administration members could bestow upon me.

Free speech has been the predominating policy of The Collegian as The Blue Stocking in recent years sincerely hope it shall continue so.

Once more let me express my appreciation to those who survived the "benevolent tyranny" and worked with me to make the 1934-1935 Collegian outstanding among college magazines.

STUDENT OPINION

"WE'RE TALKING TOO"

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

To the writer of last week who signed his philippic writing as "C," we address this letter which we would call, "We're Talking Too."

First of all, we will admit that some of the statements "C" made in his charge are true: Namely, that there are 200 men in R.O.T.C. while there are only 100 left to keep the home fires burning; that intramural games are won by brawn and not by training and equipment.

Then, with this background, let's look at the problem a bit closer. To begin with, there are at least 75 R.O.T.C. men who are ineligible to play amateur football. There are about 15 Home Guards who are in the same category. That leaves the relatives strength in numbers to be: R.O.T.C., 130; Home Guard, 85. Still unequal, unfair, and unjust, says our accuser. But let's go further. About 85 per cent of the men who will play for the army will come from the freshman class, while about the same per cent of the Home Guards will come from the upper two classes. It is common knowledge that two years of life adds quite a considerable amount to a youth's endurance and brawn. Our opponents can take advantage of both.

But suppose the army did put three teams in the field as it has done previously. Each company would then have about 42 men available for the team. The Home Guard bunch has 85, you remember. Which suggested equality?

It seems, therefore, that there will be an unequal division any way we take it this year. Since the army has always fought under odds such as these, and since the administration of the school has asked that there be only one game of this series this year (this request was probably made so the home fires will still have keepers), the army feels perfectly justfied in demanding that its team fight at least once on an equal basis with its opponent.

Then, the remark of "C" 'about the apparent lack of morale among the representatives of the army drive us to make one final retort—that if our opponents in our next war are always afraid to fight except when they have the upper hand, we won't need to call the Home Guards at all —the war will be over after our battle.

PEN-SLANTS OF SPORTLAND

By "JAKE" PENLAND

The Outlook

This column presents a brief sketch of prospects of each of P. C.'s athletic teams for the approaching seasons:

BOXING: Only Cappelmann is left of what was considered a strong 1934 aggregation. Sophomore talent inexperienced and incapable of measuring up with the calibre of the opposition they will face. We predict a dismal season.

BASKETBALL: With last year's cagers back in harness and a supplementary group of sophomores available, we will have a fair team. Wont be a serious threat for the state title.

SWIMMING: Captain "Rudy" Valley and his mates will give us a good team. We should improve somewhat on last year's performance.

TRACK: The loss of Clark, Yearout, Underwood and others will be matched in gain by the appearance of Prather and a few talented sophs. The tracksters should fare pretty well.

BASEBALL: A good coach and the best talent we've had in years will make us a threat for the state championship. Dependable performers such as Captain Higbe, Horne, Suggs and Evans will form the framework for a hustling nine.

TENNIS: Levi, Parham, Gregg, and a quartet or more of sophomores will form what will be a just-fair 1936 team.

Locker-Room Lingo

Notre Dame's defeat at the hands of under-dog Northwestern puts North Carolina in the light of logical Rose Bowl selection from these here parts . . . It is rumored that P. C.'s gridsters will play Manhattan college of New York in 1936 . . . Cappelmann was caught voting for himself for "best-looking" in the junior-senior superlative elections . . . Freddie Tompkins, Carolina basketball star, was placed on the All-American 1934 team picked by Chuck Taylor, nationally recognized expert, it was recently announced . . . Biggest upsets of the present football season in this state so far—Carolina 0, Clemson 44; Carolina 25, Citadel 0, and Wofford 0, Erskine 0.

Freshmen Expect Fine Court Year

A fine freshman basketball team is expected for the coming season. Many high school stars are numbered among those out for the team and apparently prospects this year are much brighter than last.

Since nothing definite is known about the comparative abilities of the frosh candidates, it will suffice to give the names of the men who are out. They are as follows:

Giles Batchelor, R. L. Boswell, Bill Bouton, Ben Christian, Thad Coleman, Louis Folley, Phil Heatherly, Hiers, Lester Holden, H. Jones, Dick Pugh, D. B. McRae, and Billy Royall.

P. C. YEARLINGS CLOSE SEASON WITH A BANG

Game Played Here Thursday Afternoon Saw Local First-Year Men Turn On Full Power.

Score In Three Periods

Spartanburg Boys Furnish Stiff Opposition In Second Stanza To Prevent Touchdown.

The Presbyterian freshman football team climaxed its season Thursday by trouncing the Wofford frosh, 26-0. In their final game the P. C. yearlings turned on full power and kept the Spartanburg boys on their heels the entire game. Taking the ball on the opening kick-off, the Anklets did not lose possession until they had pushed up the field in a sustained drive of 70 yards to score in the first five minutes of the game. It was Dennard who carried the ball the last six yards, scoring on a wide run.

In the second quarter the Wofford boys rallied and made a creditable showing. Although the Presbyterians dominated the playing, as they did throughout the game, they found the going hard during that period and made no serious threat to score. It was not until after the half that the P. C.frosh unloosed the baffling attack that enabled them to roll up nearly 300 yards yards from scrimmage. The good breaks began to fall in the path of the Anklets in the third quarter, and the frosh were ready and able to turn the opportunities into scores. A fumbled punt which Henderson recovered on Wofford's 30-yard line paved the way to P. C.'s second tally. The frosh advanced the ball to the 14-yard line, from which point Reynolds carried it over on a play through the line. The score was advanced to 13-0 when Horne placekicked the extra point.

The P. C. freshmen kept possession of the ball and played most of the game in Wofford territory. They gained considerable ground on running plays, but were forced to take to the air to get across the goal. The last two touchdowns came as the result of passes. When the Anklets found themselves in scoring position after a Wofford fumble in the fourth quarter, the Spartanburg team made a beautiful goal-line stand and took the ball on downs on the one-yard line. The Presbyterians were forced back up the field by a penalty. They then opened up with an air attack. A beautifully timed and executed pass from Reynolds to Atkinson was good for 20 yards. Atkinson stepped over the goal for the third P. C. touchdown. Horne again made good the conversion.

When this score clinched the game, Coach McMillian began sending in his reserves. The second-stringers kept the situation well in hand and made substantial gains through the line and by passes. Wofford's attempts to pass their way to a score were cut short when Hiers intercepted three tosses in as many minutes. In the closing minutes of the game the Anklets pushed over another counter. Standing on the Wofford 30-yard line Dennard flipped a pass to Hiers who crossed the line for the final six points.

The P. C. frosh showed up the best that they have in any game this season. Blocking, which has been weak in the last two games, was sure and hard, and the tackling of the entire squad was good. The work of Moore and Atkinson was outstanding in this game in which every member of the team played inspired football.

P. C. VARSITY'S NEXT CONTEST WITH TERRIERS

Local Men To Meet Wofford At the Spartanburg Boys' Homecoming Saturday.

The Blue Stockings face on November 23 a tough opponent which they will probably have a trying afternoon trying to beat. The Hose, having passed the Erskine game, are in good physical shape to take on the Wofford Terriers at the latter's annual homecoming day attraction.

The Terriers boast a fairly strong line, with a backfield that is fast and shifty. Bru Anderson, their field general, is one of the cleverest quarterbacks in the state, and is also a runner. He it was who scored the touchdown last year in P. C.'s 7-7 tie with Wofford.

Two other backfield men who are expected to show up well are Hawes and Jones. The former has played brilliant ball all this year and last, and has real form in carrying the mail. Jones has only recently shown himself to be one of the shiftiest broken field runners in the state. In the Furman game week-end before last he really came into his own with punt run-backs up to 30 yards each.

Wofford's backfield is the main item to be reckoned with. In their game with the Purple Hurricane the Terriers twice threatened to score, carrying the ball inside the five-yard line. In fact, Wofford is the only state team that has up to this time come as close as the two-yard line to Furman's goal. Then, too, Wofford made nine first downs on Furman and displayed a fine aerial attack.

The Wofford line is heavy, much heavier than that of P. C., but this department has been showing much less strength than the backfield. Abercrombie, at one end, is a good defensive man, as also is Mullikin, at center.

P. C. also has a fine backfield and an aerial attack to match against the Wofford offense. The two teams have their strong points in the same departments, so that it looks like this contest will be an offensive game, with plenty of thrills for the spectators. P. C.'s line, altho lighter than Wofford's, is still not so scrawny, since it averages 185 or more.

The game should be one of the most colorful and interesting P. C.-Wofford games ever played. The dope favors P. C. to win by a small margin, but with two good offensive teams taking the field against each other, anything may happen.

Basketball Men Take Floor Today

Candidates for the 1936 basketball team have been called out and practice is scheduled to begin this afternoon. All men not engaged in varsity football practice have been instructed to report.

With practically all of last year's varsity back again this year, a much-improved team is expected for the winter season. Led by Capt. Phil Adams, Alan Levi, Red Wyatt and Joe Bradley, the team for 1936 is expected to be greatly improved over that of last year.

The following varsity letter men have signed up to try for their old places on the team: Phil Adams, Joe Bradley, George Cleckler, Roy Forehand, Alan Levi, and Red Wyatt. Those who made freshman numerals last year are J. C. Cavin, Harry Cox, Frank Johnston, John Woodward and Chester Keller.

Other men, some untried and some who went out last year, include: J. P. Majors, Ernest Evans, Bill Degner, Charles Steenbergen, and J. W. Steenbergen.

The squad this season will be limited to ten men, to be selected after the first few weeks of practice.

FRESHMAN PROSPECTS FOR NEXT YEAR

This year's rat team, vastly different from that of last year, has shown some remarkably good prospects for next year's varsity. Altho the most impressive thing about the rats is the pep and fight they have displayed — they have exhibited some real football.

The one who has come into the public view most this season is Jimmy Dennard, the tiny 130-pounder, who has made so many brilliant runs thru a broken field. He was especially good on the receiving end of lateral passes and on end runs. His most sensational runs were against Carolina, in which he took a lateral for 85 yards, and in the Clemson game, where he ran a kickoff back for an apparent touchdown, after taking a lateral down the sidelines.

Another good backfield man, probably one of the best in the state in his field, is June Moore, the genial line plunger. According to local experts, Moore is the best freshman blocker in the state, and he is almost as good in backing up the line. Reynolds, another back, is good on off-tackle and end plays. Then, for great broken-field running we have Morris Ritch, the tiny halfback, who came into his own against Wofford.

It is hard to tell whether the line or the backfield is stronger. In the forward wall there are several outstanding men. Atkinson at one end has been a tower of strength all season. He it was who made the touchdown against Carolina, after Dennard had placed it in position with his long run. Murchison, at guard, has shown his stuff in breaking thru the line so frequently to spill the ball carriers before the play is started. Davis, playing the other guard, also seems to be a good prospective varsity man. Evans, the Bennettsville behemoth, is fast and has the weight at the same time. He ought to go good next year as a varsity linesman.

All in all, it looks like P. C. will not have much trouble next year getting men to fill the gaps left by seniors.

tion at all well. Time and again butter-fingered Calvinists dropped passes shot right into their hands by Holliday's accurate aim; passes which, if completed, would have carried them deep into Erskine territory and into scoring position.

The brightest spot of the game was the marvelous punting of J. B. Jacobs, P. C. halfback. This boy did about as good punting as has been seen in this part of the country in many a day. Not only did his kicks carry far, but often went out of bounds well within the 15-yard line. This fact was mainly responsible for Erskine's inability to get started. The Seceders' punting, on the other hand was not consistent. Twice the Erskine backs kicked high and out of bounds for only five or ten yards, giving P. C. the ball in midfield.

The stars for P. C. in a defensive way were Prather, Correll, Beeman and Shoemaker; in fact, the whole forward wall held up well. On offense Wilbanks and Holliday did most of the work. The latter did some fine line-plunging for short gains, while Wilbanks played one of the greatest games he has ever exhibited in carrying the oval.

For Erskine, the best offensive man was, of course, the diminutive Whitesides. Altho he was placed on the spot by P. C. defensive men, he was still a dangerously elusive back, and broke through the line many times only to be hauled down by the Calvinist backs. Weir, also made some neat gains thru the line.

Erskine's defensive stars were, first of all, Gettys at end, and then Long on the other wing, who teamed up with DePhillips, a back, to make numbers of neat tackles. Gettys broke thru the line several times to spill P. C. backs behind the line of scrimmage, while Long specialized on snagging the punt receiver before he could get going.

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

The military department has just inaugurated a new system of rewarding merit in the corps. From now on, stripes are to be awarded to those men who demonstrate exceptional leadership ability on the drill field, and whose military grades, theoretical and practical, have not been lower than 87% up to the time of the award. White stripes are to be given the sophomores, white and red go to the juniors, and white, red and blue to the fourth-year men. Besides being a good and worthy cause for modest boasting, these colors make the uniform more attractive and unique. Also, these merit stripes put the wearer more conspicuously in the eye of the public, and encourage those who are undeserving to labor in the effort to become adorned themselves.

Now that the first signs of a real winter are beginning to be seen here and there, the thoughts of the military department turn to the most important of all the different phases of intercollegiate sports on our campus—that of R.O.T.C. boxing, also known to the better informed as the annual "freshman slaughter." All freshmen are advised to begin training at once, for the call to gloves is likely to come at any unexpected moment. There should be more casualties this year than ever before, because the freshmen are in greater quantity, and they seem to be less stalwart than any other class in our history. In anticipation of the gory spectacle, upperclassmen are brushing up on their Bronx cheers, and are trying to raise a fund to recompense the doctor who has heretofore offered his services free of charge.

There seems to be some slacking up of the high moral standards of the corps, for, out of a clear sky the P. M. S. and T. announces that he will not leave a package of cigarettes exposed in his car in the future. It seems that these exposed packages vanish, and not in smoke (at least not from the place of deposition). However, in all due justice to the high morals of the military men of the school, it must be stated most authoritatively that certain Home Guards have been seen continuously in the vicinity of the Major's parked car while the soldiers were performing on the drill field. Looks suspicious, and since the Home Guards are in the minority on the campus, as well as being unarmed, they should be more careful on their foraging expeditions.

The biased prejudice of the ignorant Home Guard against the R.O.T.C. was portrayed by the Keyhole in the last issue of this publication in its belittling attacks on the Parade Ground. Because a man (the Kampus Keyholer) is not good enough to make the advanced course, or because his literary abilities fail to win an essay contest sponsored by the R.O.T.C. is no reason for his venting his childish disappointment and chagrin on the tiny yes-sir army man. The Keyhole prevaricates poorly in saying that the military column is not read—a census has definitely proved its popularity, and it might be noted that the Keyhole has come out of the dark ages, out of the black depths of unpopularity, only since it began devoting half its length to the Parade Ground. This military column (now known as the new edition of McIntyre because Mc often employs two words once used by the Parade Ground), "the space filler with the hodge-podge of military information" as the Keyhole says, congratulates said Keyhole, "the space filler of trite vulgarity," upon realizing that turning to the army and the Parade Ground is the truly certain road to public recognition. Otherwise, why these attacks from the dirt slinger? And so the R.O.T.C. columnist returns to his intellectual lethargy with a just pride in having helped a fellow columnist along the road to popularity, and in having influenced this fellow to less lewdness and vileness in the press. Long live a reformed Keyhole!

Dripping of the week-end:

Did you see SHORTY NELMS and his sister going to town on a fast piece Saturday night? . . . The general opinion was that they made a very cute pair . . . BUFFALO BILL CODY also surprised everyone by shagging up a storm with the same girl . . . Another "cute couple" were ALLEN (BAD-EYE) GUERARD and his date . . . They didn't do much dancing, tho; most of the time they hung around the window talking in low tones . . . JAKE PENLAND had plenty of work during the week, gathering up dry cleaning . . . His clarion cry has become a familiar institution now . . . In fact, the other night he awoke his roommate yelling "Royal Dry Cleaners!" . . . GEORGE OLIVER and the writer, not being lovers, of the caliber of such men as Forehand, Upshur, and others, had to be content with letting their dates go back to Winthrop after the Friday night dance was over . . . However, these two claim they had the best on the floor while they were here, at any rate . . . Congratulations are due to E. F. MacLEOD, the diminutive bell-ringer . . . For the first time in history he got a late date with the girl he escorted to the dances . . . A very attractive girl, no less than the author's date, complimented the dancing of every boy she danced with (so far as we can learn) except ROBERT McLEES . . . Which reminds us of a statement Robert made the other day, "I feel like I'm doing some girls a favor when I break on them."

BETA KAPPA FRATERNITY, generally understood to be a quiet bunch, raised quite a bit of old Ned last week-end during the dances. Several outsiders, while passing said fraternity rooms, were very much surprised on seeing the entire crowd, some sitting and other dancing, all with their shoes off. Even BILLY POOLE and SPEEDY ANDREWS were in the merry group.

GRADES FOR MID-SEMESTER SHOW LITTLE IMPROVEMENT

Biology Course Reveals Increase In Number of D's and E's. Math Marks Also Low.

No material fluctuation has been effected in the grades which hit a new all-time scholastic low for the first month. Despite optimistic predictions for a decided improvement in mid-semester cumulative grades, the bulletin board still shows a startling abundance of D's and E's.

Due to the failure of a few professors to post their marks on schedule, the registrar has been unable to compile statistics up to the time of this writing. However, counts have been tabulated in a few courses and are presented as follows: In the first-year biology course only six out of a class of 60 made as high as C. Thus, 90 per cent made D's or E's, as compared with 88.8 per cent for the first month. In genetics, only three of a class of 17 made over D, while in match 1-B the situation was even worse. In this course, taken mostly by freshmen, there were 15 E's and four D's in a class of 23.

It can easily be seen that the math and science courses proved the most difficult. Mid-semester grades in history and English are unusually good, and a scarcity of low grades is evident. English and the other languages are fairly good and practically all the elective courses showed good averages.

Laurens Minister Addresses "Y"

With a large Thursday night crowd in attendance, the Y.M.C.A. presented as its speaker the Rev. J. O. Smith of Laurens. Mr. Smith delivered an unusually beneficial and inspiring message to the group, with a talk based on the theme, "Let's Be Christians Anyway."

The minister pointed out the difficulties of being a Christian because of the deluge of worldly pressure—a pressure that tends to sponge us up as a part of the outer world. Mr. Smith referred to the passage in Philippians: "Saints in the household of Caesar salute you." To salute the saints in the household of Caesar was a difficult task. Those people were Christians.

Some folks do things in spite of all, Mazort, the noted musician, was a great success in spite of his life being made miserable by difficulties. In the face of poverty and misery, Keats attained success in the field of literature.

Mr. Smith stated that three stakes must be driven in: First, we are in for a hard job; second, we must cultivate a Christian independence; third, we must keep fellowship with the first influences.

The speaker's closing thought was that there is a great percentage in being a Christian. "We must be Christians anyway."

Bible Anniversary To Be Celebrated

A celebration commemorating the four hundredth anniversary of the first publication of the English Bible will be held at Presbyterian college on December 13 and 14, it has been announced by the Y.M.C.A. leaders, sponsors of the event. The scope of the celebration will be world-wide and this school will adhere to the general procedure of others groups.

Dr. Dudley Jones is in charge of the plans which are now being formulated. Full particulars have not as yet been divulged, but it is understood that faculty members will be called on to address various student body groups during these two days. Dean Marshall Brown is scheduled to

UNIT MAINTAINS HIGH RATING

R.O.T.C. Cadets Give Performance In Presence of Colonel Catts, Inspecting Officer of Fourth Corps Area.

Presbyterian college's crack Wysor-coached R.O.T.C. corps maintained its high standing by performing admirably in the annual fall inspection held last Wednesday. Colonel Catts, head of the R.O.T.C. in the Fourth Corps area, inspected the local organization in its Wednesday maneuvers and pronounced the review "excellent." The colonel is head of an organization that includes most of the states in the Southeast, a fact which imparts added significance to his complimentary remarks.

In commenting on the unit, Colonel Catts stated that P. C. was the first school he had visited on his present trip in which the men in ranks did not turn their heads and follow him as he proceeded down the line. His tour of inspection has carried him through all the schools in Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia that maintain an R.O.T.C. unit.

The inspecting officer visited the R.O.T.C. office during the morning, and also attended the junior military science class. The juniors gave a demonstration of mounting the machine gun under fire and of overhead fire with this weapon.

In preparation for the visit of the inspector, rifle and uniform inspections were ordered for Wednesday. The cadets gave a fine response by stepping out with flashing raiment. They were requested to wear their uniforms until noon, and in doing so, greatly added to the appearance of the unit as a whole.

Although the official report of the inspection has not been received, it is generally believed that the corps retained the rating of "excellent" given it last year by corps area headquarters.

Few Tennis Rounds Played During Week

Few matches of the intramural tennis tournament have been played off this week. The advent of cold weather makes it likely that the matches will be speeded up greatly in order to finish the tournament.

Outstanding among the week's events was the match between Red Potter and Doug Patton. The match, still unfinished, was stopped on account of darkness a few afternoon's ago, with each man having one set to his credit. Patton won the first set, 9-7, while Potter got the second, 8-6. The latter now leads 5-3 on the last set.

Red Wyatt defeated Shorty Horne in a three-set match, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1.

DEDICATION

This, the junior issue of The Blue Stocking, is respectfully dedicated to the "grand old man" of Presbyterian college—Dr. A. E. Spencer.

Powell Freeman Survives Crack-Up

Plane Demolished When It Hits Steel Cable and Falls In River In Louisiana. Pilot Uninjured.

Powell Freeman, P. C. '34, and a graduate of the U.S. air corps schools at Randolph and Kelly fields, had a narrow escape in a recent crack-up that witnessed the destruction of a $45,000 plane. Freeman, Clinton boy and cadet at Barksdale field in Shreveport, La., was flying on an assignment when his ship crashed into a steel cable and fell into the Red river, 15 miles north of Shreveport.

Fortunately for the cadet flier and his lone passenger, the plane, after springing back from the cable, cut two complete flips and landed right side up in the water. Freeman was knocked unconscious by the tremendous impact of the fast-moving ship and the stationary cable, but he revived immediately upon striking the water, and was able to remove his parachute and escape from the sinking plane. His passenger was clear of the wreckage also, and the plane went to the bottom. The depth of the river was some eighteen feet, and the current was very swift, so the two came very close to being drowned after they had been fortunate enough to survive the crash. Some people on the shore, seeing the dangerous plight of the fliers, came to their rescue in a small boat, picking up the passenger and then Freeman.

The pilot stated that his only qualm was reporting back to Barksdale, for the service does not like crashes, and even less pilots who crash.

The plane was salvaged from the bottom of the river, but the motor was never found. Indeed, everything from the front cockpit forward was wined off.

Freeman, while at Presbyterian, was a talented swimmer, which aided him greatly in extricating himself from this, his latest misfortune. He was an athlete of wide renown, holding among other honors, the state record for the javelin throw. Besides being outstanding in military endeavors here, he has progressed rapidly since leaving this school and entering the air corps. Freeman has many friends here, and his fortunate escape from the crash is welcome news to all who know him.

Charles Steenbergen took down Abe Briggs easily, by a score of 6-3, 6-0. Jacobsen beat Royall and advanced to the second round, score unrecorded.

Two men, Phil Adams and John Hughes, advanced to the next round by virtue of defaults.

WOFFORD OVERCOMES P. C. LEAD BY SECOND-HALF RALLY

Fumbles By Presbyterian Eliminate Scoring Opportunities. Spark Lacking In Second Half, While Spartanburg Outfit Puts On Pressure.

A Presbyterian team playing superb ball in a thrilling first half allowed over-confidence and a determined Wofford eleven to whip out a one-point victory, as the Terriers climaxed their homecoming celebration with a 7 to 6 score over the traditional rival.

P. C., striking with the speed of a coiled cobra, passed its way to the first touchdown of the day before the game was ten minutes old. Correll's recovery of Hawes' fumble on the Wofford 20-yard line put the Hose in scoring distance. A pass, Holliday to Thompson, bounced out of the receiver's arms just short of the goal line. A 15-yard penalty for holding cast gloom over the hopes of the Hose supporters. Then once again the faithful Holliday shot a brilliant forward to Thompson, who leaped high in the air to spear the oval and dash over for the tally.

With the game apparently on ice, Holliday stepped back for the placement try. But the line failed to hold and the kick sailed wide.

For the remainder of the half the fast-stepping P. C. backs gained almost at will through a Wofford line that gave ground like a sieve. On the other hand, when the Terriers took the offensive, the big Blue line held like the proverbial stone wall.

The principal Hose threat for a second score in this half came in the waning moments of the second stanza. A beautiful kick by Jacobs sent the ball out of bounds on Wofford's 6-inch line. Jones stood almost in the end zone and, with a fine exhibition of nerve, booted back to his own 45. But Weldon, playing his greatest game of the year, assisted by the remainder of the backfield and great blocking from the line, swept ends and crashed the line to put Wofford on her heels in the shadow of the goal.

Finally, with fourth down on the marker and the last stripe still five yards away, the Calvinists gambled on a reverse and lost, the entire Wofford line massing to stop the play at the line of scrimmage. Another kick from behind the goal line and the half was over.

We do not say that Jule Carson reminded his charges of the hundreds of old grads shivering in the stands, nor of the fact that their alma mater expected every man to do his duty; but we do say that something happened in the brief period between the halves. It was a growling, snarling Terrier team that took the field, a team that was not to be denied the victory taste.

Up until the third period, Wofford had not passed the fifty-yard line and had failed to register a single first down. Then something seemed to snap. Johnny Graham, standing on his own 48, shot a long heave to Hawes, who was finally stopped deep

Alumni Paper To Begin Publication

Semi-Monthly Newspaper To Be Issued At Early Date. McLees Will Head Staff of Writers.

Announcement was made during the latter part of the past week by Acting President William P. Jacobs of the establishment of an alumni newspaper, "The Alumlite," to be edited by Robert McLees, which will have for its purpose a closer contact between the alumni organization and the college.

The paper, which will consist of four pages and which will be published semi-monthly, will be under the direct supervision of Turk Osman, college publicity director, but written, in the main, by a student staff. President Jacobs will from time to time contribute articles and it is probable that Louis W. Jackson, editor of The Blue Stocking in '28, will contribute a column of alumni news.

The student staff which will supply material for the publication will be headed by McLees. Frances Spratt will carry on extensive correspondence with former students and will supply news of their marriages, changes in business, and like information.

President Jacobs has appointed as other members of the staff, Preston Charles, sports editor of The Blue Stocking and a senior; Joe Patrick, managing editor of The Blue Stocking; and Sadler Love, managing editor of The Collegian. Charles and Patrick will handle miscellaneous news of various kinds, while Love will act as sports editor. All three have worked on one or more student publications since their freshman years.

Although no definite date has been set for the initial appearance of the Alumlite, it is expected that the first issue will be mailed out sometime during the first week in December.

'Y' Social Staged Tomorrow Night

On the night of Tuesday, November 26, the Y. M. C. A. will hold a social for the entire student body in the gymnasium. This is the first social of the year to be presented by the organization to the entire student body.

A lively program of stunts, games and music is in the process of arrangement. Not only that, but eats will be served. President Ernest Arnold expresses the hope that each student will be present with a female hanging on his arm.

The pains and preparation that the Y.M.C.A. are taking to insure the success of this event deserves the commendation and patronage of the student body. A good time is in store for all.

The Missing Ingredient

The purpose of Y.M.C.A. organizations throughout the country is to stress the three-sided development of the growing man. At Presbyterian College the spiritual program is carried out commendably, but there is a decided absence of the social and recreational life that should be associated with such a group. The factor that is lacking, we believe, is a recreational hall. With its establishments students would be brought together in congenial companionship and offered hours of pleasant recreation in a Christian environment. Far better, don't you think, than the present sordid rounds of bull sessions and other unwholesome interests that are so popularly indulged in? The fraternity men are offered social contacts thru their club rooms, but the non-fraternity men have virtually no access to this important phase of college life.

At the University of South Carolina, two or three spacious rooms are set aside for student social and recreational use. Frequent parties and daily participation in various indoor activities go to make the extra-curricular activities of the student fuller and more interesting. At Clemson, there is a splendid recreational hall which is enthusiastically utilized by the student body. P. C. is not nearly so large as Clemson or Carolina and cannot expect to keep pace with these two schools. However, with a million dollar athletic plant, it seems not unreasonable to ask for the enlargement of our social and recreational facilities.

We have often heard students comment on the lack of entertainment on the campus. Their "nothing to do" attitude is justifiable. For years they have beaten a well-worn path to the theatre for lack of anything better to occupy their minds. An adequate recreation room would solve the problem of what to do. Instead of frequenting the theatres, participating in bull sessions, or killing time on the streets up town, many of them would spend their leisure hours in friendly association and activity.

As we have stated, this plan would come under the jurisdiction of the Y.M.C.A. and would be included as one of the functions of the organization. It would add greatly to the Y's influence on the campus, and would no doubt give this body an opportunity to add many new members to its roll. It would also aid in changing the attitude of some students, who regard this organization as a group of religious fanatics.

This recreational hall should include equipment suitable for the playing of billiards, ping-pong, checkers and possibly other such indoor diversions. Then, too, the rooms should be so arranged as to take care of Y.M.C.A. meetings and social functions in the same space.

This is only a suggestion. It is not based on a logical plan—only on a personal desire to see the life of the students at P. C. made fuller, more wholesome and more enjoyable.

Concerning Negroes

Recently, a Negro girl applied for admission into the graduate school of the University of Virginia. The majority of students of the school joined with local newspapers in opposition to her entrance and their efforts were rewarded when her request was refused. This, we feel, was the only sensible action that could be taken on such an outrageous request. However, someone's thoughts run in different channels than those of this exponent of the old South, for an editorial appeared in the columns of the University of Virginia literary publication CRITICIZING the action of the school. Not only that, but its author persisted in making a harsh attack on all who had the faintest belief in SEGREGATION. This self-appointed saviour of the black race was all agog with indignation. He flayed the white man's belief in social superiority; he expressed contempt for those who would deny Negroes the privileges of lodging in the best hotels; he sarcastically condemned those who would deny colored dancers from mingling with their white brethren (and sisters) in dance halls, amusement parks, and theatres.

We aren't going to comment any longer on the gentleman's stirring editorial, but we would like to leave one thought with you. Suppose this young man's sister would accept a date to dine and dance at the William Penn with some dashing young gravy-colored blade from Harlem. Would he feel silly?

HERE AND THERE

Contrary to the general belief, football is NOT the major sport at the University of South Carolina. The major sport at Carolina is—eating. Listen to this: In one day University food-enthusiasts consume 1200 biscuits, 100 pounds of Irish potatoes, 20 gallons of coffee, 100 loaves of bread, 5 gallons of apple sauce and—one cow. If all the cattle partaken of in one year were placed end to end (and cheek to cheek) they would form a line four blocks in length.

Due West, the home of Erskine college, wins the blue ribbon for honesty, indifference, or something. Every day for fourteen years a local store-owner stepped out of his establishment, leaving it wide open, and hied away for a good home-cooked repast. Passers-by had every opportunity to enter, pocket the cash register or a few sticks of peppermint and exit, unobserved. But for fourteen years it didn't happen—not in Due West. Then one day a Charlestonian came to Due West, and entered the store—during the lunch hour—and took something—and spoiled a perfectly good record that had stood—for fourteen years.

THE STUDENT SPEAKS

or
THE ODDS AGAINST PASSING

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Do you take biology, or were you lucky enough to pass everything? Or maybe you take physics. Anyway, it is the responsibility of every student to discover for himself why there were so many failures in certain subjects on the mid-semester reports.

If you took biology, the odds were 9 to 1 that you would make no higher than a D. Out of a class of 59 there were 28 E's, 25 D's, 3 C's, and 3 B's. This does not include those who may have dropped the course. Congratulations, professor! Now if you took genetics you had a cinch. The odds were only 5 to 1 that you would make a D or an E, there being one B and 2 C's out of a class of 16. Gentlemen, I give you "Ha'vhard"!

Now, let's cook awhile. Suppose you had a yen for physics. I won't spot you any points, but odds of 3 to 1 against your making above D would be good betting, even if you don't play the slot machines. A total of 18 E's, 50 per cent failure, 9 D's, 8 C's, and one lonely B complete the bright picture. But our young electricians were even more brilliant. Orchids to Presbyterian's candidate for Rhodes scholarship honors who, besides being the only member of the class of five to make above D, came through in fine style to chalk up an A!

We could go on like this for several other classes, but suffice it to say that the odds in mathematics 1-B were 4 to 1 against making above a D. Only lack of space prevents us from naming other instances.

Now, what are we going to do about it? We know what the faculty is going to do about it. Who said "nothing"? We leave you to draw your own conclusions.

The word "anonymous" always savors a little of cowardice. However, discretion is still the better part of valor. The name of the author or authors of this letter may be obtained from the editor of this issue.

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Three years ago a great contribution was made to P. C. thru the purchase of individual mail boxes for the use of students rooming on the campus. The alleged advantages of the mail box system over the old method (giving the mail out indiscriminately at the canteen) were that (1) mail was much safer then before, and (2) students could get their letters more conveniently. Now, however, it seems as if the situation is very little better than before. The system of distributing mail at present is a marvel of inefficiency. Every day after chapel a huge crowd is gathered at the mail boxes, and if one wishes to get to his box before the 9:10 class he must be a healthy specimen of humanity or he will probably be left 'out in the cold again." This rush would be greatly relieved if the mail were put in the boxes before chapel. In this way non-military students could get their mail before chapel. Then, after chapel the military men could obtain their letters with a much smaller crowd to wade through.

The question one naturally asks is "Why is this not done now?" The answer is that it was done last year for several months, but the military authorities complained that men coming in from drill too frequently stopped and got their letters as they came in from drill, thus delaying the chapel formation. Consequently this practice was discontinued. Apparently the R. O. T. C. has lost control of its building soldiers and cannot in any way prevent them from stopping for the daily sugar report. However, it would seem to the writer that a few well-chosen words inscribed on a "head slip" would curb the willfulness of those who insisted on disobeying orders in such a case. Ignorant as I am of military methods, it does seem to me that the army should be able to control its members at least that well. Another way in which the mail organization has been showing unusually well its inefficiency is in the irregularity that characterizes the sorting of mail in the afternoon. It would be a great convenience to the student body to have mail ready for them every day immediately after dinner, so that they could go straight to the mail boxes on their way back from dinner, thus saving an extra trip by the gym. But as it is admistered now one can never depend on the mail's being put up at any set time. Thus a person may have to make two sometimes three trips before he can get his mail.

The answer made by one of the students assigned to this job was, "I can't have the mail put up by dinner time, because I have a class just before then." If the three men who have scholarships for this job cannot get it done at the most convenient time for students due to conflicts in class schedules, then the college administration should assign some who have no such conflicts to do the work. This accomplished, some one in authority should see that it is done at a regular time—not in that same slipshod method that has always been characteristic of this duty.

Not only is the mail put up in a careless manner but also one is not at all certain of getting his mail safely. On Sundays when the mail is brought from the postoffice it is handed out indiscriminately. With such a system in use there is a strong likelihood that someone's mail will be lost or stolen. The practice of giving out mail to anyone, whether it is his or not is altogether indefensible and should be stopped.

The changes suggested in this letter are not merely changes that I myself have dug up after long hours of concentration, but they also have been mentioned by number of other students. I therefore feel that if the conditions are remedied in the way suggested the student body will be greatly benefited.

Citadel Game Writes Finis To Gridiron Careers of Eight

SPORT SHOTS

— By —
SADLER LOVE

Three days from today Presbyterian's Blues go up against a team that has proven itself in spite of early season scores, to be one of the outstanding football machines of the state. Citadel's surprising upset in holding Clemson to a one-touchdown victory marks the Bulldog as a more than serious opponent, one even to be reckoned with than the 1934 aggregation which spoiled a fine P. C. Thanksgiving dinner just one year ago Thursday.

In addition to having numerous lettermen to pick from, Coach Tatum Gressette has been fortunate in having a wealth of material to draw from last year's championship freshman team. Although many of these sophomores have proven that they decidedly are not varsity prospects, enough good men have come through the sifter to form the nucleus of a powerful first and reserve outfit.

Any prediction as to the outcome of the game seems to this writer to be nothing more than a mere guess because the attitudes of the players at game time Thursday cannot be known in advance. Naturally, the fighting spirit of a team is not the sole factor in winning games, but it is one of the strongest factors that enters into the battle. Fighting spirit in Charleston's Thanksgiving day classic may not win the game but it will be worth a couple of good quarterbacks.

Although it is the general policy in the college dining hall to serve chicken on Sunday, we believe that a tender Bulldog steak, seasoned with one or two touchdowns, would cause little unfavorable comment next week.

But win, lose, or draw, there will be eight men Thursday who will be wearing the Blue for their final college football performance. Each of these men has been considered a "regular," or first-string man.

In the center of the line, Captain Shorty Horne will be singing his swang song and turning in his final performance as one of the scrappiest and lightest linesmen who ever played for P. C. Pudge Plowden, playing just beside Horne at the guard post, will join in the refrain, as will Soupy Millsap at tackle, and the two ends, Joe Bradley and Roy Forehand.

In the backfield, "Goof Holliday, Rex Wilbanks, and Robbie Higbe also will be taking the last curve. Holliday, great passer and plunger and one of the most dependable men on the team; Wilbanks, one of the best punters in the South, and Higbe, broken-field runner de luxe — these men will be taking their final bow.

Even though the varsity season is not yet over, campus interest is already beginning to center around the annual army-home guard classic. In spite of the fact that neither team is ever in even what might pass for fair condition, this battle has always been packed with thrills.

Already there are rumors that supporters of both teams are offering 2-to-1 odds and spotting as many as 10 points. With the army defending a championship of long standing and the home guard determined to put the well-known finger on the Major's boys the approaching free-for-all may hold almost anything in store.

In conclusion, the guest conductor of this column wishes to state as follows: The winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy will come from the Citadel squad, a boy by the name of Andy Hall. Take it away, Penrod.

Frosh Basketeers Are Taking Shape

Waldrep Has 18 Candidates At Work In Pre-Season Training. Stressing Fundamentals.

The freshman cage candidates, practicing daily in the gym, are coming along at a rapid rate, and should take definite shape in the very near future.

Coach Frank Waldrep has 18 candidates working under his tutelage, and with experienced men to compete for each position, expresses optimism in regard to the approaching season. Although none of the aspirants have had the chance yet to prove their ability, word has it that there are several real stars in the flock.

Waldrep is at present stressing fundamentals, especially defensive tactics and dribbling. Other phases of the game will be touched on later. The schedule for the 1935-6 season has not been fully arranged as yet, but will include practically all frosh teams of the state in addition to textile and independent fives within the Palmetto boundaries.

The complete list of those seeking berths on the team are: Forwards—Ben Christian, Ches McAdams, Dick Pugh, Hunter Jones and Clements. Centers—Lester Holden, Louis Folley, Pete Holcombe and Billy Royall. Guards—Charles Kimbo, Duncan McRae, Bill Bouton, Phil Heatherly, Moffat Wylie, Frank Booth, Coleman, Clements and Pearson.

Home Guard-Army Game In Offing

No Definite Date Selected For Annual Encounter. Only Two Teams Will Take the Field.

The annual R.O.T.C.-Home Guard football classic will be staged in the very near future, although the selection of coaches, date of playing and other particulars have not been announced at the time of this writing.

The R.O.T.C. eleven will be selected from the unit as a whole this year. This is a departure from the method used last year, which entailed the formation of teams from each company. The militarists will no doubt be strengthened considerably by this change.

Members of the varsity football team serve as coaches and the team representation will be made up from students who have never received letters for the sport. However, one man who received his freshman numeral will be allowed to each group.

This contest promises to rival the one of last year in thrills, spills and excitement, and enthusiastic student interest is assured.

Rumor says that any girl latedating GEORGE OLIVER would take knitting along. That assertion was proved false Saturday night.

CITADEL GAME ENDS SEASON

Thursday's Contest In Charleston To Bring Curtain Down On 1935 Gridiron Show.

EIGHT P. C. MEN WILL APPEAR LAST TIME

Captain Horne, Higbe, Holliday, Wilbanks, Bradley, Forehand, Plowden, Millsaps In Final Appearance For Hose.

P. C.'s Blue Hosemen ring down the curtain on a fairly successful grid campaign when they meet Citadel's Bulldogs in Charleston Thursday. Eight seniors make their farewell appearances in a game that will send one of the two elevens a little higher in the state standing.

The Cadets, boasting a strong, balanced aggregation with ample reserve material, will be favored to carry off top honors. Claude MacCrendie, sensational halfback, and Andy Hall, blocking back, are the main cogs in a smooth backfield. Their paths will be cleared by a star-studded line of proven ability.

P. C.'s outfit will enter the game optimistic and determined, and with the whole-hearted support and confidence of a spirited student body. The spotlight will be focused on elusive little Robbie Higbe, carrying the Presbyterian colors for the last time. Rex Wilbanks and his talented toe and the potential play of "Goof" Holliday will no doubt figure in the P. C. offensive.

In the line, Captain Shorty Horne, Joe Bradley, Pudge Plowden and Forehand, closing brilliant careers, will be counted on to give their best. Captain Shorty is a leading contender for all-state pivot honors and really deserves the honor.

Bradley has held down his end with consistent brilliance throughout the season. Soupy Millsap, all-S.I.A.A. tackle, is the remaining senior who will call it a day after this season. His bulk and ability will be called on before the battle is over.

Many P. C. students, confident of a victory for their team, will travel down to the city by the sea for the Turkey day spectacle. The entire Citadel student body is expected to attend, and add color to a spirited affair.

Boxing Progresses At Slow Pace

Only Handful of Candidates Report For Training. Four Veterans Available.

With only a handful of candidates training, and no talented material in view, preparations for the approaching boxing season are progressing at a disappointingly slow pace. Cappelmenn, Gillis, McClary and Pittman are the only veterans available, and one or more of these may not offer their services.

It is probable that the football team will furnish a few able men at the conclusion of the grid season, but this is not definite. The graduation of Seagle, McCaskill, Clark and Bolick left the pugilists without a stable framework on which to build a team, and Cappelmann and Gillis seemed to be the only dependable men left.

Among those who have drawn equipment and are practicing are Cappelmann, Cranford, Wandell Williams, Penland, Latimer, Gillis, Evans and Clements.

The Final Fling

When P. C. and Citadel line up against each other in Charleston Thursday, eleven of the twenty-two players will be representing their alma maters for the last time. With the completion of the game, seven Hosemen and four Bulldogs will write finis to their gridiron careers. Robbie Higbe, Rex Wilbanks and Goof Holliday in the backfield, and Shorty Horne, Joe Bradley, Pudge Plowden and Roy Forehand in the line, are the Presbyterians who will take their final fling.

Prediction

Citadel 13, P. C. 7.

Up and Coming

Next year's varsity eleven will be strengthened by the graduation from freshman ranks of Atkinson, Holcombe, Moore, Dennard, Culp, Davis, Reynolds, Horne, Murchison, Lambright and others of definite varsity calibre. A strong 1936 aggregation is in the making.

The Basketeers

The entire varsity first team will be lost through graduation after the coming season, but a score or more of talented freshmen are working hard to fill their shoes in 1936-37. Practically all the Anklets are experienced men with commendable high school records.

ALL OF WHICH GOES TO PROVE— YOUR GUESS IS AS GOOD AS OURS

"Pit" Bird, the rotund Don Juan of P. C.'s junior class, was in the same predicament that many of us find ourselves during the month just before Christmas. He had a girl. That, in itself, was all right. But Pit's particular trouble was this: altho he did have a girl he did not have the necessary cash with which to purchase her a suitable Christmas gift. Unless something happened between now and Christmas he would be forced to dig into his well-worn jeans and produce a clump of currency equal to the price of a nice gift for a young lady.

Finally, after hours of concentration, he evolved a simple plan that has been used not once but thousands of times before in similar cases. He would quarrel with the girl who, by the way, showed signs of waning interest in the Columbia purveyor of hot...

His plan was this: He would meet his regular standing date for Sunday night with her and would then proceed to give her all manner of "heck," to use a more or less polite expression. This would serve to obviate the necessity of buying a present and would therefore help to save the Bird family fortunes from depletion. Of course he could not keep his plan to himself. He immediately related his idea to a group of bull-sessionists nearby. Among the group was a sharp-eyed freshman, who listened with rapt attention.

Into the group wandered The Blue Stocking's Keyhole columnist in search of choice tid-bits of material for his allegedly salacious strip. On seeing him, the loquacious Bird, who has a great flair for the unusual, got an idea as to how he could elaborate on his plan. "You come with me tonight," he said to the columnist, "and I'll give you the biggest scoop you ever had for that column of yours." The journalist, with a ready nose for news, promptly agreed.

With the bull-shooting upperclassman still going full force, a freshman, Davis by name, quietly left the room and went away to the phone. He got the number and said, 'Hello, Louise . . . " and he related the tale of the proposed plan of Mr. Bird. The young lady was immediately projected into a state of high temper. "That — — — — (indicating words no lady should use) I'll fix him." Then she outlined her plan.

Early that evening two figures stepped up on the front porch of a certain house in Clinton. A lady came to the door. "No," she answered, "Louise is sick, and can't see a soul. I'm sorry."

The two men turned disappointedly away. Stopping downtown, they went by the Alpha Kappa rooms, hangout of Bird and several of his cronies. The columnist, however, wended his way back to his home dormitory.

As he entered the room one of his fraternity brothers said, "Say, Pit, I thought you had a date tonight."

"I did, but she was sick and could not see anybody," was his faltering reply.

"Sick nothing," one of them replied, "I'll bet she stood you up."

"No she didn't. Her mother said she was sick," he retorted hotly.

No one had noticed that, with the lights turned low, two figures had slipped into the room only a moment before. "Look over there, Pit," one of the boys suddenly yelled. Bird turned his head. There, standing in front of him was Louise, hanging on the arm of the grinning Freshman Davis.

Let us draw the curtain over the ensuing scene. Suffice it to say that Pit Bird and our Keyhole columnist are now room-mates in a tiny cell (padded) of a well-known Columbia institution, the former because of the shock he experienced, and the latter because he muffed the biggest scoop of his collegiate career.

TERRIERS COME BACK TO TRIP HOSEMEN

in Hose territory on the 20-yard marker. The next aerial burst, again from Graham, exploded just out of reach of P. C.'s Robbie Higbe, just across the goal line and into the waiting arms of Hendley, Wofford end.

With the score now deadlocked, 6-6, rangy Bru Anderson, Terrier quarter, calmly kicked the winning point. And so Wofford crossed over into the promised land.

Twice in the final period the Blue line strengthened to stop touchdown thrusts, once on the 18-yard line and again on the 28. Two heart-breaking fumbles by Presbyterian's backs, one on Wofford's 20, the other on the 25, spelled the end of last quarter rallies that might have snatched the game out of the ashes of defeat in true story-book style.

The brilliant playing of Glenn Beeman was one of the chief highlights of the game. The scrappy P. C. guard proved himself one of the most aggressive, hard-fighting, and determined linesmen who ever smashed through to break up a play before it got under way. Beeman, Horne, and Bradley—the last two playing their final up-state game—were the shining satellites of the spotty Hose defense. Of the backs, Weldon and Holliday seemed most outstanding.

Snake-hipped Cecil Hawes and the alert Bru Anderson were constant threats in the Wofford backfield. Both contributed their part toward making the second half a nightmare for the Blue line. Graham's passing and Jones' kicking were also worthy of note.

Dr. Brimm will talk to a grouping of all the freshman Bible classes, and Professor Swedenberg to the sophomore English students. A more complete account of this significant event will be published later, and it is hoped that the anniversary will be carried out to a successful conclusion.

Students Protest U. S. Participation In Olympic Games

(By Associate Collegiate Press)

Madison, Wis.—Opposition to United States' participation in the 1936 Olympic games to be held in Berlin is being strongly voiced by college editors throughout the country in spite of an announcement by the American Olympic Association declaring definitely for entrance, an Associated Collegiate Press survey reveals.

It is considered likely, however, that the mass of American students, and particularly, of course, student athletes, are in favor of participation. Prevailing opinion is that those groups opposed to U. S. entrance are the most articulate.

Columbia University has been one of the leaders in the movement to keep American athletes out of the games, and a number of student councils have adopted resolutions against participation.

"The storm of protest that has greeted the decision to hold next year's Olympic games in Berlin," says the Long Island University student paper, "is a tangible reminder that the American people will not remain silent in the face of—mistreatment of a religious minority. Nazi protestations to the contrary are believed by the reports in the press of continued persecution of Jews, Catholics, and discontented minority groups. It is ridiculous to suppose such persecution, an integral part of that the Hitler regime will forego its fascist regime, simply because it has to play host to a few hundred athletes."

The Daily Princetonian disagrees. According to this paper, the announcement by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, that the United States will positively enter the games "comes as a satisfying relief to intelligent Americans who feared that bigoted political prejudices and old world hatred might muster force enough to make the country's entrance a matter of bitter controversy."

"The sportsmen of this country are unanimous in their desire to enter the games and will not tolerate the use of clean American sport as a vehicle to transplant the bitter feelings, engendered in this country by

Local Men Form Dramatic Group

Dramatic aspirants met in a group of encouraging proportions last Friday night, with the purpose of organizing a dramatic club. The name, "Sock and Buskin," which was used by an earlier group on the campus, was proposed and accepted. A committee composed of R. C. McLees, H. M. Wilson and Charles Steenbergen was appointed to discuss and select some play of recognized merit that might warrant the time and labor which such activity will entail. The club sets as its goal equality of recognition as a student activity with the glee club. Membership will be determined not only by talent but by unselfish interest. This phase of extra-curricular activity has been somewhat neglected for the last two years, and it is hoped that the "Sock and Buskin" club will prove a permanent and valuable addition to the list of honorary groups.

"Should Roosevelt Be Re-elected?"

(By Associate Collegiate Press)

College students along with millions of other American citizens are being asked to express their opinion on the question "Should Roosevelt Be Re-Elected?" by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, newspapermen who are using their radio program Washington Merry-Go-Round of the Aair to conduct the first large scale radio poll on a matter of vital national interest.

The poll began Satrday evening, November 23rd and will continue for four weeks marking the first attempt to use radio for securing such an expression of opinion.

Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen who rose to national prominence with their provocative book, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," revealing political goings-on at the nation's capitol, are heard Tuesdays and Saturdays over the Mutual network, (WOR, New York, WCKL, Detroit, WGN, Chicago, WLW, Cincinnatti), at 7:45 P. M., E. S. T., and 6:45 C. T. S. The poll is being conducted with strict impartiality by the Gruen Watch Company, sponsors of Washington Merry-Go-Round of the Air, and has no connection with any of the manouvers being carried out by campaigning political parties. Political circles, however, are watching it with interest to reveal the way the wind will blow in 1936.

During the four weeks, the two reporters will present the pros and cons of the question reviewing the accomplishments and failures of the Roosevelt regime.

Listeners-in who wish to express more than just a yes-or-no opinion to the question will be invited to submit their answers in a letter of a hundred words or less. Each week the two commentators and Mrs. Luella S. Laudin, Executive Secretary of the National Women's Radio Committee, will select ten of the best anwsers, five affirmative and five negative, to receive prize awards of Gruen watches.

P. C. Plans For Night Games Here

Announcement has been made by Walter A. Johnson, director of athletics at Presbyterian college, that night football will be featured at Johnson field next year. At least four home games are planned, he has stated, Oglethorpe, Wofford, Erskine and The Citadel, all of which may be played at night.

P. C. will open Clemson's schedule as usual at Clemson and the following week will go to Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech. Newberry will be played at Newberry, with negotiations under way for games with Furman and Mercer.

It is expected that the night games here will be played on Friday in order to avoid Sautrday conflicts with other games in this section.

Trophy Awards Here Tuesday

Grid Blocking Winners Will Be Announced At Banquet. Program To Be Broadcast.

Clinton, S. C., Dec. 3.—Tuesday night, December 10, at seven o'clock, coaches, athletic directors, sports writers, officials and followers of football will gather at Presbyterian college to honor the Jacobs Trophy winners for 1935.

The program will be one of the most outstanding sports events ever offered in South Carolina and will bring the attention of the South and nation to Clinton.

Speakers for the occasion will be H. J. Stegeman, athletic director of the University of Georgia and Wade Ison, sports editor of The Charlotte News.

Governor Olin D. Johnston will be an honor guest at the banquet and make a brief address.

The program of speeches and awards will be broadcast over WFBC of Greenville from 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock so as to give football fans in the South an opportunity of listening in on this sport treat.

The winners of the Jacobs' Trophies will be announced this week and will be in Clinton for the night of awards.

This year beside the winner of the South Carolina Trophy will sit the winners from the Southern and Southeastern Conferences. The event will take in the complete South and invites the interest of all the players, coaches and fans of Dixie.

Throughout the fall in three conferences players have unselfishly given their ability so that a teammate could score the touchdown and gain the glory. This is a time when the man who paves the way, the "blocker," gets his reward.

Mr. Jacobs gives a large cup on which is engraved the name of the player who won it. The cup goes to the school of the player to remain a year. The cup, a beautiful piece of art, has engraved on the face, "For Unselfishness and Finest Exemplification of Teamplay." The player personally is given a gold medal, with the figure of a man "taking out" a tackler from in front of the ball carrier. On it is engraved "Most Valuable."

The South Carolina trophy, by a happy coincidence, now rests in the Presbyterian college trophy case, the college of which Mr. Jacobs is now acting president, and of which he also is an alumnus. Harry Bolick, all-state

DR. BRIMM HAS BIBLE PRINTED IN 1840; ALSO THE POLYGLOT

(By Robert C. McLees)

"Four centuries have passed since the printing of the first English Bible." For the past few weeks, that and similar statements have been repeated to the point of redundancy—through repetition they have lost their meaning and interest. Perhaps if Dr. Brimm of the Presbyterian faculty could be prevailed upon to place on display during Bible week a volume from his collection of old editions, it would be clearer to the average student why such importance is attached to the translation into English of the Bible, and the priceless boon thereby bestowed upon the 16th century reader whose "small Latin and less Greek" had hitherto rendered impossible his reading of the scriptures.

It is probably the most unique volume in his library. Printed in 1480, it is the third edition of the Latin Bible executed by Francisci de Hailbrun, in Venice. It offers an excellent example of the difficulties faced at that time by one eager to read, yet no deep scholar: its two-column page is set up in beautiful but almost unreadable small gothic type, rather resembling modern German characters; the Latin of its text is abbrovisted in a manner fit to make a physician green with envy, past master though he is at the art when applied to the writing out of prescriptions in clipped Latin—for instance, "nomina" without warning becomes "noia."

Some monkish scribe long gone to dust painstakingly painted the initial letter in each chapter in red or blue, in the space left by the printer for each purpose. Each biblical book begins indiscriminately wherever the last book ends; Exodus begins in the middle of a column. Only the Prologue and the book of Genesis sport initial letters decorated in more than one color, containing real gold leaf.

Technically speaking, it is an "incunabulum"—that is to say, as the Latin word meaning "birthplace" has become specialized to denote, it is a specimen of the printer's art done prior to 1501.

Thomas Pettigrew in 1827 knew of a copy of this Bible in the collection of the Duc de la Valliere. Whether it was the identical one in the possession of Dr. Brimm will never be known, for its handsome handtooled whole calf binding is not the original, and it consequently contains no signatures.

Dr. Brimm also has a set of the famous "Republican" edition of the Polyglot Bible—so-called because its editor, Brian Walton, published it in 1657 during Cromwell's period. The editions after the restoration of Charles II lost this unique title.

The enormous volumes contain in parallel columns the text of the Bible in seven Semitic tongues—Samaritan, Chaldaic, Arabian, Persian, Ethiopian, Greek, and the Latin Vulgate. In that day, all type was set by hand. It must have necessitated a type-setter with at least the equivalent of a seventeenth century Ph.D. and as for proof-reading, Bedlam, the famous old English madhouse, probably had on its list of "charter members" proof-readers of the Polyglot Bible.

THE CITADEL DOWNS HOSEMEN, 18-7, IN SEASON'S FINAL GAME

Home Guard-Army Game Comes Soon

The R. O. T. C.-Home Guard football classic, like prosperity, is just around the corner. Both squads have already begun practice and are taking definite shape. Rex Wilbanks and Shorty Horne are coaching the militarists while home boys are being put through their paces by Frank Waldrep.

The date of the big contest hasn't been decided as yet, but will be played sometime next week. Among those who will suffer broken bones for the army are Potter, McClary, Cavin, Jacobsen, Coulter, Phil Adams, Wardlaw, C. Steenbergen, Langston, Blackwell, Wannamaker, Todd, Frowein, Stanton and others.

The home guards will offer such satellites as Silent Don Tuten, Doug Patton, Stupe Buchan, Al Walter, Jake Penland, Will Wallace, Sadler Love, Thomas Estes, C. Jackson, Gasque and others. It is rumored that Preston Charles, powerful fullback, may offer his services to this group.

Last year the military group won, and with an impressive list of candidates to choose from, are expected to repeat this year.

Male More Polite Than Female

(By Associate Collegiate Press)

Columbus, Ohio—The average male student is so much more polite than the average co-ed that it's far from funny.

According to the standards of good manners laid down by the Emily Posts of the land, young women should smile and whisper "thank you" in response to small favors. Maybe some young women do, but co-eds do not, at least they don't at Ohio State.

An ambitious and curious young man at that school stood beside a much used door last week and opened it for everyone who approached.

Only two out of every 15 co-eds said "thank you" for the favor, while only one out of every 15 men neglected to do so. Most of the co-eds, the experimenter reported, seemed to feel that the door was opening of its own accord, probably in deference to their beauty.

Cadets Outclass Presbyterians In First Half. Stockings Come Back With Pass Attack.

The Calvinists from Presbyterian college closed their season with the annual Thanksgiving Day classic in Charleston as they went down before the blue-clad team of Citadel cadets, by a score of 18 to 7. The Presbyterians were outclassed during the first half but they came back strong in the third quarter to score through aerial maneuvering.

The Citadel had things pretty much their own way during the first half as they battered their way through the P. C. line for two touchdowns. The first period began with an exchange of punts, Citadel having a strong wind behind them. The exchange gave the soldiers the ball on their own 47. Then Ferguson, Citadel's fullback, tore through right tackle on a spin play for 27 yards. From this point Ed Hall took it to the 10 and McCredie cut through tackle for the score. Later in the period the Hose were the victim of bad breaks to give Citadel the ball near the P. C. goal, but their forward wall stopped Citadel on the four and nine yard markers.

During the second quarter the Citadel got possession of the ball on P. C.'s 37 yard line after intercepting a pass. Ferguson and McCredie alternated in toting the oval down to the 3 yard line, after P. C. had drawn a 15 yard penalty. Then Hall carried it over for the score.

During the last few moments of the second quarter the Hose unleashed a strong attack, and it was only tough luck that prevented the Stockings from making a score at this juncture. The Calvinists had driven down the field and had the ball almost on the goal line. Unable to gain by rushing, the Hosemen took to the air on the fourth down. Holliday flipped a fast one to Forehand who unfortunately fell backward instead of forward as he was tackled and downed on the 2-foot line. There Citadel took the ball on downs.

With the count 12 to 0 against them at the half the Blue Hose came back in fine style during the third quarter. Frank Holliday, who has been outstanding all season for accurate aerial heaves, turned loose a barrage of passes that well nigh enveloped the Citadel secondary defense. The Hose marched down to the vicinity of the 10 yard line with their aerial gains, but there they were stopped by a blue line that held like steel.

After this drive the Hosemen again knocked at the door of touchdown territory, but they were again foiled as they reached the 8 yard line. Interspersing short passes with magnificent running by Thompson and Higbe, the Garnet and Blue all but put the ball over. Again, however, they were foiled in their touchdown attempt by fine Soldier defense work.

As the third quarter waned P. C. took the ball on their 47. The pigskin hurled by the accurate arm of Holliday, shot through the rain and mist that covered Johnson Hagood stadium, and settled 40 yards down the field in the outstretched arms of Joe Bradley, the tall P. C. left end. After hauling it down out of the ozone, he scampered 6 yards more before he was dragged down by the Cadets' safety man, placing the ball on Citadel's 7 yard stripe. Bradley then made 2 on an end-around-end play. Two more line plays netted three yards, and on the fourth down the entire P. C. line surged forward as one man and as the Bulldog linemen were pushed back of their goal Bill Thompson followed them over for a touchdown. On the following play Captain Bill Horne booted the ball squarely between the goal post to put P. C. up in the fray at 12 to 7.

After this the Hose driving power petered out and was no longer in evidence for the remainder of the game. In the final quarter the Bulldogs took the ball after the wind had blown Jacobs' punt back to the 39 yard line. McCredie ripped off 11 at center, and then 5 and 9 on two more plays, putting the ball on the P. C. 11. Three more short ones carried it to the 1 yard line. Then Horne and Shoemaker, at guard positions, slammed Mc-

The Case For the Editor

Several weeks ago we published an editorial in which we advocated the formation of a committee for the purpose of nominating men to edit the three publications of this campus—The Blue Stocking, The Collegian, and The Pac-Sac. Since its appearance we have heard several comments on it which make us feel that a further and clearer statement for the "defense" is necessary.

The plan suggested was, you will remember, that a committee be made up of two members of the staffs of each of the publications, three members of the student body who have never taken active part on either the business or editorial staffs of any of the publications and who will be selected by the staffs of the three organs, and two faculty members also selected by the staffs. Each of these eleven men were to have equal votes and were to pass upon the names submitted to them. The staffs of the publications would continue to make the regular staff nominaitons and other names would be given this committee, through the mail, addressed to the man chosen as chairman. The nine student members of the group would be seniors.

The plan was submitted in an honest attempt to combat the fraternity politics and friendship voting that have, several times in the past, proved such a menace to the publications. This plan does not prohibit voting for a fraternity brother, nor does it attempt to prohibit it. It would insure all votes, fraternity, friendship and otherwise from being cast for a man who was incapable of efficiently running the office to which he was elected. It would, in no way, destroy fraternity spirit or stop worthy fraternity ambition. It would merely make certain that this spirit and this ambition was not misdirected.

It has been said that such a plan will take from the student body a part of its rights, that it is undemocratic. It will, of course, take from the student body the right to nominate its literary leaders, but they will retain the right of selecting them from those named. AND EVERY MAN WHO WANTS THE OFFICE AND HAS SHOWN THAT HE IS CAPABLE OF HOLDING IT DOWN WILL BE ASSURED OF A NOMINATION. AND THE STUDENT BODY WILL BE ASSURED THAT ANY MAN WHOM THEY VOTE FOR IS, IN THE OPINION OF THOSE WHO ARE IN A POSITION TO KNOW BEST, A MAN SUITED TO THE JOB.

Our national government is run on a party system that nominates men and only allows the common man to select from those nominated. Is there any reason why this part of our student body should not be run on a similar plan? The right to vote even on those nominated by a committee is denied the student body of most institutions. A look over the past will show that there have been times when the denial of this right to the students of Presbyterian College would have been a benefit to them.

Let us forget selfish pride and that manifestation of an inferiority complex which is vehement and instantaneous disapproval of any plan either good or bad that appears to steal away our rights, and, seeing the actual good that would be derived from this plan, proceed to put it into immediate effect. The time is drawing near!

"To Keep the Vision of the Ideal . . ."

How many members of this student body, both freshmen and seniors and all the ranges between, are unable to say what they wish to do when school is finished and life has begun? We don't know but we are fairly certain that it is over fifty percent.

The freshman enters college without an aim in view. He intends to chose one "when he has become better acquainted with life." And in a pathetically large number of times, he reaches the quiet dignity of a senior with his head in just as much of a whirl as it was when he wore the verdant mantle of a rat. And in waiting to become better acquainted with life he wastes valuable time, money, and knowledge.

To realize the truth of this you have but to look at the arts student who in his senior year decides to study medicine and finds that he lacks some twenty hours of required sciences, or the science student who after years of floundering about finds that literature and writing are his best bets and has forty hours of science and twelve of English.

Both of these are, we will admit, rather radical examples, but both of them have happened. Pathetic but unavoidable, you say. Pathetic, but by no means unavoidable. The thing that made the senior arts man decide on medicine was present, though hidden, when he chose arts. The same thing that made the science student realize that literary work was his field was lying dormant all the time that he was boring over the atomic theory and Newton's laws of gravity. Careful, thoughtful, and honest self analysis in their freshman years would have set them right.

Have we decided what we shall do? If we haven't then it is high time that we did.

A Dead Man Prays

Thirty years ago Mark Twain, beloved giant of American letters, wrote the "War Lord's Prayer," with instructions that it be published only after his death.

"I have told the whole truth in that prayer," he said, "and only dead men can tell the truth in this world. It can be published after I am dead."

Here's his prayer:

"O, Lord, our God, help us to tear apart their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale forms of their patriotic dead; help us to drown the thunder of the guns with the groans of the wounded, writhing in pain; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; help us to wring the hearts of their unoffending widows with unavailing grief; help us to turn them out roofless with their little children to wander unfriended through wastes of their desolated land in rags and hunger and thirst, sport of the sun flames of summer and the icy winds of winter, broken in spirit, worn with travail, imploring Thee for the refuge of the grave and denied it—for our sakes, who adore Thee, Lord, blast their hopes, blight their lives, protract their bitter pilgrimage, make heavy their steps, water their way with their tears, stain the white snow with the blood of their wounded feet. We ask of One who is the spirit of love and who is the ever-faithful refuge and friend of all that are sore beset, and seek His aid with humble and contrite hearts. Grant our prayer, O Lord, and Thine shall be the praise and honor and glory, now and ever. Amen."

College Press

It has been interesting to watch the antics of the collegiate press throughout America during the past three or four years.

A nation-wide thirst for new topics which may be used as the editorial policy of hundreds of newspapers has been revealed. Through the channels of bold-face editorials, clipped exchanges, and policy news stories, college editors have taken up with their cohorts and bound themselves together in a united front.

We daresay that in half the cases the local editor realizes that his campus is not good ground for his new-found policy. Nevertheless, his use of this policy is significant for this reason: he is beginning to feel that the youth of America is united at last and is working en masse toward some sort of goal.—Daily Tarheel.

STUDENT OPINION

REPLY TO " '37"

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

I read with disapproval the letter signed " '37" in the junior issue of The Blue Stocking. I have never had classes under either of the men who were attacked in it, and therefore am in no position to either attack or defend them from the standpoint of facts.

However, the writer of the letter was taking a very unfair advantage of the gentlemen in question. He was a student using the student publication to express his views, which was but his right. However, the men whom he was attacking were members of the faculty, and for that reason unable to "talk back." I am sure that the columns of your paper are open to a reply by either or both of them and I am equally sure that neither will make one. Their very position forbids their entering an argument with the student body on their grade system. Rightly, or wrongly, they must remain silent.

Therefore, while I am certain that the writer of the letter intended in no way to be unfair, had he carefully thought the matter over he would have realized that he was placing himself in the position of a boxer who strikes a man that is down.

—" '38."

MORE COOKING AND FISHING A SEQUEL

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Last week we told you about the odds against passing certain subjects. This week we will tell you who is to blame.

There is always the possibility that a letter of this sort is inspired by ill feeling because of failure to pass. The writers of these letters, there are two of us, have been found deficient in no subjects on the mid-semester report. We comment simply because we strongly feel the injustice of paying $405 to $445 per year to receive D's and E's.

Now whose fault is all this—the D's and E's? There are three possibilities: (1) mentally deficient students; (2) outside interests, and (3) incompetent instruction. There are, of course, students at P. C. who are incapable of college work. But we do not feel that, using the biology class as a standard, 90 per cent of this student body is deficient. As for number 2, there were outside interests in '34 year. Are these any greater this year? Now as for the matter of incompetent instruction—this being the only one of the three not eliminated—we are not so sure. We will even go so far as to state that there are professors on this campus who are incapable of holding the attention of a class, and, furthermore, are incapable of inspiring any desire to learn.

We realize that beyond the shadow of a doubt the student is to some extent responsible—responsible as long as a reasonable majority of the class makes a satisfactory grade. But when professors are entirely unreasonable, refuse to be reasoned with in regard to assignments and grades, and continue to give tests to undergraduates that would be more in place in a graduate school, then we say that something is definitely wrong with the professor.

Are these the facts, or have we distorted them? If these are the facts, what are we going to do about it? After the sacrifices that we have made, and that have been made for us, are we not entitled to professors that will give us our money's worth?

If we are, and you admit the above facts to be true, then what is a student government for?

(Signed)—'37-2

Without a Word of Warning

He roamed around in dreary gloom,
He spoke; but got no answer;
They knew his face but acted like
He had a case of cancer.

He couldn't understand how he,
The flashy football hero,
Was getting such a cold reception—
It lingered about zero.

He wandered o'er the playing field,
Big tears fell on the clover.
And in a flash he understood—
The season was now over.

Victory Formula

A few Mill saps with big Hipps . . . a couple who have Plowden fields . . . a quartet of hackbacks who can travel like Birds . . . a Shoemaker or two . . . Be sure they have had experience be-Forehand . . . Tell the referee to blow his Horne . . . and after the game give them a well-deserved Holiday.

Little Big Shot

Jimmy Dennard, flashy little speed merchant, rates football second among his sport loves. Track is number one. Maybe it's because he holds the Florida state high school record, and is a capable dash man.

Optimistic

P. C. students have already decided that Junie Moore, brilliant Anklet fullback, will take the Jacobs blocking trophy next year. And why not?

Concerning Predictions

Predicting is rapidly becoming our most popular indoor sport. Football season was an incentive for sports writers, students, drugstore quarterbacks, chiropractors and convicts from coast to coast to indulge in this puzzling pastime.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

J. B. Penland, it has been learned, calls himself J. D. Benland on certain occasions when he wishes to keep his identity secret. It seems recently, however, as if he is even more secret about his nightly activities in the vicinity of Clinton.

Last year he went out often during the evenings without his friends knowing anything definite about whom he was courting, but this fall he has been forced to go through much more dissembling in order to fool the public. Only a few nights back we had an example of the lengths to which he will go in order to keep his friends from learning what maid has captured his attention.

About 7:30 of the evening spoken of the low slung journalist started out of his room with the remark, "Well, I guess I'd better go out and get some dry cleaning," (speaking of his well-known business, that of drumming up trade for the Royal Dry Cleaning establishment). He, of course, did not know that his roommate had taken note of the fact that he had shaved just after supper (and that during the middle of the week). Consequently, his roommate and the writer were well-prepared to make due investigation of the evening's activities.

As Penland stalked out of the room headed for an evening of amorous activities he did not head immediately for the home of the girl. That would make it too easy for him to be trailed. Instead he walked up the hall a bit and yelled, "Royal Dry Cleaners!" a couple of times in order to throw his roommate off the track. Then he tiptoed toward the other end of the hall and starter out back of Spencer dormitory toward Calhoun street.

His roommate, the kinky-haired Cab Blackwell, was ready for him, however. Calling the writer to follow him, he went out of the dormitory and followed at a safe distance.

Now, thought the two, we'll find out where he goes at night. But they did not know, until too late, that the wily Penland had still another ace up his sleeve. As they rounded the turn from the path which leads back of Spencer to Calhoun street they looked up and down but their man was nowhere to be found. They hesitated, trying to decide which way to go in search of the quarry.

As they stood there, trying to decide what to do, a high-powered car shot out of its parking place near Broad street. As the automobile whizzed by the two lonely-looking figures they distinguished the blond Romeo's smirking countenance as he sat in the back seat. The others could not be distinguished, but the two were certain that they heard a girl's voice as the car passed them. The forlorn-looking pair watched the shiny new looking auto as it turned to the right up Adair street and disappeared from sight. Thus they again were foiled in their attempt to learn the facts about his nocturnal amours.

When Penland returned to his room that night his friends quizzed him as to his whereabouts during the evening, but to all he maintained a respectful silence.

Here and there on the campus:

ED (SPEEDY) ANDREWS, heretofore a very studious young man, has thrown aside his books and is talking Plato and Aristotle these evenings with a studious young lady. Recently he cut her picture out of last year's annual and put it inside his watch case. The watch immediately stopped.

It has only recently come to light that a young lady from Coker came up to the pledge dances minus a bid, but she managed to get an escort thru the aid of some boy friends here at P. C. STUPE BUCHAN finally got the late date he tried unsuccessfully to make last year when the same girl was here on another man's bid.

JAKE PENLAND stayed over for Wednesday night before the Thanksgiving holidays and went down to Newberry for the evening. Come on, Jake, tell us who she is—and if possible have her up for the next dance.

TOM UPSHUR, the smooth blond Lothario, is evidently plenty of power. One very attractive girl, who hails from Florence, by the way, succumbed to his attractions enough to give him a late date Saturday of pledge dances. The significant fact about this is that certain others asked her for late dates before our Mr. Upshur arrived on the scene, but she turned them down with the excuse that she was "not making late dates."

In one of the many fraternity arguments that comes up in almost every bull session, a student changed the letters of one brotherhood around a bit and dubbed it "Pi Kappa Bottle." The nickname has stuck and is fair to supercede the old name.

P. C. FRESHMEN CLOSE SEASON

Win Two Out of Five and Run Up 71 Points To 55 For Opponents In State.

When a group of shouting freshmen unceremoniously pitched Manager Marx and Coach Waldrep into the college pool, they officially terminated the 1935 frosh football schedule. This spirited little rite marked the end of an interesting and successful five-game schedule. Looking back over the season's record of games won and lost, the Anklets' accomplishments may seem unimpressive, but their performance has actually been praiseworthy and deserving of the pride of the school. While the rats have won only two games out of the five, they gave excellent account of themselves in every contest. They ran up a season score of 71 points while the opponents could score but 55. This favorable balance indicates to some degree the consistent and dependable playing of the freshmen.

In their opening game against the Carolina frosh the Anklets were nosed out 7-6. The Presbyterians played the highly favored Biddies off their feet for most of the game. On defense especially the P. C. freshmen shone. Murchison and Davis earned great commendation for their work and pep during that game. In this opening tilt the need of a good punter became apparent. This weakness which has bothered the freshmen the entire season practically cost them their first game.

The following week the Anklets downed the Newberry rats 26-0. It was in this game that the P. C. pass attack, which functioned well all year came into its own. The combination of Reynolds to Atkinson proved especially effective.

The heaviest defeat of the year probably reflects the greatest credit upon the rats. The 28-6 victory of The Citadel was a matter of a scrapping, spirited team overpowered by a superior squad. The show of fight and spirit of the Anklets, however, more than made up for the unbalanced score.

The Clemson game was a series of bad breaks. The Tiger Cubs scored twice on blocked punts to down the P. C. frosh 20-7. The serious handicap of bad kicking overbalanced the hard running of Reynolds and Dennard and the blocking of Moore.

In the final game with Wofford the Anklets cut loose with their most colorful exhibition of football. Working smoothly and determinedly the rats ran up a score of 26-0. Every phase of the attack was functioning perfectly and the line was almost impenetrable. Atkinson, Boswell, and Evans charged through the Wofford line to spill the ball-carriers on numerous occasions.

The record made by the freshmen is not as important as the demonstration of fight and spirit which they gave the school. Outweighed in nearly every contest the Anklets fought all opponents down to their size. Clean, hard playing in the face of bad breaks of the Clemson game is greatly to the credit of the spirit of the team.

The squad this year can boast several outstanding players. It would not be rash to make the statement that most members of the team will see service on the varsity next year. Moore, who captained the frosh squad is one of the best blockers in the state. His dependable playing was one of the strongest point in favor of the team. The backfield had speed and power in Lambright, Reynolds, and Dennard. Many a varsity team would have been glad to have Atkinson holding down one of their flanks. Murchison is due a lot of praise for his work in the line and for his ability to give a team some of his spirit. There is no member of the team who hasn't handled his assignment well, and Coach Lonnie should be congratulated on turning out another of his fighting freshman outfits.

SPORT SHOTS

THE BULLDOG VICTORY

To many P. C. supporters the game with The Citadel was the proverbial "last straw." The poorest season in years, featured by a loss to Wofford, was climaxed by a two-touchdown loss to the Cadets. Of course the scoring record for the season puts P. C. in a rather unfavorable light, but let's look below the surface a bit and learn the real facts behind this last game.

The Citadel undoubtedly did not outplay the Blue Hose as much as the score would seem to indicate. In this game the Calvinists were confronted by the same trouble that had bothered them from the beginning of the season. Yes, we all know what that trouble was—inconsistency.

P. C. never did get started during the first half, but when they did get going how they clicked! The passing game of P. C.'s team during that third quarter was just what it should have been all season. Three times these Blue Hose swept down the field to the 10-yard line, but only once did they carry it over the goal line. Here the spectators got a glimpse of the REAL P. C. team, and what it was really capable of doing.

At any rate,, The Citadel, though playing its best game of the season, was not actually two touchdowns better than the Blue Stockings. Considering everything, P. C. should have scored another time and The Citadel should not have scored but twice, had it not been for breaks.

This analysis of the Citadel game is not offered as an "alibi" to prove that P. C. won the well-known "moral victory." The above remarks are made only to be of some comfort to those fans who did not think the team capable of real football.

EIGHT SENIORS LEAVE VACANCIES

The 1936 team will have many good men missing from the line-up when it takes the field next fall.

Four men will be lost to the starting forward wall, both ends and both guards. Horne, who plays both center and guard consistently well, will be hard to replace, as will Plowden, Beeman, however, will probably be one of the best in the state next year, judging by his performance to date, so that the team will not suffer for someone to fill one position, what with Julien Freeman and Vic Correll also fighting for the job. To take Captain Horne's position at center we have Johnny Hutchinson, who, it is hoped, will be completely recovered from the back injury that kept him out for practically all the past season.

The two end positions will be harder to fill than the guards, but Allen McSween and Ralph Waldrep, supported by Holcombe and Atkinson of the freshman team this year, are calculated to take care of anything that may happen in their respective sectors.

Millsap will be gone at tackle, but Collings, Prather, Hipp and Shoemaker are steady and reliable at this important post.

The backfield will have a gap left by the loss of three starters, Frank Holliday, Rex Wilbanks and Robbie Higbe. Their places will be filled from the best of several others, including J. B. Jacobs, a triple threat back; Coon Weldon, who runs off-tackle and around end; Bill Thompson, a fine field general; Bill Degner and Jeff Boland, halfbacks; and others coming up from the rat team such as June Moore, Lambright, Reynolds and Ritch.

Taken altogether, the prospects for next year are very favorable.

The entire Citadel team played good consistent ball, contrasting with the rather spotty playing of P. C. The best players for the Citadel line were Lowe, at guard, Miller at center and Manley on end. The backfield honors for the Bulldogs were carried off by McCredie, first of all, and then the two Halls and Ferguson.

P. C.'s brightest star, and easily the best lineman on the field, was Glenn Beeman, the small but sturdy and shockproof guard. This boy was in almost every play, whether it came in his territory or not. Also good in the line were Joe Bradley and Roy Forehand, ends, and Captain Horne, guard. As for backfield stars, Holliday, Thompson and Jacobs exhibited great ball all the way through.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Y. M. C. A. Will Lead Commemoration Exercises At Sunday Morning Worship Hour.

Dr. Dudley Jones, chairman of the religious activity committee of Presbyterian college, has announced that the college will sponsor a comprehensive program of Bible study this week.

The program is in connection with the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the printing of the complete bible in the English language.

The program will begin on Friday, December 13, and extend through the 14th and 15th.

Various members of the faculty will take a class period to discuss some feature of the Bible and its relation to the work of his department.

H. E. Sturgeon, professor of chemistry, will talk on "The Bible and Chemistry."

Dr. F. W. Cook, professor of physics, will tell how the Bible affected the lives of some eminent scientists.

Dr. S. M. Huntley, professor of French, will discuss French translations of the Bible.

Dr. A. E. Spencer, professor of French, will have as his topic, "The Manuscripts Behind the English Bible."

"Y" Delegation At Winthrop Service

Presbyterian Students Give Program At Rock Hill School. Quartet At Chester Church.

A delegation from the Presbyterian college Y. M. C. A. visited Rock Hill over the week-end to conduct a service Sunday night for the girls of Winthrop. The delegation was composed of Ernest Arnold, Wandell Williams, Buck Patterson, and the college quartet. Arnold, as president of the Y. M. C. A., conducted the service in the Winthrop chapel. Williams and Patterson assisted him in the program, the quartet rendered two selections which were enthusiastically received by the college girls.

Sunday morning the quartet sang at the Chester Presbyterian church whose pastor is Dr. John McSween. Dr. McSween was president of Presbyterian college for seven years. He resigned last summer to resume active ministry at Chester. The quartet which is a part of the college glee club is composed of Jim Collins, first tenor; Harris Gray, second tenor; John Hinton, baritone; and Hubert Wardlaw, bass. With the exception of Hinton, who is a freshman and a new member of the group, the quartet is the same that toured with the glee club last season and earned so much praise throughout the State.

NOMINATIONS MADE MONDAY

Candidates For Student Council and Class Offices Determined. Elections Come Next Monday.

At a meeting of the student body of Presbyterian college held Monday morning, nominations were made for the freshman member of the student council and for officers of the freshman class.

According to the constitution of the student body, the council is composed of three seniors, three juniors, two sophomores and one freshman. The positions for the upper classes were filled by elections held last March and the freshman councilman is to be chosen from the group nominated in the student body meeting this morning.

The student council nominated for the freshman vacancy, W. H. Shamhart, John Bonner and Chester McAdams. From the floor Wise, Black, St. John, and Walter Smith were nominated. Several of the students may be struck from the list due to withdrawals and fraternity regulations. The entire student body votes for the councilman in an election to be run off December 16. A majority is necessary for election and, in case no one gets that required vote, the contest will be run off between the two highest.

In a freshman class meeting which followed the student body gathering, nominations were made for class officers. The election will be held simultaneously with the council selection but with freshmen alone voting. The selection will be made from the following nominations:

President: Morris Rich, L. H. Taylor, Paul Moore, Harry Shamhart.

Vice-President: Pete Holcomb, C. T. Kimbo, J. M. Hiers, James Dennard.

Secretary: Hunter Jones, W. A. Smith, D. H. Reynolds, D. W. Davis.

Treasurer: Ed Lambright, R. F. Black, James Haffley, H. C. Pugh.

Poet: D. W. Davis, R. B. Murchison, D. M. Carson, T. M. Bethea, C. Bluffkin.

Historian: P. M. Clement, W. W. Evans, R. L. Boswell.

THE COLLEGIAN OUT SOON

The winter issue of The Collegian, the school literary magazine, is ready for publication, George Oliver, editor, says he hopes to have it in the hands of students before the holidays.

CLUB PREPARES FOR FIRST TRIP

Glee Club and Orchestra Open 1935 Program Here, Followed By Week's Tour.

Facing a fast-approaching trip, the Presbyteian college glee club is attempting to put the final touches on its program after several weeks of intensive practice. There has been quite a lot of work in drilling the new men, of whom the seconds tenors and baritones have the majority. The season is expected to be a good one by Dr. S. M. Huntley, the director, but there are still quite a few rough spots that must be polished off.

The program consists of twelve ensemble pieces, seven or eight solos (both vocal and instrumental) and selections by the quartet, double quartet, mountain music quintet, and orchestra. Especially fine at rehearsal last Saturday were the bass solos of Herbert Wardlaw, talented sophomore bass; the two numbers by the quartet and one by the double quartet, both under the direction of Harris Gray.

The orchestra, under the direction of Paul Harmon, already has made a name for itself. It expects to contribute a group of eight numbers, composed of popular tunes of the day and those which have been the favorites of the dancing audiences.

The first engagement is in Clinton tonight at the Thornwell chapel. On Thursday, the 12th, after classes, the first trip away from Clinton will be taken to Union for a night performance. On Friday, the 13th, there is a morning program at Clover and a night engagement at Columbia college in Columbia, where the club will spend the night, returning to Clinton Saturday.

The next week the club leaves on the 16th for a trip to Limestone college for a night engagement. The next night the club will perform at Cheraw. On the 18th, there is a probable morning program at Hartsville, with a night performance at Summerton. The last presentation, as the itinerary now stands, is on the morning of the 19th at Manning.

In an interview this morning, Dr. Huntley stated that he was not pleased with the progress shown by the organization as compared with the last three years' products. His hope is that the members will exert themselves, for he says that their ability is unquestioned, but htat they are as a whole simply "not putting out," especially the new men. He even intimated that the club's trip will be postponed if satisfactory improvement is not shown in the quality of tonight's performance.

Army-Home Guard Game Wednesday

Period of Preparation Nears Its Close As Intramural Contest Approaches. Interest High.

War clouds are rolling as the day of the annual battle between the Guardiers of the Home and Uncle Sam's soldier boys draws near. Or maybe they are dust clouds caused by the hard working gridmen of the two groups who are pushing to be prepared for the all-important contest, which takes place Wednesday afternoon.

Evidence points toward a close, hard-fought game this year. One would certainly place himself on the end of a limb if he predicted a victory for either team.

When asked to make a statement about his team, Coach Wilbanks replied, "The Army has always taken the Home Guard and I see no reason why we shouldn't this year. We have a wealth of material and the coordination of the squad is excellent." The army offensive will be led by the veterans, Guerard, Adams, and Gillis.

I.R.C. SENDS MEN TO LEAGUE MEET

Model Assembly Held At Winthrop College During Week-End. Charles Honorary Head.

Seven Presbyterian college delegates attended the seventh annual Model League of Nations Assembly held at Winthrop college under the joint sponsorship of the International Relational club and the Debaters' league on last Friday and Saturday. These men were preston Charles, Hugh Holman, Alva Tuten, Tom Newland, Robert McLees, Edgar Stanton, and Douglas Patton.

The Friday sessions were given over almost entirely to extempores, impromptus, after dinners, and debating. The P. C. delegation, due to the fact that public speaking and debating do not begin here until the second semester, did not enter any of these contests. The debating was on the Pi Kappa Delta question of whether the congress of the United States should have the right to overrule a decision of the supreme court by a two-thirds majority.

Mr. Gaw, of N. C. State college, won the extempore and the impromptu. Miss Marguerite Zeigler of Winthrop won the after dinner. Mr. Jordan, of the University of South Carolina, won the debating, with Miss Virginia McKeithan, of Winthrop, second. Miss Green, of Appalachian, won the peace oration.

On Saturday came the regular League of Natoins assembly. Here, P. C. took an active part, representing six countries, and making several floor addresses. The principal discussion was on the Italo-Ethiopian situation. Holman, of P. C., was in the minority in championing Italy's cause. Preston Charles was elected honorary president of the group and gave a detailed address of the difficulties facing the league.

The principal colleges of this and adjoining states attended, the farthest removed being Farmville State Teachers college of Virginia, and Carson-Newman of Tennessee.

Plaxico Calls For Yearbook Pictures

Tom Plaxico, editor of the 1936 Pal Saf., asks that all sportout pictures for the yearbook be handed to him not later than January 4th.

The pictures must measure 8x10 inches and must be glossy print. Only best pictures will be accepted.

This date has been chosen in order that those who have sponsors in the book may get the pictures when they go home for Christmas.

BANQUET WILL BE FEATURE OF PRESENTATION

Cups and Medals To Be Delivered To Best Blockers In Three Football Conferences.

SHIVERS, OF FURMAN, IS SOUTH CAROLINA WINNER

Many Notables To Be Here For Ceremonies. Program Will Be Broadcast Over WFBC.

The presence of an unanimously-chosen all-American football player at the Jacobs blocking trophy banquet Tuesday evening has given the banquet an added interest.

Riley P. Smith, quarterback of the University of Alabama team, an all-Southeastern and Associated Press all-American choice, won the Jacobs trophy in the Southeastern conference. He will be present at the banquet to receive the trophy accompanied by Frank Thomas or some other member of the Alabama coaching staff. Smith, one of the nation's outstanding gridsters was easily first choice to receive the first trophy awarded to the Southeastern conference by Jacobs.

The Southern conference award went to Herman P. Snyder, blocking back of the North Carolina university team. Snyder was an outstanding blocker who was unanimously chosen in the balloting of that conference. He was co-captain of this year's great Tarheel team. Snyder will be at the banquet accompanied by Coach Snavely or some other member of the athletic staff.

The South Carolina trophy was won by Jack Shivers, guard, of Furman. This is the first time the award has been won by other than a backfield man. This is a recognition due the great work of Shivers which won for him all-state honors in addition to the Jacobs trophy. Shivers will be at the banquet accompanied by Coach McLeod and others from Furman.

These three men not only play for Southern teams but they are all Southern boys. Smith is a senior in college and hails from Greenwood, Miss. Snyder is a senior and lives in Monroe, N. C. Shivers, a sophomore, which is ominous for future trophy aspirants, lives in Griffin, Ga.

The banquet at which these men will receive their rewards for "unselfishness and teamplay" will be at 7:00 o'clock in the Presbyterian college dining hall. Prof. H. E. Sturgeon of the college faculty and Rotary club will be toastmaster.

H. J. Stegeman of the University of Georgia, will be one of the speakers. He is one of the nation's outstanding athletic figures and serves on the national football rules committee. Wade Ison, sports editor of The Charlotte News and well-known in athletic circles of the country, is the other speaker. Governor Olin D. Johnston will be present as an honor guest and will make a brief address to the group. A large group of notable figures has been invited to attend the banquet. It is assured that the athletic staffs of the South Carolina colleges will be present and representatives from other schools in the conferences will attend. The Presbyterian college football squad will be guests of Mr. Jacobs.

The Jacobs trophy awards, first in South Carolina affair, will draw the attention of a good part of the nation to Clinton and South Carolina Thursday when coach Wallace Wade's Duke Blue Devils meet Coach Jack Meagher's Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets in the annual and second trophy game.

The banquet will be broadcast from the dining hall over station WFBC of Greenville, from 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock, and gives every fan a chance to listen in on the significant an dout-standing athletic meeting.

Dr. A. E. Spencer, professor of French, will have as his topic, "The Manuscripts Behind the English Bible."

Dr. D. J. Brimm, professor of Bible, will address the entire freshman class on Bible history.

Dr. Dudley Jones, professor of psychology, will talk on "Some Psychological Terms in the English New Testament."

Dr. M. G. Woodworth, professor of English, will discuss "The Bible and Its Influence on English Literature."

H. T. Swedenberg, professor of English, will use the same topic, "The Bible's Influence on English Literature."

Dr. J. H. Workman, professor of education, will use "The Bible in Education" as the theme of his classroom talk.

Willard L. Jones, librarian, will place a special Bible exhibit in the library and distribute literature on the celebration.

The class hours on December 13 and 14 will be used by the professors for these discussions.

On Friday, the 13th, Dean M. W. Brown, professor of history, will speak at a special chapel hour on the subject, "The English Bible and Culture."

On Sunday, December 15, the students of Presbyterian college, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will climax the series of events with a program to be put on at the First Presbyterian church in Clinton.

As special features of this service, Frank Johnston of Jefferson, Ga., will speak on "The English Bible and the Wonder of Its Circulation." Colin Hudson of Greenville, will speak on "The English Bible and Our Daily Speech." Richard Potter of Atlanta, Ga., will use the theme, "The Great Book and the Great Men." Ernest Arnold of Sylacauga, Ala., president of the Y.M.C.A. will speak on "The Book and Our Spirit."

The purpose of the study and commemoration program is to give thanks to God in private and public

"Y" Delegation At Winthrop Service

Presbyterian Students Give Program At Rock Hill School. Quartet At Chester Church.

A delegation from the Presbyterian college Y. M. C. A. visited Rock Hill over the week-end to conduct a service Sunday night for the girls of Winthrop. The delegation was composed of Ernest Arnold, Wandell Williams, Buck Patterson, and the college quartet. Arnold, as president of the Y. M. C. A., conducted the service in the Winthrop chapel. Williams and Patterson assisted him in the program, the quartet rendered two selections which were enthusiastically received by the college girls.

Sunday morning the quartet sang at the Chester Presbyterian church whose pastor is Dr. John McSween. Dr. McSween was president of Presbyterian college for seven years. He resigned last summer to resume active ministry at Chester. The quartet which is a part of the college glee club is composed of Jim Collins, first tenor; Harris Gray, second tenor; John Hinton, baritone; and Hubert Wardlaw, bass. With the exception of Hinton, who is a freshman and a new member of the group, the quartet is the same that toured with the glee club last season and earned so much praise throughout the State.

NOMINATIONS MADE MONDAY

Candidates For Student Council and Class Offices Determined. Elections Come Next Monday.

At a meeting of the student body of Presbyterian college held Monday morning, nominations were made for the freshman member of the student council and for officers of the freshman class.

According to the constitution of the student body, the council is composed of three seniors, three juniors, two sophomores and one freshman. The positions for the upper classes were filled by elections held last March and the freshman councilman is to be chosen from the group nominated in the student body meeting this morning.

The student council nominated for the freshman vacancy, W. H. Shamhart, John Bonner and Chester McAdams. From the floor Wise, Black, St. John, and Walter Smith were nominated. Several of the students may be struck from the list due to withdrawals and fraternity regulations. The entire student body votes for the councilman in an election to be run off December 16. A majority is necessary for election and, in case no one gets that required vote, the contest will be run off between the two highest.

In a freshman class meeting which followed the student body gathering, nominations were made for class officers. The election will be held simultaneously with the council selection but with freshmen alone voting. The selection will be made from the following nominations:

President: Morris Rech, L. H. Taylor, Paul Moore, Harry Shamhart.

Vice-President: Pete Holcomb, C. T. Kimbo, J. M. Hiers, James Bennard.

Secretary: Hunter Jones, W. A. Smith, D. H. Reynolds, D. W. Davis.

Treasurer: Ed Lambright, R. F. Black, James Haffley, H. C. Pugh.

Poet: D. W. Davis, R. B. Murchison, D. M. Carson, T. M. Bethea, C. Bluffkin.

Historian: P. M. Clement, W. W. Evans, R. L. Boswell.

THE COLLEGIAN OUT SOON

The winter issue of The Collegian, the school literary magazine, is ready for publication. George Oliver, editor, says he hopes to have it in the hands of students before the holidays.

CLUB PREPARES FOR FIRST TRIP

Glee Club and Orchestra Open 1935 Program Here, Followed By Week's Tour.

Facing a fast-approaching trip, the Presbyterian college glee club is attempting to put the final touches on its program after several weeks of intensive practice. There has been quite a lot of work in drilling the new men, of whom the seconds tenors and baritones have the majority. The season is expected to be a good one by Dr. S. M. Huntley, the director, but there are still quite a few rough spots that must be polished off.

The program consists of twelve ensemble pieces, seven or eight solos (both vocal and instrumental) and selections by the quartet, double quartet, mountain music quintet, and orchestra. Especially fine at rehearsal last Saturday were the bass solos of Herbert Wardlaw, talented sophomore bass; the two numbers by the quartet and one by the double quartet, both under the direction of Harris Gray.

The orchestra, under the direction of Paul Harmon, already has made a name for itself. It expects to contribute a group of eight numbers, composed of popular tunes of the day and those which have been the favorites of the dancing audiences.

The first engagement is in Clinton tonight at the Thornwell chapel. On Thursday, the 12th, after classes, the first trip away from Clinton will be taken to Union for a night performance, On Friday, the 13th, there is a morning program at Clover and a night engagement at Columbia college in Columbia, where the club will spend the night, returning to Clinton Saturday.

The next week the club leaves on the 16th for a trip to Limestone college for a night engagement. The next night the club will perform at Cheraw. On the 18th, there is a probable morning program at Hartsville, with a night performance at Summerton. The last presentation, as the itinerary now stands, is on the morning of the 19th at Manning.

In an interview this morning, Dr. Huntley stated that he was not pleased with the progress shown by the organization as compared with the last three years' products. His hope is that the members will exert themselves, for he says that their ability is unquestioned, but htat they are as a whole simply "not putting out," especailly the new men. He even intimated that the club's trip will be postponed if satisfactory improvement is not shown in the quality of tonight's performance.

Army-Home Guard Game Wednesday

Period of Preparation Nears Its Close As Intramural Contest Approaches. Interest High.

War clouds are rolling as the day of the annual battle between the Guarders of the Home and Uncle Sam's soldier boys draws near. Or maybe they are dust clouds caused by the hard-working gridmen of the two groups who are pushing to be prepared for the all-important contest, which takes place Wednesday afternoon.

Evidence points toward a close, hard-fought game this year. One would certainly place himself on the end of a limb if he predicted a victory for either team.

When asked to make a statement about his team, Coach Willianks replied, "The Army has always taken the Home Guard and I see no reason why we shouldn't this year. We have a wealth of material and the coordination of the squad is excellent." The army offensive will be led by the veterans, Guerard, Adams, and Gillis.

Donor Of Trophies

W. P. Jacobs, acting president of Presbyterian college and donor of the blocking trophies to be given at the banquet Tuesday night.

I.R.C. SENDS MEN TO LEAGUE MEET

Model Assembly Held At Winthrop College During Week-End. Charles Honorary Head.

Seven Presbyterian college delegates attended the seventh annual Model League of Nations Assembly held at Winthrop college under the joint sponsorship of the International Relational club and the Debaters' league on last Friday and Saturday. These men were preston Charles, Hugh Holman, Alva Tuten, Tom Newland, Robert McLees, Edgar Stanton, and Douglas Patton.

The Friday sessions were given over almost entirely to extempores, impromptus, after dinners, and debating. The P. C. delegation, due to the fact that public speaking and debating do not begin here until the second semester, did not enter any of these contests. The debating was on the Pi Kappa Delta question of whether the congress of the United States should have the right to overrule a decision of the supreme court by a two-thirds majority.

Mr. Gaw, of N. C. State college, won the extempore and the impromptu. Miss Marguerite Zeigler of Winthrop won the after dinner. Mr. Jordan, of the University of South Carolina, won the debating, with Miss Virginia McKeithan, of Winthrop, second. Miss Green, of Appalachian, won the peace oration.

On Saturday came the regular League of Nations assembly. Here, P. C. took an active part, representing six countries, and making several floor addresses. The principal discussion was on the Italo-Ethiopian situation. Holman, of P. C., was in the minority in championing Italy's cause. Preston Charles was elected honorary president of the group and gave a detailed address of the difficulties facing the league.

The principal colleges of this and adjoining states attended, the farthest removed being Farmville State Teacher's college of Virginia, and Carson-Newman of Tennessee.

Plaxico Calls For Yearbook Pictures

Tom Plaxico, editor of the 1936 PaC-SaC, asks that all sponsor pictures for the yearbook be handed to him not later than January 4th.

The pictures must measure 8x10 inches and must be glossy print. Only bust pictures will be accepted.

This date has been chosen in order that those who have sponsors in the book may get the pictures when they go home for Christmas.

BANQUET WILL BE FEATURE OF PRESENTATION

Cups and Medals To Be Delivered To Best Blockers In Three Football Conferences.

SHIVERS, OF FURMAN, IS SOUTH CAROLINA WINNER

Many Notables To Be Here For Ceremonies. Program Will Be Broadcast Over WFBC.

The presence of an unanimously-chosen all-American football player at the Jacobs blocking trophy banquet Tuesday evening has given the banquet an added interest.

Riley P. Smith, quarterback of the University of Alabama team, an all-Southeastern and Associated Press all-American choice, won the Jacobs trophy in the Southeastern conference. He will be present at the banquet to receive the trophy accompanied by Frank Thomas or some other member of the Alabama coaching staff. Smith, one of the nation's outstanding gridsters was easily first choice to receive the first trophy awarded to the Southeastern conference by Jacobs.

The Southern conference award went to Herman P. Snyder, blocking back of the North Carolina university team. Snyder was an outstanding blocker who was unanimously chosen in the balloting of that conference. He was co-captain of this year's great Tarheel team. Snyder will be at the banquet accompanied by Coach Snavely or some other member of the athletic staff.

The South Carolina trophy was won by Jack Shivers, guard, of Furman. This is the first time the award has been won by other than a backfield man. This is a recognition due the great work of Shivers which won for him all-state honors in addition to the Jacobs trophy. Shivers will be at the banquet accompanied by Coach McLeod and others from Furman.

These three men not only play for Southern teams but they are all Southern boys. Smith is a senior in college and hails from Greenwood, Miss. Snyder is a senior and lives in Monroe, N. C. Shivers, a sophomore, which is ominous for future trophy aspirants, lives in Griffin, Ga.

The banquet at which these men will receive their rewards for "unselfishness and teamplay" will be at 7:00 o'clock in the Presbyterian college dining hall. Prof. H. E. Sturgeon of the college facuity and Rotary club will be toastmaster.

H. J. Stegeman of the University of Georgia, will be one of the speakers. He is one of the nation's outstanding athletic figures and serves on the national football rules committee. Wade Ton, sports editor of The Charlotte News and well-known in athletic circles of the country, is the other speaker. Governor Olin D. Johnston will be present as an honor guest and will make a brief address to the group. A large group of notable figures has been invited to attend the banquet. It is assured that the athletic staffs of the South Carolina colleges will be present and representatives from other schools in the conferences will attend. The Presbyterian college football squad will be guests of Mr. Jacobs.

The Jacobs trophy awards, first a South Carolina affair, will draw the attention of a good part of the nation to Clinton and South Carolina Tuesday when such well known figures as Jack Shivers, Herman Snyder and Riley Smith receive their personal and school trophies.

The program will be broadcast from the dining hall over station WFBC of Greenville, from 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock, and gives every fan a chance to listen in on the significant an doutstanding athletic meeting.

Needed: A Victory March

Presbyterian College can feel justly proud of having her own distinctive and different "Alma Mater." Our schol song, written by a P .C. man, is truly ours, since it was written for P. C. and is not just an altered version of the "Alma Mater" of some other college. We think it would be well if the school could have its own pep song and victory march. For years a revised and applied version of "On, Wisconsin!" has served this purpose. "Onward, P. C.!" makes a very serviceable march, but why can't Presbyterian College have her own pep song as well as a distinctive "Alma Mater"? It is true that "Onward, P. C.!" is well known in the state and that it is accepted as the Presbyterian battle song. We also grant that it would be difficult to introduc a new tune and still more difficult to get it accepted unless it were unusually good. Still, it would be worth the effort if such a song could be obtained.

There are a number of good musicians in the school, several of whom confess aspirations in the direction of original composition. If a son of P. C. could write an "Alma Mater," certainly there is talent enough in the present student body to give birth to an original and distinctive song for the school victory hymn. Perhaps all our hidden genii need to bring them out into the open is some encouragement. Anyway, we should like to suggest that some of the honorary fraternities take this subject under their wings. If one of these organizations would sponsor a contest with a view of finding a new song, it would be doing much to help the school. It's worth trying.

A New Name — Again

Many students and interested alumni have expressed the opinion that the school would be benefitted if it had a more definitely distinguishing name than Presbyterian College. Whenever there has been any movement towards the finding of a new name, the supporters have been unanimous in insisting that the letters "P. C." must be retained. Those two letters have come to stand for a great number of high ideals, and the school would lose greatly if it forfeited entirely the name upon which it has built up a reputation. The advocates of renaming the school have endeavored to find a dignified and fitting title which will retain the initial letters we now use. It is generally agreed that the most acceptable plan would be for some eleemosynary gentleman whose name begins with "P" and who has a few thousand dollarrs to devote to the cause of education to become interested enough in this institution to wish it named after him. Since no such philanthropist is in the offing, we must turn to other channels.

We would suggest "Poinsett College" as a possible name for this institution. Of course we have visions of being dubbed such titles as "flower girls" and other phrases which might be used in regard to a college whose name so closely resembled that of a flower. If we look further, we find that the name Poinsette is more than just another word beginning with "P." Joel Poinsett is one of the greatest and most interesting characters that South Carolina has ever produced. His life scientist, it would do well to take his ideals, also. Joel Poinsett had a dream of international understanding fostered through education. His most beautiful vision was that of a Pan-American union built upon national political training in schools. The greatest statesmen of today are advocating the education of young America in political and social problems. The foremost universities of the country have introduced such courses in their courses of study. Any school which carried out the ideals of Poinsett would stress the training in peaceful settlement of racial and international problems.

The second passion of Poinsett was Natural History. This is a subject which is generally regarded as graded school work. Few small colleges offer any Natural History training outside of a brief Botany course. Up until very recent years this subject was woefully neglected. However, as the present educational trend returns toward more liberal training, Natural History is being recognized as a fascinating and useful subject. No school should bear the name of Joel Poinsett unless it offered full training in the appreciation of out-of-door life. This is one of the developing sciences of today and is gradually being recognized as an essential to liberal education.

Poinsett is a name indellibly impressed in the scientific and political history of South Carolina. He caught the full meaning of "Dum Vivimus Servimus" and his life of service is an inspiration to any student. P. C. could be truly proud to bear his name and would set for itself the highest ideals of education in accepting his standards.

Know the Faculty

The ideal upon which the educational system at P. C. was designed was that of a small group of select students working in intimate contact with a Christian faculty. This plan fails because the students hesitate to visit professors in their homes and seldom talk to them outside of the class room. The chief reasons for this hesitancy are that the college boys fear being accused of "plucking dingles" or are afraid of inconveniencing the professors.

The first argument has little weight unless we are touchy enough to allow a little good-humored jesting to frighten us away from one of our greatest school opportunities. The second argument exists only because the students do not understand the attitude of the professors. The members of the faculty consider social contacts with the students not only as one of their most important duties, but also as a pleasure. The boy who once spends an evening in conversation with a professor will find he can carry on quite as interesting a "bull session" as the boys in the dormitory. He will probably find such a talk interesting and helpful.

BOOK REVIEW

A. K. Darby

Autobiography of An Argentine Gentleman-Farmer
—Don Segundo Ombras.

This book of a year or so back is one that will date itself as quickly as the average novel that is now issued. It is a pleasant experience in simplicity and clearness, coupled with an interest that is sustained by the quiet pursuit of the story. The life history is that of a poor little boy who comes into considerable money when he is grown, but lives the life of a gaucho until then.

At the first of the book the boy is about twelve, with a short sketch of his earlier life interpolated by means of the boy's conversational references. Extremely interested in all things pertaining to horses, he has become a proficient rider, and incidentally, a proficient "cusser," in spite of living with two rather burdensome maiden aunts.

He is taken, through the kind agency of his father (unknown to him then), to a man who was thoroughly versed in the arts of horse trading, breaking in, raising, and range riding. The boy takes a ready interest in all the first-hand knowledge that he can secure.

The gaucho to whom he is attached starts on a trip to the trading camp. The boy is so excited by this experience that he becomes a firm follower of the profession, and his one desire is to be as exact a copy of his gaucho as possible.

At the completion of the trading, they return to the home of a man who has several ponies for the gaucho to break in. He illustrates in his own words the account of all the steps in this procedure, and makes it exciting, especially when the boy attempts to put the rules into practice. He finally gets the knack at the price of blisters and shaken bones.

The parting comes when the boy, now grown to young manhood, gets his money. This comes about because his father dies and compels him to become a gentleman.

Any person can truly be said to read an enjoyable book when he can [illegible]

STUDENT OPINION

LET IT DROP

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

There is one more thing to say in regard to the much-discussed matter of "How to Cook Fish." Please drop the subject. We are tired of seeing The Blue Stocking filled with it every week. For heaven's sake, let the whole matter drop and give us a rest.

ON HAZING

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Last year the faculty made a special effort to abolish all hazing in the form of beating freshmen. They pointed out that there is a regulation against the practice and that each student signs a pledge at the first of the year not to participate in any form of hazing. Although beating did not entirely cease, it was discouraged and decreased to a considerable extent. The student body, especially upperclassmen, protested against the action to curb the corporal correction of rats. Most students felt that an ancient and worthwhile tradition of P. C. was being abolished without reason, and some expressed their objection through The Blue Stocking.

The principal objections raised against the abolition of hazing were that beating improved the manners and spirits of the freshmen and that without some check they became too conscious of their importance. The supporters of the paddle contended that before a freshman could become a full-fledged Presbyterian student he had to have the proper P. C. spirit impressed upon him via the hindquarters. They also insisted that disorder in the dining hall and a lack of good manners among freshmen were due entirely to the removal of the institution of "chopping." As a freshman last year, I had it impressed upon me that the retarded amount of beating was injurious to the school in general and to each rat personally. Most members of the frosh class were persuaded that it was their duty to insist upon hazing. Toward the end of the year the appeals of the pro-beaters were recognized and paddling was reinstated as part of the freshman's training.

This year the beating of first-year men has been going on unchecked. There has been no objection from the faculty, and hazing has resumed its traditional place on the campus. This year, as a sophomore, I find no marked change in the general attitude of the freshmen. I had been led to expect that the restoration of beating was going to bring about marked changes. No reformation, however, is apparent. Interest and spirits of the student body are running much the same as they did last year. Certainly if corrective chastisement has been directed towards the improving of manners, it has failed. Freshmen still shout for "extras"—and get them. They make the same violent snatches for plates as did the members of the 1938 class. As for serving to humble the incoming class, "chopping" has had very little effect. I realize that a sophomore is always likely to enlarge upon the "horsiness" of the class which follows him. Still, who has seen very many new men wearing their rat caps? Beating can be justified as a means of training freshmen. What is the use of pretending that the institution exists because it is essential in the acclimation of the incoming classes? Why should we bluff ourselves into believing that we wish chopping to continue because it helps the freshman? The only reasonable excuse for the existence of beating is the entertainment of upperclassmen. Hazing is all right, if we don't pretend that it is continued as an aid to rats.

—Soph.

A REPLY TO A REPLY

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Although it is not the purpose of the authors of the recent letter to The Blue Stocking signed " '37" to enter into a debate through the medium of the student publication, we feel that it is only fair to ourselves to [illegible] somewhat more clear our stand on the question of grades and to reply to the charge of unsportsmanlike conduct made by the writer signing the letter " '38."

In brief, we feel very strongly the injustice of a system, whether in Northern, Southern, Eastern or Western, which so discourages a student upon certain subjects that he wishes to drop those subjects. We also resent the injustice of a system which makes a class so antagonistic to its members refuse to ask questions and set about each meeting of the class with the "you better get me or I'll get you first" attitude toward the professor.

Perhaps there was the argument in the mind of the writer of " '38" that we do not attend college to obtain grades but to increase our general store of knowledge and broaden our scope of learning. If such thought was in his mind, we would like to agree, but we would also add that these same grades go home from the office of the registrar and often determine whether or not a man is to remain in college.

Now as for the charge of unfairness and the charge that we were much like a boxer striking a man who is down. Both may be considered as one. Let us suppose, for example, that a student receives two E's and a D on the quarterly reports. Suppose he feels all three grades are unfair and that the professor has taken a dislike to him and has allowed this dislike to influence his grade. Suppose he feels that he should have passed all three subjects. What is he to do? We realize and are thankful for the fact that there are professors in this school who may be reasoned with. But suppose you draw one of the other? What is the boxer on his feet then, you say, the professor? If you've never been in that situation perhaps you'll not say that the professor is the one who is down.

We hold that the only method by which improvements may be made along this line is through the efforts of the students. We hold that any student is rightfully entitled to express his opinions through the weekly newspaper of the student body. If this be treason, then you finish the sentence.

BASKETBALL MEN IN FIRST SEASON WORK

Many Men Report For Practice Session Tuesday. Veteran's Should Produce This Year.

When the first practice session of the coming basketball season got under way last Tuesday night many warriors in blue sweat clothes were seen on the hardwood limbering up for the approaching campaign. The group was mainly composed of veterans from last year's squad, although five men from last year's freshman squad reported.

The old men back for another season were Phil Adams, captain of this year's team, Alan Levi, "Red" Wyatt, Roy Forehand, Joe Bradley, George Cleckler, Charles Steenbergen, and Ernest Evans. Jake Majors, who was kept out last year by injury, also has reported. Bill Degner and J. W. Steenbergen also have added their strength to the squad and are seeking to be in the first ten that will be retained for the season's schedule.

Ralph (Little Brother) Waldrep, Chester Keller, John Woodward, J. C. Cavins and Frank Johnston are the sophomores trying to break into varsity competition. Their's is a hard task since so many old men have returned.

P. C. should have a good team this year as this makes about the third year that the present aggregation has played together. In years past the P. C. basketball team has never had the habit of winning many of its games and it is not predicted what this season will bring. If years of playing experience have anything to do with the success of a team we certainly should lick almost anybody in the state..

In the first scrimmages the boys show lots of pep and fight. The first team is the same as last year, with Forehand at center, Levi and Wyatt at forwards, and Adams and Bradley at the guard posts. There promises to be plenty of lively competition, however, before these positions are final.

The schedule hasn't been fully completed yet, but it will be announced at a later date. It is about the same as last years, with the Blue Hose playing practically all the South Carolina teams and taking an out-of-state trip to tangle with the University of Georgia.

Brewer Has Frosh Swimmers At Work

Frosh Coach Jim Brewer reports that there are several good men out for swimming. This year's team looks like the best that P. C. has had in several years. The breast stroke is the only thing for which there is no applicant. Boykin, Reid, and Lambright are three exceptionally good men out for diving. For the dashes there is Shamhart, Lambright, Reid, and Boykin. In the free-style department there is Shamhart and Lambright. The back-stroke man is Pearson. Carson is out for the little distance and Tom Jones and Dickey are trying for the long distance.

The team is in very good shape as it has been out for about six weeks. The practices have been very satisfactory.

The first scheduled meet is with Furman on February 24. It is hoped that a meet can be arranged with Clemson before that date.

A great deal of interest has been shown in water polo. Furman is interested in water polo also and a game may be arranged.

Frosh Hardwood Candidates Good

Coach Waldrep Has Crew That Is Fast, Tall, and Handle the Ball Well.

The prospects for a good freshman basketball team are brighter this season than they have been in several years. Coach Frank Waldrep has a group of boys who are tall, fast, and able handlers of the sphere.

With a lineup of Christian and Pugh at forwards, Holden at center, and Batchelor and Holcombe at guards and several substitutes just as good waiting to go in at any position the freshmen should win most of their games this season.

In two afternoons of practice they have caused the varsity to call on all its experience to prevent a complete loss. The first afternoon the freshmen kept plugging and stayed ahead of an indifferent varsity team all the way. News of this freshman victory spread over the campus, and the next afternoon quite a few spectators were out to see the varsity humbled again. For the first ten minutes of the scrimmage the varsity hardly felt the ball. The freshmen flashed a passing attack that looked better than most varsity teams in mid-season. Then the varsity came to life and tied the score, and in an extra period went on to defeat the freshmen and regain some of their lost honor.

To single out one of these freshmen and call him a star would be doing an injustice to the others, for even this early in the season they are showing a remarkable spirit of teamwork.

This Issue Presents All-P.C. Grid Team

During this season of the year sports writers and coaches throughout the nation begin filling the papers with their choice for men to fill positions on all-American, all-state, and all-conference teams. This is a custom with a great deal of unfairness and inaccuracy attached to it, but it has become very popular with sports fans. It is impossible to say just who are the best eleven men in the nation, but newspapers and magazines make some reasonable selections considering the difficulties facing them in making their selections. While The Blue Stocking does not feel itself in a position to make a choice of men for all-state honors, it is presenting a selection for members of an all-P.C. team. There seems to be a great deal of potential football talent and we wish to recognize it through this all-P.C. team.

Left guard — H. D. "Dynamite" Cranford.
Center — J. P. "Bone Crusher" Charles.
Right guard — John "Tiger" Latimer.
Right tackle—W. K. "Slugger" McIntosh.
Right end—G. B. "Catfish" Shaw.
Quarter — Edward "Snake Hips" McNatt.
Right half—M. E. "Ripper" Norton.
Full—O. A. "Blond Blizzard" Mathews.

This selection has been made with consideration for th eindividual prowess of the team members and their versatility. The line will be flanked by two tall rangy ends. Shaw and Jacobs are speedy men and will be fast down under punts if they don't trip over their double-chins. The only problem will be to find a headgear designed to protect Shaw's spectacles. The tackle positions will be filled by two of P. C.'s man-mountains. McIntosh and McLeod tip the scales for over 200 pounds (together). Their bulk alone would make them candidates for all-P. C. honors. "Dynamite" Cranford has been chosen to fill one of the guard posts. By virtue of his experience in leading men as the "little tyrant of the FERA," he is the logical man to captain the mythical squad. The other guard position goes to John Latimer, who distinguishes himself by throwing his weight about of the ball carrier and passing about [illegible]

1936 FOOTBALL PROSPECTS FINE

Thirty Veterans To Be Left From This Year's Group. Several Fine Frosh Add Strength.

In spite of the fact that the P. C. football squad will lose eight letter men by graduation, Walter Johnson will have good material to build upon for next year's team. From this year's varsity squad will come about thirty veterans, twelve of whom have earned letters this season. This returning group of letter men will be well rounded and will furnish eight linemen and four backs. Five of these men are regularly in the starting lineup for the games this season. There should be no lack of weight for Hipp, Prather, Correll, Hutchinson, and Collins will give enogh beef to provide a line averaging close around 200 pounds per man. P. C. can look forward towards having a heavy and powerful forward wall.

The center of the line will, no doubt, be greatly weakened by the loss of Capt. Horne and Pudge Plowden, but Vic Correll will be back again at his guard post. The vacancies left by Horne and Plowden will probably be filled by Hutchinson and Beeman. Huutchinson turned in some excellent performances while Horne was on the bench with injuries. Beeman developed into ones of P. C.' most dependable guards and earned for himself honorable mention in the all-state selections. There will be a rich supply of material back at tackle. Collins, Prather, Shoemaker, and Hipp, all letter men, will be back fighting for the posts. At ends the team will be weakened by the loss of Bradley and Forehand. McSween stands well to cinch one of the positions by virtue of his excellent defensive playing this year.

Although the backfield will lose three men by graduation, a supply of capable backs will remain in school. Jacobs is sure fine to be one of the best backs in the state. His ability and experience should give considerable strength to the squad. Weldon, Boland, and Thompson fill out the backfield with veteran players. Bill Degner can be looked to for an excellent performance which was kept from his this year by injuries.

Material from the freshman team gives P. CC. unusually bright football prospects. There are several players who shone on the frosh squad and who should give varsity men a hard fight for positions on the 1936 team. Atkinson, who was flank-man for the rats, is a guarantee that P. C. will not be weak on end. Holcombe is only slightly behind him as a contender for a varsity berth. In spite of the veterans against whom he will have to work Moore will be a likely prospect for a regular position in the backfield. Moore's blocking was a strong factor in the freshmen's offensive and would be a valuable asset to the varsity. The rats boasted two fine tackles, Boswell and Evans, both of whom may see service next year. Davis seems set on giving some varsity man a fight for a guard position. In apprising material one must remember that there is no telling what star may pop up from the "bohunks."

All in all, Coach Johnson may expect a corps of dependable men with which to work. In the punting department Jacobs and Thompson can be looked to for spectacular kicking. The passing combinations of this year will be broken, but there are capable men in aerial offense still on the team. Weldon gives promise of being a second Higbe in broken-field running, and Jacobs has shown that he is a consistent ground gainer. In spite of the certainty of another hard schedule, P. C. can be depended on to have a squad potentially able to carry it through successfully.

"Prince" Charles' nose for getting to the center of things should serve him well as he holds down the pivotal position. The backfield has everything needed for a powerful offensive. "Snake Hips" McNatt has been selected for the quarterback post. This diminutive field general is a wizzard at broken-field running. All students who saw the "battle of the century" between Green and Norton can appreciate the fighting pair of halfbacks which the team boasts. The powerful [illegible] chosen for the honor of being [illegible] all star team. "Prince" [illegible] and Hunter.

SPORT SHOTS

BIG TIME

Tuesday will be a red-letter day in the athletic history of P. C. The campus will be covered with coaches, officials, and sports writers from the Southern and Southeastern conferences and the State of South Carolina. P. C.'s varsity and freshman basketball teams will play a game Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the basketball coaches and officials of this state. They will be watching the effect the new rules have on the game.

BETTER RECORD NEXT YEAR

With the boys fighting in their own backyard four times instead of the usual one or two, next year's victory column will increase. These home games will cause a decided improvement in the spirit of the student body as well as the football team.

WATCH THESE TWO

The Home Guard will see a plenty of Guerard and Clements before the annual R.O.T.C.-Home Guard football classic is over. Although the Army has lost several men to "Mister Mac's" basketball squad, we still favor it to win. The score? Army 13, Home Guard 6.

RIFLE TEAM

Sergeant Young says he will have a good rifle team if he can ever get through telling the sophomores about the automatic and start practice. Several sharp-eyed, steady-nerved sophomores added to a formidable group of veterans should form an excellent team.

DOUBLE DOSE

Football is becoming a two-seasons-a-year sport. The regular season is over and now comes the holiday season of games to decide national and intersectional championships and games for charity. It looks like Stanford is going to get her third successive trimming in the Rose Bowl.

Unit Participates In Christmas Parade

Platoon and Band Take Part In Ceremonies To Welcome Old Santa To Clinton Thursday.

The R. O. T. C. unit of the college contributed towards the building up of the Christmas spirit in Clinton. At five o'clock Friday afternoon the P. C. band was mustered and five squads of cadets formed in a platoon. Under the command of Cadet Capt. Wyatt this unit marched out to greet the spirit of Christmas typified by Santa Claus. The parade in honor of Saint Nick was sponsored by local merchants and presented the town with a colorful procession. The guard of honor for the "jolly old elf" was composed of the R. O. T. C. platoon and a company from the Clinton National Guard.

The gala procession passed along the streets made picturesque by the streamers of colored lights. After Santa had made a tour through the downtown district in his sled the procession dispersed. The Presbyterian band performed its mission nobly on the occasion and added greatly to the success of the Yultide festivities. The R. O. T. C. platoon drilled well and upheld the good reputation of the unit. The students were inveigled into volunteering their services with the luscious bait of a holiday from one morning drill. Since the cadets have the privilege of picking their own holiday, all forty volunteers pronounced the parade well worth the effort.

Week on offense, there will be Coulter, McClary, and Blackwell returning from last year's victorious squad. There are several freshmen with high school experience who will add to the strength of the squad.

Coach Correll of the Home Guard, when approached, promptly stated, "My team is a perfect working machine. If you want to win, place your money on the Home Guard." Although the Home Guard squad is rather small, it consists in the main of veterans from last year's team. Backfield men returning are Walters, Winget, Estes, and Patton. Buchan, Mixon, Love, Gasque, and Yow will probably stand out on defense. "Sloppy Ed" McNatt, huge freshman, will lend power to the offense of the Home Guard.

Although both teams are using P.C. varsity plays, the attacks will not look the same, for the army will depend on speed and deception against the power plays of the Home Guard.

The probable starting line-ups of the two teams as are follows:

Army	Home Guard
LE—Donnan	Beeman
LT—Langston or Edmunds	Gasque or Yow
LG—Blackwell	Tuten
C—Johnson	Buchan
RG—Coulter	Love
RT—McClary	McNatt or Nettles
RE—Potter	Mixson
QB—Guerard	Winget
HB—Adams	Estes
HB—Clements	Walters
FB—Woodward	Patton

Educators Of South Meet At Louisville

Jacobs and Brown Attend Meeting of Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Presbyterian college was represented at the annual conference of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary schools by President W. P. Jacobs and Dean Marshall W. Brown.

The conference met in Louisville, Ky., December 2-6. The group is composed of universities, colleges and high schools throughout the South that are affiliated with the purpose of keeping educational standards in the South high.

A number of educational organizations including the Conference of Academic Deans met in connection with the larger gathering. Dean Brown addressed the gathering on the "Ethics of the Teaching Profession" and led a discussion on the problems confronting educators in the modern colleges.

Although the conference ended Saturday, President Jacobs has not returned to Clinton, and consequently no official statemen etan be made regarding the actions of the conference. Dean Brown, however, states that the meeting was in every way a success and received the unrestrained support of all institutions belonging to the organization.

THE BONER-YARD

On a test of mid-evil history, Dean Brown asked his class for a sketch of the life of Martin Luther. One deluded student assigned the great reformer an unfortunate end. He wrote that Luther was gored to death by a "papal bull."

Captain Beatty received some prize answers from his classes during a recent quiz. Some of Uncle Sam's future officers seemed desirous of making contortionists of his soldiers. One cadet declared that when the soldier is at attention "his stomach is in his chest." Another required for the same position that the "eyes are parallel to the ground and the head is square." Some freshman made the movement of coming to port rams a very painful operation. According to him, "the rifle cuts the shoulder at the point where it joins the neck and passes through the right hip."

A recent slip almost equalled that made by the student who wanted to know if his oral composition should be written in ink or pencil. Prof. Swedenberg gave the freshman English class an assignment to prepare a brief autobiography. Rat Davis promptly and innocently asked, "Who do you want us to write it about."

Dr. Cook made the observation last week during an astronomical discussion that the moon did not have as much effect upon the "tide" as upon the "un-tied." His boner was losing credit for the pun by admitting it was not original.

Even the professors make occasional "faux pas." One faculty member became exasperated with the apparent density of his class and said. "Ladies and gentlemen, I'm as stupid as you are." He hurriedly changed his statement to, "I mean, you're as stupid as I am." In mild confusion he dismissed the class.

A member of the graduating class of 1935 defined a mugwump last year as a fellow who sits on a fense with his mug on one side and his wump on the other. The same dignified senior responded to a thought-question in his text, "That's a fool question by a fool author, but I'm not fool enough to try to answer it."

The prize-winning boner of the season is the now-famous, "62215, my friend."

Glee Club Now On Annual Trip

Several Concerts Given Last Week, With Another Tour Beginning Today.

After a couple of hours delay while preparation for transportation was completed, the 1936 Presbyterian College Glee club set out on its first tour last Thursday afternoon in a pouring rain.

Thursday night the club appeared before a "small but appreciative" audience in Union, bad weather accounting for the small crowd.

Friday morning, the club journeyed to Clover, and appeared before a high school audience. The club was in Columbia Friday night at Columbia college. An informal reception was given for the club by the college student body.

The club ran into ill luck on the journey home when the bus broke down just outside of Columbia. Those riding in the bus were compelled to spend a rather uncomfortable night in the bus until it was fixed at eight-forty Saturday morning.

This afternoon, the club left again to travel in the southern part of the state. The itinerary calls for performances through Thursday morning, so the members of the group will not return to school before the holidays.

12 Men Answer Boxing Summons

A dozen candidates answered the call of Coach Walter Johnson to the boxing ring during the past week, and despite slight hope for a strong team, the men are working out enthusiastically.

Headed by O. M. Cappelmann, known to his friends as "King Kong", the list includes the following: John Latimer, bantamweight; H. D. Cranford, bantamweight; Malcolm Gillis, featherweight; J. B. Penland, featherweight; Edgar Stanton, featherweight; Wandell Williams, lightweight; Edgar Pitman, welterweight; John Wells Todd, welterweight; Julien Freeman, Junior middleweight; and Jeff Prather, unlimited.

The loss of such brilliant performers as Bill Clark, Harry Bolick, and the late Jimmy Seagle leaves the Blue Hose without a frame work sturdily enough upon which to build a potentially powerful group, but the new men are an unknown quantity and may prove as good as the best

Jacobs Trophies Presented Tuesday

Awards Made To Winners of Blocking Honors In Three Groups. Notables Present.

On last Tuesday night in a banquet unique in sporting annals the Clinton Rotary Club honored the winners of the Jacobs Blocking Trophy in South Carolina, in the Southern Conference, and in the Southeastern Conference, along with the Presbyterian College varsity football team and some hundred other guests in the Presbyterian College dining hall.

The winner of the blocking trophy for South Carolina was Jack Shivers, sophomore guard from Furman university. He is also a member of the mythical all-state eleven.

The Southern Conference winner was Herman P. Snyder, blocking back of the University of North Carolina, and the man who cleared the way for N. C.'s great runners. He was co-captain of the team and was unanimously chosen for the trophy.

An all-American walked the Calvinistic campus when Riley Smith of the University of Alabama showed up to receive his share of the spoils.

At one o'clock Tuesday afternoon there was an annual meeting of the coaches of South Carolina at Leroy Springs gymnasium.

At two a clinic for coaches and officials in basketball was held and new rules were demonstrated and discussed.

At four the athletic directors, football, track, and basketball and baseball coaches met.

At seven the banquet in Judd Hall began. Dr. H. E. Sturgeon was toastmaster and the speakers for the occasion were H. J. Stegeman of the University of Georgia, Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt, S. M. Beaty, president of the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers Association, and Wade Ison, sports editor of the Charlotte News.

At 8:15 the affair went on the air through radio station WFBC, Greenville with the presentation of the trophies by donor William P. Jacobs.

Following this the above mentioned notables made their addresses. Each of these men emphasized the same thing — the importance of unselfishness in football and in life, and each was high in his praise of Mr. Jacobs for being the first to recognize the "forgotten man" of football, the blocker.

Bible Week Comes To Close Sunday

Observance Here Marked By Talks To Classes By Professors, Service At First Church.

Beginning Friday, December 13th, with a special chapel address by Dean M. W. Brown on "The English Bible and Culture," the program sponsored by the college in connection with the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the printing of the first complete Bible in English came to a close last Sunday with a program put on by the Y. M. C. A. in the First Presbyterian church. The program took the place of the regular sermon. Frank Johnson, Colin Hudson, Richard Potter and Ernest Arnold spoke on the subject of the Bible in various connections.

The entire program, December 13, 14 and 15, was conducted ably and aptly, proving both interesting and profitable to the student body of Presbyterian college. Especially appropriate was the system of assigning as "talk topics" to each professor a phase of the study linking with the subject in which he specialized. Consequently there appeared a wealth of inconspicuous but valuable details of information which would have otherwise been missed.

Librarian Willard Jones had upon display a special exhibit of Bibles of varied ages and in varied languages—Greek, French, etc., as well as a collection of works on the Bible. The collection was drawn from the stacks of the library and from the private collections of various professors.

Phis Celebrate Founding Of Frat

Beta chapter of Pi Kappa Phi celebrated the foundation of its mother chapter at the College of Charleston, Dec. 10th, 1904, with a banquet held at the Clinton hotel Saturday night. Under the toastmastership of Jack Gasque, short after-dinner speeches were made by members of the chapter and the two faculty members, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon and John H. Hunter, who were present.

The affair was attended by sixty guests, members and pledges.

During the banquet Paul Harmon and his Harmonizers supplied music. It was followed by a Christmas social in the rooms of the fraternity.

WAS ELECTED BY TEAM-MATES ON SATURDAY

Rising Senior Has Seen Two Years of Varsity Service. Is Triple-Threat Man.

J. B. Jacobs, of Clinton, was elected varsity football captain for 1936 at a recent meeting of letter men in this sport.

Jacobs has been outstanding all during the past season as a triple-threat halfback. A deceptive runner and a good passer, he was also P. C.'s best punter and is rated second to none in the state.

Handicapped by injuries during the 1935 season, he is expected to come into his own next year as captain.

Carolina 'Y' Group Appears Here

Program On "Friendship" Presented Before Local Gathering Last Tuesday.

A deputation from the Y. W. C. A. of the University of South Carolina presented a program on "Friendship" at the local Y. M. C. A. last Tuesday evening. The visiting team, accompanied by Steve Hiott, was composed of Gwen Williams, "Dink" Gaines, Sara Rector, and its leader, Catherine Cannon.

Miss Gaines, in leading the devotional, read the parable of the good Samaritan, and strikingly transformed it into a modern college version. She vividly portrayed the natural treatment of a student—"stripped of all." The devotional was followed by two talks, between which Miss Williams, the pianist, rendered a special piano selection.

The first talk was given by Miss Rector. She defined mortal friendship and showed its values and requirements. In securing the unifying bonds of friendship, "we select those who have ideals and characteristics similar to our own" and make fast these bonds, she said, "with sincerity, sympathy, respect, and mutual trust and love." The speaker quoted Kipling's "If" and urged those present to follow it and be "good, true, and fine" for their friends' sake. She closed by reciting a reading entitled, "The Little Sign of Friend."

In the second talk Miss Sutton defined and spoke on the divine friendship of Jesus. She presented Jesus as the embodiment of all attributes of friendship, —a friend to whom we may pour out our souls and gain. "A friendless person," she stated, "is the most woe-begotten, miserable person who exists, but if he finds Christ his gloom is superseded by a brow of peace, Christ, spread over his countenance." Miss Sutton's closing remark was, "Remove Christ from friendship and you will have a world and life of chaos; accept Christ with friendship and you will have a world and life of unity and coherence."

STUDENTS TO VOTE TUESDAY ON BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS CONTROL

Tomorrow morning in the regular meeting of the student body, students will be asked to vote on the acceptance of the plan for a Board of Publications Control which was drawn up as a result of a meeting of the editors of The Blue Stocking, The Collegian and the PaC-SaC, with the faculty committee on student activities. The plan follows:

FUNCTION:

The function of the committee will be to pass upon the ability and fitness of all candidates for elective offices of the student publications. It will be the privilege of any student body member to suggest candidates for the several offices to the committee. The committee will nominate those found capable and submit the same to the student body for election.

PERSONNEL:

The board shall consist of nine members, consiting of: a) The editor of the Blue Stocking, b) The editor of the Collegian, c) The editor of the Pac Sac, d) Three members elected from the senior class by popular vote of the student body, and e) The three faculty members of the student activities committee.

No fraternity may have more than one member on the board except in a case in which the editorships of two or more of the student publications are held by members of the same fraternity.

YOU'VE CURSED POLITICS, HERE'S YOUR CHANCE TO DO SOMETHING

Tomorrow morning the student body will have the chance to vote on a plan whereby the committee on student publications that has been advocated so strongly in these columns for the past few weeks can be formed. Elsewhere in this issue the actual plan is printed.

The plan is self-explanatory. It is solely for nominations and in no way affects the voting rights of the student body. The publications will continue, as in the past, to make their nominations but this committee will merely see that those names added to the student nominations be those of persons capable of holding the offices. Any man who desires the office will be considered by the committee. Only those who can hold it down will be nominated.

This does not stop politics; nor does it attempt to. We realize, as do you, that politics on this campus can not be stopped. Under this plan, fraternity votes will still be fraternity votes, and friendship votes will still be friendship votes. Where the plan does make a definite forward step in the publications of the campus is where it assures that every man voted for is able. IN SHORT, WHILE IT DOESN'T STOP POLITICS, IT DOES ASSURE THAT REGARDLESS OF HOW THE STUDENT VOTES, FRATERNITY, FRIENDSHIP OR OTHERWISE, HE WILL BE VOTING FOR A MAN WHO CAN FAITHFULLY AND EFFICIENTLY ADMINISTER THE OFFICE FOR WHICH HE IS RUNNING.

This is not an attempt to take away any of the rights of the student body. It does not take away any of its rights. It is a benefit to the student body.

THINK CLEARLY BEFORE YOU VOTE ON THIS PLAN. ISN'T IT FAIR TO EVERYONE CONCERNED? IS THERE ANY JUST GROUNDS FOR OPPOSING IT? DOESN'T IT FILL A DEFINITE NEED THAT EXISTS ON THE CAMPUS TODAY? DOESN'T IT ELIMINATE ONE OF THE WORST OF THE POLITICAL EVILS, NOT POLITICS ITSELF, BUT THE ELECTION OF POOR MEN THROUGH POLITICS? HASN'T PAST HISTORY, IN SEVERAL INSTANCES, PROVEN THE WISDOM OF SUCH A PLAN? THINK CAREFULLY AND VOTE SANELY!

A Tribute To the Man

In a little over a week we will celebrate the 1940th anniversary of the birth of a humble carpenter's son. For over a hundred decades the hearts and tongues of a vast multitude of mankind have united in an ever-swelling paean of praise of his spiritual greatness and of glory in his divinity. Anything that we could say on the subject would sound trite and backneyed, true and beautiful though it might be. However, we should like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to the Man whose birth we celebrate, and not to the God.

He was the greatest force that the world has ever seen. Whether or not we believe him divine is only a matter of religious belief. Whether or not he is the greatest figure that has ever strode the pages of history is a question that is not debatable. He gave to a world that had before known only ritual, superstition, and the black magic of blind groping a religion that had in it the spirit of sportsmanship and fair-play, or give and take, of live and let live. He gave to the world the classic picture of humility. And since he paid the price of his life that was demanded of him by hypocracy and religiosity his gentle teachings have given solace and comfort to millions of harassed and tortured souls lost in the tumult and seething turmoil that is the price of living.

He was the greatest moral force that the world has ever seen. He was the greatst political, economic, and sociological force that we know. As in the case of his divinity, the correctness of his religion is a matter of belief. And as in the case of his greatness, there is no debate as to it, true or false, being the greatest influence for good in modern civilization. In fact, it is the essence of that civilization.

And so, as we again approach that period when the world pauses to celebrate his birth, we pay this tribute to the man who, born in obscurity 1940 years ago, did more for us than any other man ever did.

Patriotism Via Dickie Powell

On last Monday and Tuesday our darling Dickie Powell paraded the screen of one of the local theatres in the uniform of Annapolis. About a year ago he marched across the same screen as a West Point cadet. Warner Brothers made money, big money, on the West Point episode in the life of a crooner and it is only natural that they should attempt to duplicate with the Naval aspect of the same line.

Now we have no objection to Warner Brothers making a few millions on Mr. Powell's appeal to fluttering young hearts. Nor have we any objection to Dickie Boy flashing his juvenile and doubtful charm, plus the appeal of a flashy uniform. We do, however, seriously object to having war and patriotism so wantonly glorified.

The Naval Academy, as Mr. Powell portrayed it, is a glamorous and high colorful life, and the highest aim that any young man can have is to "give his life for his country." All of which is probably true. But—and in this but lies our entire objection—war and arms are glorified and made heroic at a time when they need as little glory as possible.

While war clouds hang perilously low over the entire world, and while American citizens are stoutly demanding neutrality, Mr. Powell plays a part that makes that particular emotional set in the minds of the youth of our nation which will cause it to burst into an all-consuming conflagration when, and if, the flags are waved and the war speeches made. .

Mr. Powell can parade his charm at any time—we don't have to go to see him. Warner Brothers can make all the money they care to, if we enjoy the pictures we won't object. But we demand that the efforts to paint the horror and grotesqueness of war that have been made in the past few years be not sacrificed to Dickie's charm or Warner Brother's bank roll.

COLLEGIATE REVIEW

There are 305 American students German universities. Medicine draws most foreign students to Germany, philosophy lowest.

Studies indicate that 200,000 children now attending school in the United States will probably become criminals.

BOOK REVIEW

"HONEY IN THE HORN," by H. L. Davis

Our Southwest and Middle West have been so publicized that the Northwest has escaped much notice. It is this Northwest that H. L. Davis writes about in "Honey in the Horn." The book describes the homesteading period in Oregon from 1906 to 1908.

The story centers around Clay Calvert, whose parentage was extremely doubtful. He was adopted by Uncle Pres. Shively and lived there very peaceable until Uncle Pres asked to assist his son make a jailbreak which should have, been unsuccessful. The son got out of jail though and Clay had to get out of the county. He pucked up with a horsetrader's outfit because the trader's daughter attracted him. They all went to the hop fields for the autumn and stayed there until Clay thought that he was being chased by the sheriff. He left for the coast followed by the trader. Clay finally married the girl and they kept house in an abandoned coastal hut until the next spring. Then a caravan left the coast to settle in the uplands. The whole country was red up over the coming of the roads. Clay accidentally killed a and blamed it on Wade Shivley, from jail, who happened along opportunely. Shively was lynched. Clay kept along the even tenor of way. The girl deserted Clay and off with her rascally father. Clay tracked them down after a similar to that for which Shively been first put in jail. The girl ter that she had done both and the fore she and Clay started anew.

"Honey In the Horn" gives promin the beginning of being an exceptional book but because of the tness of its style and the slowness the action it becomes just another joyable book. It does throw light on little-known period of our nati history. For light, rather entertain reading "Honey In the Horn" is recommended.

STUDENT OPINION

WE WANNA NECK!

(Editor's Note: The writer of this letter asked that his name be withheld. We wonder if we could get some answers to this from other schools in the state—particularly from the feminine element.)

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

You mailed the letter and you sat back and waited with eagerness until the dances. Her letter read: "Darling, I'm just dying to see you; can hardly wait!" Yowsah! And she was darn good looking too. And dance! Say, she could outshag anything on the floor.

You took a bath right after lunch and went down to meet the bus. You didn't kiss her when she finally climbed down with her Gladstone; well, you didn't know her so well and you never had kissed her before—but just wait!

Supper in Judd Hall and everybody craning necks to see the new shipload of dates.

The dance, and a lot of introducing, dancing, smoking, and introducing all over again.

After the dance, and the fraternity rooms. Dim lights and couples huddled together all around the room. Soft lights, radio, and—romance! You let your arm fall along the back of the sofa, then lightly, ever so lightly around her shoulder. A great feeling of tenderness creeps over you. You lean over and—"No Cuthbert, please don't do that."

Well, maybe she's just stalling you try again, this time a little more suavely and masterfully.

"Cuthbert, if you gonna be that way, I'm going home!"

There you are, my friends. Are you one of those luckless individuals who draws the "No Cuthbert" type? Are you one of those hapless critters who runs around for a week hoping your date a place to stay, who crawls all over somebody's feet begging for a ride to the dance, who spends the rest of his allowance at the press club and on her—then have her run away and draw up in the far corner hissing at you?

Unless you are a combination of Gable, Tone, and Svengali, you probably have drawn one of these very attractive little ladies more than once in your youthful career. They radiate sweetness and light and are the life of the party on the dance floor, but just wait until you get them alone.

And you say—well why should we if she doesn't want to? And we say—why of course not—but why must we stay home? After all, there are quite a few females in the environment and plenty of good democrats too.

Personally we shouldn't complain. We've gotten the breaks lately and in all modesty, we've done pretty well by ourselves. But plenty of time to do draw blanks.

Shucks, when you gotta go, you gotta go!

PEN-SLANTS — OF — SPORTLAND — By — "JAKE" PENLAND

September to December

It's the most colorful period of our college year. It's the personification of college life and all the elements are present—the football campaign, scholastic grind, dances, out-of-town trips and dormitory discussions. And it's all over.

This column has attempted to blend the ingredients of fact and fiction, humor and grief, and thereby concoct a weekly cocktail of sports and the little incidents connected with it. In order to preserve some of the present extracts from previous issues of this column:

Moral Victories

When the gridsters lose several games in succession, some of our optimists immediately begin dubbing our losses "moral victories." This has been a sore spot with many of P. C.'s supporters, and especially Coach Lonnie McMillian. During the first part of the year, we gave this poetic translation of a conversation that took place between him and former president McSween:

Said erstwhile President John McSween to Lonnie Mac one day
"We won a moral victory, pal, in that game Saturday."
Said Lonnie Mac to President John,
"I've heard that said before;
But for a change I'd like us to have the long end of the score!"

War

And then the dark, ominous clouds of war pervaded the corridor of Spencer. This correspondent took a position near the front, jotting down the following impression of the conflict:

You think that Mussolini's men are busy with a slaughter?
Why don't you visit Spencer Dorm and see our plates and water.
Benito has a mighty force of which he is boss
But do you think that we're afradi with Forehand, Lindsay and Cross?

Tragedy

Then, following on the heels of a brilliant, enjoyable home-coming celebration, occurred an event that brought profound grief to the P. C. campus. It was the tragiv death of Jimmy Seagle. This column paid the following poetic tribute to the beloved little '35 graduates:

The warm and cheery spark of life,
The friendly, pleasing smile,
The mannerisms that we loved
Are gone—He's heaven's child.

So rich, so cherished, so sincere,
A friendship could we claim
Of Him who made this world so bright—
A warm and living flame.

He's gone, He leaves us full of grief
We'll miss the little man,
But surely God will guide Him to
A richer, better land.

Object of My Affection

Along came Negro Joe Louis to whip Max Baer and steal the sports limelight. So, for the benefit of the Brown Bomber, Haile Selassie and P. C.'s own Colombo, we went into the song-writing business long enough to change the words of a popular tune:

"The object of my affection
Can change my complexion
From black to gravy-brown
Any time she holds my hand
And says let's go to town!"

NON-ARMY MEN WIN FOR FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

Winget Intercepts Pass To Pave Way For Initial Counter. Patton Takes It Over.

DRIVE FROM MIDFIELD FEATURES 3RD PERIOD

Pass From Estes To Mixson Over Goal Line Nets Second Touchdown of Annual Fray.

Lashing out savagely against a stubborn but inconsistent R. O. T. C. team, the Home Guard aggregation broke through with a brilliant 13 to 0 triumph in its first intramural championship in the history of P. C. The first touchdown came shortly after an intercepted pass in the second quarter, while the other was the result of a third quarter drive from midfield.

The first quarter of the game was uneventful, save for a couple of casualties at the hands of belligerent pacifists. Punts were exchanged by Guerard, Army quarter, and Walter, the Home Guard's fine kicker.

The second quarter started at the seeming disadvantage of the Home Guard, as Clements quick-kicked over Patton's head, but on the next play Patton took it through center on a spin play and made 17 yards. Three plays gained nothing, and Woodward, of the Army, received the punt and took it to his 23. There Guerard attempted to pass, and Winget came in fast to intercept the aerial on his opponents' 35 yard marker. Here the Home Guard took advantage of its opportunity.

After Winget failed to gain on a line play, Walter dropped back and shot a pass to the former, who hauled it down on the 25 yard line for a first down. Then Winget dashed through center for 16 yards, down to the 8 yard line. Two plays carried it to the 2 yard line and finally Patton bored through center for the first touchdown. A clever fake kick gave the Home Guard the extra point, as Patton took the ball from the short man position and drove over to make the score 7 to 0 in his team's favor.

During the second half the Army started off with a bang. The militarists received the kickoff and punted, but a holding penalty against Estes, lanky Home Guard quarter, gave the ball to Army on the opposite 40 strip. The stage seemed set for an Army comeback, but this was not to be. On the very next play Winget fell on a fumble and the Home Guard again had the ball on their own 45.

Here the Home Guard began another drive that was destined finally to end in a touchdown. Two plays gained 3 yards; then Winget knifed through left tackle for 11 yards and a first down. The same man took it on the next play and broke thru again for 13 yards at the center of the line. Patton got 4 on a spinner, Winget made the same off tackle, and McNatt, the 235 pound tackle and fullback took it to the 18, a penalty giving the Home Guard the ball on the 13 yard line. Patton made 4 on the wiel-known spin play; then Winget plowed through to the 3 yard line.

Digging up fistfuls of dust, the Army men hearkened to Major Wysor's pleas to "Hold that line" and four plays directed at the line failed to carry the ball past the 6 inch line. As Guerard dropped back to punt the Army line gave way and Home Guard linemen broke through in an attempt to break up the kick. Somehow or other, however, he managed to get it off, but the ball went straight up into the air, and was downed on the 4 yard line.

Winget lost 3 on an attempt at left end, but the Home Guard sensed another touchdown and were not to be denied it. Walter then brought it back to the 4 yard line as the third quarter ended. The following play showed smart quarterbacking on the part of Estes, Home Guard field general. Faking a run over to the right side of the line, he stopped, turned round and flipped the ball cleanly over to the left end zone, where Mixson snagged it with ease over the goal line. The same man, on an attempt for the extra point, failed and the score became Home Guard 13; Army 0.

After the kickoff, the Army boys showed that they were still game, as

Basketeers Work For Team Places

The basketeers, varsity and frosh, are taking more definite shape as they practice daily in anticipation of after-Christmas contests. The varsity, under Coach McMillian, will meet Ware Shoals in a return game on Wednesday evening on the local court.

The starting five has been shuffled around a great deal since the opening of practice, and a definite group has not yet been picked. However, the probable line-up for the Ware Shoals setto will consist of Wyatt and Waldrep, forwards, Checkler at the pivot position and Bradley and Adams, guards.

Others pressing hard for first-team berths are the talented "Lefty" Levi, diminutive forwards, Jake Majors, guard and Roy Forehand at center.

The freshman, with a first-class five in the making, are running hot in practices under Coach Frank Waldrep. In Pugh, forward, Holden center, and Batchelor, guard, Coach Waldrep has a trio of real cage artists with which to build a team around. These three, along with Ben Christion and Charles Kimbo, will probably make up the first team. "Dunc" McRae, Pete Holcombe, Phil Heatherly and Red McCrea are making strong bids for the team.

The reserve material is particularly strong and the Blue Sox should go to town against all state competition.

Frosh Gridsters Enjoy Banquet

The Freshman football squad, 1935 edition, enjoyed a banquet Friday evening at the home of William P. Jacobs, president of the college.

The rat gridiron men gorged themselves with a delicious Christmas repast and then heard speeches of inspiration from Dean Brown, President Jacobs, and Freshman Coach Lonnie McMillian. All these congratulated the team on the unusual spirit and fight which they exhibited during the past season and urged them to return next fall and try out for positions on the varsity.

With the banquet over the rat gridsters topped off the evening by indulging in a good old-fashioned bull-session with the three faculty members participating.

WHY NOT A NEW CONFERENCE

At a recent meetng of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association two colleges resigned their membership with the statement that the group was too large and unwieldy. Although all schools in the association itself admit this very fact, only these two had the courage to break off from it.

The S. I. A. A. is a relic of past days in Southern football. Formerly almost every school in the South belonged to this group. Now, with the coming of the Southern and Southeastern Conferences, the outmoded organization reaches into every nook and corner of the South. In fact there are so many scattered schools in the association that there is hardly a sports fan in the country who can name every college which belongs to it. Many of the colleges in the S. I. A. A. are so far away or so obscure that if one were to name certain members of the association to the average football fan he would be almost certain to receive the answer, "Where's that school? I never heard of it."

Such a situation is more of a hindrance than a help to athletics. Members of the Association are so far away from each other that thye scarcely ever even hear of each other; certainly they can't afford to play teams so far away. An athletic conference is supposed to have a close association between its members, but the S. I. A. A. is a dismal failure in this particular.

Several years ago Furman and Oglethorpe led the way toward the formation of a new conference composed of the smaller schools in the two Carolinas and Georgia. The other colleges however, did not have the courage to get out of the same old rut, and the movement for a newer group failed.

Why does P. C. not take the lead in making a new organization of this sort? Withdrawal from the S. I. A. A. would certainly not hurt anything and it might give a fresh impetus to the initiation of a newer and more virile group. The day of the S. I. A. A. is past and gone. Now is the time for the smaller schools in the state to take action for the betterment of athletics in the small colleges.

WHO WOULD BE MEMBERS?

The question arises as to what schools should be members of such a conference. Our suggestion is that the group include P. C., Wofford, Furman, Newberry, Erskine, Citadel, Wake Forest, Catawba, Oglethorpe, Mercer, and possibly others. Such a combination would provide a better opportunity for proper judging of the relative ability of teams in the conference would make for greater harmony between the colleges in this section. Why shouldn't P. C. take the initiative?

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

Here and there on the campus:

It is well known that

GEORGE OLIVER is forever boasting about the girls he courts for mere intellectual companionship. He says that he never does anything more dangerous than hold one's hand (on nights when there is an especially good moon). Now it appears that he at least can lay claim to the distinction of never having been kissed, because the other evening a local lass caught him unawares and osculated him tenderly on the lips. It was one of the few times in his life that this reconstitable one was caught blushing.

OLIVER LUEY seems to be a tough hombre to the girls of Anderson College. It is said that the student council of that school met the other day and placed penalties on two of their students because they actually talked to him.

DOUG PATTON lost a letter from a very good girl friend the other day. The finder will please return it to him at No. 15 Spencer and receive reward.

It's an unusual personality that makes a girl faint while she's miles away, don't you think? Well, anyway, that's the effect it had on a girl "CAB" BLACKWELL was talking to over the phone the other night.

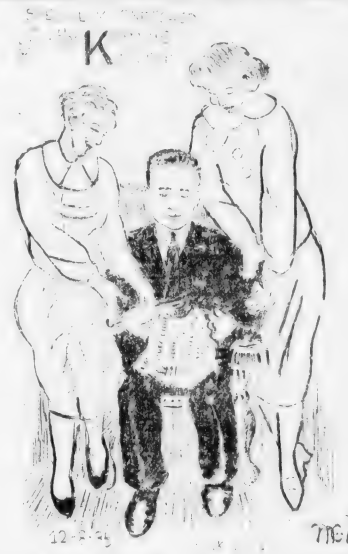
P. M. CLEMENT, freshman, is apparently just on the verge of matrimony. He is so in love that he had to go home for Christmas over a week before the holidays, just to see that Charleston Bond. Captain Wyse please note.

Wonder who the girl was that said ROY FOREMAND had nice shaped legs? Could it be the same one from Virginia) who raised Cain with him a few latest letter because she found [illegible] picture gallery in his room?

The local student council almost had a cat the other day when ROY FOREHAND walked in on a group passing poke. The well-known G-man smacked his lips with glee on seeing that he was about to get a man, but it turned out that they were playing off "on the cuff" and the cuff could not be found.

In psychology class one day last week Dr. Jones asked, "What is rhythm?". Someone in the back of the room crooned, just loud enough to be heard, the refrain of that well-known and popular song, "Rhyth-m is our business."

Question: Why is LOUIS FOLLEY trying to get CAB BLACKWELL, who doesn't dance, to get a tiny Sumter blond up for the next dance?



GEORGE CODY, the freckle-faced phenom, is being cut out in the old home town by RALPH WALDREP. Bessie Cody has just burned up a certain picture and is now doing long-distance courting with a girl in Maryland. Waldrep, it is understood, has already asked the fair Irene down to the next dance (by virtue of beating FRANCIS GREGG in the draw).

Seen and heard at the Winthrop Model league of Nations.

A delegate to the Model League from N. C. State was so used to sleeping in his nightgown that when he went off to Winthrop for the week-end and forgot said sleeping garment he was forced to borrow a lacy frilly little thing from one of the Winthrop girls . . . The great art of knitting has taken Winthrop by storm . . . One girl, a certain O. C., is now knitting a pair of socks for C. B. IVEY, of the P. C. freshman class . . . You should have seen ROBERT McLEES cast a little red-head get together . . . And how EDGAR STANTON fell for a pair of dimples . . . She called him up at the place where the delegates stayed and said, "Will you tell Mr. Stanton that, due to a difficulty I won't be able to see him tonight" . . . Which Delegate HUGH HOLMAN replied, "Yes, I think I saw that difficulty walking around with her this afternoon" . . . DOUG PATTON tried desperately to revive an old love affair, but he went down before those brass buttons . . . And TOM NEWLAND got stood up by the same girl . . . The writer managed to get a date, but was chased out of the dormitory by a matron when he stayed till one minute past ten . . . Winthrop girls aren't so dignified after all (did somebody say they were?). . .

The story was going around that a freshman, name withheld, toughed up and drenched the [illegible] in a glass of ice water while she was in the midst of her bath . . . A girl had no more injuries not long ago when she started looking up at the moon through her horn rimmed spectacles on the way back from the library one night . . . She didn't notice where she was going and stepped in a ditch, almost breaking her neck.

MILITARIST GOES DOMESTIC

The above scene depicts Edgar Stanton, P. C.'s second edition of Napoleon Bonaparte, as he was sitting in the parlor of Nance dormitory, Winthrop College, on a recent Saturday evening. As the reader can easily see, he is being instructed in the homely art of knitting.

A glance at this scene makes one wonder what has happened to make our formerly military-minded columnist give way so completely to the creative urge. One possibility is that he has gone cuckoo from trying to rehash the same material every week for his column in this paper. Another suggestion, made by Mr. Sadler Love, is that something snapped inside his cranium when he lost his $1.00 bet on the Army intramural football team.

Those inclined to be witty might say that it all goes to show what the influence of a good woman can do for even such a great warrior as he, but take note, please, that in this case it required two good women to make one so saturated with the militaristic spirit acquire domestic ideas.

The Collegian To Appear Tomorrow

The Winter Edition of the Collegian, literary magazine of Presbyterian College will appear tomorrow. It will contain the usual twenty pages filled with the literary work of P. C. students and capably decorated by the linoleum cuts of R. C. McLees.

The cover, on a blue background with a Christmas scene done in silver, is one of the most attractive that this magazine has ever had.

It will contain short stories by Sadler Love, Cliff Johnson, and Hank Wilson, and George Oliver; a play by Robert McLees; poetry by Hugh Holman; satire by Jack Gasque; an article by Stuart Campbell. But the feature of the issue will be an unsigned confession by a married student on the campus.

HOME GUARD DOWNS ARMY, 13-0

they completed an 18 yard pass, Clements to Guerard, which carried them to their own 48. However, their drive got nowhere, although they reached the Home Guard 45 in two more plays. A moment later a short punt was fumbled by Walter on his 37, and the Army again had the ball in their opponents' territroy. But again their hopes for a score were shattered, when they lost the ball on a forward pass intercepted by Buchan. A few minutes more and the most colorful game of the year was over, with the triumphant Home Guardsmen glorifying in their great victory.

For the first time one team, the Home Guard, departed from the balanced line on offense and instead used Coach Walter Johnson's Warner-Pop system with the unbalanced line. The Home Guard had a spin play through center that was responsible for the greater part of their gains. The Army offense, on the other hand lacked effective support by the forward wall and consequently failed to function successfully. Altogether, the Home Guard seemed to have a better coached and more smoothly coordinated team. There was a justly deserved victory.

Individual stars for the Home Guard were hard to pick, but certainly all the backfield deserves mention. Walter did some good punting. Wingert and Patton went strong on running plays. Tom Estes, their quarterback, performed a neat heady job at that position. The center of the line was held down admirably by Love, Buchan and Tuten. Mixson and Marion Parham did good work as wingmen.

The best backfield man for the Army was undoubtedly Guerard, with Clements not far behind in ability. The best defensive man on the field was McClary, a strong steady tackle for Major Wysor's team. Donnan, at end, specialized on messing up his opponents' offtackle slants, while, Ashby Johnson, at the pivot position, also did good work on defense. Coulter, at one guard, played well while he was in the game, but he was hurt in the first quarter and did not enter the game again.

The game was characterized by the usual amount of roughness so characteristic of the annual intramural game, with plenty of slugging, kneeing and holding was manifest. The contest was the most interesting one put on in the last three or four years and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The lineups:

Alumni Journal Stars Publication

The first issue of the "P. C. Alumlite", a journal devoted to the interests of the alumni of Presbyterian College appeared on last Friday.

R. C. McLees, a senior, is editor, but the management is in the hands of John "Turk" Osman, faculty member. Five students names appear on the staff, Sadler Love, Frances Spratt, Preston Charles, Joe Patrick, and William Jacobs, III.

The first issue contains a lead story on the rapid growth of the underwriting fund, a summary of the football season, a message from President Jacobs, and general information about various alumni and alumni organizations.

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

Taking a brief respite from the exacting duties of military life, your correspondent spent last week-end at Winthrop among the fairest flowers of feminine beauty—being especially susceptible to a couple of remarkable Dimples. During another brief respite, this time from girlish charms, he chanced to glance through an edition of the Johnsonian, and noticed there a direct excerpt from this same Parade Ground, previously consideed an unperused bit of military nothing or other. Etc. All of which refutes the statement, in general, that girls are not interested in martial affairs even at a small school like ours, and in particular that the Parade Ground is not read by any except its diminutive author. Maybe other things than the Keyhole are interesting after all.

It is with great misgiving and sorrow that the Military Department announces that our Assistant P. M. S. & T., Captain Beatty has been ordered to Fort Leavenworth next spring. It would seem that the government is making a habit of sending the Major's assistants to Kansas, for Major Blanton is in training there now. Captain G. S. Beatty and his family have been, are and will be a tremendous asset to this school and community, so it is only fair that Uncle Sam should leave them with us for two years at least, but if any man is truly "master of his fate, captain of his soul", 'tis our great old Uncle, and certainly not any officer in his army.

The Major states that he positively did not bet on the game between the Army and the pacifists, but Sarge comes around with a sickly grin and the assertion that he garnered some five frogskins out of the fracas. Seems that Sarge is possessed of better judgment than any of the other two hundred soldiers stirred up in the melee, and in cases concerning pocket books, it is perhaps preferable to use judgment rather than partisanship, for the loyalty of this soldier cost him a certain amount of silver and a great deal of bumiliation. From now on, the less said about the Army-Home Guard game the better, but the valiant cadets have the consolation of having won a moral victory even though their opponents did miraculously score some thirteen points.

The band has acquitted itself well lately, having made merry in the Clinton and Laurens Santa Claus parades, escorting the jolly old fellow from pillar to post to the tune of "Jingle Bells". There is some question as to who received the most attention, the band or Saint Nick—but the horn tooters modestly decline all recognition, although they admit that "what's a celebration without music?". The same is true of football games, funerals, and weddings, so let us offer due thanks for our musicaleers, even though most of them are not crack soldiers.

The P. M. S. & T. informed his aspiring junior military class the other day that if a man stood beside a gun and dropped a bullet, it would strike the ground at the same time as the missle fired from the gun. Blank astonishment greeted this mild statement, so the Major calmly asked if any of his pupils took physics. Complete silence reigned for a moment, after which J. B. Jacobs popped up with "No, Sir, physics takes us!" Thunderous applause.

Did You Know—

That most of the major wars of the world have begun in the spring?

That in the spring a young man's thoughts turn to love?

That love is war?

That hence, in the spring, a young man's fancies turn to war?

Thus spring wars.

Also, that clothes may or may not make the man, but a uniform certainly makes the lover.

That these are pleasant thoughts for icy, wintry days.

of last year's team.

The pugilists will not begin a real campaign until some time after the holidays. During the interim Coach Johnson hopes to develop a few more seasoned men.

Several freshmen are working and although they are ineligible for competition in regular varsity bouts, some will probably fight preliminaries in varsity meets. The following are first year men who have reported: Dusty Rhodes, featherweight; Cy Clements, featherweight; Thad Coleman, welterweight; James Boe, welterweight; L. H. Tabor, welterweight; E. G. Dill Ellis Named To West Point

IS MEMBER OF JUNIOR CLASS

To Enter Military Academy In July After Completing Year's Work Here.

Dill Ellis, first sergeant of B company and a member of the junior class, has received the appointment to West Point given by Congressman John J. McSwain to a presbyterian college student residing in this congressional district, it was announced during the recent Christmas holidays.

Ellis is a day student, living with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Ellis, on Calvert avenue. During the three years that he has attended this school his interests have been almost solely scholastic and militaristic.

In addition to his position on the advanced R.O.T.C. staff, he is a member of the local National Guard unit, and served on active riot duty in Pelzer this summer during the labor disturbances there.

He intends to complete his junior work at Presbyterian college before leaving for West Point in July.

Library Gets About 25 More New Books

Much Fiction Among Additions. Also Some Biography. Now Being Catalogued.

There are some 25 or more books in the process of being catalogued for the library just now. While Librarian Willard Jones would make no list for publication, he asserts that it is a list that will be of particular interest to the students.

It contains much of the better recent fiction, among the works being "The Forty Days of Musta Dagh," "Lucy Gayheart," "Vein of Iron," and the three books of the "Mutiny on the Bounty" series, "Men Against the Sea," "Mutiny On the Bounty," and "Pitcairn's Island." The plays of Noel Coward are among the books.

Outstanding among the non-fiction is the concluding volume of "Our Times," "Michaelangelo," and a new biography of John Milton.

Federal Aid Assists Reclaiming Youth

(By Associated College Press)

Minneapolis, Minn. — Had it not been for federal aid given university students, many of them would now be a part of the "missing generation," says Dean Malcolm M. Willey of the University of Minnesota.

"Denied the chance to enter colleges and universities, there are thousands upon thousands of youths in this country who, now doing nothing, would normally have trained themselves for business, agriculture, and the professions — they are the missing generation," Dean Willey explains.

In the fact that federal aid has prevented a disastrous increase in the ranks of the "missing generation," Dean Willey finds ample justification for the program.

REV. PETER MARSHALL TO LEAD ANNUAL SERVICES IN MARCH

Is Prominent Atlanta Pastor; Has Had Varied Career. Services Begin March 2.

The Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church of Atlanta, Ga., has been chosen to deliver the spring inspiration messages to the student of Presbyterian college.

Born and partially educated in Scotland, the Rev. Mr. Marshall has had a varied career. He worked as an athlete and a musician before becoming a minister. He is a young man with a charming personality and a unique and forceful delivery. He is much in demand for addresses and officials of the school expressed themselves as being fortunate in securing his services.

The eries will begin Monday evening, March 2, in the First Presbyterian church of this city and will last through Friday morning. Two addresses will be given each day, a morning address in the college chapel for the benefit solely of the students, and an evening address at the church for both students and town people.

Many Students Come In Late

Students have been drifting, floating, and stomping in with mud and snow slush covered shoes and pneumonia-endangered constitutions since last Thursday.

The heavy snowfall in this part of the state, ranging from eight to fifteen inches, was responsible for the delay in returning to school.

Many found themselves weather-bound when the heaviest snow this section has seen since 1917 began falling on the last Saturday of the holidays.

However, practically all the students have dared the elements now and are ready for the hard pull that always precedes examinations.

The Blue Stocking Nominations To Be Submitted Tuesday

Paper Staff To Make Selections Tonight. Go Before Student Body Meeting Tomorrow.

Nominations for editor, managing editor, and business manager of The Blue Stocking will be made in the regular student body meeting after chapel tomorrow morning.

The staff is meeting tonight for the purpose of making their nominations for these offices. The list may be added to by the student body in that meeting.

The election will be held on Tuesday, January 14.

Only Two Weeks Until Exams Start

It isn't exactly news, but, lest you forget, first semester examinations begin January 20, which is but two weeks from today, and last through Saturday, January 25.

No schedule has been announced as yet, but next week's issue of The Blue Stocking will carry one.

So, all you scientists hie away to the lab, and you are art students entrench yourselves in the library. For the time, sluggards, is drawing nearer when thou shalt say, "I have no pleasure in them"!

University Gets Picture Of Radical Legislative Group

Columbia, S. C. — What is believed to be the only picture in existence of the famous South Carolina radical legislature has been presented to the history department of the University of South Carolina.

The radical legislature was composed of both white and Negro members, and ruled briefly during the post-Civil war period.

Co-Eds Gaze On Leap Year With Joy As Males Begin Preparing Defenses

Leap year has leaped into the limelight. The snooping reporter wandered eagerly about, gathering reactions to the new order. Baying furiously he followed the trail until he had cornered Sophomore Bebe Dillard. What was her reaction to leap year? "I guess it's all right with Buddy and me."

Then Catherine Davenport, reversing the procedure in accordance with the rules of the season, cornered the reporter although he whimpered and plead earnestly not to interview her. "I'm going to do my derndest to get a man. With public opinion squelched for 12 months, this, in my opinion, is the time for a girl to do her stuff!"

Blase Tom Estes sniffed. "As far as I am concerned, it's just 366 more shopping days until Christmas."

George Oliver: "It's a decided disadvantage, and cramps my style."

Betty Beatty: "Yes indeed—on account of my shy nature, I shall have trouble making time this year."

Ileen Mahaffey: "My shy nature holds me down too—but leap year should give the girls a break, if they look before they leap."

The reporter approached Guard Frances Spratt with a guileless smile. "What is your reaction to leap year, gal?" For a moment her countenance registered a blank. "My word — I'd overlooked it!" she screamed — and vanished around a corner in hot pursuit of Earl Winn.

Sophie Sullivan: "It matters not."

McLeod, diminutive bell-ringer, nonchalantly flicked the ash from a recently-bummed cigarette. "Guess I'll have to get a club and beat 'em off—or hire a bodyguard."

Elizabeth Blakley, chortling with poetic glee, quoted ecstatically: "Gather ye rose-buds while ye may . . ." under the impression that it was from Tennyson (she quotes Tennyson exclusively).

Rat Aggie Jones refused to utter. "So you won't talk, eh?" She shut her lips into a mask of Harpo Marxian silence . . . and looked ominously in the direction of unsuspecting Hammond Adams.

Jack Gasque: "Leap year is O.K. with me. You can quote me as being in favor of it."

Mickey Mixson: ". . . necessary thing for the benefit of the calendar."

Allen Jones: "It's a great institution . . . from now on I expect to have rhythm in my nursery rhymes!"

Simon Legare: "Now's the time for pullers to become pushers . . . but it won't make any difference in the beautiful friendship between Rouhac and me."

Nancy Young: "I've decided to wait four more years."

Ray Forehand: "Come early and avoid the rush."

Basketeers Prepare For Opening Game

Will Meet Wofford Terriers In Spartanburg Wednesday Evening In Season's Starter.

With the Wofford game only two days away, the varsity cagers are winding up pre-season practices with stiff scrimmage periods.

Joe Bradley, first string guard, hasn't returned yet and as a result practices have been retarded somewhat. However, the cagers will be ready when the Wofford game begins.

Coach McMillian has been running Red Wyatt and Ralph (Sheriff) Waldrep at the forward positions and expects to start this pair against the Spartans. George Cleckler is leading the field at the pivot position, and Adams and Bradley are almost assured of retaining their positions at guard.

The Blue Stockings, after their trip to Spartanburg, meet Newberry Saturday in their initial local appearance.

Meeting Of Classes Delayed One Day

"The meeting of classes will be delayed one day," announced Dean Marshall W. Brown in the first assembled meeting of the student body on last Friday morning.

The delay was not due to inclement weather, though about a third of the student body had found the snow, ice, and rain which fell the last week of the holidays too great a difficulty to travel.

It was due to a leaking steam pipe which left the administration building and the science hall practically refrigerators.

Plumbers found the leak Friday afternoon and classes were resumed Saturday morning.

Isaac Copeland Goes To Furman

Friends here of J. Isaac Copeland will be interested to know that on January 11th he will become librarian at Furman university, Greenville. He returned to Nashville, Tenn., this week preparatory to going to his new work next week.

Mr. Copeland is an honor graduate of Presyterian college, after which he entered Peabody college at Nashville for post graduate work. From this institution he received his library and master's degrees. In recognition of his excellent record there, he was made assistant librarian at Peabody, a position he has most creditably filled for the past four years.

Staff Members! Attention!

There will be a staff meeting tonight, Monday, January 6, at 6:30, for the purpose of making the staff nominations for elective offices on The Blue Stocking staff.

Every man be present! These nominations must be made tonight and if you fail to come you lose your vote!

STUDENT BODY VOTES PLAN BY BIG MAJORITY

Will Form Committee of Nine To Nominate Men For Elective Offices On Publications.

DOES NOT AFFECT COMING BLUE STOCKING ELECTION

At the regular meeting of the student body this morning the Board of Control for Student Publications plan was almost unanimously passed.

This plan was advocated by The Blue Stocking early in December. A committee composed of the editors of the publications and the faculty committee on student activities met and drew up the plan along the lines suggested by The Blue Stocking editorial.

It was submitted to the student body as an amendment to the constitution on Wednesday before the Christmas holidays. A constitution ruling delayed action until after the holidays.

On last Friday the plan was brought up again and a motion that it be accepted was made and seconded.

This morning it became an amendment to the constitution by an almost unanimous vote.

This does not affect the coming election for members of The Blue Stocking staff, but the election will be the last under the old plan.

The plan, as adopted by the student body, is as follows:

Function:

The function of the committee will be to pass upon the ability and fitness of all candidates for elective offices of the student publications. It will be the privilege of any student body member to suggest candidates for the several offices to the committee. The committee will nominate those found capable and submit the same to the student body for election.

Personnel:

The board shall consist of nine members, consisting of: (a) The editor of The Blue Stocking, (b) The editor of The Collegian, (c) The editor of the PaC-SaC, (d) Three members elected from the senior class by popular vote of the student body, and (e) The three faculty members of the student activities committee.

No fraternity may have more than one member on the board except in a case in which the editorships of two or more of the student publications are held by members of the same fraternity.

Re: Resolutions Et Al

As the clock boomed twelve times and the radio blasted out with the grandest array of chimes that the world has ever heard on last New Year's Eve night, practically everyone of us heaved a sigh of relief as we watched old and decrepit '35 tumble over the hill to the past, and then turned hopeful and expectant faces to that dashing youngster, '36.

Hope and dreams and expectations were magically reborn as we witnessed 365 days of disappointments and pains and sorrows and joys and achievements come to end only to see 366 new days appear before us.

This is rather strange. New Year's day was merely tomorrow to the last day of the old year. We had no more money, no more ability, no more opportunity then than we had the day before. Yet hope and confidence were reborn. It is strange and rather beautifully wonderful. And in that moment of somewhat awed feeling we made ourselves certain promises in the form of resolutions, many of which we have already forgotten.

Resolutions are, on the whole, rather futile and pointless things. They are generally made to be broken the day after. They serve no purpose except to give us a momentary sense of self-righteousness. So let's forget them and look at the difference between '35 and '36.

Whose fault was it that '35 was so disappointing? Who was responsible for our bidding it goodbye with pleasure rather than sadness? We, ourselves, were almost wholly to blame. '35 was what we made it. It presented opportunities that we ignored. Procrastination and laziness took their toll of its every passing second. It gave none of us full justification for the hope and expectation with which we greeted it just a year before its final departure. And ours is the blame and the degradation.

What does '36 hold that '35 held not? One extra day and no more. The same seconds and minutes and hours and weeks and months make it up that made up the departing period. And yet, we fondly hope that where today brought sorrow and pain, tomorrow, by some strange alchemy of the gracious gods, will bring happiness and the fulfillment of every desire.

It will not. Tomorrow will differ from today and this year will differ from last only as we make it differ. We are molding our present and our future. Whether tomorrow is good or bad depends on what we do today and tomorrow. That is a truism that is trite from overwork, yet it is a statement of an inevitable law of nature, and a law that we optimistically and rather foolishly refuse to believe.

'36 is before us. We can make it a great old year. Why don't we?

2,500,000 A Year

We, the youth of America, look at the mess that our elders have made of their lives and their government and are disgusted. We look at the heritage of bad government and bureaucracy and dirty politics and war that they are leaving us and feel that somehow they have cheated us of a part of our birthright.

Ten million new American voters come of age every four years.

What do they do? Is politics and government improved and bettered because of this new influx of voting blood? If so, no one has ever been astute enough to recognize the change.

No, youth bemoans the mess that the elders have made, and then, reaching maturity, it forgets its moans and becomes a part of the machine that made the mess.

We collegiate students aren't radical but we are liberal. We aren't socialistic but we have learned to love equality and justice. We aren't sages but we see the evils and injustices of much of the results of America's voting—while we are in college.

The four years of cloistered living ends and we step out into the world to take our places as men among men. Somehow the idealism fades away as the paper on our diplomas turns yellow, and the dreams that we held remain merely dreams.

Is that just to ourselves or to those who will follow us? They will curse us for the mess that we made, and we will reply that we could do nothing. That is a silly answer and indicative of the inherent laziness of us all. The best refutation of it that we can think of is the single sentence:

Ten million new American voters come of age every four years.

Satisfaction Vs. Complaint

Satisfaction is the goal of all humanity, we daresay, and it is today farthest out of his reach. Through years of zealous effort, man has struggled toward this hopeful goal. He, man, has penetrated the unknown darkness in the fields of science, philosophy, and theology. He has undermined encouraging truths. He has evaluated many hitherto unknown mysteries. Yet in his success he has not solved his most difficult and most hopeful desire to find satisfaction. In his discoveries he has satisfied to make unsatisfaction. When one mystery has been solved, another more complex, more intrinsic, takes its place.

Marconi in his worthy inveniton of wireless telegraphy satisfied the world and himself for the time which existed between the test of his invention and the hour of his triumph. With the praise that came to such a notable character, for such an addition to mankind for his convenience, we should think Marconi would have been satisfied for all years. Was he? The echoing sound waves of his first great success had hardly died away before he amazed the world with a more intricate, more marvelous invention, the radio. Did this satisfy Marconi? Did this presentation satisfy the world? Today he, Marconi, is developing another great masterpiece. What will it be? Will it bring lasting satisfaction to the man, to the world?

Whether these great successes bring lasting satisfaction, we express no opinion, but we do intimate that his success and what satisfaction he had in his success was not gained through complaining. Man strives for satisfaction, but it is not obtained through the medium of complaining. Man seeks success, but it is not gained through complaining. Man desires character, personality, but it is not won through complaining. If we pass through the halls of college complaining, complaining about all of the little insignificant things that come up, we shall likely pass out in the world as a hopeless individual. If we have not the stamina to overcome the little problems of college days, we can never hope to overcome the major problems of the world. You cannot complain your way through college; neither can you complain your way through the world. Complaining is the road to defeat! Complaining is the pathway to failure! Complaining is the opposite of satisfaction! Why complain?

—W. Chester Keller.

Congratulations

The student body is to be congratulated on the splendid way that they responded to the Board of Publications plan this morning.

The sponsors of the plan feared that narrow-minded "freedom" would defeat the plan. The students, however, proved themselves to be mature enough to overlook what, at first glance, appeared to be an encroachment on their rights and saw the issue as a plan that would insure efficient publications officers.

The way they voted confirms our contention that the student body is coming of age, and that rapidly.

CAMPUS CAMERA

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associate Collegiate Press)

It is all gentle spoofing, no doubt, but most entertaining—this story the columnist in the student paper at the University of Illinois is telling.

A state senator, returning from the capital to his home town, was met at the station by an angry constituen who berated him for not cutting down the funds alloted to the state university.

"Don't you know," crackled the citizen, "Don't you know that at that school, men and women students have to matriculate together. Yessir! Furthermore, they have to use the same campus!"

This is the second time lately we have gotten onto the question of Minnesota prisons and there is no excuse for it. Except—except that we felt we just had to tell you the discovery made by extension course directors at the University of Minnesota.

We feel you should know that prisoners average higher in their correspondence courses than the day students on the campus who take the same courses! Seventy per cent of the convicts have A's or B's consistently.

You will realize what a tremendous event it was when Dartmouth beat Yale for the first time in history when you learn that the whole editorial column in "The Dartmouth," generally rather staid and detached, was written in poetry(to celebrate the victory. Not good poetry, mind you, but enthusiastic, and everything rhymed. It began:

"Listen, my children, and you shall hear
Why Dartmouth cohorts raise cheer on cheer.
They've reached the end of a long, long trail—
Dartmouth has finally beaten Yale!"

Right alongside of that paragraph you should put this one. Oswald Villard, the great liberal writer, has been telling how the college press is improving, particularly in an editorial way.

The Yale News, says he, is the ideal college paper. Why? Because it does not hesitate to print editorials criticizing the president and college administration.

(Wonder if Mr. Villard has ever read the Columbia Spectator, or any one of a dozen other college papers that outshine the Yale News on that score).

Culinary note:
Just discovered at the University of Washington that a college m there has just one chance in 400 marrying a girl with home economi training.

Fairly interesting. Now if they s show the girls what chance they h of marrying a college man who get a job and support them, we m have something.

John de Grassa, president of American Football institute, decla with vehemence that gambling football games has become a natio mania and is involving thousands young high school students at t moment. To check all this, he wo put a stop to the practice of spo writers "predicting" the outcome games everywhere.

Predictin' Again

A new year — and another basketball season rolls around. Looking over the state, we are unable to pick an outstanding group of cage artists from any of the nine schools. Clemson's classy five of the past season has been riddled somewhat by graduation. Furman will be almost as good as last year, and Citadel's cagers should show improvement.

Of the other state schools, none will produce a team capable of forging to the front. We believe they will be listed in this order when the season does its fade-out:

Clemson.
Furman.
Citadel.
Carolina.
Wofford.
Erskine.
Presbyterian.
College of Charleston.
Newberry.

It's hard to predict basketball outcomes, and the one above may prove highly inaccurate. Just the same, we'll stick to it and—wait.

If—

If the present P. C. freshman basketball squad remains intact throughout the season, and if the Anklets continue functioning as well as they have hitherto, this little school of learning should be the recipient of the freshman championship of the state.

In other words, the lads are GOOD. And you'll hear plenty from them ere the season is over.

And the music goes round and round.
Said Doctor Cook to Freshman Doe,
"Now, tell me, little man,
About some planet and its paths, its movements, understand?"
"Oh, yes I do!" And then he said,
("Just watch me go to town)
Old Mercury, like the music,
Goes round, and round, and round."

Frosh Quint Works On Fundamentals

Fundamentals have featured the recent practices of the P. C. freshman aggregation that continues to show improvement as the opening contest of a new basketball season looms near. The first-year men meet Wofford's Terrier Pups at Spartanburg Wednesday night.

Coach Frank Waldrep has developed two teams of almost equal strength and plans on using the two groups alternately.

One of the fives includes Pugh and Christians at forward, Holden at center, and Kimbo and Holcombe at guard. The other is composed of McRae and Folley, forwards; Royall, center; Heatherly and Booth, guards.

Batchelor, one of the leading contenders for a guard berth, and a talented player, hasn't returned to school since the holidays. It is hoped that the experienced freshman will soon put in appearance.

Coach Waldrep is not yet satisfied with the performance of his men, but expects to iron out the remaining wrinkles in time for the opener.

A schedule has been made which pits the Baby Hose against practically all the other freshman fives in the state. In addition, the team will meet several high school aggregations in South Carolina and Georgia. Nearby mill teams may be booked also.

A complete schedule appears in another column in this issue of The Blue Stocking.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

The Kampus Keyhole, now vindicated from the ridiculous charge that the only reason it is read is that the public wants to read the latest reply to the outlandish charges of the Parade Ground, offers at this time a list of suggested New Year's resolutions for various people on the campus. The list, with the names of the persons referred to, is as follows:

Simon Legare: I resolve not to make a date with a girl until I have had a good look at her in the sunlight.

Robert McLees: I resolve to make no puns.

Lawrence Mixson: I resolve not to make late dates during dances with anyone other than my own girl.

Jim Collings: I resolve to accept no more blind dates for dances.

Windy Cross: I resolve to change my ways, after the fashion suggested by "The Three."

George Oliver: I resolve to take lots of exercise, so I can make myself strong enough to keep these bold girls from forcing kisses on me.

Edgar Stanton: I resolve to become proficient in the art of knitting.

Tom Estes: I resolve to refrain from throwing water on student councilmen and also from building fires in the hall of the dormitory.

SPORT PROSPECTS ON PAPER

It appears right now, on paper, that P. C.'s sports efforts on this winter's bill of fare will be rewarded with greater success than last year.

Basketball seems to be headed for a slightly improved season. Practically all of last year's team are back for the 1936 edition, and a number of other good men are fighting for places on the starting five. At any rate, if the team shows any ability at all it should be an improvement over last year.

Boxing is the only one of three sports of the next two months that apparently is headed for a decline from last year's record. Only one really outstanding performer, Captain C. M. Cappelmann, is left over from last year's fistic aggregation. In 1935, it will be remembered, P. C. tied for the state boxing championship. This year the veterans will have to make remarkable improvement, and the new men will have to show some real stuff, to come up to last year's standard.

Swimming, the third sport referred to, ought to be as good as usual, if not better. P. C. has always been strong in this line, and the coming season should not prove an exception.

THE HUMAN SIDE OF A FOOTBALL COACH

Those who see Coach Walter Johnson only in the role of a strict and unrelenting taskmaster on the football field seldom realize his more human side. I, like many others who had not had contact with him under more informal conditions, thought for a long time that P. C.'s coach was a brusque, short-spoken individual who never laughed or joked but only talked in gruff monosyllables that sounded like the bark of a German police dog.

On closer acquaintance, however, one realizes that when "Coach" is off the football field he is unusually genial and funloving. An incident of a few days ago serve to illustrate this side of his nature.

It was a cold rainy afternoon just before the Christmas holidays as the glee club and orchestra were preparing to leave on a trip. Johnson was standing in the administration building as he watched the boys about to depart. Shorty McDonald, member of last year's graduating class, walked by with his suitcase. Johnson inquired of a bystander how it was that a graduate was playing with the school orchestra. The student answered that McDonald, since he was at present residing in Clinton, had consented to bolster up the college orchestra with his well-known ability as a saxophonist.

Without a word, the athletic mentor walked over to Dr. Steve Huntley, the small, high-strung glee club director. "You will have to call off the trip," were the words Johnson whipped out to him in a gruff tone. "The Southern Association says you can't use ineligible men in the college orchestra."

The stock French professor's mouth flew open in unconcealed astonishment. He stared into the serious face of the coach. Finally, after a long pause, he managed to stammer out, "Wh-why, I didn't know there was any such rule as that . . . "

"Yes," replied Coach, "the rule reads like this . . . " And he proceeded to spew out a group of technical phrases, entirely imaginary, which purported to come from the by-laws of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. Professor Huntley was immediately convinced, but this did not help his peace of mind. He was plainly distressed.

The gridiron coach could restrain himself no longer. He burst out laughing and his victim saw that he had been duped. With a sheepish smile, all he could think of to say, (in his characteristic mincing manner) was, "Coach, I'm going to skin you alive!"

KEYHOLE CHARLES DONS GLASSES

This being leap year and all, the season for reversal of usual custom demands that Keyhole Charles should break forth into print for the first time as a "Campus Personality"—in answer to the cry of suffering humanity—swarms of outraged Lagers, empurpled Penlands, slandered Stantons, and foaming Forehands.

P. Charles boasts as his outstanding achievement the popularization of the word "lewd." From this simple beginning grew the "Lewdist club," which has spread from simple Alpha chapter in Spencer, into Beta, Gamma and Delta chapters in the other dormitories, and plans to celebrate "Founders' day" February 20th in honor of Founder Charles. Fostered as first president, the loyal little man bore so earnestly to heart the future of the club as to strenuously conduct a campaign to elect "Bottle" Peterson to succeed him; aside from stump speeches and posters, it is rumored that he voted no lses than 27 times, resulting in a landslide for his candidate.

"Prince" Charles is a curious combination of Shylock, Hugh Herbert and Don Juan. He has a playful habit of artistically grouping lewd litgrature about a sleeping suite-mate, taking a snap-shot of the unsuspecting laddie, and then modestly attempting to extort his pound of flesh, or rather $10, in exchange for the negative. He possesses the unique distinction of being the only Pi Kappa Bottle on record absent-minded enough to forget and offer to pay his dues a second time. (If it were not for fear of being thought revengeful for similar items published in the Keyhole Column about himself, the author would comment on the instance of the young lady who begged off from a promised date with the Charlesite on plea of fatigue after a dance—and later, after he had escorted her home, turning up on the arm of another gentleman).

"Trouble-shooters" and war correspondents have nothing on the Charlesite in the way of hardships encountered in the line of duty. Not to speak of the distasteful task of associating with "G" men to gather dirt, he once spent a chilly quarter of an hour one cold day, in shirtsleeves, concealed under a bush in an attempt to eavesdrop on the conversation of a young couple and not one remark of Keyholable lewdity did he overhear!

COLLEGE HEADS FAVOR WITHDRAWAL FROM OLYMPIC GAMES

participation in the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

Announcement of the educators' stand was made by Frank Kingdon, president of Dana college, Newark. It was accompanied by a statement setting forth reasons for requesting American withdrawal and signed by the forty college presidents.

"It is our considered judgment," statement says, "based upon the record of events that have transpired in Germany for the past two and a half years, that the inequalities and discrimination practiced against Jews, Catholics, Protestants, labor, Masons, and all independents are perpetuated in the field of sports and in the Olympic games.

"We believe further that these games are being used by Nazi Germany as in instrument for the propagation of her ideals, which represent the destruction of democratic and progressive society . . .

"We believe that the Americans should refuse to take part in the games, and that such refusal will serve to elevate and preserve sport and the sporting spirit."

THE PARADE GROUND

— By —
EDGAR STANTON

Captain Beatty has enjoyed a typically homey Christmas in the backwoods of North Carolina with his family and friends. Imagine drifts of snow, as deep as they are white, covering acres of woodland as far as one can see. In the midst is a large, strong, bundled-up man with a crosscut saw on his shoulder, striding along accompanied by a tall lad whose name might be George. Suddenly they stop, unshoulder the saw, seize respective ends, and set to on a massive oak of uncertain diameter. A beautiful sight, enhanced only by the appearance of Sister, who lends moral support as well as being an asset and inspiration to any wood-cutter's labors. Truly, a happy Yuletide!

The Major returns, having remained sober, according to him, during the recent Christmas and New Year festivities, and he reports that the Captain has at least returned sober. Such implications! But the Major has given forth a grand piece of advice concerning the making of New Year's resolutions—he says that thirty years ago he made a resolution resolving never to make another, and certainly there could be no nobler resolve! For the inevitable breaking of resolutions made during a time of great intoxication (be is the result of spirits or otherwise) is no commendation to any man. Anyhow, the military department is now ready for action, being in the best of health, and if the weather continues to hit new lows, repeated physical drills every morning will put the corps in the same state of being.

ELECTION FOR BLUE STOCKING STAFF TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Penland and Love For Editor; Johnson and McLead For Managing Editor.

BIRD NAMED BUSINESS MGR. WITHOUT VOTE

In the last open nominations for publications officers officers ever to be held at Presbyterian college, the students had a Roman holiday as they named the men who were to be voted on for editor, managing editor and business manager of The Blue Stocking.

On last Monday night the staff met and named its nominees for these positions. These nominations were: For editor, J. B. Penland; for managing editor, Ashby Johnson; for business manager, Marion Bird.

The following morning in a riotous student body meeting after the regular chapel session, the students added the following names to the list: For editor, Sadler Love; for managing editor, Cliff McLeod; for business manager, Glenn Beeman.

Beeman withdrew his name Tuesday afternoon, automatically making Marion Bird business manager.

The election will be held tomorrow for the editor and the managing editor.

The present staff has one more issue to get out, that of next Monday. The staff elected tomorrow will take complete charge of the paper on January 21st.

Charlie Wilson Thinks P. C. Sports Greatly Improved

Charlie Wilson, tall, blond, heavy-set alumnus of P. C., was present at the P. C.-Newberry basketball game last Saturday night. He was accompanied by his wife, sister, and brother-in-law.

Knowing that Charlie was an outstanding athlete at P. C. several years ago, a certain reported approached him with a possible interview as the objective. The result is this article.

Naturally, the first subject to come up was that inevitable subject of P. C.'s athletics then and now. During the four years that Charlie was at P. C. he won more letters than any athlete in the South has ever won over the period of four years.

"Speaking of athletics," said the reporter, "what are some of your experiences?"

"Well," he scratched his head, "I never had any unusual experiences beyond what usually happens to athletes in football, except that every night my room would be the gathering place of the team for a good bull session. When they got ready to go to bed I still had my studying to do. In basketball I had the unusual experience of being called the "greatest player since Alvin Scott" by Morgan Blake. I've played on the Rochester Centrals against the Celtics; we won over the Negro champions of the world once. In track I threw the javelin for a state record, and won first place in an S.I.A.A. meet once. I won second place in the broad jump twice in these meets. I played baseball with the Rochester team for a good many years, then for a couple of years with the St. Louis Cardinals; then I went back to Rochester."

In answer to a question about comparing sports at P. C. today and then, he said there was no comparison. He said there was a great deal of improvement in sports, and as for that matter in the college as a whole.

When asked what he thought of the campaign of Mr. Jacobs, he said he was completely in favor of it. He added that he liked the "life, pep, go-get-'em" spirit of Mr. Jacobs. Charlie said that he intends to help in any way possible, and that if the students and alumni cooperate to the fullest extent the college will be put back on steadfast feet.

Glee Club To Make Georgia Tour Soon

To Leave January 27th and Return 31st. Season Will Close With Broadcast Over WBT.

Dr. S. M. Huntley, director of the Presbyterian college glee club, has announced a third trip for that group to begin on January 27th, the Monday following exam week.

The club will visit several Georgia towns, including Macon, Savannah, Brunswick and Waycross, and will not return to Clinton until Friday, January 31st.

Dr. Huntley also plans to make a final trip of the season in February, at which time a program will be broadcast over WBT, in Charlotte.

Spencer And Smyth Are At It Once More

War Correspondent Gives Vivid Word Picture of Recent Bloody Battles. Was Indecisive.

While more conservative souls groveled in the warmth of ther family hearths, Presbyterian's hardy children of chilblains rushed forth to take advantage of Clinton's deepest snow in many moons.

The virgin white snow which had lain untrod for days in front of the dormitories was trampled into a frenzied slush, and the faint thud of snowball against cheek filled the air, as excited students slid forth courageously from French to frostbite.

A small group of volunteers barricaded themselves on the Smyth balcony and held attackers at bay for hours. Finally torn apart by dissension within their own ranks when one of the warriors aimed too low, they became a howling, snarling band of guerillas at each other's throats, much to the enjoyment of the invaders on the ground.

However, these were just the minor skirmishes that precede every big battle for the campus became a raging blizzard in the afternoon as Spencer and Smyth dormitories built forts and laid down barrages that had old timers recalling the tempestuous October acorn battle.

Weaker souls crowded to the windows and peered through the icicles at their staunch classmates upholding the honor of their respective dormitores, finally to slink back cowardly to their text books with horripilation.

Unfortunately the outcome of the battle was undecided as the warriors whose heads were bloody but unthawed, were finally driven in by the extreme cold, leaving their battered forts to bear mute testimony of the intensity of the hostilities.

And as darkness fell over the campus, graying the snow, the children slept peacefully, tired but happy, the darlings, and dreaming of the morrow and classes.

For Editor:
J. B. Penland.
Sadler Love.

Ashby Johnson.
Cliff McLeod.

HOSE WIN FIRST HOME CONTEST

Calvinist Trounce Newberry, 50 To 30, In Initial Game On Local Court Saturday Night.

Presbyterian's Blue Hose basketeers opened their home season with a decisive 50 to 30 victory over the Newberry Indians last Saturday evening in a spirited affair.

The "scoring twins," Levi and Wyatt, amassed 28 points among themselves to collect offensive honors, while the entire team played a surprisingly good defensive game.

As with the Hosemen, the Newberry offensive was centered around the forwards. Hervey, of the Indians, contributed 10 points and a nice all-round performance.

Both teams exhibited nervousness as they entered the fray, but the Hosemen settled down and began the task of building up a lead that became comfortably big at half-time. The Indians blended ambition with roughness in a second half stab for victory. The Hosemen increased their half-time lead of 12 points to an even 20 before the show ended.

Twenty-one men saw action during the affair. Coach McMillian's substitutes acquitted themselves commendably and gave promise of strong reserve support in the future.

A sensational point-making spree by Red Wyatt featured the evening's activities. Levi sank five field goals and three foul shots through the hoop for his share of the scoring and Forehand countered with seven points.

INTRAMURAL PROGRAM TO BE DEVELOPED

All Intercollegiate Bouts Cancelled Last Tuesday. Weakness of Team Was Reason.

WAS NECESSARY, SAYS COACH AND CAPTAIN

P. C. will have no intercollegiate boxing team during the 1936 season, according to an announcement from Coach Walter A. Johnson, head athletic director and boxing mentor. Poor prospects and inexperience of the men going out for the team influenced Johnson's decision to suspend activities in the sport until next year.

Enlarging on his statement somewhat, Johnson said that since there are only three experienced men out for this year's team it would be useless to attempt to go through with a season with so many green men. Almost all of the best men on P. C.'s team were lost by graduation in the class of 1935, and only one man, Captain C. M. Cappelmenn, was left of the group that have won fights in official meets. It was also feared that some of the inexperienced men, not knowing well how to protect themselves, would suffer injuries that would handicap them for sometime. Then, too, the crowds would be disappointed at having the lower thrown in the ring too often, which might happen in case green men were used.

Coach Johnson, however, has not the least idea of permanently dropping the manly art from the sports roster. He is now turning his attention to the annual R.O.T.C. boxing tournament, in cooperation with Major Wysor. In this activity he hopes to line up some good prospects for next year's team. It is likely that some of the freshmen will be good material for the 1937 edition, since several have shown up well in preliminary workouts. R.O.T.C. boxing is scheduled to come off a few days after examinations are over.

Captain Cappelmann, the boxer who displayed such gorilla-like tactics last year, said that he was sorry boxing had to be dropped this year, but that under the circumstances no other course would be wise. He, incidentally, is expected to assist Coach Johnson in the training of prospective ringmen for the military boxing show.

"GERMAN CLUB" DANCE HELD LAST FRIDAY

On last Friday night a mid-winter dance, sponsored by a mysterious organization, the German club, was held in Copeland hall. The music was by Paul Harmon and his Presbyterian Collegians.

Little can be learned about the German club which sponsored the dance. So far it has hidden its organization and membership from the public eye. It is widely believed, however, that this new organization is none other than the orchestra itself, and that it lacks official sanction in assuming the club name.

We Apologize!

Gentlemen, our apologies! We humbly beg your pardon. Last week we wrote an editorial in which we said that the student body had proven itself worthy of our contention that it had at last come age.

Apparently there are quite a few gentlemen in that student body who think that we are slightly off our nuts and are perfectly willing to go to strange limits to prove it.

We, of course, are referring to The Blue Stocking nominations on last Tuesday morning. Now we aren't directing this at anyone who was nominated, or at those who were making nominaitons, but we are directing it at those who seemed determined to make that nomination a May Day celebration.

We realize that we probably take this little organ of student activities, student thought and student cut-ups much more seriously than anybody else in this institution. We also realize that this organ does have a definite purpose, and one that vitally affects every member of the student body.

When the meeting in which the men who are to edit and manage this publication begins to take on the aspects of a Roman holiday we begin to feel that perhaps the most appropriate gift that could be given the student body would be a huge diaper!

Well, the nominations, or rather the manner in which the student body went about making them (not the men who were nominated—we have no doubt of their ability) is a grand and glorious argument for the nominating committee that we advocated and which you passed. Thank you, gentlemen, the next time that some one wants to know why we advocated such a plan, we can point with pride to the fact that it insured the death of just such nominating meetings.

Once again, gentlemen, we apologize!

"A Tale Told By An Idiot"

A brief eddy of consciousness lost in the vast sea of eternity, blown here and there by every changing wind, with muscles held taut by a thousand and one conflicting and pulling forces, stifling a million sobs to utter one laugh, toiling ever toward tha twill-o'-the-wisp, the ever fleeing tomorrow—that is a human being, a miraculous and intricate piece of machinery, irrevocably damned with the ability to think.

And he is an incurable optimist! From the first conscious day of his life, he reaches out to intangible and rose-tinted tomorrow. Today with its pain, its sorrow, its dirt, its strife, its handsores, and its heartaches is ever an unreality from which tomorrow offers a glad escape. It doesn't matter that today is the tomorrow that he hopefully awaited yesterday, and that it has its full share of all that he hated then. No, he forgets the lessons that each and tomorrow has taught as it became today, and ever hopes.

He even has the happy faculty of forgetting all that was bad about yesterday, and remembering only the joys that it brought. The only pain that he feels is in the present, and he consistently refuses to live then.

And there he stands between the memories of a past from which he has washed all the dross and the dreams of a future that has the fulfillment of every desire. Blessed with the love of someone and turning to that love for solace when the dark clouds begin to pour their burden of unhappiness upon him, dipping in drink or friends or books or work for vicarious pleasures, striving to catch a brief and giddy moment of ecstacy—and joyfully succeeding, for a brief but long remembered moment, he blinds himself to everything else and lives.

Occasionally he lets his querying mind wander out to ask the eternal question "Why?" What is the end? What doth it profit a man though he gain the whole world? Occasionally he looks past the golden tomorrow that he has planned and sees the end—the futile, bitter end, when all the boast and heraldry shall become as woodworm and gall in his mouth, when the evil days shall draw night and he shall have no pleasure in them. And questioning, he remembers Shakespere's lines:

"Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage
And then is heard no more; it is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing . . . ."

But wonder of wonders, and ever recurring miracle of the universe, he DOES taste at the lips of his loved one that precious nectar of which he dreams, he DOES find in his work and his books that vicarious pleasure for which he so desperately seeks, he DOES experience those ecstatic giddy moments that live in his memory forever. What does it matter if the greater portion of his days are spent in pain and sorrow? 'Tis only the good that he remembers—the thrill of his lover's kiss, the Elyseum to which a successful piece of work transports him, those silly, dizzy moments when the earth spins crazily and is incredibly good. He works and accomplishes miracles of achievement — sonnets and superstructures, bridges and bric-a-bracs, music and memorials, grandeur and gardens. And, considering everything, he is incredibly happy through it all.

You say that man is brave because he lives constantly with death and yet without fear of it. I say that man is brave because he lives constantly with life and its perplexing futility, with sorrow and its pointless agony, with disappointment and frustration, and still smiles, and plans, and dreams, and actually DOES ACCOMPLISH!

Life is, as one man has said, a headache in a busy street, but man, the poor player, the silly and gloriously foolish optimist, manages to make of it a song, even when the sobs in his throat threaten to drown out the melody.—Hugh Holman

Examinations

The testing time is here again. One week from today we start out on the bi-yearly grind of examinations, examinations, examinations! Ever since the Christmas holidays we have been going through that annual grind of doing today what we should have done months before. Term papers have been piling up like the snow that blanketed our spirits as we came back after Christmas. Some of us have had to move our beds to the library to get all the parallel reading done that lies before us. Others who in some strange moment considered themselves embryo scientists have been growing weak and wan from acid fumes and strange and unpleasant gases as they labored over that lab work that they should have done in October. (There may be a moral to all this—in fact, we fear that it is an excellent example of the old adage of putting off until tomorrow—but we're entirely too busy to be bothered with morals. Lab and library and term papers and exams are all that we can think of just now).

But the examinations are coming. For five long months we have known it; but somehow, this morning, when they are but seven days removed from us, we first find ourselves able to really believe it. And here we are, completely unprepared for such colossal tests. What shall we do? Cram, Cram, Cram! Cramming is a very, very bad habit—but flunking courses is an even worse one.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

When we get around to it, we are going to insert in this weekly column a departmen tdevoted to Bright Sayings of Faculty Children.

The impulse of this sudden inspiration comes from the story of the little boy and girl offspring of a radical sociology instructor in one of our universities.

Little Bob and Marie were precocious youngsters who liked to listen to mama and papa discuss world problems over the breakfact coffee. Time came when they attended their first Sunday school class, and on that occasion the teacher began to speak of the great events in Genesis.

She told them about Adam and Eve and the serpent with his apple. "That is how sin and evil entered the world," she concluded. This statement roused Bobbie and Marie from their reverie.

"No," they both said vehemently, "Poppa says it was Capitalism!"

In addition to playing football at the University of Minnesota, students publish a quarterly literary review of merit. They did so last week.

Came a letter to the Minnesota Daily, in which the writer referred to a couple of stories in the literary sheet. Said the letter-writer:

"I noted two things that seem an especial affront to the reader. I refer to ———'s frequent allusions to the two appendages of the sternum that grace more or less prominently the superior dorsal portion of every woman's anatomy and to . . . ."

Tacked on below the printed letter was an editor's note:

"Mr. ——— enmeshes himself in an anatomical imbroglio in that the additments to which he alludes are neither addenda of the sternum nor disposed tergally."

If you have any doubt that football is big business now let us quote some statements made by the ticket director at Ohio State University.

A staff of 2,500 workers is required at a cost of about $1,900 to put on a big football game at that university each Saturday. Specifically: 3 ushers, 300 gate men, 300 patrols 150 special ushers, 100 policemen "trouble shooters" who take car drunks, etc., and 10 ground keep

Then he adds concession booth ployees and 200 program sellers members of the two teams, 200 b members and the officials, manag cheerleaders and visiting politic to get a grand total of enough to colonize Ethiopia.

Speaking of our national aut pastime, we cannot refrain from ing about the new gastronomic now in force at one of the Big schools. There the trustees passe resolution forbidding city clubs organizations from throwing customary large number of banq for the team after the football son. The boys were being kept their studying, the trustees decide

Some enterprising young met journalism made a checkup after b ball was over. They found out of regular gridiron squad released that sport eight had gone out for basketball immediately, four for bo and six or eight others had organ their own cage team to travel a the state.

Folks—those lads are in colleg play!

This week's prize for plain ing, brother, plain speaking, goes Professor Ernest Lauer of Northwe ern University, who got up on his before assembled students and c gated campus intellectuals who fa at real action.

Said he: "We need fight. Stude should be willing to go to any treme—even to getting kicked ou school—if they actually believe something."

Public health item:

Doctors in the student health s vice at the University of Kansas h just issued a warning to young lad to look for grippe germs in their neck pieces and fur muffs.

No Boxing

In a recent move, Coach Johnson cancelled all scheduled boxing engagements and announced that there would be no intercollegiate ring competition during the coming season. This will be a disappointment to local fans as well as college students who look forward each year to P. C.'s exhibitions against state and Georgia competition. However, the "head man" has acted wisely. Of a squad of a dozen and more, only two were capable of withstanding the punishment, ring ability and experience to be thrown at them during the season. And another thing—"absence makes the heart grow fonder," and when next season rolls around, the boxing appetites of this little hamlet's population will be whetted to a higher degree than ever—eh?

Strong Competition

P. C. students who have never seen a big league baseball team in action will be accorded this opportunity before they leave for a summer's vacation. The Philadelphia Athletics will stop in Clinton for a cup of coffee and a game with the Blue Stockings before continuing their annual spring exhibition tour.

The game was arranged recently and will be played on the P. C. diamond. It will be a new kind of thrill and something to look forward to.

Around the Circuit

Wilmer Hines, star tennis player from Columbia, S. C., has just received the rating of ninth best player in the world . . . .

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champ, is seeking a "white hope" to beat gravy-colored Joe Louis. It is rumored that Green and Norton, P. C. pugilists, have offered their services.

BLUE HOSE TO PLAY ATHLETICS

Wofford Terriers Win Opening Tilt

P. C.'s Blue Hose basketeers went down before the Wofford Terriers Wednesday evening on foreign soil, losing their first official court battle of the season by a score of 36 to 24.

As was generally expected, Levi and Wyatt bore the brunt of the P. C. attack, scoring totals of 11 and 9 points, respectively. The Hose showed possibilities but were apparently not yet in shape to put up a real battle against the Methodists.

The Baby Blue Hose officially opened their season with a victory over the Wofford Terrier yearlings in a preliminary contest. The score was 36 to 19.

Chick Galloway's Former Philadelphia Team To Play Exhibition Game Here April 7.

Presbyterian College will be host to the Philadelphia Athletics on April 7 and play them a baseball game.

This announcement threw the college into a baseball-minded group in the middle of winter and the campus sports discussion centers around baseball these days.

The Athletics will stop over and play P. C. on their trip north from the Florida training camp.

Chick Galloway, P. C.'s baseball coach, says he will try to defeat his old manager and team.

Galloway was for nine year a member of the Philadelphia Athletics. In that time he was recognized as the world's greatest shortstop and made the All-American team of 1925-26-27.

Leaving the Athletics for Detroit where he played one year for Ty Cobb, Chick's career was cut short by an injury the following spring.

He later played another year for the Athletics and then retired from active play.

Chick's friend, Connie Mack, the maker of championship teams, is visiting and playing P. C. as a result of the friendship he holds for Galloway.

Although the Athletics have traded or sold a number of their stars, the game will be a great attraction to the vicinity of Clinton.

What chance does P. C. have? Chick thinks we will do pretty well, especially if Weldon's arm is in good shape this spring.

Weldon, who was one of P. C.'s outstanding football backs this year, is also a good hurler, and has been offered several big league contracts. A sore arm handicapped his work last summer but he feels he is back in shape.

The baseball team, under Galloway's big league coaching, is looking forward to this meeting with the Athletics and to a hard fight in the college baseball league this spring. The visit of the A's to P. C.'s campus should act as a stimulating power in the fight for college baseball as a major sport throughout the state, and Galloway deserves the thanks of all in that he has brought big league attention to college baseball in South Carolina.

THE PARADE GROUND — By — EDGAR STANTON

The entire six feet and one hundred forty-eight pounds of Monsieur Dill Ellis are packed with happiness and joy supreme, for Santa brought him the most desired gift of all his youthful wishing—an appointment to the United States Military academy at West Point. Ellis is a lad of excellent disposition, highest military aspirations, and unlimited possibilities, so this honor comes as no surprise, and the hopes of all who know him are that he will make the best of his extraordinary good fortune.

Now that the expectations have been fulfilled and the tension removed, the greatest possible thanks are extended the Honorable John J. McSwain for his generosity in giving one of our fellow classmates a chance to become a member of the best and most soldierly corps of young men in the world. The men most concerned are Dill Ellis, named principal for the appointment, Julian Freeman, first alternate, and J. B. Jacobs, second alternate. In the near future, a physical examination will be given each of them, probably at Fort Benning, to determine whether or not they can meet the stringent physical requirements of the military academy. At any rate, no matter which one of them finally wins out, we are sure he will be a credit to Presbyterian college in every phase of the work at West Point. Three finer men could not have been selected.

On a prominent corner of the busiest street in Fayetteville, N. C., stands a tall, erect young man neatly attired in a Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. uniform. His slightly handsome face, distinguished appearance, and reserved manner identify him to us as the inimitable Roy Forehand—to sundry Fort Bragg privates who saunter, slouch, or stalk by he is a ranking officer of the U. S. regular army. Imagine Roy's joy, pleasure, and pride as said privates immediately tuck in their chins and throw out their chests

BOXING DISCONTINUED

It is to be regretted that varsity boxing will be discontinued for the coming season, but it hardly seems that anything else could be done under the circumstances. With only three men of experience left over from last year, it would be extremely hard to develop a team that would make anything like a creditable showing against the other teams in the state, which by the way are said to be unusually strong.

Intramural boxing, however, will be plenty good. These bouts are, in my opinion, the most enjoyable sports events of the entire year. A big crew of pugs will be out this year, probably much larger than ever before, and there will undoubtedly be the best ring show staged at P. C. in some years.

MORE EMPHASIS ON INTRAMURAL SPORTS NEEDED

P. C. has an advantage over most schools in that it has a high percentage of student participation in inter-collegiate athletics. However, there are a great many students who do not engage in athletics to any extent. Many of them would like to go out, but are hampered by being too light, or inexperienced, and therefore miss a great deal of fun and healthful exercise. Then there is a smaller group who are just "not interested" in athletics, generally because they have never indulged in outdoor sports enough to like them.

If P. C. had a good system of intramural athletics a great many boys who do not now get a chance to engage in athletic competition would be greatly benefitted. The ones who want to compete but who do not have enough weight or experience would have a chance to distinguish themselves in other ways than in standing on the sidelines yelling rah-rah. Then, too, those who are not particularly interested in sports would be encouraged to get out and join in the fun, if they see that there is a chance for them to make good with others of little experience.

The way to better the situation here would be to have a more extensive schedule for intramural sports. Instead of having only one intramural football game there should be several; say five or six. In basketball why not have a regular roster of games in place of a mere tournament. Baseball could be carried out on a similar basis. Then there might be a boxing tournament, a swimming meet, and a track meet to complete the picture.

The charge is often made that athletics in American colleges are in the hands of an aristocracy composed of the superior athletics, with the average student completely left out. This assertion is only too often true. The only way the student body at large can receive the benefits of physical competition is through just such a program of intensive cultivation of intramural sports.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

It seems that English girls are all the rage these days. CHESTER KELLER has one sponsoring in the PaC-SaC for him, while EDGAR PITMAN, commonly known as Jack Dempsey, is courting one who goes to school in Georgia.

It is said that a certain girl from Cross Hill has been trying to get information about JIM BREWER. The hero modestly explains, "It's my personality that gets 'em."

MARION PARHAM has acquired a new name now, in place of his former nickname, "Cue Ball." He is now called "Fish" because he was such a sucker last Christmas. After planking out ten bucks on a present for his (?) girl, he found that the only thing that came back in his direction was a pair of gloves, and these to a rival on the next floor of home in B section Smyth.

Six or seven boys, it is learned, have recently become Brenau-conscious, let it be said to the credit of that institution. The Keyholer himself, may we add, is not unappreciative of the possibilities in that direction.

A tremendous rolling, rumbling sound was suddenly heard in chapel Friday. Students were at first at a loss to find the source of the noise, but the keen-minded CLAUS M. CAPPELMANN soon discovered that it was STUART CAMPBELL sitting next to him singing bass.

HANK WILSON, the smooth, fast New Yorker, caught a faculty member's wife under the mistletoe during a Christmas fraternity social, and the result was quite alarming to the latter.

CORRECTION: The girl mentioned in a recent column whom LOUIS FOLLEY tried to get a friend to ask up for the next dance, hails from Florence, and not from Sumter, as originally stated. It is learned upon further investigation that the young lady is a beauty contest winner, and in view of this fact the Keyholer hereby offers his services.

Dean and Mrs. Brown experienced some little difficulty Friday with their car. On starting up the auto late Friday morning they were shocked out of their noonday reverie by a tremendous explosive sound that shook the earth, car and what not. Recovering rather quickly from their surprise, however, they leaped out of the car with almost acrobatic agility and retired to a safe distance from the car, where they watched in silent consternation the smoke which poured out in volumes from under the hood.

Finally, since all good things must come to an end, the smoke subsided, and our Dean bravely walked up to the car and pulled up the hood. His keen analytic mind revealed that what had caused the couple such great alarm was the fact that some joker, still saturated with the Christmas spirit, had attached a whistle bomb to the spark plugs to cause the resulting explosion.

College authorities expressed hope that the Dean would be able to meet his exam schedule.

An even more appropriate chalk plate by the clever artist, Mr. McLees, would have been a scene displaying the Keyhole's author getting slapped for the first time something over a week ago.

The author of the atrocity was a young lady (?) from Virginia who did not take kindly to bantering on the subject of the well-known Virginia Yuletide concoction, egg-nog. Evidently she had a guilty conscience on the subject of intoxicants, for without warning, she suddenly took fire at an innocent remark and hauled off, with temporarily disastrous results to the victim's composure.

Enemies of this column no doubt will try to insinuate that the incident was just an instance of the old Victorian dread of being kissed. All will agree on seeing the villainess, however, that she could not possibly have enough appeal to arouse that much interest from anyone with an I. Q. of 50.

while saluting smartly and respectfully—which salutes Roy quite naturally returns, he being a gentleman and everything like that. Inwardly he laughs incontinently, for soldiers despise and hate nothing more than the R.O.T.C. How many days Roy spent on that corner no one knows, but you should hear him tell it!

The next war! Without being idealistic or fantastic, it will be a forty-five mile per hour war instead of a three mile per hour one as was the 1914 world catastrophe. Armies will travel as motor units instead of on foot. When they clash, rather than entrenching face to face, shelling and pecking at each other for months, their mechanization will permit them to dash around the enemy's flanks and attack immediately and decisively—somebody will be annihilated or captured at once. Scouting parties will shoot across country in small four-passenger autos. Armies and supplies will be transported many miles in few hours. Speed is adopting war—war is adopting speed!

Sometime in early February, the advanced course will have the pleasure and ensuing profit of hearing several lectures on mechanization and the armies of Europe. The gentleman who is to make these lectures is to come here from Fort Benning, and is to talk from actual experience and observation among the armies of the great nations of Europe. No definite arrangements have as yet been made, but it is certain that these topics are to be lectured on in the near future.

Ethiopian Warisms: It looks as if the Ethiopians had taken their guest, Mr. Mussolini, on an old-fashioned snipe hunt. After every advance he holds a bag with no Ethiopians in it. . . . Ethiopians appear to be teaching the military scientists some new lessons in strategy. When a battle is scheduled, they just go somewhere else . . . Those who love fighting can now turn from the Ethiopian front to the London naval conference where it promises to be a good deal hotter. . . . Dispatch from the front says Italians have lost more men in motor accidents than in combat. All the Ethiopians need to do now is to provide more highways and grade crossings.

TIGERS DOWN VARSITY, 46-27, FROSH VICTORS

Pennington, of Clemson, Stars As Calvinists Fall Before Superior Team Saturday Night.

RATS CONTINUE "STRING OF VICTORIES" ON COURT

The Blue Hose from Presbyterian college fought a game battle against the superior Tigers at Clemson Saturday night, but went down in the second half before the latter's fine offense. The final score was 48 to 27.

Clyde Pennington, Clemson forward, was the center of the Clemson fireworks. This sharpshooter piled up 20 points during the contest. For Presbyterian, the best were Levi and Waldrep. The latter was P. C.'s high scorer, with eight points to his credit.

The game started out rather close and P. C. held Clemson down rather well during the first half. The score midway of the game was 28 to 19. During the second half, however, the Tigers ran away with things, and at the same time held P. C. to a low score.

The P. C. rats performed in much better style than their varsity brothers. They had little trouble in disposing of their opponents, the Clemson rats, by a score of 33 to 21. The Little Socks never once allowed the lead to depart from them.

Pugh led the scoring for both teams with 11 points. Batchelor was a close second with eight.

85% Work On PaC-SaC Done

Editor Tom Plaxico of the PaC-SaC, the annual publication of the senior class of Presbyterian college, announced this morning that over 85 per cent of the material for the completed book was now in the printer's hands.

This is the first time in the history of the publication that so large an amount of the material has been in at so early a date.

Those who are in the know say that the 1936 yearbook gives promise of being the best annual published at this school in recent years.

Phi's Elect Officers

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity close William Degner as its leader for the second semester of the school year. Degner is from Lake Mills, Wisconsin, and is a member of the junior class. Second in command, as treasurer, is Francis Blalock, a sophomore. Joe Commander, also a soph, is secretary.

Jack Gasque was reelected as historian, as was Bill Jones to his office as chaplain. Thomas Estes, a senior, fills the responsible potion of warden.

Three Fraternities Plan "Hell Week"

Pi Kappa Phi's, Beta Kappa's, and Alpha Lambda Tau's Plan Tortures For Neophytes.

The leading lights of three fraternities, Pi Kappa Phi, Beta Kappa, and Alpha Lambda Tau, are going into individual hurdles thinking of new ways to torture their neophytes in the forthcoming edition of the annual "hell week." Kappa Alpha fraternity staged their week of horseplay some two weeks ago, while the remaining two fraternities, Alpha Kappa Pi and Pi Kappa Alpha, are not planning anything of that nature.

The performances of "hell week" usually include a night of horseplay in the fraternity rooms, in which pledges are required to submit to physical castigation from the active members, and are made to swallow all kinds of disagreeable substances. Later on, the neophytes make nightly trips to local cemeteries to hunt inscriptions and the like. Another interesting feature is the stunts which the yearlings sometimes perform in the public square in the center of Clinton's business district.

Newspaper Is Best Record Of Times

Chattanooga, Tenn. — The newspaper was pictured by Edgar E. Robinson of Stanford university as the historian's surest and most nearly eternal source of information. "The living event is forever gone," Robinson told the American Historical association, "but the newspaper is evidence that life was here."

Professor Robinson spoke "in praise of newspapers" at the association's annual dinner.

"During the past 15 years in a period of unprecedented turmoil and uncertainty we have constantly before our eyes a new kind of newspaper," he said. "In purpose it is not new, but very old—for it arises from a basic American practice — freedom of the press.

"It is a factor of increasing importance in evaluating the patterns in the public mind. Other agencies for expression of public opinion may have declined in importance. The newspaper has not."

Referring to "our knowledge of the past," Professor Robinson declared that "nowhere else is it so vividly, so completely, so fairly revealed as in the newspapers."

Of newspaper men he said:

"They are not propagandists and they are not crusaders. They attempt to present the passing moment with the same impartiality, the same honesty and the same high purpose as the historian uses many years later."

PUNSTERS PROTEST PERSECUTION

For the last few months there have been many sarcastic remarks made about the noble art of punning, even going so far as to alter Dr. Johnson's definition of it as "the lowest form of humor" to merely "the lowest form." A storm of protest against this lack of appreciation has arisen among the ranks of true punsters, as both unjustified and libelous.

Immediate action was taken by the formation, in accordance with the present governmental custom of choosing letters at random from the alphabet and then creating some new administration to fit the combination, of the S. P. P. P. — Society for the Prevention of Punster-Punishment. President Halitosis Darby, in a statement to the press, is quoted as having exclaimed vehemently, dashing his flowing locks out of his eyes: "Apun my word, sewers, things are in a terrible condition — I warn you — if we can take it, we condition out! Gentlemen, such fowl attacks could only come from chicken-hearted souls . . . I mean heels, not soles."

Only accredited Punsters and friends of punning are to be admitted to the society. A few exceptions were allowed, as in the case of "P. Three Jacobs," because of the eventual connection of his name with the "Three P"

No Classes To Be Held Mon. Or Tues.

Monday Will Be Holiday; Registration Tuesday. Second Semester Begins Wednesday.

Monday, January 27, will be a holiday and registration for the second semester comes Tuesday, was the announcement of Dean Marshall W. Brown in chapel on last Friday morning.

The holiday was designed, not for the benefit of the students, but rather to give the professors time to get out the first semester grades before Tuesday rgeistration.

Those who desire to may register this week by paying their third quarter fees, and thus gain two holidays.

Class work on the second semester begins with the regular schedule on Wednesday.

Drama Club Invites Winthrop Group

The "Sock and Buskin," newly-organized dramatic club of Presbyterian college, had its second meeting on the night of Tuesday, January 14. R. C. McLees, chairman of the committee appointed to select a play for presentation, announced that as yet no definite choice had been made, although several were under consideration.

There was some discussion on the possibility of organizing a chapter of Alpha Psi Delta, national honorary dramatic fraternity, which is already represented in the state by chapters at Wofford, Coker, Carolina and Winthrop. Further discussion of the matter was deferred until activities of the local group have qualified at least enough of its members to justify petitioning for a charter.

The club voted to extend an invitation to the dramatic club at Winthrop to visit Presbyterian college during the second semester with the purpose of presenting a play. This entrance into the field of intercollegiate dramatic relations is expected to stimulate interest in the movement, which has been sadly neglected of late.

Miss Elizabeth Blakely was elected to replace Charles Steenbergen, who does not plan to return to school for the second semester, on the temporary executive committee which is to function until the choice of permanent officers.

The "Sock and Buskin" hopes to be in a position to present a play to the student body by March.

Arnold Attended Indianapolis Meet

E. J. Arnold, president of the local college Y. M. C. A., attended the 12th quadrennial convention of the Student Volunteer movement as the official delegate from Presbyterian college. The convention was held December 28 through January 1, in Indianapolis, Indiana. Sam Hughes, member of the "Y" cabinet, also attended but did not register as a delegate. Besides going as a representative for P. C., Arnold also represented the South Carolina Student Volunteer union, of which he is president.

The convention is reported to have been the largest of its kind ever held. There were 3,000 registered delegates from the United States and Canada, of which about 2,400 were college students. All the states of the union except five were represented; 458 colleges had students at the conclave. South Carolina, the best represented of the Southern states, rated eighteenth among all the states and Canada. It has 65 persons present.

The leaders and speakers of the convention included many of the most famous living Christian. Numbered among these were: William Temple, archbishop of York; T. Z. Koo, leader of Chinese student thought; Basil Matthews, famed author; Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese Christian leader; and Richard Roberts, moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Of these, Arnold describes the archbishop of York as "most outstanding"; Richard Roberts as "very, very good," and Toyohiko Kagawa as "very popular."

Oliver Calls For Magazine Material

George E. Oliver, editor of The Collegian, Presbyterian college quarterly literary magazine, announces that the March issue is now in preparation. All men who intend to contribute are asked either to submit finished material to the editor by February 1, or discuss the work which they wish to do with him before then.

Mr. Oliver states that he has no plans for the publications that he wishes to release at this time.

Second Issue Of "Alumlite" Out

On last Monday the second issue of The Alumlite, the official publication of the Alumni Association of Presbyterian college, came off the press.

It was an interesting number of the little monthly newspaper. It carried a feature story on the Athletics playing the Blue Hose here next spring, an article on P. C. as an ideal place for a school fojournalism, the usual monthly message of Acting President William P. Jacobs, and many interesting news items about alumni.

R. C. McLees is editing the journal under the supervision of Turk Osman.

Go To Sleep After Memorizing, Advice

Ithica, N. Y.—"If a person memorizes certain material perfectly and goes to sleep immediately afterward, he will recall more of it and also relearn the whole task more economically after a lapse of 24 hours, than if he waits even a few hours before he goes to sleep," said Dr. H. M. Johnson, professor of psychology at the American University in Washington, D. C., in a lecture at Cornell recently.

Experiments showed that students could more easily recall and relearn material they had learned by rote and partially forgotten, if they first slept for eight hours and then worked for 16 hours, than if they distributed rest

"It's Been Lots of Fun . . ."

The time has come when we, like all college staffs, must cover up our typewriters, throw away our blue pencils, take off the masks of hard-boiled newspaper men and turn the whole affair over to new, fresher hands and minds.

It is with this issue that we take leave of you. For one year we have attempted to give you fair, complete, impartial, and unbiased accounts of the happenings on our campus. For one year we have attempted through these editorial columns to praise where praise was deserved, to censure where censure could help, to advocate what we felt was worthy of our support, to interpret what we felt needed interpretation. For one year we have attempted to give you scandal about yourselves and your neighbor across the hall, but always in a spirit of fun and never of malice. In short, we have attempted to give you the best, and most representative newspaper that we could.

In many things we have failed. Often the paper that you read over the supper table on Monday night could have been improved, but always in the bounds of time and space and human nature we have done our best. We have made mistakes, huge ones; we have made errors, important ones; we have made omissions, unnecessary ones. We have trodden on toes that deserved no trodding, and we have left toes untrodden that deserved the tread of a giant. These have always been errors of judgment, not of motive.

Now as we leave, we can truthfully say, "It's been lots of fun—we've got a world of pleasure out of the work we have done on this little journal. We hate to leave it, for, in spite of all the work—and there has been a tremendous amount of it done—it has been the best and most important part of our college career."

And so, with a strange little tightening of the throat muscles, and a sigh that has only a touch of relief in it, we bid you farewell. It is with a little unwarranted pride that we go, for now as we pass out we can't seem to remember the dreary nights, the long laborious afternoons, the big mistakes, the ghastly errors. We can only remember the pleasure that came when the presses ground and the paper came flopping over, only the thrill of accomplishment that we always felt when we looked at the front page of each completed issue.

Forgive us for our errors, forget our blunders, and remember only the things that we may have done that pleased you.

Farewell!

o

Finis

Forgive me for the last time as I drop the traditional editorial "we" and revert to the conceited and personal pronoun.

As this paper goes to press, my career as a college editor is ended. And five days after you read this my career as a college student will have "finis" written to it as well.

It is with a strange lack of gladness that I approach these moments. And it is strange that this should be true, because many times in the past year I have felt that nothing would give me half so much pleasure as being "through with it all."

As has been the case with, I imagine, everyone of you, I have questioned time after time the value of a college education, my sanity in coming and staying after I came. Often the clouds of despond have hung heavily over me and college, like life, has been a cesspool of bleak despair. Now the end is here. It is such natural fear I should remember only the pleasant things and forget the others to you, Walter Johnson, an unselfish man, bad. But it is not about that that I am writing.

I am glad that I came to college—because it has been the most pleasant period of my life, of course, but more because I know now that life will hold more for me than it ever could have had I not come. I am confident that this is true regardless of wherever I may be or whatever I may be doing.

Somehow, almost in spite of myself, college has prepared me for better and more intelligent living, for saner, more efficient work, for more pleasant and helpful leisure.

In a few years the facts that I have accumulated will be lost in the vale of forgetfulness; the friends that I have made will become, with a few glorious exceptions, names existing in the realm of happy memories; the things that I have done will exist only in the pleasant, melancholy reverie of days gone by.

But college is, after all, more a state of mind than anything else. And that state of mind, that training in thinking, that interest in better things that I have gained, that enthusiasm for journalism that I have learned here—these, will live on, a reality.

The revolt of youth will become the conservatism of middle age. The ideals of twenty-two will be compromised into the conventions of thirty-five. The enthusiasm of today will give way to the monotony of tomorrow. The hopes and dreams of now will be crushed beneath the disappointments and frustrations that are to come. I know that, yet I am confident that college has given me something that will live through all that, that will make all that somehow less true.

I went to college and my life will be richer because of it. That is reason enough for coming. I'm glad that I did.

"The Music Goes Round and Round"

Yesterday we read that the three men who composed the currently popular song, "The Music Goes Round and Round," have already received over ten thousand dollars each from its sale. The publishers of the song, who once considered 10,000 sales a week something to shout over, week before last were shocked out of their wits to find that they had sold 102,000 copies of the song in seven days. Everyone is singing it, whistling it, yelling it. It has become a household phrase almost over night. The music publishing industry declares that it is the most popular song since "Yes, We Have No Bananas" stood America on its musical ear back about 1925.

Everyone admits that the words are silly, and completely without point. Any musician will tell you that the tune is a monstrosity. Musicians the nation over grit their teeth when they hear it, but they sing it. Some psychologist will probably come forward with the explanation that it gives people an emotional outlet for their desire to be completely mad. Perhaps so, but we doubt it.

The thing that worries us about the whole matter is that with as much good music, beautiful music, and even fairly interesting music that is daily flooding America it should choose as its song as dumb and completely assinine a piece of so-called music as this cock-eyed little ditty.

Somehow we feel that it is a reflection on our national maturity and mental balance, and fairly good proof for the next English novelist who spends a week in New York and then writes a book on America As the Last Outpost of Barbarism.

We're distinctly worried over the whole affair—but what worries us most is that we find ourselves humming, whistling, and singing along with the rest of the American people.

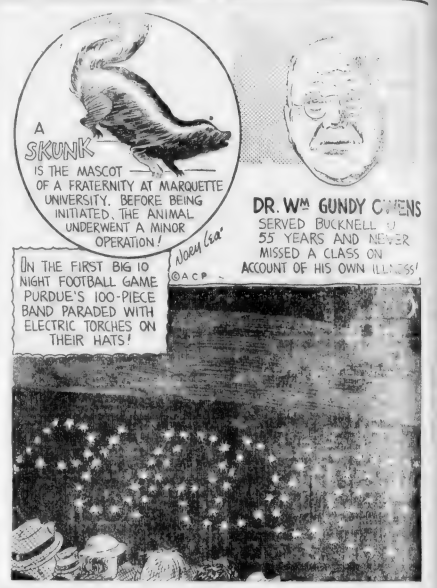
A Sane Coach



On Monday before last Coach Walter A. Johnson of Presbyterian College announced that the intercollegiate boxing schedule which had been drawn up for his fighters would not be carried out. He gave as his reason the fact that his boys were too inexperienced to go up against the trained fighters with whom the schedule put them.

It is easy to see that this wasn't an easy thing for a coach to do—especially one who is the father of intercollegiate boxing in the state. It would have been much easier to simply complete the schedule and let the boys take it on the chin and try to grin over it.

It is to his credit that he did not. The cancellation of the schedule proves a statement that has often been made about Walter Johnson—that always his boys come first with him. It wouldn't hurt him physically if they were knocked out seven or eight times this spring. It would hurt them.

The result: There'll be no intercollegiate boxing at Presbyterian College until next year. Congratulations to you, Walter Johnson, an unselfish man.

THE COLLEGIATE REVIEW

You can teach an old dog new tricks, say Stanford University psychologists. Age has little to do with learning, and one can learn almost as easily at 50 as at 20.

Seven members of the Wesleyan college football team are on the dean's list of high ranking students.

Four University of Pennsylvania students have been put on probation because of a recent dormitory panty raid, according to the campus literary magazine.

A "slow" start in long runs from behind on the football field is sufficient grounds for assault and battery, charges a Pennsylvania judge ruled.

The NYA has disclaimed jobs for students injured while working on relief projects.

Members of the Southwest Missouri State Teachers college football team planned to ride to their next football game in two chartered buses. But when the drivers demanded $50 apiece for the trip, the players decided to hitchhike instead. Result: Only two members of the squad showed up at the game.

Lessons in parking and "how to park" and "how not to park" are offered students at Boston University.

NYU has dropped its "Violet" nickname.

FIRST SEMESTER EXAMINATIONS BEGIN TODAY

WILL CONTINUE THROUGH SAT.

Peace and Quiet Reign Supreme On Campus As Students Put On "Finishing Touches."

Today was the first day of first semester examinations. Most students have now completed one or two of their "big tests" and are studying for the remaining hurdles to advancement.

The campus and dormitories have assumed that strangely quiet and peaceful air that comes over it only during exams. Even the most carefree student seems to find horseplay and rowdiness out of place.

The order of the day has been slightly rearranged. Breakfast comes as usual at 7:30, but the morning examination begins at 8:30. Dinner is at 12:30, and at 1:30 the afternoon exams begin. The evening meal comes at 6 o'clock.

The examination period closes at the end of the morning exam on Saturday.

Curtain Call

An even dozen seniors took their curtain call in college journalism as they prepared this issue of The Blue Stocking. These men have, with a few exceptions, worked for four years on this journal. They are:

Hugh Holman, editor.
Colin Hudson, assistant Editor.
Robert McLees, features and art.
Preston Charles, sports editor and gossip columnist.
Edgar Stanton, R.O.T.C. editor.
Richard Potter, Y.M.C.A. editor.
James Ratchford, alumni editor.
John Chapman, reporter-at-large.
Tom Plaxico, news writer.
Jack Gasque, news writer and columnist.
Cliff Johnson, news writer.
Tom Estes, news writer.

Four of this group are planning to make journalism a life work. They are: Holman, Charles, Gasque, and Johnson.

Texas Sophomore War Correspondent

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Greenville, Texas.—J. C. Arnold, 19, University of Texas journalism sophomore, decided he wanted to be a war correspondent, in spite of having little experience, money or connections. So he got aboard the first freighter offering him a chance to work his way to Djibouti, French Somaliland, and several Texas papers are now using his feature stories, air-mailed from Addis Ababa.

According to the last word received by his agent, Boyd Sinclair, editor of the Wesley College Pilot, Arnold is staying in Addis Ababa with Count Hilliare du Berrier, French adventurer, an English airplane pilot, and a newspaperman from Lahore, India.

Arnold sailed from Marseilles, France, to Djibouti with Taklo Hawariate, Ethiopian delegate to the League of Nations, interviewing him on the journey.

According to Arnold, whose school paper, The Texan, boasts of being the only college daily having a special correspondent in the war zone, Addis Ababa is law abiding, justice is swift and sure, and the main danger to life and limb lies not in war complications but in the native-driven taxis.

Gals Get Cadets' Goat At West Point

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

West Point.—The "equilibrium" of United States Army cadets must be preserved at whatever cost, so the two attractive young women who assisted at West Point's compulsory dancing classes last year have been banned forever.

When Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts, of Tulsa, Okla., went to the academy to teach dancing to those of the cadets who didn't know how, they took along as accompanists two young women from their dancing school. It was a good idea, but it didn't work.

"The young ladies disturbed the equilibrium of the cadets learning to Frederick March wears uniforms better than any of Hollywood's sundry militaristics. West Point is the most outstanding disciplinary school in the world. Time was when "Beowulf" had a chance to take an appointment there, but he cast it aside for scholarly pursuits. War has saved and advanced more civilizations than culture and religion. All future officers who have not already done so should read G. Bradford's "Lee, The American," particularly chapters seven and eight. Time is the most important element in battle — I would put sleep next. My grandfather often said that the army is no place for ambitious Scrooges craving too much spondulix. Mussolini says, "I'll civilize savage Ethiopia." So over he goes and drops bombs all over the place.

P. Charles, long-winded Keyholer, informed me the other day that he considered the R.O.T.C. boxing mixups the most interesting and entertaining event of the year. That surprised me, but I was knocked off my feet when he calmly challenged me to a fistic battle in the squared circle as an added attraction to the already quite attractive program. Considering the many calumnies directed by him against the army and this representative in particular, what could one do but accept? So, upon his own suggestion, the army will tangle with P. C.'s outstanding pacifist sometime etrly in February. Needlessly said, all of my sympathies are with the soldiery.

M. C. Mixson has formed such a habit of prefacing his remarks by "Fran, My Fran," etc, that he replied, while at attention, to Major Wysor's question as to his rifle number: "23618, my fran"! . . . General Forrest, Confederate cavalry, speaking of the concentration of forces at a critical point, gives the best advice yet offered—"Git thar fust with the mosetst men!"

Haile Selassie, who calls himself "King of Kings," "Conquering Lion of the Trible of Judah," "Mighty Emperor of Ethiopia," may change his opinion of himself considerably before Benito Mussolini gets through with him.—Dr. Woodworth.

Plain Talk

Drs. Rhame and Freesland are thoroughly disgusted at the poor cooperation given them by members of the student body in regard to sick and suffering. Complains and grievances are unnecessary — only constructive advice—call 'em orders if you like—are given here. All men who report their room-mates as being sick will give full names, dormitories and room numbers. O. D.'s and orderlies must take prescribed medicine to patients, and personally see that each dose is completely imbibed or masticated. All sick men who do not have fever, and who are capable of moving around, will report to the gym in person to be diagnosed and medicated — at eight a. m. Simple enough, and students are requested to comply.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Quite unaccountably, we find ourselves with a sudden rush to the head of stories about absent-minded college professors. We do not recall where the stories originated, nor whom they concerned, but our remembrance of all of them suggests that there is a basis of truth for each one.

We know, for example, of the professor in a small town college who travelled 50 miles away to another campus to observe a basketball game. As the game broke up, a man from his home town offered the professor a ride home. He accepted, with gratitude. No sooner did he set foot on his front porch than he realized he had driven his own car to the other city.

Since he had to teach the next morning, he sent his wife on the train to get the car and drive it home.

So he stopped in at the depot and bought his wife a round trip ticket!

We recall the story of another man, a German professor, who was sitting in a railway depot with his wife, waiting for the train. Suddenly he exclaimed, "My word! I've left my gold watch up in the hotel room! I'll have to run up and get it."

"But you haven't time," said his wife.

Thereupon, the professor perked out his watch (the watch in question) and blurted, "Sure, I got fifteen minutes. I can make it." And he turned and started to scurry away!

No doubt similar episodes to this have often happened in colleges. But it's still good. We are thinking of the phychology professor who stomped into his first hour class, threw down his notes and began to lecture. Rapidly, concisely, using his best witticisms, he talked for 15 minutes. Then he stopped.

"Any questions?" he asked. There were none.

So he began to ask some questions of this student and that. None of them could answer.

"Good Lord!" he burst out finally. "Have I spent this whole semester for nothing? Don't you know a blessed thing about this course?"

And a brave boy raised his hand and said, "No, sir. This is a class in eighteenth century prose."

Faculty people dance and frisk occasionally as well as their students, so each campus generally has its faculty dancing club. At one of these affairs, a professor of education began to dance with the wife of another instructor.

As the first dance wore on, the educator began to complain vociferously of the floor, the music and even hinted that his partner possibly wasn't quite up to snuff as a dancer.

Everything was solved, however, when his partner informed the professor that he still had on his rubbers.

Have you yet heard of the young girl in a Latin class who translated the story of Achilles into English? Concerning that famous episode in the life of the great warrior, her translation said:

"His mother, holding him by the heel, dipped him into the River Styxs, until he was fairly intolerable."

Let us close by observing the plight of members of the college marching band, accustomed to forming the names of opposing schools, on the football field, who learned that their next opponent was to be the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"The Boys From Menlo"

The boys from Menlo, they call themselves. Hailing from that rural and sparsely populated hamlet, somewhere in Georgia, these boys challenge any other group for home-town basketball supremacy. This quartet, namely, Red Wyatt, George Cleckler, Jake Majors, and Jake Cavin, makes up a cital part of the present varsity team. Wyatt is one of the best forwards in the state, while Cleckler has performed well at the pivot position. Majors and Cavin are both definite varsity calibre and will be heard from before terminating their respective careers.

May Menlo, through its P. C. representatives, prosper!

Nigger In the Wood Pile

Joe Louis, the gravy-colored glove artist, recently refused to perform in Havana, the Cuban capital. The reason—the fear that he would be kidnapped. Maybe the brown bomber is aware of the Cuban scarcity of bellhops.

Where Am I?

After watching Newberry's cagers battle the Blue Hose basketeers for an even two hours last Saturday evening, Myra Wise, comely co-ed, exclaimed: "Oh, goody-goody, we beat Furman!"

Football Faults Found In N.Y. Meet

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New York.—Predictions that intercollegiate football as it exists today "will be dead in 1942" unless drastic steps are taken immediately, and the loudest furore in years over the perennial problems of athletic subsidization and spectator drunkenness marked the close of the hectic 1935 gridiron season.

The "slow whistle," increased use of laterals, side-line rules, gambling, the blacklisting of officials and a movement to put the posts back on the goal-line furnished minor headaches at coaches' conferences here.

Outstanding among 1935 developments was the forthright approval of paid athletes by two big Southern conferences, the Dixie and Southeastern. A marked tendency to follow suit was noticeable all over the country.

The Dixie conference voted that room, board and tuition were no more than an athlete ought to get for his labors on the playing field, and Southeastern made a sudden decision in favor of above-board athletic scholarships. Despite the importance of the move, little excitement was evident in the comment that followed. It was generally recognized that the Southern schools were merely legalizing and admitting a common under-cover practice.

Major John L. Griffith, Western conference mogul, was one of those viewing with alarm, as did officials of Southern Methodist, one-half of this year's Rose Bowl clash, but the Universities of Texas and Kansas openly applauded. So did Prof. C. Willett, Pacific Coast conference chairman. The attitude of the Eastern schools was one of indifference.

Blame for increased drunkenness and rowdiness was laid squarely on the shoulders of the colleges themselves. For incidents such as Dartmouth's twelfth man against Princeton, and the tearing down of the goal posts before the completion of the Princeton-Yale game the schools have themselves to blame, said such outstanding footballers as Dr. Mal Stevens of New York university; and the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church dealt itself a hand with the statement that, "the leading teams are invariably followed to the field of battle by all of the barber shop sports of their home environment, including the full roster of village idiots."

"Alumni" who flunked out of grade school are blamed for most of the disorders reaching a new peak this season. "If we continue to accept hood-

TRACK MENU IS ANNOUNCED PROSPECTS FAIR

Six Intercollegiate Meets Listed. Team Will Trek To Florida After State Meet.

Coach Walter Johnson, P. C. athletic director, announces the completion of the 1936 track schedule. An interesting new feature is the addition of a dual contest with the University of Florida on the week-end after the South Carolina state meet.

The track season roster is as follows:

March 28—Carolina at Clinton, varsity and frosh.

April 4—Georgia at Clinton, varsity.

April 11—Clemson at Clinton, varsity and frosh.

April 18—Furman at Clinton, varsity and frosh.

April 25—Davidson at Davidson, frosh.

May 1 and 2—State meet at Clinton.

May 9—Florida at Gainesville.

Track prospects for the coming season are reported to be fairly good. The Hose will be stronger in the weight events, with the addition of Jeff Prather, mountainous weight man. Prather bettered the state varsity record in the discus during his freshman year, and he is therefore expected to get plenty of points in the spring season in this event as well as the shot put.

The relay team will be weakened by the loss of Bill Clark, state record-holder in the 440-yard run, and Paul Yearout. However, Ervin ("Biffet") Green, gangling assistant manager of last year's track team, has expressed his intention of trying out for anchor man.

The dashes will be taken care of by Joe Bradley, while Jimmy Winget is a quarter-mile and relay man. Roy Forehand did excellent time in the half-mile last year, and is expected to show up even better this spring. Phil Adams, the blond mile runner, is enough to take care of this event, since he placed third in the state meet last May. Preston Charles and Colin Hudson are two experienced men who will run the two-mile.

Bill Thompson is the only veteran hurdler who is coming out, so far as can be learned.

The field events will be in much better shape than last year. As stated before, Jeff Prather is the big man in this department. He is ably seconded by Walter Williams in his two events, the discus and the shot put. Rex Augustus Wilbanks will try his hand at the javelin, as usual. J. B. Jacobs is a consistently good high jumper, and will undoubtedly rack up many points in this event. No old men are as yet in sight for the pole vault, however. As for the broad jump, Allen Guerard and Bill Thompson, two men of recognized ability in this line, will rank among the three or four best in the state.

Freshmen Down Eatonton High

The Presbyterian college freshmen credited themselves with another victory Friday night by defeating the basketball team from Eatonton (Ga.) high school, 31-17. The Blue Anklets, playing the second team for the greater part of the game, completely outclassed the Georgia boys.

The regulars began the game for the freshmen but in the first few minutes ran up an eight-point lead and turned the game over to the substitutes. By the end of the first half the Anklets had run up the score to 15-4.

The Eatonton boys entered the second period with a determined spirit. Led by Bryant, the high school team started a rally which brought them within six points of the frosh. The spurt was cut short, however, and the Anklets pulled away again. Towards the end of the contest the freshman first-stringers re-entered the game. They began a display of fast, accurate passing which dazzled the Eatonton boys and kept the audience amused and enthusiastic. In the final minutes the Anklets scored almost at will and seemed more interested in baffling the opponents than in ringing goals.

Folley was high-scorer of the game with 9 points. Eatonton's principal offensive threat was Bryant, who led his team's scoring with 5 points.

Erskine 27, P. C. 14, In Slow Court Tilt

Neither Team Able To Find Basket As Hose Fall Before Secedrs In Due West Tuesday.

Tuesday night the P. C. varsity dropped a game to the Erskine basketeers, 27-14. The game, which was played at Due West, was rather slow and was marred by numerous fouls.

Both squads had trouble getting an eye on the basket; the Presbyterians, especially, found it difficult to get their range. The game was largely defensive. Erskine took an early lead which they never relinquished. At the half the Blue Stockings were trailing, 12 to 8.

The second half was characterized by wild shooting and passing. Only one man on the court seemed able to find the basket. Gettys, Erskine center, shot six goals from the field and two foul throws to credit himself with 14 points and high score for the game. Forehand was the only member of the Blue Hose outfit to ring more than a single field goal. He was high scorer for the Calvinists, with six points.

Frosh Take Erskine In Thriller, 31 To 29

The P. C. frosh basketballers kept a clean slate by nosing out the Erskine freshmen Tuesday night to the tune of 31-29. The Anklets started slowly and did not strike a stride until the second half. At half time the P. C. boys were at the small end of a 22-14 score. The Blue Anklets began the second period with a spurt which brought them abreast of the Due West freshmen. During this rally they used a fancy passing attack that kept the Erskine frosh baffled. The score seesawed back and forth, with the outcome of the game in doubt until the final whistle. Holcomb clinched the game in the final minutes with a long shot which gave the Anklets the two-point lead that was the margin of victory. Pugh, Presbyterian forward, led the scoring with twelve points.

Mill Team Is Victor In Practice Game

The Presbyterian basketball men lost their second game of the week Friday night when they were nosed out by the team from Chicopee mills. The score against the Calvinists was 12-39.

The game was hard-fought and well-played throughout, with both teams working hard. It was the fast breaking and accurate work of the visitors under the basket that gave them the slight edge. The Hosemen displayed their best form of the season to date as the offensive work of the team clicked during several spurts. The game was not a scheduled contest and does not affect P. C.'s rating in the state conference.

THE FRESHMAN BASKETBALL TEAM

It is gratifying to see that P. C. at last has what seems to the makings of a really good freshman basketball team. F years the Presbyterian cagers have been groping around tryi to get out of the cellar in state standing and have almost alwa ended up in that vicinity.

This year, however, the rats seem to have uncovered sco really capable performers. Several members of the team sho that they have had plenty of experience and also an extra portio of natural ability. Such stars as Batchelor, Pugh, Holden, a Holcombe are making this team one of the most outstanding the state, and it looks as if the rats will at least be strong co tenders for the state championship, unless something unforse such as injuries or withdrawals, happens to cripple the Ba Hose quintet.

HAVE WE GOT WHAT IT TAKES?

As I conversed with Coach Johnson the other day on the su ject of the dropping of boxing from the sports menu, he sa "What's the matter with boys these days? They don't train li they used to. None of them seem to be interested in athletics."

This opinion, as expressed by Johnson, was to me very thoug provoking. Has the college boy nowadays got what it takes make good in athletics? Probably many coaches are wonderin After all, it is not merely natural ability that makes a good a lete. In the end, it all boils down to the old recipe; first, per verance in following out a training and practice routine, and s ond, the "guts" to put all you have into it.

I do not know how things used to be years ago, but I do kn that very few college men are willing to put out much effort making good in a sport. How often have we heard the old famil reply, when a man is asked to go out for some form of athleti "Aw, I don't want to quit smoking," or "I'd have to train t much." And yet, how often have we seen the same persons s ting up in the grandstands with their dates criticizing the team play, or complaining about their lack of spirit.

Then boxing season comes around and the same fellows back and watch two poor mortals maul each other. Then, aft it's all over, they pan the loser for being so lousy. Still later find them again on the grandstand watching a track meet. A as the runners go round and round on the two-mile run, one fortunate has the intestinal fortitude to finish, in spite of t fact that he is already a lap and a half behind the others. A when he finally drags wearily in, his eight laps closed and done number of those in the crowd with large waist measures and highly-developed sense of humor clap in derision.

Such is the attitude of many collegians of the present d Athletics are for d—— fools who want to get out there and themselves for the sake of the school's reputation; but as most of us, we would rather sit in our easy chair, read our C lier's, indulge in our bull-sessions and take our exercise out dancing.

WHAT! NO SWIMMERS?

P. C. students are more interested in reading Plato and Ar totle in their leisure moments than in indulging in athletic co petition.

If you don't believe this, just try to see how many you persuade to go out for the swimming team. When Coach John called for a show of hands on this question in chapel last w only two or three signified their desire to try out for the t aggregation.

It is unfortunate that P. C., with the best pool in the sta cannot use it for competition, but merely for amusement for s dents in the time they can spare from their deep concentrat on studies.

TOWARD A LONGER TRACK SEASAN

It is gratifying that the track team has scheduled for 1936 meet on the week-end after the state meet. I have always believ that the track season in South Carolina colleges is too sho Cold weather, which comes in the early part of the season, ha pers training, and it is only when the season is well-advanc that conditions become right for working out on track and fie Many schools in sections where track performances are sup ior to the Palmetto state have meets right up to the first of Ju There is no reason why we should stop track just when the wea weather is gaining full sway. If the state meet were moved to couple of weeks later track fans would see much better work a at the same time those track men who decide to come out aft the season has already started will have a better chance to ma good.

For these reasons I regard the addition of the Florida meet a step in the right direction.

Editor Selects Best Stories Of The Year

HOLMAN LISTS THE TEN MOST IMPORTANT EVENTS OF PERIOD

New Administration Tops List; Has Been Year of Improvements At College.

By Hugh Holman

As I begin preparing this, my last, issue of The Blue Stocking I find myself looking back over the year in which I have been a college editor, and thinking of the "big stories" that I have run. And as I look back I find certain stories standing out in my mind.

I am listing what I consider the ten most important events of the year. These are happenings that I believe have had a definite and lasting effect on the school, or that reflect a new and vital attiutde on the past of the student body. And, looking over my list, I blush with shame to find that several of the stories occupied small space in The Blue Stocking, while I had played up comparatively unimportant events.

The ten most important stories of the year are, I believe:

First. A New Administration Takes Charge Last June. Doctor John McSween, for seven years president of P. C., accepts a call to Purity Presbyterian church of Chester, and William P. Jacobs becomes acting president. Mr. Jacobs has in the few months in which he has served here gained the united support and complete confidence of the student body to an extent that I had not believed possible.

Second. A New Plan of Expansion and Improvement Begins. Mr. Jacobs has instituted a new plan for the expansion and improvement of the school. It includes larger student body, more efficient faculty, better athletics, and a drastic lowering of indebtedness. It bids fair to make Presbyterian college one of the outstanding schools in the South, though at present it has barely begun to function.

Third. Largest Enrollment In History Last September. 332 students matriculated the second week of September, 1935, giving P. C. the largest student body it has ever seen—even larger than in the boom days of '28's prosperity. This was the first visible result of the new plan of expansion.

Fourth. Biggest Homecoming In History As Johnson's Twentieth Year At P. C. Is Celebrated. This was more than mere tribute to a man, though it was that and deservedly so. It was the grandest single day in the history of the school, and it probably did more toward rebuilding the broken spirit of the student body and reawakening interest on the part of the alumni than any other single event in the year.

Fifth. Students Vote Publications Board of Control. The formation of this nominating body for elective offices on The Blue Stocking, The Collegian, and the PaC-SaC sounded the death-knell of incompetence on student publications.

Sixth. The Collegian Voted Best Magazine In the State; The Blue Stocking Second Best Newspaper. These two awards given at the annual meeting of the South Carolina College Prses association not only marked the rebirth of interest, working interest, in literary and journalistic activities, but also the first state-wide recognition of P. C. publications.

Seventh. First Month's Grades Lowest In History. At the end of the first month of the 1935-36 term there were more failing students at P. C. than ever before. This showed two things: that the scholastic standards of the schol were improving and that the students had found outside activities as they never had before.

Eighth. Rule Reducing Scholarships When a Fraternity Is Pledged Is Declared Void. The lifting of this rule resulted in the largest and most successful rush season that the fraternities have ever had.

Ninth. Intercollgeiate Boxing Is Dropped From Sports Roll. The cancellation of this year's boxing schedule shows the weakness of our fighters, but more than that, it shows the watchful and affectionate care with which Coach Johnson looks after his proteges.

Tenth. Reorganization of Sigma Upsilon. The rebirth of this long inactive chapter of the national literary fraternity is not, in itself, so very important, but the increasing interest in literary work which it shows is of vital importance.

And now that the ten most important events of the year have been listed, just what has 1935 accomplished? We have seen a new administration with fresh enthusiasm carving out an even greater future for our alma mater. We have seen the spirit for which we have so long been famous take new life. We have seen the publications begin to take statewide importance. We have seen the students taking new, saner, and more cultural interests.

And looking over the past year, I am glad that I have had the opportunity to edit the journal that has carried the week-by-week account of these important happenings.

Santa Clara valley, home of the prune and the apricot in California, has sunk five feet in the last 20 years. Stanford geologists plan to "refloat" it.

Texas Christian has an exhibit of Bibles which includes some printed as far back as 1380.

An Appreciation

To all my staff: my deepest appreciation for your conscientious, efficient, and consistently good work. Any glory that may come from our year together as a college staff is deservedly yours — any censure, mine, for your work has always been good and I have often bungled it after you did it.

To my business staff: my deepest appreciation for making this paper possible. You have worked faithfully and well, and had it not been for your consistently good work the staff's work and mine would never have seen light.

Thank you!

—HUGH HOLMAN.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

Another story that has been hidden from the eyes of the public, but which has finally come to light, is that of DR. HUNTLEY, SAM HUGHES, and another student (name not available just at present), who all three happened to meet up at a carnival. (Page Mrs. Huntley). The trio were standing in the center of things and the genial prof was delivering a discourse to them on carnivals he had seen in France. All of a sudden a painted lady with dark circles under her eyes staggered up to the group, and surveying them with one eye shut, she yelled, in an irritated tone, "Why in the h—— are you standing there looking like a mule eatin' briars?" After which remark she stalked away into the crowd.

BUDDY CHAPMAN, the dynamic little man, is reported to have lost a picture of the blond-haired BEBE. There's probably nothing to it, but with out limited knowledge of the affair the first place we'd look would be third floor of Smyth A section.

We hear that ELIZABETH BEATTY, finding the male student body not up to her high standard of discrimination, has started in with a pink-haired alumnus who resides on Calvert avenue.

ROBERT McLEES, platonic but temperamental artist, has come out openly in favor of the formation of a Punster's club. He and A. K. DARBY, together with COLIN HUDSON and JACK GASQUE, will form the nucleus of the organization. This is a case where lynching would be justified.

STEELE (SNAG) CALDWELL, after losing several front teeth recently, is having trouble getting enough to eat. He had a plate made for the missing molars, and he can never remember to take them to meals with him. By the time he gets one dish down the Judd Hall gluttons are swarming in for the next meal. Which goes to show, at least, that there are others on the campus besides this columnist and Robert McLees who are forgetful.

ROBBIE RODGERS, the tiny mouse-like freshman, is at last happy in the one great love of his life. He has reached the culmination of a beautiful friendship with a girl up the street who, strange as it may seem, is smaller than he is. JAKE PENLAND should take note of this fact and give him some competition.

PITT BIRD, the mouthy Columbian, was supposed to have a date over at Lander Sunday night with a girl with whom his best girl, at the same school, was not on especially good terms. Can the gentleman tell us why he did not meet the date? We pause for an answer.

We also wonder which one of these two he dated when he went over to Greenwood Wednesday night.

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again," said a great philosopher of olden times. This saying is especially true, however, as it applies to the secret activities of college men. The incident that follows happened last fall, and this columnist, thwarted for a time, finally got on the trail through the aid of a Winthrop girl, who got him started on the right scent.

According to her story, Freshman EARGLE was waiting for his date in a Winthrop dormitory and strolled off down the corridor, not knowing that it was forbidden territory. Later he got so interested in learning from first-hand the life in a girl's school that he forgot about his original object and soon found himself in the center of an immense labrynth from which he knew not how to extract himself. Realizing the danger of a huge hulking matron rushing out at him in high temper, he grabbed at the first chance he saw of getting away. A bevy of girls came along and he

Experiments With Lethal 'Death Ray'

(By Associated College Press)

Berkeley, Cal.—University of California scientists here have completed the set-up for man's first experiments with a really lethal "death ray." 11 times as powerful as the X-ray, and so dangerous that approach from any direction to within 50 feet is unsafe.

The ray is a powerful beam of neutrons, the ultimate particles of atoms discovered four years ago by English scientists.

The first sizeable beam of these neutrons is produced in the heart of the field of an 80-ton magnet by a method discovered by Prof. E. O. Lawrence of the University of California.

Involved, though at present unpredictable, are possibilities for the fields of medicine, chemistry and general industry. The neutrons, streaming in all directions from the big magnet, are not stopped by any known type of shield, not even by lead. They pass through the yard-thick coils of the big magnet as if it were so much paper, and nothing will perceptibly slow them down except water.

To experiment in safety the California physicists have set up a remote control panel 50 feet distant from the magnet, with a tank of water forming a three-foot thick barrier.

As easily controlled as an electric light, the beam is produced by a 12,000 volt current, "stepped up" to 4,500,000-volt beam of neutrons.

JAKE PENLAND tried to get a copy of Snappy Stories in order to strike a typical pose for the snapshotting, but since he did not have time to go back to his room to procure one he was forced to content himself with a voluminous textbook on literature. Gulping down a huge mouthful, he ventured the reply, "Aw, that's just another one of those Zane Grey pictures."

The bogey-man of professional competition poked its leering head into coaches' nightmares again, a good many prophets professing to see college football following baseball into oblivion within a few years. The sensible, thrill-producing pro rules were cited as a big threat, and cries for revision of the amateur rules were loud.

The posts ought to be put back on the goal-line, said Chick Meehan of Manhattan, and the college game would benefit by following pro sideline rules, moving the ball in 15 instead of 10 yards after out-of-bounds play.

Two hypothesis have been advanced in explanation, Dr. Johnson said. The "hardening" hypothesis suggests that one's brain is inactive during sleep, and being free from disturbance, offers recent impressions a chance to "harden." The "reverberation" theory holds that the brain is active in sleep, in the sense that the recent excitations tend to revive themselves, or "reverberate" so that one actually rehearses the recently learned tasks and gets the benefit of additional practice.

Arnold Announces Student Conference

Local Representatives To Attend Volunteer Union Meeting In Greenville Feb. 7-8-9.

Ernest Arnold, president of the South Carolina Student Volunteer union, has announced plans for the annual mission conference to be held at Greenville, February 7, 8, 9, at the First Presbyterian church.

This conference is a follow-up of the Indianapolis convention held the latter part of December and has as its subject the theme of the convention: "Fulfilling for Our Generation the World Mission of Jesus Christ.'

Through concentrated efforts, Arnold has secured the services of several outstanding mission leaders. Among these are Dr. John Lake, of Hongkong, China; Dr. Charles Logan, of Tokushima, Japan; Rev. G. W. Gideon, of Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. Tom Sharp, of New York.

Dr. Lake, who is 67 years of age, is the founder of the Tai-kam Island colony and leper hospital on the South China coast and is now on his fourth and last tour of the world.

Dr. Logan has to his credit the conversion of that renowned Japanese mission worker, Toyohiko Kagawa. He is now engaged in evangelistic work in Japan, Korea, Formosa, Quelport, and South China.

Rev. Mr. Gideon, who for twelve years ably guided the Rice Memorial church in the Pittsburgh mission in Atlanta, is recognized as one of the ablest and most faithful of all home mission workers among the Negro race in the South.

Mr. Sharp has for 17 years been actively connected with the Student Volunteer movement. His experiences in Christian work have been many and his whole heart, soul, and mind is in missions.

A limited number of delegates will represent all the colleges in the state at this conference. The Presbyterian delegates have not as yet been selected. While this is sponsored by the Student Volunteer movement, it is open for all students interested in Christian work. It is believed that a great inspiritational advantage will be derived by all who attend.

Joe W. Stalnaker Claimed By Death

Member of Freshman Class Dies of Pneumonia At Home In Ninety-Six.

Joe W. Stalnaker, a member of the freshman class, died yesterday morning shortly after 7 o'clock at his home in Ninety-Six, S. C., following a brief illness from pneumonia.

Stalnaker was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stalnaker, of Ninety-Six, and had made many friends at P. C. during his stay of the first semester.

Although young Stalnaker was ill before leaving for the holidays preceding the second semester, he did not develop pneumonia until Sunday morning, after attending a dance Saturday night. His condition became serious Tuesday and his death followed Wednesday morning.

The funeral services were to be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from St. Paul Methodist church, Ninety-Six, with interment at Elmwod cemetery. The services were to be conducted by Rev. O. A. Jeffcoat, assisted by Rev. W. S. Porter, Rev. B. B. Black, and Rev. L. D. Ledbetter. Pallbearers were to include the two room-mates of the young man.

In addition to his parents, the young man is survived by a sister, Virginia Dare Stalnaker, and a brother, John Walter Stalnaker, both of Ninety-Six.

I. R. C. Chooses New Officers

Meeting in special session last night, members of the International Relations club elected Stuart Campbell, of Wytheville, Va., vice-president of the organization and Tom Newland, of Kwanju, Korea, secretary.

Campbell and Newland are both members of the junior class and have taken an active interest in national and international affairs since entering school. Campbell is a member of Alpha Kappa Pi social fraternity.

The vacancies were caused by the rise of Ed Andrews from vice-president to president shortly before Christmas when H. W. Calvert, president, left school.

HISTORY OF CANNON, RELIC ON LOCAL CAMPUS, IS RECOUNTED

Someone has said: "And memories of half-forgotten things, not true nor false, but sweet to think upon. How true these words! Many a boresome hour has been made interesting and helpful by these half-forgotten memories. Many a man of learning has looked with joy on his collection of old books. Many a stamp collector has spent hours and hours bending over his little bits of paper, relics of the past, studying and classifying them. The enjoyment that is theirs can be yours also, if you will only let it. P. C., like most colleges, has its relics of the past.

On the plaza in front of the college stands an old cannon, a relic of the late World war. How interesting would be its story if it had the power to tell it to us. How many times has it been the witness to deeds of valor and bravery, and, yes, even deeds of cowardice and trickery. Many times has it seen men slaughtered and butchered by their own fellow humans. If it could talk, I imagine it would ask us why we killed our own kind. But let's not think of the "ifs"; let's go on with the story.

As with all relics, there are many stories about this old cannon. Some say that there was at one time a lieutenant at P. C., who captured this cannon with the entire German force that operated it and, because of this deed, a battle was won. This is a very pretty story but, regardless of the fact that we would like to believe it, the story is not true. It is true that this old cannon may have been the witness to a deed which was just as spectacular as our story, but if it was we have no record of it.

The cannon is a German 77 millimeter gun which was captured in the late war. After this war each college was given some of the captured German material which, by the way, was not all as dilapidated as is ours. The National Guard of South Carolina had the distribution of this captured material in their care for our state. It was not until 1922 that P. C. got her share of the profits of war. The barrel of the cannon is blown open where the Germans, upon seeing capture evident, stuffed the muzzle and discharged it, making it useless to the Allies. In doing this their escape from death was made almost impossible, but, nevertheless, they did not hesitate to blow it up since that would keep it from being used as an engine of destruction, traitor to its own men.

The above is the only information we know of this old relic. It might tell of the valor of those brave men who gave their lives in a last attempt to quiet it forever. It might tell of those whose job it was to capture it so that the everlasting line might not be stopped in its never-ceasing tramp, its tramp to death and destruction. Or it might tell a story of cowardice or of fear. There may have been someone whose nerves broke and who ran from danger.

So it might go on and on with its quantity of interesting tales, tales we'll never head and many of us shall never even think about. But its true story must remain forever locked in its rusted, scarred breech.

Hurricane Trips Blue Hosemen

Furman Team Wins By 40 to 28 Count. Hose One Point Behind At End of Initial Period.

In a poorly-refereed and roughly-played slugfest, Furman's basketeers whipped the Blue Hosemen Tuesday evening by a 40 to 28 count.

The Hurricane spurted ahead in a second semester drive to attain a comfortable lead. At half time the score stood 18 to 17, and a P. C. victory was probable.

The element of skill was lacking as the two aggregations resorted to grid tactics in their respective bids for victory. Ralph Waldrep and his inspired playing kept the Calvinists in the running during the first half, but the tall forwards' tendency to "rough it up" almost undid his good work. Roy Forehand took high scoring honors for the Hosemen and was the big shot in his team's second-half play.

Kendrick, the key man in the Baptist attack, was by far the most polished performer on the court. The talented visitor scored 13 points in addition to playing a smooth floor game. Culclasure came back after a listless first-half exhibition to play a bang-up game and contribute 10 points to the Furman score.

The contest would have found favor amid a setting of Roman spectators in holiday garb, but failed to provide basketball of the smart and clever variety Tuesday evening. Officials Galloway and Dargan were unusually lax in their decisions and soon let control slip from their hands.

The setto marked the return of Frank Waldrep to the P. C. line-up. The veteran cager played long enough to exhibit some creditable floor and defensive work. He should be a mainstay from now on.

FRAT NAMES OFFICERS

In recent elections held by the Kappa Alpha social fraternity, Alan Levi of Charlotte, member of the varsity basketball team and prominent in campus social affairs, was elected president.

Other officers chosen by the group were as follows: Phil Adams, vice-president; John Woodward, secretary; Joe Patrick, treasurer, and Ashby Johnson, corresponding secretary.

REGISTRAR STATES NUMBER LARGEST IN SCHOOL'S HISTORY

Over Three Hundred Matriculate For Courses Here As New Semester Begins.

FEW OLD STUDENTS FAIL TO RETURN

Presbyterian college began its new term on January 28 with the largest second semester enrollment in the history of the school, according to Marshall W. Brown, dean. The fact that the percentage of boys dropping out of school at the end of the first semester is much smaller than usual contributed to the record enrollment.

Several students straggled in after the close of the registration period and were subjected to fines for late registration. Although the vast majority are now ready to resume their studies after a hectic exam week, a few are yet to come. For this reason the exact figures cannot be given for the new registration. However, the latest report by Mrs. M. W. Brown, registrar, states that a little over 300 have handed in their schedule cards, with more expected in at any moment.

Gaps in the student body ranks have been partially filled by the addition of two new students. The co-ed group welcomes back one of its old members, Miss Polly Roberts, of Clinton, while the total of men students is augmented by the entrance of G. T. Jordan, of the senior class, who transfers from Davidson.

The group who left school was not as numerous as usual, considering the increased size of the student body. The only senior to leave was Billy Nexsen, who has finished his course. Of the juniors, Bob Coulter, Oliver Luey, and Charles Steenbergen are dropping out. Luey expects to pursue his course next semester at the University of Wisconsin, while Steenbergen will be working at home in Point Pleasant, W. Va.

The sophomores will be minus Marion Chapman and C. W. Isom. The latter, however, says he will return next fall. The only freshman who is definitely known to have dropped out is Malone Wyse. He [illegible]

Swedenberg Names Varsity Debaters

Holman To Captain Affirmative While Wilson Leads Negative. Schedule Being Arranged.

Announcement by Professor H. T. Swedenberg of the selection of a varsity debating team was made this morning immediately after chapel.

Professor Swedenberg, faculty debating coach, announced that debates of the group will center about the following: "Resolved, that the Congress of the United States should have the right by a two-thirds majority to over-ride any decision of the supreme court." This is a query of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity.

The affirmative will be upheld by Hugh Holman, captain of the affirmative, Red Potter and Len Jones. The negative captain, H. M. Wilson, will be assisted by Edgar Stanton and Colin Hudson.

A definite schedule for the team has not as yet been arranged, but it is understood that all state teams will bet met and an extensive tour of the South made in the near future.

Mid-Winters To Be Held Next Week

On February 7 and 8 Copeland hall will again be rocked by orchestra music and dancing feet, as the Pan-Hellenic council's annual mid-winter dances once more hold the spotlight.

The final arrangements are very nearly completed, and the invitations are ready to be sent out. The only problem which now faces the council is the signing of an orchestra to provide that all-essential matter of music. Two bands have been selected as highly eligible. The choice will be made between the orchestras and P. D. Hester and Jimmy Gunn.

Hester has much to recommend his 11-piece band. Beside his instrumentalists he has a couple of talented vocalists [illegible] Penthouse and broadcasting for CBS [illegible] over a North Carolina hook-up. The other prospect, Jimmy Gunn, is booking out of Charlotte and has been very popular in that locality.

The schedule for the series of three dances has been definitely announced. On the evening of Friday, February 7, the gaieties will commence with a semi-formal hop lasting from 10 o'clock until 3. For the rugged souls who are not daunted by the prospects of three such occasions, there will be a Saturday afternoon tea-dance at four o'clock. The council plans as a fitting climax the final dance Saturday night, scheduled to last from eight until twelve.

The usual large number of out-of-town guests is expected, with the girls' schools of the state furnishing a large part of the feminine charm for the occasion. Roy Forehand, president of the Pan-Hellenic council, states that invitations will be sent out this week-end and that all requests for bids to be sent out should be submitted to the council before that time.

Glee Club Tour Is Postponed

Because of complications developing in the itinerary, the Georgia tour of the glee club, scheduled for this week, was postponed last week until sometime in February.

The tour was to have begun Monday morning and have ended with the return of the group to the campus tomorrow. Macon, Atlanta, and other Georgia cities were to have been visited.

Presbyterian Group Hears Lecturer

[illegible] along with Prof. H. T. Swedenberg and Venable Martin, the latter of the senior class, had the privilege of attending a special showing of lantern slides, reproducing the photographs of Mrs. Bayard Wooten, nationally-known photographer, at the University of North Carolina during the past week-end.

Mrs. Wooten is well-known over the country for her lectures, in which she shows lantern slides of her best works in the field of photography. Many of her photographs are of scenes in old Charleston, a fact which was naturally of great interest to the group from P. C. It is hoped that some organization on the campus will sponsor an appearance by Mrs. Wooten in Clinton some time in the near future, since her lectures are so unusually interesting and the photographs so well executed.

Holman Accepts Publicity Job

Hugh Holman, retiring editor of The Blue Stocking who received his degree at the end of the past semester, has accepted a position as assistant publicity director of the college and will, at the same time, remain in school to take post graduate work.

Publicity Director Tuck Osman will find it necessary to spend a large part of his time in Georgia and lower South Carolina during the spring months and Holman will therefore assume a large part of his duties.

From the New Order . . .

This week, the first week of the second semester, The Blue Stocking comes to you from the hands and minds of a new staff. With this issue we make our first splash in the vast pool that lies before us between now and next January.

We hope that we bring with us the ability to give to you "all the news that's fit to print" in a way that will increase in attractiveness as each successive issue rolls off the presses. We know that we bring with us the willingness to work and the desire to put into that work something of the inherent life that is of necessity a part of all news stories. We realize that whether or not we succeed is largely a matter of whether or not we are willing to roll up our sleeves and grapple with each new problem as it arises.

On the roster of our staff appear names that have never before been connected with this paper. Each has been selected because we feel that he is better fitted than any other eligible student to carry out the duties assigned him. Of the abilities of the freshmen on this staff we know almost nothing. But we are willing to experiment.

With every new staff there arises the question of policy. Our policy shall be no iron-bound code from which we shall never turn. It shall be no course from which, once it is charted, we shall never turn aside. We hope that we shall remain always open to new ideas, new thoughts. We hope that we shall never fear to reverse our opinions when we see that those opinions are wrong. We shall continually strive to make this college a better place in which to study, to live, and to play. At heart we shall always keep the better interests of the college, the student body, and this paper.

And so today we take over the wheel of the ship. It is our sincere desire that the prow of that ship point always into the wind, always toward a better and a greater paper, a stronger and a more useful school.

— o —

. . . To the Old Order

As we glance through the files of The Blue Stocking we are particularly impressed with the work of the men on the staff that has gone before us. It is with a feeling somewhat akin to awe that we realize that readers of the paper will no longer laugh with the campus wit, nor blush with the campus "Keyholer." With just a tinge of fear we remember that the man behind it all, the king-pin, will no longer be there to put together his attractive layouts and to pound out his straight-to-the-shoulder editorials.

Whether you know it or not, these men have put out of the best papers P. C. has ever known. They started off at the bottom and built upon [illegible] and typewriter keys to give you the [illegible] that was judged the best paper from a [illegible]'s college in the state, and the second best paper from any college in the state. We can say these things because we worked for only a brief period on the retiring staff and had little or nothing to do with its success.

They came to us a year ago this month with minds full of hope for a better paper, and leave having seen that hope realized. From the new order to the old—CONGRATULATIONS AND GOOD LUCK!

A Clean Slate—
What Are We Going To Do With It?

The boasts of the "A" student, the growls of the "C" student, the alibis of the "E" student — they are all over now. The marks are up and there is very little that we can do about them.

For some, the semester has been one long grind of tests to be passed and term papers to be written; for others, it has been a brief period of four months in which much has been learned, much that cannot be found in text books. Perhaps the freshmen have found it a little puzzling. Perhaps the upper-classmen have found it still more puzzling.

But it is all over now. Once again we start with a fresh sheet upon a new semester. The first sickening disappointment of the failures has passed and in its place has come a firm determination to make the most of the opportuniites that have been given us. We face clean record books with the assurance that failure and defeat shall touch us no more.

How long will this determination last? How long will we remember that in many cases, probably in most cases, we have failed because of our own laziness and slip-shod methods? According to the vital statistics of this college neither the determination nor the memory of our laziness will linger very long.

According to the same statistics, the semester failures will go up again in May or early June. Whether or not your name and my name will be on the list marked "E" depends upon whether or not we remember our present determination and our past laziness.

The Passing of Dan McGugin

The death of Dan McGugin, for 30 years head coach at Vanderbilt and grand old man of Southern football, has cast the deepest gloom over the sporting world since the great Knute Rockne took off in a west-bound transport plane and did not come back. Of all the Southern coaches McGugin was perhaps the best loved. It has been said that he never trained a man who would not say, as the hardened sports editor of an Atlanta paper said a few days ago, "Next to my father, I thought more of him than any other man."

McGugin, playing on the famous Michigan point-a-minute team, just after the turn of the century, was brought up in the rough and tumble football school that marked the period. A short time later, about 1904, he went to Vanderbilt as coach and, except for a brief time during the war, served the Tennessee institution until a year ago, when he resigned "to give the younger ones a chance."

We can think of no finer example of a life well lived and a work well done than the life and work of Dan McGugin. He wanted his teams to win games, and they did win them; but it was not the winning that he was primarily interested in. It was the building of men who would take the hard knocks of after-college years and come up smiling, of men who would make many touchdowns far from any football field. We saw him on only one occasion. On December 10 of last year he made a brief address at the banquet honoring the winners of the Jacobs blocking trophies. Speaking in a pleasing, forceful voice, he congratulated the donor of the trophies for his effort to reward unselfishness and the recipients of the trophies for their fine spirit of team-work.

Football has truly lost a great leader, a great coach, and a great man. The boys he has coached have truly lost a great friend.

"THE SOUND WAGON"— By T. S. Stribling

To those of us who are accustomed to the powerful simplicity of Mr. Stribling's triology of Southern life, "The Sound Wagon" is a disappointment. It is difficult to find a theme or objective for this novel. Evidently the author seeks to denounce the American political system and the nation in general. He presents a crowded picture of American city and national politics.

So numerous and tangled are the characters of "The Sound Wagon", that it is almost hopeless to attempt to give a clear outline of the plot. In essence it concerns a young idealist who is elected to congress because "the big shot" decides it is time for a political whitewash. He is soon enmeshed in the toils of racketeers, politicians, and "big business." He is elected to the senate in the first really popular election in years and then ousted for election fraud. THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

It must have been a hot day—that time the editor of the Corpus Christi Caller noticed in his paper that three college presidents at that moment were fishing out in the gulf stream.

The three presidents were Dr. Walter A. Jessup, then president of the University of Iowa, Dr. E. H. Lindley, chancellor of the University of Kansas, and Dr. L. D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota.

And here, according to the imagination of the Corpus Christi editor, is what happened on the fishing boat:

First President: This, gentlemen, appears to me as an ideal day and an ideal setting for our piscatorial adventures.

Second President: Quite so, my dear doctor. I was just thinking I have seldom seen a sea of a more divine and cerulean hue. Fishing amid such surroundings as these is indeed not only restful but inspiring.

Third President: I, too, am deeply pleased with it, gentlemen. I feel that here I am able completely to relax. The problems that yesterday vexed my mind I find here assume proportions of absolute insignificance. Under the spell of the majesty of sea and sky, they seem utterly inconsequential. I find it all very restful.

First President: No doubt there lies the secret of the calm which so many of the pastoral philosophers were to attain. In such an environment this, one finds no petty annoyance disturb the flow of calm and related reason.

Third President: Poetic philosophers, too, gentlemen, can only true expression in such circumstan... Do you recall those matchless ... of Theocrates...

Step On the Gas

How fast, how far and how smoothly would a five-cylinder car run if only two of the cylinders functioned? Would it have the capacity to compete with vehicles hitting on all five? A thousand times no!

For the past three years the varsity basketeers of our college have played together. It is an advantage for five men to team with each other for three years. They become accustomed to each other's court mannerisms, style of play and individualities.

But for three years the cage artists have been vainly attempting to win basketball games with a two-cylinder performance. Levi and Wyatt have borne the team's offensive burden with consistent success. This pair averages around 20 points a game together.

At this point let's pause and analyze a typical P. C. game. Against Wofford we amassed a total of 24 points while the Terriers were scoring 36. Levi and Wyatt together contributed 20 of the P. C. total. Forehand, center, made two points and Adams one. Bradley didn't score. The forwards accounted for 83 1-3 per cent of the scoring, the center 8 1-3 per cent, and the guards 4 1-6 per cent. For Wofford, the forwards contributed 22 2-9 per cent to the Terriers' score, the center 14 per cent, and the guards 58 1-3 per cent.

What do these figures prove? They prove that P. C.'s scoring power is concentrated in the forwards. That leaves a center and two guards (60 per cent of the team) out of the offensive. No team can follow this setup and attain success on the court.

Unless Coach McMillian can induce the "forgotten 60" to indulge in some consistent point-making, or unless he uncovers a shooting star among his reserves, the boys are doomed to an unpreventable court martial.

Intramural Prospects

The intramural boxing tournament is scheduled to get under way in the not-distant future. With Coach Johnson directing the affair, and such interested pugilists as Cappelmann and Gillis to assist him, the tournament will be handled efficiently.

Another event on the intramural program will be basketball. This sport always meets with an enthusiastic reception by the intramuralists, but the tournament is never run off smoothly and successfully. The factors which cause dissention, lack of interest and poor playing by the participants are: (1) refereeing, (2) lack of team practice, (3) lack of uniforms, and (4) lack of interest of those in charge of the eliminations.

Last year Blue Key was unwise and unthoughtful in its appointment of referees. Anyone capable of tooting a horn was accepted. As a result, many of the games developed into three-ring circuses. Each team should be given access to the gym for a reasonable period preceding the tournament. Another fault that can be remedied is the lack of uniforms. One team could be supplied with colored uniforms and the other with white. This could be effected with no expense to the school. It would add color and impressiveness from the spectator's standpoint and would be markedly better for the players.

In conclusion, we suggest that Blue Key appoint from its group a student, or students, who may be relied upon to devote both thought and interest to the welfare of the tournament.

INTRAMURAL BOXING BOUTS TO BE STAGED NEXT MONTH

Particulars Not Yet Decided; But Fans To See Fast and Furious Fights In Early February.

The intramural boxing tournament will be held within the next two weeks, according to Major Wysor, who will release plans for the affair some time this week. The popular military director, who is putting on the show, has been conferring with Coach Johnson with the hope of getting a few ideas from the genial gentleman of sports. The latter favors a long drawn-out tournament, with matches to be fought as preliminaries to basketball games. The Major is partial to the idea of a speedy series of eliminations with the finals to be fought three days after the tournament's inauguration.

This year's tourney will boast an unusually large list of participants due to the temporary abolishment of the intercollegiate program. And quality will be blended with quantity, assuring student and town ring fans a string of interesting matches.

Several capable freshman pugilists have announced their intentions of participating, and practically all of last year's division champs are in school this year. In addition, there are the "dark horses," ready to spring an upset here or there.

Major Wysor will make a student body announcement on Thursday or Friday, in which final plans will be divulged. All prospective entrants are urged to begin getting into shape. Those who wish t otry for the varsity next year have an opportunity to make themselves known by their activities in the coming tournament.

Levi Leads Scoring Of P. C. Basketeers

"Lefty" Levi, with a total of 71 points, continues to head the individual scoring of the Blue Hose basketball machine.

The diminutive forward star is 23 points ahead of his nearest rival, Red Wyatt. Wyatt has registered 23 field goals and a pair of foul tosses for a 48 point total. Roy Forehand is third with 39 points. Ralph Waldrep, elongated substitute forward, has chalked up 13 field goals and a foul to slide up to fourth place.

Of the 222 points registered by the team so far, the guards have contributed only 29. A complete list follows, including field goals, foul shots and individual totals:

Player	Goals	Fouls	Total
Levi	29	13	71
Wyatt	23	2	48
Forehand	18	3	39
Waldrep	13	1	27

Hose, Sox Meet Terriers Tonight

Presbyterian varsity and freshman basketball teams meet the strong Wofford quintets tonight in Leroy Springs gymnasium in the second game of the week for the Hose and the first of the semester for the Anklets.

The Terrier varsity stands near the top of the South Carolina college loop and will be fighting to maintain its high rating. The Blue Hose demonstrated Tuesday night in the first half of their game with Furman's Hurricane that they have what it takes if only the spark can be applied.

The P. C. freshmen, although weakened by the loss of one or two men who have dropped out of school, are thus far undefeated this season. The frosh game will begin at 7 p. m.

Orchids to Edgar Stanton for the newsy, interesting column he has been turning out and may we succeed in duplicating in a small way his success in this our first effort at column writing.

The semi-annual change in the rating of the personnel of the corps will leave many disappointments and much rejoicing in its wake. To those who will be demoted: Don't gripe, remember those class periods when you could only say, very vaguely, "I don't know, sir," and those times on the drill field when your column was headed west and you were strolling due east. But also remember, you juniors, our final rating will be decided by our efforts at camp, so keep plugging. You may be a captain yet, who knows? To those lucky ones who will be pushed up a rung or two: Don't order a new cap as yet. Remember it takes hard work and never a lax moment to stay at the top and the rest of us will be waiting for just one slip to give us another chance.

Rumors are running rampant over the campus as to the possibilities of "The College Where Men Are Made" changing to one "Where Generals Are Made." Although we brand these rumors as false, the juniors of next year will rival any Kay-det from anywhere with their new, swanky uniforms. These uniforms will be made of better material and will consist of a darker hat and coat with the "pink slacks" of the regular army. The rising seniors will be given a choice of buying these slacks or using our old ones. To any of you who might not know what "pink slacks" are, take a gander at the Major the next time we have a big inspection — which, by the way, isn't so terribly far off — and pray that you will be able to wear yours with such aplomb.

The king is dead — Long live the king. Edward VIII has taken hold of the reins of government in England with a firm, business-like hand. May he have better success in curbing the mettle of the people than he had in taking the jumps in steeplechasing. The new monarch has come to the throne to succeed a long, peaceful and prosperous rule by his father and the question is: Can he keep England at peace or will war-crazed, power-drunk, Benny the Wop overstep himself and cause Edward to bring down on Benny's head all the wrath of the

SUBSIDIZATION OF ATHLETES

Over and above the hubbub and shouting concerning the subsidization of college athletes rises the voice of President Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina. President Graham proposes seven points that might be added to the skimpy rules of the Southern conference governing the granting of athletic scholarships.

In general, these rules, or proposed rules, prohibit an athlete's receiving financial assistance from any source because of his athletic ability.

Now, on the surface, these seem excellent. But what is to keep an alumnus of a college from giving money to the father of a boy and, indirectly, to the boy? Why should a student be refused a job in an up-town drug store because of the fact that he plays football?

With P. C.'s application for membership in the Southern conference still before a committee of the conference, it is interesting to know what rules the body may make.

SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE

Since we've somehow gotten off on the subject of football, we might as well add another squib or two. Prospects for the 1936 team are much better than last season's outlook.

Or, as Coach Walter Johnson says, "We'll have a better team. Don't play it up too much—but we'll have a better team than this year's."

With better material on hand, much of it rising sophomores, why not spring practice to whip that material into pre-season shape? The athletic department is sponsoring no boxing or swimming team because of lack of material. Therefore, only baseball, and possibly track, would interfere. Of the varsity baseball prospects, no more than three or four at the most would be affected. They could continue baseball. The main thing is to keep the other colleges of the state from getting the jump with their painstaking practices of early spring. The track deductions would be somewhat more drastic. More men would be lost here than in baseball.

But our football team this year definitely needed something. Whether or not it was spring practice we don't know. We are not strongly advocating a spring season but are only suggestng that it might be a possible solution.

GRUDGE FIGHTS

The grudge fight between diminutive Prince Charles and Edgar (Ego) Stanton continues to hold the sportlight of the campus. Although one of the principals has vehemently denied that he will put on the gloves, blood-thirsty fans sense the makings of a "natural."

From every side and from all directions requests have been pouring in to this department for information on the prospect of a grudge battle between W. E. (Battling Darius) Green and Malcolm (Bone-Crusher) Norton.

With the memory of the gory spectacle these two put on last year still fresh in the mind after historical dates and logarithms have been forgotten, it seems that this student body will have a repetition of the mix-up, which ended in a draw, or know the reason why.

When asked to comment on the situation, Green set his lips and growled: "If he wants trouble I'll give it to him."

So that's how it stands!

Major Weems announces that the long-awaited R. O. T. C. boxing bouts will come off about the second week of February. This event has always been a big success and promises to be even better this year. It will be open to the Home Guards as well as to the Army. Lord help the Kay-det who goes down before the flying fists of a lowly Home Guard. The feature of this program will be the battle of the century, between two awesome gladiators of gigantic proportions: Kampus-Keyholer Supreme, Scandal-Monger Non-pareil Charles, in one corner (the biggest thing about him is his name) and the Tin-pate-headed, Muscle-bound Bomber Stanton, ex-knitting champion of the Winthrop campus, in the other. Don't miss it, folks!

The Fourth corps rifle matches will begin next week and "Sarge" says he will be satisfied with nothing less than first place.

It is with regret that the Major announces that the lecturer who was to deliver a series of talks on "Mechanization" can't get there. However, the P. M. S. and T. will journey to Fort Benning to observe, absorb and then lecture himself.

The Eyes Have It

Concerning this title, we must tell a story. At the now-famous meeting of the P.P.P. league last week, which was so ably written up by Robert McLees (who now wears a steel vest—to keep warm), the vote was being taken on the admission of the fair sex to the austere brotherhood. High Priest Gasque uttered this classic reply as to the outcome, "The eyes have it." Only his broad shoulders and engaging grin saved his life, otherwise worthless, from enraged spectators.

Lost and Found Department
(Apologies to nobody).

Examinations, the Hounds of the Baskervilles, were barking at the shins of Elizabeth Blakely one night last week as she sleepily rubbed her eyes and reached to set the clock for an early rising at five. Some mischance set the old alarum off at some foul hour between two and four of the morning. The foggy damsel arose, fumbling for a match to light her uncertain vision to a clear view of the erring clock. The scratching of a match grew into the plural and still no success. Leaping into the fray with a practical hand, the charming lady struck matches upon matches as seconds lengthened into minutes. Imagine her consternation as she suddenly realized that she had been striking matches for almost a half hour and had completely forgotten about the electric light within easy reach. The whole family, awake by this time, is still wondering if P. C. has done their daughter mental harm, or if she is training to be an absent-minded school-mistress.

"Son" McLeod, of football fame, came back from the picture show the other night in a regular tremble of excitement. In between gasps of indignation, and amid a complicated rigmarole of flints and left jabs as illustrations, he unfolded a tale of persecution that makes the toughest hombre weep. He related that he was peacefully seated on his—overcoat—and minding nobody's business, when in the middle of an exciting scene he became aware of the warmth of a feminine arm clasping him about the neck. With a calloused air he shoved her politely away. No go. This merely made an interval, and then another wild clutch. By now "Son" had lost his control and gone hog-wild. He put the young lady, evidently from the Mill Hill, firmly back in her seat and moved out—for school. "Son" is unable to explain his protective appearance except that it was leap year, maybe.

For the "Sock and Buskin" we suggest a production of "Morning Glory" with Frank Booth taking the part of "Katie" Hepburn. This striking resemblance is the cause of much regret to Frank, who complains that so much more loving must be done when he goes to see the girls, for he must kill the Hepburn impression and then create the Booth impression.

Much excitement prevailed on first floor Spencer as Professor Sturgeon's little H2S (Harry 2nd Sturgeon) made a determined attack on the dormitory with a bicycle brigade. The first floor hurled insults and water, while little "Sturge" threw dirt and rocks lavishly in reply. A few determined Spencer boys emerged after discovering that they had torn up P. M. Clement's room, and captured H2S and Red Copeland. Only H2S got a fine ducking in the shower. The Spencer boys got a shower of "censored." He was reduced to a splutter but got out on the steps of Spencer and aired his views at length. A dash of water from the roof completed his discomfiture and he trailed away home.

Sequel: He returned Tuesday with an air rifle and proceeded to shoot up things. D. W. Davis was the only one hit but he is not at all pleased with the aim of this celebrated youngster.

Connie Mack To Speak Here

When the Presbyterian college baseball team meets the Philadelphia Athletics here on April 7th, Cornelius McGillicudy, known to the baseball world as "Connie Mack," will be with his team and make a speech during the day.

Connie Mack recently wrote Chick Galloway of this city, his former star shortstop and now baseball coach at P. C., that he would certainly accompany his boys here and would speak.

Announcement has been made that the baseball park will be equipped with an amplifying system in order that all may hear the distinguished [illegible].

Trinity Students Oppose Chapel

Hartford, Conn. — Undergraduates at Trinity college have presented a petition to their board of trustees asking for the abolition of compulsory chapel. The petition sets forth "that compulsory religious services do not accomplish their primary purpose, of broadening and deepening the undergraduate's spiritual life, but that instead they weaken and cheapen his spiritual life by the element of compulsion and the attendant system of credits."

It continues: "That compulsory religious services do not accomplish their secondary purpose of disciplining the undergraduate by arousing him for early morning classes; to use religion for such a purpose is decidedly irreligious.

"That it is unnecessary for us to present any substitute method for maintaining high attendance at chapel services. The elimination of compulsory attendance, which we sincerely believe to be an evil, is in itself the substitution of a healthy religious atmosphere."

CITADEL FIVE BEATS HOSE TEAM, 42-31

Calvinists Lose By Narrow Margin At Charleston Saturday In Rough Game.

FOREHAND, CENTER, HIGH P. C. SCORER

In another rough and tumble setto, Citadel's cagers came out on the long end of a 42 to 31 score in Charleston Saturday evening, and the Hosemen suffered their third straight defeat in six days.

Morrah, McGee and McNeil were the spearheads in a Bulldog attack that netted 22 points by half-time, after they had attained an early lead. The Presbyterians desperately attempted to keep pace with their fast-travelling opponents, but their anxiety was of no avail. The only result was a barrage of personal fouls.

Forehand led the P. C. scoring with 10 points, followed by Levi with seven. Frank Waldrep sank three baskets to score for the first time since his appearance against Furman Tuesday.

The Hose defeat may be traced to a lack of distribution in scoring. The guards together scored only three points, while the Citadel guards were contributing an even 14. The margin of victory was 11 points—the same difference in scoring of the guards of the two teams.

Twenty-six personal fouls were committed during the contest, most of them coming in the second half.

"Y" Announces Week's Services

Due to a misunderstanding, the program scheduled to be given by the Thornwell Christian Endeavor at the Y. M. C. A. meeting last Thursday night has been postponed until next Thursday.

At that time a deputation team from the Thornwell Christian Endeavor will have charge of the regular Y. M. C. A. meeting. It is hoped that it will be possible for many students to attend this meeting as it is felt that they have an important message for members of the local organization.

This is the second of a series of such deputations scheduled for this year by the Y. M. C. A.; and others, including ones from Winthrop, Lander, and Clemson, are expected in the near future. The Y. M. C. A. has been fortunate in the past in its contacts with other schools and it is hoped that this success will continue through the future.

Deadline Set For Collegian Material

George E. Oliver, editor of The Collegian, announced today that the deadline for magazine material has been extended to February 10.

The March, or spring, issue of the publication will appear around the first of next month and it is necessary that all those submitting material do so at once in order that a selection may be made.

Definite plans for the magazine are now taking form and prospects are that this issue of The Collegian will be one of the most attractive of the year.

Fraternities Begin Annual 'Hell Week'

Stands Also To Be Built; Construction To Begin As Soon As Weather Permits.

Beta Kappa and Pi Kappa Phi Open Festivities Today and Tomorrow For Pledges.

Two fraternities, Pi Kappa Phi and Beta Kappa, today and tomorrow are to begin annual "hell week" activities, while a third, Alpha Lambda Tau, will delay until next week the opening of hostilities against freshman pledges to prepare them for full-fledged membership.

These three fraternities will take over certain instruction which is overlooked by the college. For instance, the freshmen may be required to know such useful facts as the number of bricks in the pavement of "the square" or the number of tiles in the post office floor. This knowledge will of course be gained through the "laboratory method" which requires that the desired information be obtained through actual count. Others tortures just as ingenious and just as impressive have been planned for the entertainment of the freshmen during "hell week."

The pledges of Kappa Alpha fraternity have already undergone their torments and can look with sympathy at the suffering of their fellow-classmen. The Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Kappa Pi fraternities customarily have no "hell week" and are planning no informal initiation.

The other groups have delayed their "hell week" so that it coincides with the initiation of the pledges. Faculty regulations forbid the initiation of new men until after the end of the first semester. This rule has delayed the torture of the freshmen until the present time.

The pledges have little idea of what is in store for them, and their "elder brothers" are rather noncommital as to what they have to look forward to. However, the present sophomore class can give evidence as to the nature of "hell week." The men who were pledged last year can recall vividly the torments they went through before being accepted as full-fledged Greeks.

For the benefit of those freshmen who would like to know what they have to expect we quote a sophomore who last year went through the same experience. When asked how he came through the "horse-play," he replied, "If 'hell week' is a fair sample of the real thing, it sure encourages a fellow to lead a better life."

Rifle Squad Works On Indoor Range

The Presbyterian college rifle squad, firing under the direction of Sergeant Sterlin Young, U.S.A., will this week continue intra-squad matches in an endeavor to determine members for the varsity team.

Approximately 20 men are at present firing on the indoor range in the Springs gymnasium. From this material it is expected that an excellent team will be built up. Upshur, Quarterman, Gregg, and others will probably form the nucleus of the team.

The 1936 schedule will include all the major teams of the state schools and those of various out-of-state institutions.

Students Call Out Local Fire Truck

Burning rags on the roof of Smyth's center section, set by thrill-hunting students, brought the local fire department out Saturday night shortly after 11 o'clock for the fourth trip to the campus this year as the result of a practical joke.

The fire had already been extinguished when the truck arrived. Practically no damage, other than the arousal of the dormitory and most of the campus, was caused by the hoax.

Shortly after the departure of the fire equipment, interested residents of the dormitory discovered the guilty students through a cigarette stub left on the scene and took measures to prevent another occurrence of the kind.

Clemson Quintet Leads State Loop

Clemson's powerful Tiger quintet today continued to rule the South Carolina basketball roost with four victories and no defeats.

Furman, with five wins and two losses, was second to the leaders. Presbyterian was deep in the cellar, holding only one win out of seven games.

Six Justices Are Burned In Effigy

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Ames, Ia. — The six supreme court justices whose majority opinion doomed the AAA were hung in effigy by agricultural students of Iowa State college here immediately after the "unconstitutional" verdict was delivered.

College authorities were unable to offer information helpful to the police, whose investigation proved fruitless.

Placards on the figures, which were draped with graduation gowns in imitation of the black robes of the supreme court, designated Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Justices Sutherland, Van Devanter, McReynolds, Roberts and Butler.

Cornell Student Bunks With Snake

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Ithaca, N. Y. — Snakes have been seen in fraternity houses before this, but Josephine, young imperial boa constrictor now doubling as a pet and scientific guinea pig' for a Cornell fraternity man, is real.

Non-poisonous, too young to hug after the fashion of her kind, but plenty old enough to bite, Josephine was a gift from Dr. Harry Eno of Colon, Panama, to Frank Trevor, a senior from Syracuse, N. Y.

Boas thrive in a temperature of around 80 degrees, and until his roommate rebelled, Trevor kept his quarters at tropical temperature. He solved the problem by building a snake box with an electric thermostat.

Petting soothes Josephine, but left alone she hunts for a tree. As a substitute she climbs whatever furniture she can find. Once she was lost for two days. Trevor found her asleep in a waste paper box.

When Trevor graduates he plans to take Josephine to Camp Woodland, a Boy Scout organization, where he is nature director and where already has a snake house with 300 specimens.

Doctor Huntley Loses Mother

The Blue Stocking announces with regret the death of the mother of Dr. Stephen M. Huntley last night at Conway at 7:50 o'clock.

Mrs. Huntley had been in failing health for some time and Doctor Huntley, professor of French at Presbyterian college, left several days ago to be at her bedside.

Funeral services were to have been held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Presbyterian church at Cheraw, S. C.

Students Teach In Clinton High

Members of Education Classes Gain Practical Experience In Local School.

Under the direction of Dr. John H. Workman of the department of education, thirteen Presbyterian college students began teaching last week in Clinton high school as a part of their scheduled work in the observation and practice teaching class.

These students, most of them majoring in French, English, history, and mathematics, observe the methods of the regular instructor two class meetings a week and teach the third meeting. Grading is based on the regular instructor's estimate of proficiency and upon the estimate of the student.

Most of those engaging in the practice work are members of the senior class. Several juniors who will complete their courses after first semester of next year are enrolled in the course and one graduate student, W. E. Robinson, is on the list.

Large Percent Out For Sports

Walter A. Johnson, Presbyterian college director of athletics, announced Saturday that 54 per cent of the college student body has already engaged or will engage in some form of intercollegiate athletics this year.

Figures compiled by Johnson indicate that of the 332 students enrolled in September a minimum of 179 will participate in systematized athletics. Of the 332 enrollment 70 were girls. For the girls, the [illegible] sponsored life-saving classes, meeting at regular hours. These classes were not taken into consideration in computing the percentage because of the fact that they were not intercollegiate in scope.

Football, of course, held the spotlight of interest of the majority of the 179. Ninety-two students, 50 of whom were freshmen, answered the call in September. This was the largest number to turn out for the sport in the history of P. C. athletics.

The figures for basketball were obtained from this year's activities, as were those for swimming. Numbers for baseball and track were derived from last season's squads. No account was taken of the freshmen who will go out for track and baseball this year because a reliable estimate is impossible.

In addition to the 54 per cent participating in intercollegiate sports, a number of men took advantage of intramural football opportunities and others will take part in the intramural boxing tournament to be staged at an early date.

Darby Is Patient In Local Hospital

A. K. Darby, member of the sophomore class and feature editor of The Blue Stocking, was taken to Dr. Hays' hospital by ambulance this morning suffering from influenza and complications.

Darby has been ill for the past few days. Although his condition today was not considered serious, the college physician thought it best to remove him to the local hospital for closer observation.

ORCHESTRA OF P. D. HESTER TO PLAY FOR SERIES

Winston-Salem Band To Furnish Rythm For Mid-Winters Coming Week-End.

LARGE NUMBER EXPECTED TO ATTEND

Announcement by the Pan-Hellenic council of the booking of P. D. Hester and orchestra late last week assures dance lovers of excellent rhythm for the biggest social event of the winter, "mid-winters," to be staged Friday and Saturday of this week in antiquated Copeland hall.

Hester and his music-makers come from Winston-Salem, N. C. The band is an eleven-piece organization, featuring a male vocalist and a torch singer who, according to reports, looks as well as she sings. This orchestra is popular with Tarheel dancers, and is sure to leave numerous friends in Clinton.

At the present time, Hester's band is playing an engagement in the Robert E. Lee hotel in Winston-Salem, having come there from the Pentnouse, in Baltimore. Hester has been broadcasting over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting system for some time, and now may be heard through several North Carolina stations.

The usual program of dances will prevail this week-end. The series will begin with a semi-formal dance Friday night from ten till three, and close with the Pan-Hellenic finale on Saturday night from eight till twelve. The tea dance on Saturday afternoon is from four till six.

Roy Forehand, president of the council, stated that there would be an unusually large number of girls present, and that indications point to a record attendance for all dances. Two hundred and fifty invitations have been sent out to all parts of the state, and numerous visitors are expected.

This group of dances is the last that the present council will sponsor. The term of office of this council ends after the "mid-winters," and the next Pan-Hellenic dances, the finals, will be sponsored by the council soon to be elected.

Scientists Form Grisly Death Pact

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Toronto, Ont. — Even more grisly than the famous [illegible] was [illegible] met annually to drink a toast to their dead comrades, until no one was left, has been organized by a group of Canadian scientists.

In the distant future a medical paper will be published by an old scientist in which he will give the cause of the death of 29 of his colleagues.

Dr. C. H. Best, professor of physiology in the University of Toronto, revealed the strange pact in the course of a recent speech.

Thirty research workers in the school of hygiene have an annual physical examination. They examine each other and from each other they draw a sample of blood which is chemically analyzed.

"The idea is," explained Dr. Best, "that the survivor will write a paper on what caused the death of the others."

Four Nominated To Board Today

The student body of the college meeting this morning after chapel, nominated Malcolm Gray, Carl Johnson, James Ratchford, and Allison Walter for the three positions on the newly-created board of publications.

The plan for the board, as passed by the student body several weeks ago, provides that no two men from one fraternity are eligible to serve on the publications group.

Automatic members of the board include three faculty members, the editor of The Collegian, the editor of the PaC-SaC, and the editor of The Blue Stocking.

Election of the three senior members of the body will be held a week from tomorrow.

The Menace of the Fire-bug

The series of small "fires" which have been the joke of the campus and the horror of the local fire department since the early part of the school year was climaxed Saturday night by another blaze in the center section of Smyth. This time, instead of finding a flaming automobile tire in a tile shower, the fire fighters found smoldering rags placed near a ventilator of the building in suuch a manner that the students in the dormitory would be "smoked out" and an alarm turned in.

The students laughed and the fire department took its equipment and went home. Earlier in the year, Smyth, A section, saw the walls and floor of a shower room cracked and blackened by just such a prank. Although the authors of these practical jokes do not seem to realize it, the worst misfortune, or certainly one of the worst, that this college could suffer would be to have Smyth or any other building on the campus destroyed by fire. Just such an incident originating as a practical joke might readily end in a fire that would destroy building, furnishings, possessions of students, and even the students themselves.

Aside from the fact that the fire department finds it very unpleasant to be called out on false alarms, those who are inclined to start fires for the excitement should remember that just once the local department might fail to heed the cry of "wolf." And that same night the flames might be crawling up the pajama leg of some student hanging from a third floor gutter.

The student council is unable to find the culprits who start the fires. The hands of the faculty are tied. But it lies within the power of the students to stop the orgy of fire-setting, both in the dormitories and on the campus. We commend highly the action Saturday night of the residents of Smyth's center section who, after ferreting out the two guilty ones, convinced them that watching fire trucks screech to a halt was a rather unhealthy pastime.

The next time you contemplate starting a fire to watch the fire truck take the turn from Broad street into the plaza think of how this headline would look in your morning paper: TWENTY STUDENTS BURNED TO DEATH AS FLAMES SEAR DORMITORY.

Then think that you might be one of that twenty.

Progress?

From a recent release of a nationally syndicated column we learn that in the last four years 43 boys between the ages of 17 and 20 have been executed in the United States. Forty-three boys ranging from the average age of juniors in high school to the average age of college juniors have been strapped in chairs and burned to death, or strangled with deadly gas, or hung from a platform at the top of thirteen steps.

Does the world progress toward humanity or toward barbarism? Perhaps all of these boys were killers. Perhaps the world is better off without them. But what made them killers? Was it some kink in their brains that caused them to kill? Was it some system of society that made them hate their fellow men? The world that tolerates the legalized murder of insane or rash youths is not far removed from the world that tolerated the burning at the stake of Joan of Arc or the tortures of the Inquisition. Mankind has never cured brutality with brutality. The State will never inspire respect for a law that it breaks, itself, every time the lights in the death house dim.

When we realize that a large percentage of the criminals convicted in this country each year are between the ages of 16 and 25, we realize that America must do her missionary work here if she expects today's boys to be tmororrow's leaders. And there the vast part of the burden falls upon the high schools and colleges of the nation.

If ever America is to rise above murder and gangdom and graft, then the youth of the country must realize that the root of the trouble lies in the brutality of men to other men and that that brutality must not rise from us, the college youth, to the new generation that is yet to come.

Only by education, enlightenment, and mercy will this country ever be rid of crime.

More and Better Intramurals

Although the military and athletic departments of the college have announced plans for an intramural boxing tournament to be held in the near future, probably next week, we feel that P. C. is sadly in need of a much more extensive intramural program.

The annual army-home guard football game has now become a classic and a tradition, an event looked forward to from the opening of school, but we believe that much more can be done toward developing the bodies of students not out for intercollegiate athletics. Three years ago not one football game was played, but several. First, elimination between the various military companies and the band, and then a championship game between the two best teams. Naturally, the home guard team would be included in the run-offs.

With this as a start, the program should then lead into a campus tournament to determine the basketball championship of the school, teams being entered from fraternities, dormitories, military companies, and any other organizations desiring to be represented. This might then be followed with track, tennis, swimming, and baseball. The latter sport could be either of the "soft" or "hard" ball variety.

It is not a matter of supplying recreation that we primarily wish to stress, although this, too, is of importance; rather, it is a matter of giving each student in this college the opportunity to develop himself, physically as well as mentally, without the necessity of a rigorous training system that many boys doing NYA and other types of work would find impossible.

Now comes the all-important question of what department or organization would sponsor such a program. Last year Blue Key took it in hand and did an excellent job. Thus far, we have heard no announcement from the leadership group. That leaves the military and athletic departments as the most likely prospects. Whether or not such a program is begun will depend largely upon whether or not enough students evidence sufficient interest to make the project worth the time of the sponsoring organization or department.

Do we want intramurals? If we do, let's hear about it.

CAMPUS CAMERA

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

There was something gaspy, of course, about that case of the Southwestern university students and the nude young girl who danced for them on the athletic field recently.

And there was something delightful about the stern comment of the dean after the investigation began. The dean issued a pontifical statement to the effect that the incident was closed "until further facts were laid bare."

Death of decorum at the University of Texas:

Down there, old Henry Harper, dean of the graduate school, for years has preserved his vigorous independence of thought and dress, despite the standardizing influence of the campus, which universally tends to make professors dress with decorum, behave quietly, write few letters-to-the-editor.

The dean has always worn a blood-red bow tie, which lies across his throat like a scarlet butterfly alight upon a cactus.

Recently the dean and his ties received national recognition when the dean sent one of them as a Christmas present to O. O. McIntyre, the New York columnist whose own sartorial aberrations are well known.

The color of the tie, said Odd, "is based on the oxyhemoglobin of the red blood cells in human arterial blood."

Students have many stories about the dean and his tie. Some say he began wearing them in memory of a beautiful lady in red who flitted across his horizon some years ago. The dean, however, says he wears them just because he likes them.

East to West:

A columnist in the student paper at Brown university devotes several paragraphs to the "coyoates" who roam the western plains, and "menac lumberjacks."

("Kiyutes" would be so bad "coyoates"—Good Lord!)

And then we notice in the Pr ton paper that a correspondent clares, "out west when they s man driving recklessly, they toot horn at him three times.

He feels ashamed and toots three times, and goes on with ev one feeling he has been suffic punished."

THE STUDENT SPEAKS

THE GREAT BEYOND

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

When a friend leaves us we all naturally think of the Great Beyond. Our student body has recently been saddened by the death of one of its members and in our sadness we look upon it as a catastrophe; but, in reality, we should look upon death as a gateway to promotion—promotion to the perfect life.

We are told that the joys of Heaven do not even begin to com with our greatest joys here where is so imperfect. There is within human heart a secret longing for mortality in a Land of Bliss. T sorrows, these partings and hardsh of our earthly life, only tend to m our hearts long for the Great Beyo where life is perfect, where happi and peace reign because the K shall be the Prince of Peace.

Terriers Trounce Hosemen, 30 To 16

Wofford Men Pile Up Early Lead To Win From Presbyterian Quintet.

Wofford's Terriers piled up an early lead to score an easy victory over the Hosemen in the latter's second home appearance of the week. The final score was 30 to 16 and a Terrier win was apparent from the start.

The Methodists' scoring was evenly distributed and the aggregation's teamwork smooth and polished. Cannon took high scoring honors with 7 points and each Terrier contributed at least 3 points to the total.

Presbyterian chalked up only 6 field goals and found difficulty in penetrating the Wofford defense. Wyatt and Ralph Waidrep with 5 points each shared their team's scoring honors, and Adams contributed 2 field goals from the guard position.

Frosh March On Georgia Thursday

Presbyterian's undefeated, untied freshman basketball team will leave Thursday for Athens where they will take on the strong University of Georgia first-year outfit that night, and from there will move on into Georgia to meet other teams of the state.

Friday night the Sox will play Eatonton high, the team which they defeated two weeks ago in the local gymnasium. The third engagement of the trip will be against Georgia Military college at Milledgeville.

During the first half of their season, the freshmen have defeated Erskine, Newberry, Wofford, Clemson, and several high school and mill teams.

Swimming To Be Held As Usual

Rumor That P. C. Would Not Have Tank Team Is Unfounded, Says Johnson.

The rumor that swimming will not be carried in the winter sports program is groundless, according to Coach Walter Johnson. The sports director today gave assurance that a team will be organized in the near future and will engage in intercollegiate competition as in past years.

The team finished third in the state meet last year, trailing Clemson and Furman. Hank Wilson served as coach, and will probably assume that position again this winter. "Rudy" Valley was reelected captain by his team-mates at the close of the season.

Although the roster of candidates is not definitely known, it is believed that Wilson, Valley and Langston of last year's team will return, along with half a dozen or more promising sophomores.

Coach Johnson will release more definite information sometime this week.

Varsity To Meet Charleston Tonight

The Blue Hose basketball team, smarting under the sting of a 42 to 31 defeat by Citadel's Bulldog quintet, meets the team of the College of Charleston in Charleston tonight.

Tomorrow the Hose start back upstate, arriving in Columbia in the afternoon to meet the Carolina varsity tomorrow night.

Sox Continue Victory Drive

Holden, P. C. Center, Applies Spark and Team-mates Rally After Nip and Tuck Starter.

One of the most bitterly fought battles the P. C. Freshmen have engaged in this season found the Anklets victorious over the Wofford Frosh 40-22, as Giles Batchelor paved the way for the winners, and Les Holden, brilliant P. C. freshman center, showed the gallery a beautiful brand of basketball.

The lead switched from side to side during the first frame and it was nip and tuck. Lester Holden, the elongated P. C. center, started it off with a bang when he tipped the ball into the basket during a jump-off. His talented showing during the first few minutes seemed to inspire the whole quintet as they came back to display exhibitions of passing that found the Wofford team completely baffled.

Brilliant defensive games turned in by Holcombe of P. C. and Gunter of Wofford made scoring difficult, while both teams exhibited good passwork and fine eyes for the basket. The Calvinettes drew first blood when Holden tipped the ball into the basket under his opponent's nose during the first few seconds, but fell temporarily by the wayside when Ballenger dropped in a snowbird and McCord followed suit. Giles Batchelor put the Anklets back in the game when he intercepted a pass under the Wofford goal and dribbled the length of the court to tally. Both teams demonstrated some real basketball from then up to the half, at which time the Hose freshmen decided it was time to take charge of the situation. The half-time score stood P. C. 17, Wofford 14.

The Calvinists came back the second half and showed flashes of championship basketball, pulling slowly but surely away from the Wofford five. The final whistle found an entire scrub team on the hardwood, taking up where their team-mates left off.

Batchelor of Presbyterian and Ballenger of Wofford, shared scoring honors, chalking up 12 and 11 points respectively.

SIMON LEGARE

As the time draws near for the long awaited boxing bouts, the usual number of grudge fights are shaping up. Freshmen Jones and McCully have decided to settle their quarrel which originated in the dining hall, where both boys are waiters, in the squared circle. It seems that these boys couldn't decide which of them was the recipient of a wink from one of the Y. W. C. A. delegates who was eating in Judd Hall. It should be close but we're putting our shekels on Jones. There is some talk of dissension among the home guards. Wallace Coe and Buck Marks have applied for a spot in the night's entertainment to settle a little trouble which they had in Dr. Brimm's Bible class. This is a natural and should be a hummer.

The usual let down after exams seems to have extended to the drill field. The drill this week has been even worse than expected after the weeks let up. Captains Bradley, Forehand and Wyatt jumped on the boys with great rancor and the old snap will be showing again very soon or it will be too bad for the men in ranks. Some of the freshmen should profit by the example set by these men and start wearing their uniforms with a little distinction. Many of them droop about like sacks of meal rather than budding N. C. O.'s and officers.

Speaking of good looking uniforms, the greatest social event of the military year will take place at a not too distant date. The Military Ball, begun last year, is to be an annual affair and plans are even now being made for this gala affair. Last year the Ball was a howling success, and Lieutenant-Colonel Potter, who is in charge of the plans, says it will be even bigger and better with more beautiful femmes. Last year the Ball was held on Friday night and the fraternities gave a tea dance Saturday afternoon followed by a Collegiate

THE CASE OF THE MISSING BANNISTERS

The boys who hang their hats in Alumni Hall are becoming alarmed. A few weeks ago, a few of the bannisters on the stairway leading to the second and third floors were found missing. Then, one by one, they disappeared. Now only a few remain and the boys have very little to hold to in their frequent trips up and down the steps.

But the mystery has been solved. Claiming a lack of heat as their motive, a pair of third floor residents began using the bannisters for fuel, every now and then. So well did they burn, that the boys decided to take three a day until April.

Other residents are busy constructing ladders in order to combat the inevitable problem that will arise as soon as the steps are burned.

INTRA-MURALS ON DECK

In a couple of weeks, the intra-mural boxing matches will be staged. Several capable ringmen have announced their intention of competing in the tourney, and a couple of "grudge" fights will be staged for comic relief. Among those participating will be Will Wallace, John Wells Todd, Stupe Buchan, Curly Clements, Macon Hipp, Cliff Johnson, Wandell Williams, Edgar Stanton, and others of ability.

It has been rumored that Stanton and Prince Charles will tangle in a feature bout. "The Charlesites," as the latter is popularly known, claim Stanton is heavier than he, but Stanton comes back with the assertion, and fact, that Charles has a decided height advantage. We hope the two will settle these arguments in the ring. At the present, Charles is suffering from Pink Tooth Brush and another slight ailment (even his best friends won't tell you), but expects to be in shape by tournament time.

REFEREES

Basketball is not a major sport at P. C. and very little emphasis is stressed in any department of the game. The average student attends games for entertainment purposes, and is not a critical observer of his team's performance. He doesn't attempt to anaylze the make-up of the aggregation. If they lose they lose. If they win they win. The referee plays no part in his thought; does not come within the scope of his observations.

The real basketball fan, however, notices these things. He comes to see smart, deceptive play. He comes to watch two teams pit skill and strategy against each other. This type of play demands efficient, capable refereeing.

The officials who have served in this capacity on the local court thus far have failed to keep the game under control. They allow personal contact and other infractions which retard good team play. We need better refereeing.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

[illegible] Keyhole to expose to [illegible] lovers of [illegible] in the campus and [illegible] the state, The Blue Stocking takes pleasure in announcing the return to the fold of The Keyhole, expurgated of scandal and truth, famous throughout collegiate circles for its features articles on vice.

The author of the Kampus Keyhole wishes to register a spirited protest against the misuse of his name as a member of the Society for Prevention of Punster Punishment, which appeared in a feature story in a recent issue of The Blue Stocking. The Kampus Keyhole has never been in the least sympathetic with the objectives outlined in the article and furthermore has ever been on the alert to suppress all forms of punsterism that appear now and then even in the best regulated families.

The inclusion of the Keyhole's author in the club's membership is a piece of gross libel unworthy of the high standard of journalistic ethics that has been maintained for so long by our paper. It would have been bad enough to mention the Keyhole as a mere member, but no, the unscrupulous calumnator who wrote the feature story took it upon himself to name the writer as treasurer of the S. P. P. P.

Now that the damage has been done, nothing can mitigate its degrading effect. At any rate, however, the perpetration of such a gross misstatement of facts will receive just reward in the condemnation of all right thinking individuals who read the piece.

Enemies of the Keyhole have not been slow to take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the recent snowfall to strike back at him in an effective, if not subtle, method of gaining vengeance for bringing their less commendable acitvities out into the public view. The author has been harassed at every turn by the superior size and snowballing skill of his adversaries and without doubt had a most miserable time while the snow was on the ground.

RAT MURCHISON, chunky footwarmer-ing Romeo, in a fit of angry passion the other day sat down and wrote his best girl a letter in which he called her everything he could think of, being angered at the moment by something or other. After he had mailed the epistle, however, his wrath cooled and he was in a quandry as to how he could atone for his hasty action. Luckily, he happened to wander down to the canteen and won on a punchboard several bars of candy, which he immediately mailed to the sweet young thing as a peace offering.

A bunch of the boys were discussing hunting the other day. Somehow the conversation got around to squirrels. BILL DEGNER, being from Wisconsin and unacquainted with Southern institutions, blandly inquired, "Aren't those things hatched —like chickens?"

Wrong again this time, Bill. You must have been thinking about the Easter rabbit.

JACK GASQUE, potential strong man champion of America, has had his budding career in that field rudely interrupted. The young hero became so strong that he broke one of his spring grip exercisers. Now he is having to mark time until he can acquire enough lucre to purchase one to replace the instrument.

While we're speaking of Northern ignorance of Southern things, it might be well to mention the classic remark of JOHN BILL STEENBERGEN, raw-boned West Virginia mountaineer. During a hasty trip to Florida just after exams, in which group he was numbered, they passed by an orange grove.

He made the astonishing query, "Say, are those oranges over there?" When a Southerner answered in the affirmative, he gasped and ejaculated, "My gosh, I thought they grew under the ground like peanuts!"

MALCOLM (Kayo, Doc, M.D., Big Eye, et cetera) GILLIS, known for his fancy shagging, was evidently stepping a little too high at a recent dance, for when he stepped back down again his partner's foot was under his. The result was tragic. The young lady let loose of him as if he were a hot coal and, howling in agony, began rubbing the injured member frantically. Her remarks were not recorded.

A certain faculty member has been berating members of the student body for the trashy type of literature they read. Three reliable witnesses report, however, that they saw a copy of the magazine, Hooey, on the desk in his office last week.

SARAH SALTERS, comely co-ed who has somehow avoided publicity up to this time, at last breaks into print with the tale told by two of her associates. According to their story, she was having a date one night as they were walking by, and the pair decided to drop in and talk to the couple a while. As they started up on the porch, however, one of them glanced in the window. Then for some unexplainable reason, they decided that it wouldn't be just the right time to go in, so they turned back.

This story is not guaranteed to be true, since the writer did not see the incident, but if any wish to obtain verification of it, they may see NANCY YOUNG and EVELYN McCRARY.

JAKE (Little Man) PENLAND, Royal Dry Cleaning Man (adv.) isn't tall enough to hold the girls in his lap, so that, with leap year now in full swing, he thinks it better to sprawl his 109 pounds in their laps.

Band Substituted For Lehigh Dance?

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Bethlehem, Pa.—What band played military ball?

That's what they were asking at Lehigh recently when it began to be rumored that an Allentown orchestra had been substituted, at the last moment, for Joe Haymes, presumably to the financial betterment of the dance committee.

Committee members were quick to deny it, however, deposing that Haymes had been forced to use the local band's music stands because he didn't bring his own.

Ball Saturday night. It is thought now that this same plan will be followed for this year's hop. The entire student body, home guards and all, are looking forward to this event with a great deal of anticipation.

Freshman C. B. Holcombe has the distinction fo being the first freshman in the history of the Presbyterian College R. O. T. C. to be made a corporal before the end of the year. This promotion speaks well for the industry of the freshman class as a whole and "Pete" is to be congratulated.

Attention, girls! Moonlight parades, a feature of Captain Walter Johnson's National Guardsmen drill, will commence later in the spring. These parades will be held in lieu of Monday morning drill and should be colorfuul affairs. The streets of Clinton will resound to the beating of drums and the marching feet of the entire corps plus Captain Johnson's outfit. Perhaps the martial music will quicken the pulses of the local belles and we will have appreciative audiences for the officers to cater to. Note: All freshmen desiring to learn the art of beguiling a comely maid while drilling a company, watch Captain Forehand at these parades.

Il Duce's "Hell on Wheels" column continues to plunge deep into Ethiopian territory and thousands are reported slain by the black shirted Roman legions.

Benny has Europe by the tail and seems prepared to hold on or turn loose as he sees fit. The great powers of the continent are fearful over the rumored coalition between Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy. Should Hitler unite with Mussolini, their combined armies would be a force fit to challenge the world. GRADES EVEN LOWER THAN OF LAST YEAR

Freshmen Lead In E's As Failures Double Over First Semester of 1934-35.

Grades for the first semester of the 1935-36 session were noticeably lower than those of the corresponding period of 1934-35, according to information released by the registrar.

This year's records show a total of 317 D's, 182 E's and 22 incomplete, in comparison with 228 D's, 80 E's, and 12 incomplete for the first semester of last year.

The freshman class ranked lowest with 122 D's, 112 E's, and 2 incomplete. The sophomores came next with 97 D's, 39 E's, and 3 incomplete, the juniors following with 54 D's, 27 E's and 10 incomplete, and 44 D's, 4 E's and 7 incomplete for the seniors.

Last year showed the following record: Freshmen, 90 D's, 49 E's, 1 incomplete; sophoromes, 84 D's, 21 E's, 5 incomplete; juniors, 33 D's, 6 E's, 4 incomplete; seniors, 17 D's, 2 E's, 1 incomplete; special students, 2 D's, 1 E; graduate students, 2 D's, 1 E, 1 incomplete.

The enrollment for 1935-36 has reached 337 as compared with 288 at the corresponding period last year. Four new students have enrolled for the second semester. They are: Polly Roberts, Clinton, special student; Ned Hays, Clinton, junior, transfer from Emory university; A. M. Polenski, Gloucester, N. J., transfer from Virginia Military institute, and Jordan, transfer from Davidson college.

Plans Being Made For Military Ball

Event Is Tentatively Scheduled For April. "Home-Guard" Affair Also Being Considered.

With preparations now in full swing for the military ball, sponsored by the junior and senior military classes and tentatively scheduled for April 3, all prospects point to a repetition of last year's successful hop.

R. R. Potter, cadet lieutenant-colonel of the corps, has announced that an even larger function than that of last year is planned, which was elaborately staged with confetti, military figures, saber-rattling, and martial music. The event staged last year was the first military ball ever held on the campus, but its success encouraged the sponsors to make it an annual affair.

To further enhance the color of the week-end, secret plans, issuing from George Oliver and Jim Brewer, co-chairmen, are setting the stage for a "home-guard ball," to be held on Saturday night. Nothing is definitely scheduled by the non-military group, but it is probable that either this faction or some campus organization will round out the program with a Saturday night dance.

Dramatists Plan For Production

At a recent meeting of Sock and Buskin, P. C. dramatic club, a committee was appointed to select a play suitable for production.

R. C. McLees, chairman of this committee, announced that it had purchased a reading copy of the Russian comedy, "Squaring the Circle," by Valentine Katayev. This play has been called the "Abie's Irish Rose" of Russia.

Other plays under consideration include, "Dear Brutus," "Outward Bound," and "Paths of Glory."

The cast will be selected at an early date by means of competitive reading for the various parts, thus giving each member a chance to try out for the part he wishes to play.

Sock and Buskin will present the selected play late in March.

Debaters Plan Extensive Tour

All State Teams To Be Met In Campaign of Varsity Speakers. Others Also On Docket.

With the announcement today of the 1936 schedule, the debating team is preparing to enter its busiest season in several years. Besides meeting most of the colleges within the state, an extensive tour through Georgia and Florida is on the program.

Beginning with a debate at Winthrop on February 17, the team meets Textile institute at Spartanburg on the 21st, and on February 26 meets Erskine. Both the negative and affirmative teams will participate in these debates.

On March 2, both teams begin an eight day tour, on which several Georgia and Florida colleges will be met. The schools to be visited are Statesboro Teachers' college, Statesboro, Ga.; University of Florida, Gainesville; Stetson university, DeLand, Fla.; Rollins college, Orlando; Florida State Woman's college, Tallahassee; Mercer university, Macon, Ga., and Georgia Tech, Atlanta.

The query for the year is that proposed by Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, "Resolved, that the Congress of the United States should have the right by a two-thirds majority to over-ride any decision of the Supreme Court." This query offers attractive points for both sides, and should prove most interesting.

Assisting Captain Hank Wilson of the negative team are Edgar Stanton and Colin Hudson, while the colleagues of Captain Hugh Holman, affirmative leader, are Lynn Jones and Red Potter.

A freshman team is developing well under the coaching of Hank Wilson, using the same query as the varsity debaters. The men out for the team are Dyes, Brahner, Coleman, and Hutchinson. The freshman meet with Wofford on February 25 is the only one definitely scheduled for the year, ings thus far.

Work On Armory Gets Under Way

Building To House Clinton Military Uunit Is Adjacent To College Campus.

Work on the new armory for the 263rd battery, coast artillery, Clinton unit of the South Carolina National Guard, to be located at College View, only a short distance from the campus, has already begun.

Construction of the armory, which is a federal project, is under the direction of Walter A. Johnson, captain of the local military unit and director of athletics at Presbyterian college.

The new building is to serve as headquarters and indoor drill area for the Clinton guardsmen. Specifications call for a central drill hall with a floor space of 75 by 100 feet. This provides ample room for the required purposes and will serve as quite a boost to college social life.

Local organizations and Pan-Hellenic committees have found trouble in locating in Clinton a hall large enough to accommodate crowds at balls that have been given in the past. The new armory will afford a conveniently located and well-equipped recreation hall. The prospect of a good floor suitable for social functions will alleviate one of the more serious student difficulties.

Although full plans for the building have not been announced and certain minor changes may be made in the requirements, preparatory work has already commenced on the site where the armory is to be located. Coach Johnson has announced that the specifications call for a brick-finish building to house the equipment and offices of the National Guard. At present the unit has its quarters in a downtown building. The new location and equipment will afford much greater training opportunities to the guardsmen.

Fraternities Pass New Amendment

Calls For Financial Statement From Pan-Hellenic Council and Refund of Profits.

After discussions, marked in general by confusion and heated argument, four of the six campus fraternities in special meetings Thursday night, passed an amendment to the Pan-Hellenic constitution requiring from each Pan-Hellenic council an itemized statement after any social function sponsored by the group.

Alpha Kappa Pi, Alpha Lambda Tau, Beta Kappa, and Pi Kappa Phi voted in favor of the amendment, while Kappa Alpha voted it down. The sixth fraternity, Pi Kappa Alpha, did not meet and no vote was taken. Since four fraternities constituted a two-thirds majority, officers of the fraternity deemed it unnecessary to meet.

Earlier in the week the amendment had been drawn up by one of the Pan-Hellenic councilmen and a representative of The Blue Stocking and presented to the council. Members of the council voted, by a 4 to 2 count, to refuse the amendment. Meetings of the individual fraternities were then called.

In brief, the new amendment, in addition to the clause concerning a financial statement, provides that all records and receipts for a social function shall be kept in the office of the business manager for a period of two weeks after the function. The new ad-

Freshmen Return From Georgia Trip

Yearling Quint Wins From Eatonton Hi and U. of Georgia. Lose To Georgia Military.

The Presbyterian college yearlings returned yesterday from a short, successful tour of Georgia, defeating Eatonton Hi 26-21, nosing out the University of Georgia Bullpups 35-31, and dropping a close one to Georgia Military college, 31-27.

The P. C. freshmen have established themselves as the main threat for the state championship, and after gaining more experience from their first two Georgia jaunts, they have proved their ability.

The Blue Stocking passing attack went well in Milledgeville and before the Sox could accept position the final whistle blew. The Frosh were right in there with the G. M. C. boys to the bitter end, being only four points from the lead at the close of the final frame. Batchelor played a superior brand of ball throughout the contest, both offensively and defensively. Alston and Trapman shared honors for high scoring for the G. M. C. lads, getting credit for five field goals apiece. The final score stood 31-27, with Presbyterian the underdog.

The invasion into Eatonton proved most successful, the young Calvinists turning back a fighting team from Eatonton Hi, 26-21. Batchelor, playing before a home town audience, was one of the stars of the game, garnering eight points and repeatedly breaking up threatening plays to turn the tide. Ben Christian of P. C. also played a commendable game, doing his bit to keep up the general morale of the team. Griffith, young Eatonton Hi guard, was outstanding his team, taking the ball of the back-board and passing to his team-mates time and time again.

The biggest surprise of the season came when the Presbyterian freshmen chalked up a victory over the Georgia university freshman team. Paced by Holden, brilliant P. C. center, who found the runs for 12 points, the Baby Sox went on to win the scrap by a score of 35-31. The boys from P. C. had to resort to freezing the ball at the final gun to stave off a valiant Bullpup rally, but the drive fell five points short. Holden was closely followed by Blair, tow-headed Georgia forward, who tallied 11 points.

LARGE NUMBER PARTICIPATE IN FIRST BRACKET PRELIMINARIES

Mid-Winters Are Declared Success

Dance Series Much Enjoyed In Spite of Snow. Last To Be Staged By Present Council.

The outgoing Pan-Hellenic council climaxed its term of service by a series of three dances given at Copeland hall last week-end. Music for the three dances was furnished by the orchestra of P. D. Hester. The orchestra came well recommended, having recently finished an extended engagement at the Baltimore Penthouse. For the past few months Hester has been playing over a North Carolina radio hook-up.

The first of the series was the semi-formal dance Friday evening. For five hours Copeland hall shook under the feet of one of the largest crowds to attend a mid-term dance in Clinton. Saturday afternoon the majority of the couples of the evening before returned for the tea dance. The final dance of the series was the Pan-Hellenic hop given Saturday night. The dancers seemed determined to get in as much entertainment in three hours as they had in five on the previous evening and made the final dance the liveliest of the three.

These are the last dances to be given by the present Pan-Hellenic council. The acting body has served since last spring and has sponsored three sets of dances. The new representatives to the inter-fraternity council soon will be chosen by their respective groups and will be in charge of the planning of the final dances, to be given in May.

A Step In the Right Direction

Passage of the amendment to provide for financial statements from the Pan-Hellenic Council and access to the records of the council by fraternity men after each social function sponsored by the fraternity representatives is, we believe, a great step in the right direction.

Up to this time there has been no provision in the constitution of the Pan-Hellenic group for any funds that might remain after the staging of a social affair. Although the present amendment is probably far from air-tight, it will at least serve as a basis for future reform if such should ever become necessary. Certainly little blame can be attached to the past actions of the present council, because precedent is often a stronger force than personal feelings. As the amended constitution now stands, precedent will have nothing to do with the affairs of the council.

The new amendment casts no reflections upon Pan-Hellenic councilmen, either now or in the future, because it merely asks of the representatives of the fraternities what any bank president would ask of his cashier. It at last places the affairs of the council upon a strictly business basis.

It was of course regrettable that the council refused to ratify the amendment when it was presented and it became necessary to bring it up before the fraternities. But, considering everything, we feel that another step has been taken toward making this a better college and the Pan-Hellenic council a better council.

Revival of Dramatic Interest

The recent organization of Sock and Buskin, dramatic club, will, it is hoped, fill the vacancy left by the disbanding of the organization that presented the play, "Hot Copy," year before last. P. C. is certainly large enough to support such an organization, and the college and the town show such a definite lack of any varied form of entertainment that the presentations of such a group are almost certain to be well received.

The announcement by Sock and Buskin that several plays are under consideration and that try-out for parts will be held as soon as possible assures the organization stability. Whether or not the first play presented by the group is a success will depend upon the attitude of the student body toward the project and the quality of the play selected. A poor or uninteresting selection would doom the club; therefore, it all boils down to the fact that the actors and actresses, and would-be actors, of the student body must select a play that will be enjoyed by the average student.

If dramatists have finally selected such a play, then all that they can now do is to get behind it and keep up the same interest and the same enthusiasm that has caused the re-awakening of interest in campus dramatics.

Six Score and Seven Years Ago . . .

Six score and seven years ago this week was born Abraham Lincoln, "Honest Abe," rail splitter, Savior of the Union. Yesterday he was hated by all true Southerners because his was the hand that saved the Union, the Master Hand that pushed batallion after batallion across the Mason and Dixon line and into the heart of the South. Today we of the South have learned to look upon him as the true leader he was—one of the greatest statesmen of all time, one of the greatest men of history.

He fought for that which he believed was right and put into the fighting all the power and talent that he had stored during sleepless nights before an open fire and during days of struggle to rise from the drudgery of his fathers. When we think of Lincoln today we do not think of a war-time president ordering his armies to deal death and destruction to men with whom they had fought at Lexington and at Concord. Before us we see a tall, gaunt man, burdened with the sorrows of a war-weary land, saddened with the thought of the carnage that lay before and the blood that lay behind.

Lincoln bore not hate toward the South. He felt animosity only toward a system that chained men, even though they were black men, to the bleak future from which European peasants had fled two hundred years before to set up a new land based on a new faith. Had Lincoln lived the South might never have known the horror of carpet-bag rule, the poverty of defeat, and the bitterness of feeling brought about by the period of reconstruction.

But gone is the hate, the fear, and the prejudice; and the new South, rising from the ashes of the old to face a future bright with hope, looks back six score and seven years ago to see Abraham Lincoln, the great American and the friend of mankind.

A Military Ball and a Home Guard Brawl

Although the rhythm of the Pan-Hellenic midwinters still lingers, plans are already going forward for the second annual military ball, probably to be staged in early March. Now comes the announcement that the Home Guards in all probability will sponsor a Saturday night dance. Should this be done, the new series will undoubtedly be one of the most successful social functions of the year.

Last year Blue Key, leadership fraternity, put over the military ball and the collegiate ball, one on Friday night and the other on Saturday night. The fraternities held a tea dance on Saturday afternoon to complete the occasion. The three were generally acknowledged to be the best dance program ever put on at this college.

With the R.O.T.C. behind the military ball and the Home Guards behind the Saturday night dance, this year's program will eclipse that of last year. The spirit of rivalry that has always existed between the military and the non-military students will increase the efforts of each group to put on a better hop than the other.

In spite of the fact that the officials of the college have in the past more or less frowned on dances, The Blue Stocking holds and will continue to hold that social life is as much a part of a man's education as is a successful recitation of the reign of Henry VIII. That there is anything morally wrong with dancing we can never believe. Our fathers before us danced the "Virginia Reel." They saw no evil in that. We today see no evil in the "Shag."

So if we are going to have a military ball followed by a Home Guard ball, let's get behind the series and make it an annual affair, one of the high spots of the social year.

Twenty Mount Holyoke college freshmen were allowed to take only two courses this year under rules set down for a unique educational experiment there.

Nineteen colleges and universities are giving prizes to those seniors who acquire the most interesting library during their college years.

Expansion of the University of Michigan graduate school is being made possible through the recent gift of $5,000,000 from the trustees of the Horace H. and Mary A. Rackham fund.

Two universities in Chicago are sponsoring a university of the air to be broadcast over local stations. An extensive four-year course is being planned for this novel university.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Business men, speaking before groups of future Rotarians, tap their fingers and remark, "Ah, yes, no young man could better occupy himself during these depression years than by going to college."

And a thousand college presidents, with one eye on the school account books, agree enthusiastically. In fact, if more young men and women with money to spend, don't agree with them, another batch of small colleges are due to wipe the blackboards free from chalk and call it a day. Ten colleges closed within the last couple of years, while several others curtailed.

Others are putting up a strong fight to save themselves. The methods they have used in this fight are just now coming into the open, thanks to an investigation by the Associated American Colleges.

The Tusck report shows that American schools of higher learning amazingly degraded themselves in frantic competition for students, the reporter: "The business world had few practices in unethical competition that cannot be matched where in the college world."

Colleges offer "scholarships" lavishly, which are, in reality, outright grants-in-aid and have no merit basis. One man estimates that out of 200,000 freshmen last year, 15 per cent paid all expenses. Unscrupulous high school principals make deals with the colleges, whereby they provide two paying students for every scholarship. A number of commissions on each high school graduate they drag into the fold, it is stated.

With 45 men already signed up for R. O. T. C. boxing, the dates have been definitely set for the 10th, 12th, and 19th. Coach Johnson hopes to find material around which to build a boxing team for next year. Coach is very anxious to have the school represented in this branch of collegiate sport since he started intercollegiate boxing in South Carolina. Preston Charles has called off his grudge fight with Edgar Stanton. "Prince" says, "Any man who goes out for boxing is nuts, but he who spots another 15 pounds is a plain fool. Why doesn't Edgar find some one nearer his own weight if he is so anxious to fight?"

The date for the military ball has been set for the first week-end in April. The Home Guards are planning to give a ball on Saturday night following the military ball. This will be a new feature but should add much to the week-end. George Oliver and Jim Brewer were elected co-chairmen of the Home Guard forces to make plans for this event. The boys are thinking of a bowery ball which would be quite in taste. As George says, "We wanna feel at ease at our own dance."

Bad news for the juniors! The dreaded time for innoculation has come. The Major announces that all juniors will take the three typhoid shots later this very month. You juniors who aren't going to camp better start talking because the sore arms resulting from those needle pricks aren't to be taken lightly.

The bad weather of the past weeks has thrown the corps behind in its drill schedule but we will make up for lost time when we finally get back to the field again. Much polishing needs to be done before the corps will be ready for spring inspection.

"Sarge" says he is planning to get up a co-ed team, as is his custom, in the near future. He has planned a trip which will cover the entire state, as well as Georgia and Florida. All girls wishing to try out for the team see "Sarge" at once. Managers file application at the earliest possible date, for the usual rush to fill this position in anticipated. For style notes on what the well dressed N.C.O. should wear, keep your eye on Sergeant Young. He is sporting a new pair of pink pants which are the latest thing in swanky attire.

It remains to be seen whether the League is bluffing this time or not. Mussolini has called it if it is a bluff and if not it looks like war can not be averted. If it does come, may we keep the whole wide spaces of the ocean between us and the battle fields, if possible.

Major Wysor announces that whoever borrowed the P. M. S. and T.'s copy of "Hooey" please return it. He was reading a good clean joke when interrupted and would like to finish it. The Major suspects a certain prominent instructor of English, but will give him ample time to return the missing article before taking drastic steps.

REPORTER DISCOVERS PLANS FOR NEW, SINISTER FRATERNITY

Local Chapter of Kappa Beta Phi, National Organization, Allegedly In Process of Formation By Small Group On Campus.

Fellow students, a sinister plot is being hatched out on our campus! No, it's not a Red Russia conspiracy by Krbltsrodkvitch, Russia. Nor does it concern the activities of the notorious Lewdist club, infamous as that group may be. And even Hank Wilson and his Liberty League chapter have nothing to do with it. Just to keep you from being in suspense, we'll tell you. A shameless bunch of dipsomaniacs are trying to organize a chapter of Kappa Beta Phi, national honorary fraternity for the imbibing of certain beverages.

We all know that this is a Christian institution. If you don't believe it, ask Turk Osman, the college field agent. He will say, "A distinct Christian atmosphere pervades the campus. Every man conducts himself as a perfect gentleman at all times."

This we all realize. Yet we find that a woefully small minority are attempting to form an organization to "bore from within," as it were, and be withal an insidious contaminating influence on the perfect state of rectitude which now is characteristic of our student body. In other words, our moral status is being most vilely, though subtly, attacked.

Reverse the Greek letters and you will see that "Kappa Beta Phi" gives "Phi Beta Kappa," the renowned scholarship fraternity. (If you've never heard of the latter, ask a Davidson man). Kappa Beta Phi is a brother fraternity of Phi Beta Kappa, and was closely modeled after its predecessor, although the purposes and activities of the two are quite different. While Phi Beta Kappa was founded in the early days of the American republic, the brotherhood for which it served as a model is of comparatively recent origin. Incidentally, Kappa Alphas and other staunch Southerners can point with pride to the fact that Kappa Beta Phi was founded in no less an institution than good old Washington and Lee. The insignia of the fraternity is borne on the key carried by all loyal members. In the center are the Greek letters of the brotherhood's name, while in one corner at the bottom, is a hand with finger outstretched pointing diagonally upward toward a stein in the opposite corner at the top.

A Y.M.C.A. group has recently finished making a survey with the view of finding out the number of those on our campus who worship at the shrine of Bacchus. According to this census, five men indulge in this vicious habit, the rest being abstainers. These five men have taken it upon themselves to undermine the morals of the entire student body through the machinery of Kappa Beta Phi. In other words, this one small group is attempting to make itself a veritable octopus, which will soon fasten its fell tentacles on the unsuspecting young and squeeze the very life blood of sobriety from their veins. Worst of all, the sinister quintet is being counseled by a member of the ministerial club. This man is himself a fully iniated member, and is well acquainted with influential members of the national organization, a connection which may assist the conspirators greatly in making their contemptible work a success.

Alarmed Y.M.C.A. cabinet members are meeting day and night, trying to work out a plan to root out this evil before it gets under way. And meanwhile Robert McLees, the Platonic philosopher, sits back grinning his Cheshire-cat grin, secure in the belief that if the plot is successful he will no longer have to chase around in back alleys hunting vainly for new items to put in his collection of bottle labels.

Mass. "Loyalty" Oath Cause Of Two Resignations

Medford, Mass.—Tufts college trustees have accepted the resignations of two department heads who rfeused to comply with the Massachusetts teachers' "loyalty" oath law. Dr. Alfred C. Lane and Dr. Earle M. Winslow, head of the geology and economics departments respectively, offered to resign after they had signed the oath with reservations which were not acceptable. Tufts' president, Dr. John A. Couzens, said there was no course for the college except the acceptance of the resignations since refusal to comply would mean the loss of the college charter.

Football Captain Suspended In Drive

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Chapel Hill, N. C.—Eighteen University of North Carolina students, including Don Jackson, outstanding backfield man of the 1935 football team, have been indefinitely suspended by the student council.

Seventeen of the students were suspended for alleged cheating, but Jackson's dismissal came as the result of alleged misconduct.

The charges, which were brought by the council against other students in addition to the 18 dismissed, involve an organized "racket" whereby a small coterie supplied advance copies of examination questions and prepared themes for fixed charges.

Fascist Forces Increase In U. S.

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New York.—The growth of Fascist forces in this country, indicated by the present tone of the Hearst press, seriously endangers American civil liberties, according to a survey made public by the Council for Social Action of the Congregational and Christian Churches of America.

"In America the problem of civil liberty has become more than a theoretical defense of our constitutional rights," the survey asserts. "We are experiencing that denial of our elemental rights which is the sign of the presence of Fascist forces at work in our national life. 'Over the top' is the slogan. But the reality of the matter is that the wave of repression threatens the liberal, progressive and radicals alike.

The survey cites that today the monied class and the middle class have no reason to be worried about the denial of their civil liberties. "The [illegible] of the constitutional rights of workers and farmers through the courts, the police, [illegible] of fascism."

Chief weapons of the Fascist group, [illegible] of the constitutional rights of workers and farmers through the courts, the police, [illegible] of fascism."

A LIGHT SMOKE offers something to each smoker!

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

*RESULTS VERIFIED BY INDEPENDENT CHEMICAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH GROUPS

All kinds of people choose Luckies, each for reasons of his own. But everyone agrees that Luckies are A Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco. It is a rather surprising fact that the leaves of the same tobacco plant may vary far more than the leaves from plants of quite different types. Chemical analysis shows that the top leaves contain excess alkalies which tend to give a harsh, alkaline taste. The bottom leaves tend to acidity in the smoke. It is only the center leaves which approach in Nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.

Cappelmann Goes To Golden Glove

HOSE BOXER TESTS SKILL IN N. C. TOURNEY

Was Outstanding Light-Heavy Of Presbyterian Fighting Aggregation Last Year.

On Tuesday of this week C. M. Cappelmann will leave for Charlotte, where he will participate in the Southern eliminations of the national Golden Gloves boxing tournament. Accompanying the P. C. pugilist will be Coach Walter Johnson, who is sponsoring Cappelmann's entry.

The tourney begins on Wednesday, the 12th, and will be brought to a close by the crowning of divisional champions on Saturday night. Winners in the Charlotte matches will go to Cleveland later for the national finals and the Olympic try-outs.

Cappelmann is a capable, confident light-heavyweight of several years experience. He made a fine showing last year against Blue Stocking competition and would have been a mainstay this year, had the boxing program been in effect. Because he does not know the calibre of the men he will oppose, the Parris Island product is reluctant to make predictions as to the outcome, but P. C. students may rest assured that their representative will give his all.

With a fighter's heart, a boxer's skill, and a gentleman's sportsmanship, Cappelmann should go a long way in the tournament.

Levi Continues To Lead Scoring

With an even 100 points to his credit, "Lefty" Levi continues to lead the Blue Stocking scores. The flashy little forward has chalked up 40 field goals and 20 foul shots to reach the century mark. Roy Forehand went on a scoring spree during the road trip last week to pass Red Wyatt and take second place with 71 points. The talented red-head is only one point ahead of Ralph Waldrep, who increased his total consistently during the past two weeks.

Hose Five Meet Furman Tonight

Presbyterian's basketball quintet tonight will meet Furman's Purple Hurricane in Greenville after a five-day rest from play.

Furman was leading Carolina by one point last week when the game was called because of a broken power line, while last week P. C. fell before the Gamecocks by a nine-point margin. In a previous game Furman defeated the P. C. five, 40 to 28, in the local gymnasium.

The only home game of the week will be played Friday night against the College of Charleston, defeated last week in Charleston by the Hose.

P. C. Quint Downs Charleston Team

Scoring 12 points in an overtime period, P. C.'s Blue Hosemen pulled away from their College of Charleston opponents, and by a 47 to 37 count, secured their second victory over a state team this season.

The game ended with the score standing at 35-all, necessitating an extra period of play. The Blue Stockings engaged in a spirited scoring spirit and chalked up a dozen markers while the baffled Charlestonians were making a lone goal.

Lefty Levi was the spark-plug in the P. C. attack, and the diminutive forward's presence was especially evident in the overtime period. In this he made five of his team's points. Levi and Forehand divided high scoring honors with 10 points apiece. The Waldrep brother combination contributed 13 points and the guards came through with 12 more points.

Tommy Johnson and his team-mate, Ostendorff, were the big shots in the Charleston offensive. Both made nine points.

It was the third consecutive game in which the Calvinist center, Roy Forehand, either took or shared high scoring honors. The lanky pivot man's improvement was a factor in Monday night's victory over the Maroons.

Although he withdrew from school some time ago, Dick Pugh is still leading the Baby Hosemen in offensive performance. Pugh's 86 points is still 24 more than that of Les Holden, his closest rival.

Giles Batchelor, recently converted from guard to forward, slid into second place with 20 field goals and a foul toss. Holcomb, Christian, and Kombo are next in line with 34, 33 and 32 points, respectively.

Basketeers Drop Game To Carolina

Calvinists Lead At Half, But Gamecocks Crow In Closing Minutes of Game.

Carolina's Gamecocks pulled away to a comfortable lead in the last five minutes of play to whip the Hosemen, 33 to 24, in Columbia Tuesday evening. This was the concluding engagement of the recent road campaign which saw the Blue Stockings win one and lose two.

The Carolina five took an early lead which was maintained through most of the first half. With the count 11 to 10 in the Gamecocks' favor, Lefty Levi hooked one in to give his mates a momentary lead. After Taylor's goal, which gave Carolina a one-point advantage, Joe Bradley dropped in a field goal and Adams followed up with a foul toss to give P. C. a 15-14 half-time lead.

The capital city club came back after intermission to take a lead that they never relinquished. The Hosemen tied the score at 20-20 with five minutes remaining, but a spurt by the Gamecocks put the game on ice.

Ralph Waldrep took first honors for the Blue Hosemen. The aggressive forward star scored eight points and played a consistent floor game. Mitchell and Johnson were the leading lights in the Carolina performance, making nine and eight points, respectively.

Bengal Five Leads State Basket Loop

With Presbyterian still hugging the cellar, Clemson's powerful Bengal five continued to rule the state basketball roost, although suffering her third out-of-state defeat at the hands of Washington and Lee.

Wofford was running a close second at the close of the week's hostilities. Furman, whose game with Carolina was called when a power line snapped, throwing the court into darkness, held undisputed sway over third place.

Weather Hinders Tennis Practice

Walter A. Johnson, director of athletics, has announced that candidates for the tennis teams, both varsity and freshman, will begin practice as soon as weather and the condition of the courts permits.

Three matches already have been scheduled and more are either tentative or the coaches will be contacted at an early date. Matches have been arranged for the varsity with Carolina, Wofford and Davidson.

Among last year's regulars who will again wield the racket are Lee Gregg, and Parham.

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

AND IT ALL CAME TRUE

Three weeks ago this column devoted itself to an analysis of the offensive performance of a P. C. basketball five that was winning basketball games. Using figures for facts, we pointed out that the guards and center were not contributing to the point total, thus placing the entire burden on the forwards. With the set-up, the team had to be content with consistent defeat.

Last week the Hosemen met and defeated the College of Charleston five. A study of the box score revealed that the guards together had contributed 12 points to the P. C. total. In other words, the margin of victory lay in the scoring power of the guards. The guards came through—and we won.

IT'S JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Before very long, the baseball field will be a scene of activity. The pitchers will be journeying down to get the kinks out of their muscles, and the others will follow close on their heels. Regular practice will begin earlier than usual, and several players have already begun whipping themselves into shape.

P. C. should have a top-notch club this year. With plenty of material, and a swell coach to mould it into a fast-stepping nine, we look forward to seeing our Hosemen wreck havoc within Palmetto collegiate baseball circles. And why not!

CAPPELMANN TO CAMP IN CHARLOTTE

Tomorrow morning C. M. Cappelmann will hie away to Charlotte, where he will indulge in a bit of fistic competition with the good Southerners. The aggressive ring artist has been primed for this, the annual Golden Gloves boxing tourney, for some time. He will leave this rural hamlet fit as a fiddle and ready for competition.

We don't know the calibre of the men whom "Cap" will face, and naturally won't make any predictions concerning his chances. But we do know one thing. Cappelmann is nobody's compromising plaything, and will put on a series of dynamic tigerish exhibitions during the Charlotte eliminations.

We're behind you, little man!

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

Echoes of the Ball

It's after the dance, ladies and gentlemen. The Keyhole is seated in George Oliver's room in B section Smyth, pounding away on his portable. Time: 5:20 a. m.

A good time was had by all, except the Pan-Hellenic councilmen, who stood back looking sour at everyone.

JIM COLLINGS was seen, and also heard, giving his girl the benefit of that golden tenor during a no-break. We wonder if TOM PLAXICO was doing the same.

Interruption — 5:35 a. m. — Inmate Oliver comes in.

Orchids to BILL DEGNER for his choice of a date built on almost exactly the same lines as himself. And orchids also to George Oliver for his choice of one suited to Keyhole's size.

H. D. CRANFORD, tiny N.Y.A. chief, gave all the five-footers the big rush during the evening. One girl timidly asked one who had just broken on the Little Tyrant, "Does he have a peg leg?"

Is it because she liked men more nearly her size, or is it that Pan-Hellenic councilmen don't rate any more, that a tiny blond broke her no-break with ROY FOREHAND and gave it to WARREN DICKEY? Anyway, that's what happened.

ROBERT McLEES seems to have found the one great love, regardless of the teachings of Plato. He was seen twice curling his arm around a girl and even seemed to enjoy it.

E. F. MacLEOD, diminutive bellringer now called "One-Clap Elrod," is complaining loudly of his ill luck. He escaped from a wreck Thursday afternoon entirely unscathed, only to suffer a bruised and swollen eye as a result of impact given by a snowball only a short while before the dance. Besides this calamity he came near losing his place on The Blue Stocking staff as a result of the delay in handing in copy, which was caused by being stranded in Spartanburg after the accident. All that would be required to complete the train of unfortunate circumstances would be for him to get left by his date. Fortunately, however, he had no date.

6:18 a. m.—and so to bed.

BIG NEWS OF THE WEEK-END: ED (SPEEDY) ANDREWS GETS DATE FOR PAN-HELLENIC, SAID TO BE SECOND DATE DURING HIS THREE AND A HALF YEARS AT P. C.

Other news flashes:

GEORGE OLIVER, after having the same tall brunette for the last five dances, has at last decided that maybe a five-foot blond would do just as well. Incidentally, she is supposed to be terribly in love, but apparently she hasn't forgotten how to skeet stuff.

MARION PARHAM is showing that, if anything, he has that good old P. C. never-say-die spirit. When Marion entered our institution two and a half years ago he asked a certain girl friend up for pledge dance, then for mid-winter, and so on, ad infinitum, getting a refusal each time. Finally he decided to make one grand and glorious stab at it for the 1936 mid-winter. He was refused, however, for the seventh time. Now he says that all that stuff about lucky Biblical numbers is a lot of baloney.

JULIEN FREEMAN, handsome and hefty football man, asked five different girls over for the dances. All declined, saying that they were going to attend the Clemson affairs during the same week-end. Which goes to show that ping-pong is not the only indoor sport in which Clemson has it on us.

Those readers of The Blue Stocking who wish to see the Keyhole and the Parade Ground tangle up in ROTC boxing are due for a sad disappointment. This writer has never challenged anyone to a boxing match and has never seriously considered such an action. The idea that the author challenged Mr. Stanton was due entirely to a misunderstanding. Obviously, it would be foolish for one of our little experience to challenge a man 15 pounds heavier and with previous ring experience. However, if the said militarist wishes to fight someone, a real natural would be himself matched against Robert McLees. Both represent opposing elements in the unending pacifist-militarist controversy, and at the same time they are of the same Platonic nature.

MICKEY MIXSON, after years of dance dates with girls from distant climes, has now settled down with a nice little co-ed. With Mickey's attractive personality shining forth on a leap year, we predict a June wedding.

All those who wish to make late dates for dances will please see ROBERT (PLATO) McLEES. Undoubtedly he is a Southern gentleman of the old school, for he says that since the girl he asks down for a dance comes here for her own pleasure he means to let her have it in her own way—that is, by allowing her to have late dates with other boys. This in view of the fact that he claims to have nothing more than a mere platonic interest in his girl friends. However, Robert reserves the right to veto any undesirables who might wish dates, in order that she may have the "right sort."

J. S. Anderson With Air Corps

Word has just been received here that Joe Shirley Anderson, class of 1929, is now on active duty with the United States army air corps at Selfridge field.

Anderson, formerly of Laurens, S. C., was married to Miss Harriet Elizabeth Simmons at Richmond, Michigan, in September, 1934.

Australian Debate Men To Tour U. S.

New York.—Under the auspices of the National Student Federation of America, C. G. McAuliffe and Nevil F. Stuart, Melbourne university (Australia) debaters will tour the country for six months. They arrive January 25 at Los Angeles to debate and lecture in west coast colleges. Crossing the country by a northern route, they will argue their way to New York where they are expected in April.

The two men selected to make this good will trip are both members of the Melbourne Debating society. McAuliffe has distinguished himself as an outstanding Australian oarsman and was a member of the intercollegiate Australian rules football team, comparable to all-American in this country. Stuart has won honors in economics and has been a prominent member of a commission working on the problem of clearing Melbourne slums and rehousing low-wage workers.

Both are prepared to lecture on Australian social and political life. Their debate subjects include: (1) That the League of Nations should be made a super power. (2) That the salvation of the world lies rather in dictatorship than in democracy. (3) That our system of living spells the doom of culture. (4) That civilization is bound to decay once it penetrates the masses.

LIBRARY NOTES

For the convenience of students and faculty members who teach Sunday school classes, the library has a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday School Lessons for 1936." This famous aid to teachers and students of the Sunday school lessons has been placed on reserve.

The library is trying to get a complete file of the college catalogs. They will be bound and kept in the library for reference. Unfortunately, nine of the fifty-five issues are missing: 1882-83, 1884-85, 1885-86, 1892-93, 1893-94, 1899-00, 1900-01, 1905-06, and 1910-11. The library is appealing to former students, ministers and friends of the college to search for these numbers. If any are found, and the finders are so disposed, please send them to the library.

College Graduates' Earnings Are High

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New York.—Barnard college alumnae average $1,962 yearly earnings, according to a late survey. The averages run from $1,115 for the class of 1933 to $4,125 for '93 to '98.

Law and medicine, although showing the greatest decline since 1929, are still most lucrative fields, credited with maximum earnings of $16,000 and $10,350 respectively, with the average at $2,750.

Eight women—a lawyer, a doctor, a secretary, a writer, a publicity executive and a research worker in economics—were shown by the survey to be drawing $1,000 or more.

N. C. Cooperative Does Fine Business

Chapel Hill, N. C. — Two thousand of the 2500 undergraduates at the University of North Carolina are now members of a cleaning and pressing cooperative which did a business of $15,000 in 1934 and far exceeded that in 1935. The co-op owns its own truck, employs a manager, two clerks and six cleaning and pressing experts. In spite of the fact that it paid higher than code wages, the co-op cleaned and pressed suits of clothes for forty cents compared to seventy-five cents charged by private cleaners. The success in cleaning and pressing led the students to add clothing to their co-operative service. A private clothing merchant in Chapel Hill is reported to have advertised that he would run the co-op out of business if it cost him $100,000. Today, the merchant is in bankruptcy. The cooperative was started on a capital of $760 raised by $1 membership fees from the charter members.

'Neutral' German Athlete Denied Olympic Honors

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Berlin. — Athletes in Germany who show by their attitude that they do not understand or do not desire to understand the true significance of the Third Reich from the Nazi viewpoint will be barred from "the honors of victory." This, in brief, was the statement made by Kurt Muench, head of the Reich's Diet, an institution "for the promotion of national characteristics," in his New Year's message on "Politics in Sport."

Muench declared, in a new edition of "The German Pronunciamento" for the political education of athletes, that "the non-political, so-called 'neutral' athlete is unthinkable" in the regime of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

In his article in the "Lokal Anzeiger" Muench made it even clearer that, under the present program, competition in important German events is to be limited to those Germans who are sympathetic to National Socialism. Obviously it is no longer a question simply of the elimination of "non-Aryans" from German sports.

In his New Year's message, Muench stated that the task of a sports leader in the Reich must be considered as primarily political and that he must see to it that members of the Nazi Association for Physical Culture become imbued with the spirit of National Socialism.

"It must be understood that these discussions are not examinations, but rather discussions among the brothers. Yet they give the referees an opportunity to judge as to the attitude of the competitors—men and women—toward the Nazi state.

"Those who do not yet understand the task which faces our efforts in German history must become adjusted to the fact that National Socialism declines to grant the honors of victory to those athletes and sportsmen who, through their behavior or attitude, show they fail to comprehend or decline to comprehend the fateful questions which they face.

"Victors must serve as a pattern and example in every respect for their comrades. Therefore, they must be pioneers in political influence."

Mission Conference In Annual Session

Seven Presbyterian Students Attend Meeting Held In Greenville During Week-End.

Lynn Jones, Chester Keller, George McInnis, Hubert Wardlaw, C. J. Bradner, Sam Hughes, and Ernest Arnold represented Presbyterian college at the annual Student Mission conference held in Greenville Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Ernest J. Arnold, of this institution, president of the South Carolina Student Volunteer union, was the conference chairman.

Dr. John Lake opened the meeting Friday night by telling of his work among the lepers of the Tai Kam Island Leper colony near Hong Kong, China. He also addressed the assembled group Saturday afternoon and continued his discussion of this work. Saturday morning was spent in group discussions and was climaxed by a message on "The Come and Go of the Gospel," by G. W. Gideon, of the Pittsburgh mission in Atlanta, Ga.

Saturday night four students spoke on "Why I Plan to Go to the Foreign Field." The Student Volunteer Movement and the World Student Christian Federation were presented by Rufus Morrow, of New York city. This was followed by an address by Dr. Charles A. Logan, of Tokushima, Japan. Dr. Logan has been a missionary to Japan for 33 years and was the teacher of the great Japanese leader, Dr. Kagawa. The latter is now lecturing in this country and the two are working together.

The activities of the day were closed by pictures of the Holy Land. Dr. Charles H. Nabers, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Greenville, took the group on a tour of the Holy Land through these pictures. A short social was later enjoyed at Greenville Woman's college by the delegates.

Sunday morning the new officers of the Student Volunteer Movement were installed by Mr. Morrow, and Dr. Logan brought the closing message, "Christ in Japan," to the group.

Dr. R. C. Grier, president of Erskine college, Due West, conducted an effective worship service during the conference. Miss K. Pfohl, director of the Limestone choir directed the music for the conference.

Succeeding Mr. Arnold as president of the Student Volunteer union was Miss Janie Farmer of Columbia college. Miss Farmer will assume the duties of her new office April 1st.

"This amendment shall become effective immediately upon its ratification."

By mild ripe tobacco we mean just this—

FIRST—ripened in the sunshine... and picked leaf by leaf from the right part of the stalk when fully ripe.

THEN—each day's picking cured right by the farmer . . . at the right time and in the right way . . . no "splotching" or brittleness, but every leaf of good color and flavor.

FINALLY—bought in the open market...re-dried for storage...then packed in wooden hogsheads to age and mellow for two years or more until free from harshness and bitterness.

That's what we mean by mild, ripe tobacco. And that's the kind of tobacco we use to give Chesterfields their milder, better taste.

Picking leaf tobacco in the "Bright" tobacco fields of Virginia and the Carolinas.

Type of barn used for "flue-curing" leaf tobacco.

Hogsheads of leaf tobacco "aging" for two years in storage warehouses.

INTRAMURAL FINALS TOMORROW NIGHT

PRELIMINARY FIGHTS ARE HUGE SUCCESS

First Bracket Was On Monday, While Second Was Held Wednesday Night.

NO KNOCK-OUTS ARE REGISTERED IN TILTS

In a series of bouts characterized by wild slugging and bloody fist-swinging, the men were finally selected on Monday and Wednesday nights to take part in the finals of the intramural boxing, commonly known as "R.O.T.C. boxing."

The first night of the series was fast and furious from the beginning. The evening began with a technical knockout by Huntley over Moseley, in the second round of the battle. These two were in the lightweight class. Then followed the fracas between the tough Russian-born student, Pilenski, and Culp. The latter gave his opponent a fit in the first round, but condition gave Pilenski the advantage, and after tiring him down, the new student pummeled him so badly Referee Cappelmann stopped the fight in the third round. Another fight in the same class was that between Nelms and Clements. The latter had the advantage from the first, and it was not necessary for him to be the aggressor in order to polish off his game opponent.

In the welterweight division, Dusty Rhodes had a clear victory over his man, P. M. Clement. Following this was the intensely interesting slugging battle between D. M. Carson and Lambright. The former was one of the gamest fighters of the evening, but Lambright's ring generalship gave him a superiority that earned a close decision. In the same weight, Dickey and Coleman fought to no-decision.

In the middleweight division came a ludicrous fight between Buffkin and Perry. For two rounds the latter held off his opponent, but finally Buffkin's superior stamina helped him to get through Perry's long reach. The bout ended in a third-round technical knockout.

Next came the Hiers-Nettles fracas. The latter started out with a rush in the first, but his tall opponent came back strong in the second round to even things up somewhat. However, Hiers could not guard effectively against "Honest John's" aggressive tactics, and the latter earned a decision. The other fight was between Walter Todd and Pope Todd gained a technical knockout in the first.

The last battle of the evening was with Hack Mixson and Evans in the unlimited class. This fight was a real slugging spree, and so well-matched were the pair that the judges announced a draw.

The Semi-Finals

The semi-final matches came Wednesday evening and it was every bit as interesting as the initial set of bouts.

Berry defeated Bethea in a well-fought match between two lively bantams. In the lightweight class the scrappy Dusty Rhodes went down before the scientific fighting of Lambright. The two hard-hitting junior welters, Coleman and Dickey, evidently were trying to make it a grudge fight as they socked each other mercilessly, but again the decision was a draw.

Booth and Todd fought a bloody battle in the middleweight class. At first it seemed as if Booth would make it a walkaway, but Todd's courage and grit kept him in the fight and earned him a draw.

The light-heavyweight class was a nicely fought contest between McRae and Burns. The latter kept a slight edge throughout to get the decision.

Diamond Cohorts Take Field Today

Chick Galloway's 1936 Edition Begins Training. Much Good Material On Hand.

Baseball practice for the intercollegiate season of 1936 made its official start this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The team is expected to more than hold its own against state opponents this spring.

Much good material will be available for the 1936 edition of P. C. baseball nine. Last year, it will be remembered, the Presbyterian baseballers got third place in the state. This time they are expected to be serious contenders for the Palmetto intercollegiate crown in the sport.

The material that Coach Chick Galloway, well-known local man and former player with the Philadelphia Athletics, will have to work with is of unusually high calibre. Last year the team's main fault was that only one dependable pitcher was available. This time other good pill-slingers will offer their services. Besides John Suggs, the 1935 hurler, there will be Coon Weldon, Joe Commander, and Louis Anderson to pick from as relief men. Good players in the other positions also are present in abundance.

Public Speaking Class Leads Meet

"Foreign Relations of the United States" Is Topic At I. R. C. Session Held Wednesday.

In its first meeting of the month, held Wednesday evening, the International Relations club's program consisted of talks by various members of the newly-organized class in public speaking.

Since the majority of the organization are taking the new course, the program was made up of talks by three members on the week's public speaking topic, "Foreign Relations of the United States." Three I. R. C. members, Hugh Holman, Tom Newland, and Ed Andrews, spoke on various phases of the question.

The subject of Holman's discussion was relations with Latin America, while Newland, who lived for several years in Korea, reviewed recent foreign affairs relating to Japan and the nine-power treaty. Andrews, the club's president, closed with a speech on the failure of the London naval conference.

Holman, former president of the I. R. C., made an announcement of the coming Southeastern Students' conference, which is to be held at Winthrop February 27, 28, and 29. The International Relations club at P. C., along with those of several other schools in the state, is expected to send a large representation.

Frosh Debaters Prep For Wofford

The freshman debaters are well under way in their preliminary preparation to meet Wofford on the 25th.

Under the guidance of Coach H. M. Wilson they have been meeting with the varsity, delivering practice speeches and conducting several general discussions on the query.

Coach Wilson states that Dyes and Bradner have shown promising ability in recent practices and that they will travel to Wofford. Coleman and Hutchinson will take the defensive at home on the same date unless their recent sickness prevents, in which case it will be as early after that as possible. Warren Dicky is the only alternate to date.

Local Rifle Team Looked To As Best

Veterans and Sophomores Compose Outfit That Is Expected To Go Places This Year.

Composed of a group of veterans and promising sophomores and spurred on by the promise of a trip into North Carolina, the Presbyterian college rifle team promises to be the best ever put out by this school.

Ably coached by Sergeant Sterlin Young, the team is now firing the Fourth Corps Area matches. Early in March the team will enter the Hearst trophy matches. In former years the team has always acquitted itself well and should show up better than ever with three years of experience behind most of the members. Shoulder-to-shoulder matches have been scheduled with the reserve officers, the National Guard, and a team from the town of Clinton. All of these matches will be fired on the outdoor range some time in early spring.

Besides these home matches, the professor of military science and tactics announces that plans are pending for a trip which will probably last a week and take in four or five schools. The plan now stands for the team to leave for Clemson, spend the night there, and go on to Wofford. Leaving Wofford, the next stop will be Davidson, and leaving Davidson the team will close its trip at North Carolina State. All of these schools have fine teams and the matches should be very close. There will probably be a trip to The Citadel also.

The first team is composed of L. E. Anderson, Gregg, Hudson, Ratchford, Upshur, Quarterman, Forehand, Valley, all seniors, and Ellis and Patrick, juniors. T. T. Upshur is the captain and leading scorer of the aggregation. Both he and Quarterman went to the national matches held at Camp Perry last fall and acquitted themselves well.

Among the sophomores showing promise are: McRae, Hemphill, Johnson, Briggs, Woodward and Frierson.

Presbyterian College Boasts Of Dean Who Swung Pick In Kentucky Coal Mine

Most colleges can boast of learned professors and victorious athletic teams, but very few can boast of a coal-mining Dean as can P. C.

In the year of 1920 a young college student found himself in need of a few hundred dollars, as college students often do; so he set off to obtain this. In his town there happened to be a man who knew of a job driving trucks full of coal for a mining company in Kentucky. The job appealed to a youth of college age, since all he had to do was to drive a truck, no filling, no unloading; and again, it paid five dollars a day, which isn't very bad money. This youth packs up and heads for the coal country of "Old Kentuck."

Dean Brown arrived at the mines of the Sturns Coal company of southeastern Kentucky to find that a truck company had offered to haul the coal for the company cheaper than the company itself could; so the Dean finds himself at a coal mine with no job. The company will give him a job mining at the tempting price of $3.80 per day. But then the Dean decides that $3.80 is $4.80, so he takes the job.

[illegible] work began on [illegible] he happened to know as the [illegible] These pairs were earned by the conditions under which he had to work. Being a new comer, he was given one of the worst and hardest veins to work.

According to the Dean, there are hardships in mining as in anything else, but not to the extent that most people think. The miner has to load his own cars and, if he is working off the main line, which he usually is, then he must build tracks to the line. One had to work at all angles and with a pick, which is good work no matter what the angle.

While the Dean was waiting to be placed in his working room, an old timer was telling him about the dangers in room 9. The miner said that the room was weak and needed props, and that the whole thing would fall in if it ever started caving. Just as the fellow finished his story, the foreman came back with news that the Dean was to work in room 9. After he had worked for a week or so in the room, it began to fill with water, and since the pumps wouldn't work he was moved to another working place.

Glee Club Down To Intensive Drill

Prepare For Series of Engagements Scheduled For This Month and Next.

Under the direction of Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, the Presbyterian college glee club is bgeinning a period of intensive training in preparation for a series of engagements which are scheduled for the last of February and the first two weeks of March.

This winter schedule is one of the most ambitious that the college singers have attempted in several years. It will include short trips to neighboring cities and a three-day tour in Georgia. Two radio broadcasts are scheduled for the glee club. At present the club is booked to appear in eight cities for programs.

Several dates have not been definitely set, but final plans are rapidly being concluded. The present arrangements call for four appearance during February, the initial program to be presented at Cross Hill. Other recitals will be given before audiences in Simpsonville and Saluda. An evening broadcast is scheduled over the Greenville radio station during the last week of the month.

On March 8, the glee club will leave on a trip into central and southern Georgia. During this tour the college [illegible] will sing on [illegible] nights at Macon, Waycross, and Vidalia. This trip was originally scheduled to take place immediately after the Christmas holidays, but postponement of the Macon appearance necessitated the change in plans. The "songbirds" will be away from Clinton through March 12 and will leave the following day for Charlotte for the final engagement of the season. On that evening the glee club will broadcast its program over station WBT in Charlotte.

At the present time, the glee club is considerably hampered by the absence of A. K. Darby, pianist of the organizatoin, who has been forced to [illegible]

R. O. T. C. Band Will Add Aspect of Roman Holiday To What Is Expected To Be A Riotous Finale.

TOMORROW'S MATCHES WILL DECIDE CHAMPS

A double-header bill, combining fast basketball and a series of great slugging battles, is promised local athletic fans for tomorrow night. The Presbyterian basketeers will take on The Citadel's fast aggregation at 7:30, after which the ropes will be put up for the finals of the annual intramural boxing exhibition.

Intramural boxing, sponsored by the R.O.T.C. unit, already has passed through the preliminary stages, and tomorrow night, therefore, should furnish some great exhibitions of leather pushing talent. Much good material has shown up, especially in the freshman class, a fact which augurs well for the success of next year's varsity team. Coach Johnson, of the regular boxing team, has taken personal charge of this year's intramurals and is trying hard to work up interest in the varsity sport for next year. He is admittedly well pleased with the showing of several of these men and certainly he should have no trouble in putting out a creditable team in 1937.

The intramural tournament will be graced, as usual, by the music of the R.O.T.C. band, led by Paul Harmon, college musical director. This attraction will add interest and color to the occasion.

The roster for tomorrow night's bouts is as follows:

Bantamweight: Bradner vs. Berry.
Featherweight: Roy Hutchinson vs. Hatley.
Lightweight: [illegible] vs. Huntley.
Junior welterweight: Rhodes vs. Coleman.
Senior welterweight: [illegible] vs. Dickey.
Middleweight: Booth vs. [illegible]
Light-heavyweight: [illegible] vs. M[illegible] son.
Heavyweight: [illegible] vs. Hen[illegible] derson.

Track Men Hear McMillian's Call

Varsity and Freshman Aspirants Sign Up For Practice. Bradley Is Captain of Team.

With 22 varsity men and 15 freshmen signed up, practice is expected to begin within the next few days for the 1936 track season. Lawton McMillan, basketball mentor and frosh football coach, also will head the track men. Joe Bradley, star dash man, will captain the varsity as captain.

Out of the varsity athletes now signed up, only eight have never been out before in college. The team will sorely miss the flashy performances of such men as Bill Clark, state record-holder in the 440, and Pete Youngblood, dash and relay man. It is not known whether or not the new men will be good enough to make up for the loss of this pair, but certainly the veterans of last year's aggregation will need some extra support if they are to hope for a championship team.

The list of new men out [illegible] 1936 team is as follows:

Ernest Evans, George [illegible], Jake Majors, Wendell Williams, Hu[illegible] bert Wardlaw, Elrod Macleod, Geo[illegible] Lawrence, and Glenn Brenner.

The Purpose of a College Paper

Before we get any farther along with this job of editing a college paper, we feel that it would be wise to set forth our ideas as to the purpose of an undergraduate paper, for the news content and the editorial comment of any paper are naturally based upon the editor's ideas of what that content and comment should attempt to do.

We believe that a college newspaper is not performing its duty unless it prints ALL the news, whether that news be good or bad advertising for the college and for the student body. The college has its own publication for the dissemination of information advantageous to the institution. The best checks upon conditions that are not advantageous is a student body that is not afraid to say that such conditions are bad and require improvement, and a student publication that is not afraid to back the student body or to lead the way toward such improvements.

The publication of information that is bad advertising for the college is of course temporarily detrimental to the college. But perhaps the publication of such information will eliminate the necessity for future publications of a like nature. Perhaps the knowledge that such items are bad publicity will cause the college to eliminate the sore spots and thus eliminate the advertising.

Naturally, when we use the term "all the news," we use it in a rather restricted sense. The name of a student expelled for cheating is, perhaps, news; but it would not be included in the term as we take it. Publication of such information would serve no good purpose and would tend only to blight the life of the student.

We sincerely hope that THE BLUE STOCKING will always be a good advertisement for the college. We sincerely hope that it will always be the organ of a student body that knows right from wrong and is not afraid to say that it does. But we also fervently hope and pray that THE BLUE STOCKING will never be a paper publishing only news of excellent grades, nourishing, wholesome food, athletic victories, competent instructors, and outstanding, select student body.

For when it began to do that it would cease to be a newspaper. It would cease to be anything other than a circular.

Honor or System?

A week ago Wednesday the student body of Mercer University voted 4 to 1 to abolish the honor system and to turn the control of such matters over to the faculty. After the vote, campus leaders stated that it was not the honor system that had failed but rather the honor of the students.

That something is definitely wrong with the honor system at it exists at P. C., or with the honor of the students, is no longer a disputed question. No longer do we shut our eyes and say that only a minimum amount of cheating exists. No longer do we sit smugly in our seats and believe that any man seeing cheating will report the matter to the council. We hold that, excepting the student council, but not excepting ourselves, that there is not a man in this student body who has seen cheating and reported it, conscientiously, every time that he has seen it.

Yet every man in this student body has pledged himself to do just that.

What are we going to do about it? There are four alternatives. First, we can abolish the honor system, as was done at Mercer, and turn the whole unpleasant mess over to the faculty. Second, we can change the constitution and the system in such a manner that the student council alone will be responsible for cheating and other violations. Third, we can take matters in our own hands and put teeth into student enforcement. And fourth, we can rock along as we have done for years, shutting one eye to all faults, seeing only the good, and continuing the "let somebody else do something about it" attitude.

What the better course of the four might be we would hesitate to say. To turn the matter over to the faculty is to release some of the rights for which sudents have always fought. To turn it over to the council alone is to shift the responsibility, to "pass the buck." To put teeth into the present system is to fight the human nature of students who refuse to report men with whom they say they have nothing to do. To rock along is worst of all.

Which course will we take?

YOU'RE TELLING US—

DEFENDS THE PUN

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

In the absence of President Darby of the Three P Society (Society for the Prevention of Punster Punishment), I feel called upon to issue a counterblast to various odd, sundry and malicious attacks on the noble art of punning.

There is a generation nourished on the SILLY PHRASE, once dropped by Dr. John-son as a crumb from his literary table, that a pun is the lowest form of humor. Consequently, to quote an editor of Letters of Lord Chesterfield (a good boy and an outstanding punster), "The ARS PUNICA remains today damned in theory, RELISHED in reality." This sums up the situation. It speaks ill for the independence and originality of thought and mentality of our writings as the Keyhole Columnist that they should blindly accept the judgment of a rather dull and heavy eighteenth-century lexicographer—who, among his other pedantries, never mastered sufficiently to refrain from the temptation to rattle his cane along every picket fence as he strode stolidly by—nor failed to turn back to catch the pun he chanced to miss a sharp rap.

Attackers of punning figuratively don the wig which the prototype, the ultra-dignified Johnson, is said to have worn while writing, when they condemn the whole progress of punning indiscriminately . . . throwing acrid contumely, antithesis, echo and double-meanings which line the bases of wit.

Some statesman, or author (or somebody) has said (or should have said), "The pun is mightier than the sword." There'll be no more swords after the revolution (Communist style) but puns will still be puns. Not even a Republican supreme court can rule them unconstitutional. Puns "belong to the ages."

—PLATO.

KEYHOLE COLUMNIST SHOULD DIVERSIFY

Editor, The Blue Stocking.

As much as I hate to criticise, I would like to call attention to the fact that the reputations of only a very, VERY small (and I must say, highly select) portion of the student body have been visited with fire and sword by the Keyhole Kolumnist. Can he see no further than the gallery of feminine paichmarks in Roy Forehand's room, the delinquencies of (almost misanthrope) Odell Matthews and misogynist McLees, the purling activities of ex-Parader Stanton? How can he have missed the strange case of, let us say, Peekson, W. B.? There must be peculiar circumstances behind the smile of Shaw, B. G. Or the unusual train of events connected with Absalom Lindsay's goatee? Or . . . and so on, ad infinitum. The Keyhole Kolumnist has been too long in a rut.

He should diversify.

PASS IN REVIEW

By SIMON LEGARE

With all preliminaries out of the way, the finals in R.O.T.C. boxing will be held Wednesday night. All those who attended the bouts held last week were enthusiastic over the spirit of the boxers. Many were lacking in science, but made up for it by showing game hearts and plenty of guts. We wish to extend sincere congratulations to those boxers who refrained from unduly punishing their rivals when their supremacy was clearly shown. Sportsmanship is the paramount issue in all sports at P. C., and a real sportsman will not take advantage of his foe by trying for a knockout when it isn't needed to win. Some of the blood-thirsty ring generals who do all of their fighting from the gallery should try putting on the gloves once. They wouldn't be quite so insistent in their calls for a knockout.

Freshman Moseley was brimming over with Valentine day spirits and made a beautiful Valentine. This Valentine was truly a work of art and it's a pity it didn't reach its destination. The sentiment was touching, too. It went like this: "Won't you be our Valentine? We love our Major. Signed, Guess Who?" Moseley, when asked why he lost his nerve, said the door to the office stayed open and he couldn't slip in. Never try to slip in to the office of the P.M.S. and T., Moseley. Just barge in next Valentine day. You'll probably live to get home, anyway.

The date for the annual spring inspection of the corps has been announced and the inspection will take place on the 22nd of April. This gives us quite some time to round into shape and we need it. Discipline has become very lax, due, probably, to the discontinuation of outdoor drill on account of bad weather. From now on shoes had better be shined, brasses polished and, above all, [illegible] must come out. Our uniforms are excellent for many years and with a little time to do so. We must start preparing for the inspection now. Remember, it takes perfection to pass inspection, and perfection is only obtained through hard work and practice.

Looks as though Benny will have to try something besides his main weapons on ole Haile the Lion. The tanks of the Italian army, hereto as the latest thing in speeds, have proved of comparatively little use against the uneven terrain on which most of the fighting is now being done. The tanks are especially designed to overcome obstacles such as barricades, trenches, and even holes. The whelps of the Lion don't fight trenches and have straw huts, so the tanks are at a loss for something to over-run. When they find a suitable mission, they can't make much headway over ground which consists no end of trouble.

Even the giant bombers of the Italian air corps haven't done all that they were supposed to do. Ethiopians have learned that by moving they are fairly safe from bombs. Besides this, the avenue of death descend any lower than 1,000 feet and less are few at that range. Then, the Ethiopians report a good many lively chickens and a decent air raid. That's pretty cheap meat. One of the heavy bombers costs around $200,000 to [illegible]. It's a good thing for Judd that it doesn't cost as much to raise a chicken here as it does to kill the [illegible] of the Lion.

Cappelmann In Golden Gloves Finals

BLUE HOSE MAN IS IMPRESSIVE IN INITIAL VICTORY

Wins By Technical Knockout In First Round Over Charlotte Boy. Will Meet Dode Patton of Morganton, Today.

IF VICTORIOUS WILL GO TO CLEVELAND

C. M. Cappelmann left this morning for Charlotte and the finals of the Golden Gloves boxing tourney, in which the P. C. pugilist will oppose Dode Patton, of Morganton, N. C., for the light-heavyweight crown.

Cappelmann entered the eliminations last week, and after drawing two byes, met and defeated P. H. Slaughter, of Charlotte, to advance to the finals. In his bout with Slaughter the Blue Hose boxer came through with a first-round technical knockout, after suppressing an early flurry of fighting on the part of his opponent. Observers were enthusiastic in their praise of Cappelmann, and rated him as one of the best performers in the tournament.

In Patton, "Capp" will have a strong opponent and a big obstacle to hurdle in his drive for the crown. The Morganton mauler whipped Millette, of Sumter, to advance to the finals.

If Cappelmann is victorious in his bout with Patton he will become eligible to enter the competition for the Olympic try-outs, which will be held in Cleveland at a later date.

In discussing the tourney, Cappelmann described the average participant as being rough and more aggressive than collegiate boxers, but that the latter were more scientific. He was surprised at the large attendance that the tourney drew. A full house was present at all times, he stated, in a hall seating over eight thousand. As many as forty bouts have been run off a day, and interest steadily mounts as the tournament progresses into the final stage.

Maroons Show Rejuvenated Form

A rejuvenated College of Charleston quintet showed a reversal of form to whip the Hosemen by a 36 to 24 score last Friday evening to hand the latter their third consecutive defeat of the week.

With LaRoche paving the way, the Maroons began their bid for victory shortly after the opening whistle. The tall center took high scoring honors with 12 points, and played a fine game in general. He received able assistance from Ostendorff, whose all-round good performance counted heavily in the Charleston win.

The Blue Stocking, arter defeating their opponents in Charleston recently, were unable to keep pace with the fast-stepping Maroons and spent most of the evening trying to check a point-making offensive. Coach McMillian used only six men during the contest.

Erskine Victorious By Large Margin

The cool, collected and smoothly-functioning Flying Fleet of Erskine college defeated the Blue Stockings by a 26 to 18 score last Tuesday evening to hand the Hosemen their second loss of the week.

McCowan, clever little forward, was the big shot of the visitors' attack. He took high scoring honors with nine points and played a fine floor game. The biggest feature of the game, however, was the airtight defense maintained by the Seceders throughout. Especially outstanding in this phase of the contest was Pansarino, who held his opponent to a lone tally.

The Blue Stocking offense was ragged and the passing erratic. The tendency to speed up play caused innumerable miscues, and loss of possession of the ball. Coach McMillian used the Waldrep brothers as starting forwards, substituting Levi and Wyatt in their places during the second semester. Frank, of the brother pair of a tie.

Holden and Christian got both the outstanding floor game for the Cavinists, ably abetted by Giles Batchelor and Pete Holcombe. Nubey, diminutive G. M. C. forward, played best for the visitors, gathering 12 points and contributing to general welfare of the attack.

YEARLINGS WIN THREE, LOSE ONE

Erskine, Furman and Christ High Teams Fall Before Presbyterian Freshmen.

GEORGIA MILITARY IS WEEK'S ONLY WINNER

P. C. 30, Erskine 24

The P. C. freshmen came through with a well-earned victory over the Erskine frosh on the Leroy Springs court Tuesday night to the tune of 30 to 24.

Presbyterian's undisputed team held a slight edge over the Due West quintet throughout the game, although their margin was threatened several times.

Displaying greater speed and a more varied attack, coupled with a well-nigh impregnable defense, the Hose lads took command of the game in the first half and rolled up 18 points while the Erskine boys were tallying eight.

Les Holden started the scoring with two beautiful field goals. Immediately following this, Kimbo took a pass from Holcombe and dribbled the length of the court to score. After about five minutes of heated play, Cook, Erskine forward, broke for the basket and dropped in a sensational snowbird. But at this point the junior Calvinists began to pull away from the Erskine five by means of deceptive passing and phenomenal speed.

Kimbo was by far the outstanding player for P. C., while Tabb and Brown shared honors for Erskine with eight points each.

P. C. 27, Furman 18

Monday night the P. C. freshmen trimmed the Furman freshmen in Greenville by the score of 27 to 18, maintaining their place at the top of the state conference with an unbeaten record.

Paced by the powerful Giles Batchelor with four field goals, the P. C. freshmen went to the dressing rooms with the score 14-8 at the half. As the second half opened, Holden and Batchelor began hitting the basket again to assure a more comfortable lead. Due to the brilliant guarding of Charley Kimbo, and the neat ball-handling of Lester Holden, the Calvinists were soon sporting a 27-18 lead.

Jenkins, versatile Furman guard, supplied the spark in the Greenville five's attack. The combination of Spegner and Jenkins looked best for Furman, and Batchelor again assumed honors on the court for Presbyterian.

P. C. 42, Christ High 30

Completely outclassed in every department, the Christ high school, of Charleston, fell victim to the P. C. yearlings at the local gym Saturday night in a fast basketball game, 42-30.

Both teams started off fast, showing surprising strength, although the freshmen soon took the lead and held it throughout the game. The visitors fought an up-grade battle, watching with eagerness for an advantage which was never to come. However, the Presbyterian frosh were out to redeem themselves for their defeat at the hands of Georgia Military college the night before.

In the P. C. rat line-up Ben Christian led the scoring with seven field goals and a foul shot for a total of 15 points. Holden, powerful Presbyterian center, was outstanding in the victory, being given credit for nine points and some classy ball-handling.

Bagwell, speedy C. H. S. forward, led the scoring attack for the invaders and was himself a big reason for the good showing his team made.

Georgia Military 42, P. C. 28

The P. C. freshman team lost a thrilling basketball game to the Georgia Military college here Friday night, 42-28. For the first time this season the Presbyterian five was completely outclassed due to their inability to make their passes and shots count.

G. M. C. led 24-14 at the half, having their lead threatened only once, that being in the last quarter when the Baby Hose pulled up within one point of a tie.

Holden and Christian got both the outstanding floor game for the Calvinists, ably abetted by Giles Batchelor and Pete Holcombe. Nubey, diminutive G. M. C. forward, played best for the visitors, gathering 12 points and contributing to general welfare of the attack.

Furman Quint Wins Over Hose, 39 To 24

Furman had little trouble in handing the Hosemen a 39 to 24 licking last Monday evening as the two teams clashed in a return engagement in Greenville. The Hornets established an early lead which they maintained throughout.

Kendrick, who gave such a fine performance on the P. C. court recently, was again high scorer for his team. The Hornet guard made nine points and played a heady floor game. King gave a good account of himself and turned in eight points to his team's total.

Tying Kendrick for high scoring honors was Ralph (Sheriff) Waldrep. The lanky Blue Hose forward sank four field goals and a foul shot and played a spirited and aggressive game. Red Wyatt followed Waldrep in the scoring with six points.

For twenty-five years the research staff of The American Tobacco Company has worked steadily to produce a measurably finer cigarette—namely, a cigarette having a minimum of volatile components, with an improved richness of taste—"A LIGHT SMOKE."

We believe that Lucky Strike Cigarettes embody a number of genuinely basic improvements, and that all these improvements combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Probably the most interesting fight of the evening was that between Keller and Wardlaw, two ministerial brothers. Apparently Wardlaw forgot all his ministerial humility, for he waded right in and with bull-like rushes tried to beat the tall Greenvillian into submission. He was, however, able to connect with only one wild swing, which sent Keller to the floor for a count of three in the final round. Keller's superior generalship gave him the decision, however.

FINAL INTRAMURAL BOUTS ARE SUCCESS

BOARD HOLDS ANNUAL MEET HERE TUESDAY

Chief Business Expected To Be Election of Permanent President and Work On Budget.

MEETING BEGINS 11 A. M. IN COLLEGE LIBRARY

With the election of a permanent president for Presbyterian college one of its chief items of business, the board of trustees of the college will hold its annual meeting tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the reading room of the library.

Reports from Acting President William P. Jacobs and Dean Marshall W. Brown will be heard and the budget for the coming year considered. In addition, routine affairs of the college administration will be taken under consideration by the board.

Recommendations from a nominating committee headed by Rev. S. K. Phillips, of Columbia, will be considered after which the trustees will either name a permanent president or, as was the case last year, provide for an acting president to carry out the administrative duties.

The board of trustees represents the Synod of South Carolina, the Synod of Georgia, and the alumni association. Its members are as follows:

For South Carolina: Dr. W. R. Wallace, Chester; A. J. Thackston, Orangeburg; Rev. G. G. Mayes, Winnsboro; Rev. H. W. DuBose, Spartanburg; H. M. McLaurin, Wedgefield; Rev. T. E. Simpson, Darlington; Dr. E. C. Doyle, Seneca; A. C. Todd, Greenwood; W. J. Bailey, Clinton; John T. Woodside, Greenville; Rev. S. K. Phillips, Columbia; Jack H. Young, Clinton. For Georgia: Rev. E. L. Hill, Athens; Dr. N. P. Pratt, Decatur; Rev. M. M. MacFerrin, Augusta; Rev. J. C. Plexico, Menlo; Rev. R. S. Boyd, Columbus; Rev. S. W. Dendy, Cairo; Rev. T. W. Simpson, Brunswick; H. T. McIntosh, Albany; Rev. J. A. Simpson, Clarkaville; William Murphey, Savannah. For the alumni association: W. P. Jacobs, Clinton; J. M. Wilson, Fayetteville, N. C.; Dr. S. C. Hays, Clinton.

Dates For Ball Still Indefinite

Although March 21 had practically been decided upon by the dance committee as the date for the second annual military ball, it now seems probable that some week-end not yet decided upon will have to be substituted.

The reason for the change in plans is the difficulty of obtaining an orchestra for the Saturday night dance. The dance scheduled originally for Friday evening is sponsored by the R.O.T.C. and is to be the annual military ball. Paul Harmon's "Blue Stockings" are scheduled to play for this dance. The non-military students planned to fill out the week-end by staging a "Home Guard ball" on Saturday night. Since the "Blue Stockings" are playing for a dance in Columbia March 21, there will be difficulty in arranging for music at the Saturday night ball.

Lieutenant-Colonel Potter, who heads the committee in charge of the military ball, has not yet announced what changes will be made. If no satisfactory arrangement can be made regarding an orchestra for the Saturday night dance, either plans for a "Home Guard ball" may be cancelled or the date for the series may be changed.

Several orchestras have been considered for filling the vacant date, but no agreement has been reached as yet. Due to the schedules of the track and baseball teams no alternate date is open before April 25. The committee is meeting the early part of the week to decide the matter.

Students Request Jacobs' Election

Twenty-Three Campus Leaders To Submit Petition To Trustees At Tomorrow's Meet.

A petition signed by 23 campus leaders requesting the election of Acting President William P. Jacobs to the permanent presidency of the college is to be presented to the board of trustees at the annual meeting in the library building in the morning.

The request is signed by the president of the student body, the editors of the three campus publications, presidents of fraternities, president of the Y.M.C.A., and other members of the student body.

A similar petition was submitted last year to the board. Tomorrow, recommendations will be heard from the nominating committee and, after discussion, the trustees are expected to name the president of the institution.

Varsity Debaters Win Three In Week

Winthrop and Both Teams of Textile Institute Fall Before Presbyterian Speakers.

The most promising team of debaters in several years began an interesting season this week with three wins out of three debates, defeating Winthrop, as well as both teams of the Textile Industrial institute of Spartanburg.

The negative team, Hank Wilson and Edgar Stanton, defeated the affirmative team of Winthrop in Rock Hill Monday. Winthrop debaters were Rachel Hay and Frances Holland. The query, proposed by Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, was "Resolved, that the Congress of the United States should have the right, by a two-thirds majority, to set aside any decision of the Supreme Court."

A dual meet was held on Friday with Textile institute, the affirmative team going to Spartanburg and the negative team debating here. Hugh Holman and Lynn Jones successfully upheld the affirmative and Wilson and Stanton duplicated their earlier win.

The college will send two [illegible] to the national convention of Pi Kappa Delta, to be held at Houston, Texas. This convention, the largest of its kind in the country, will last for six days, beginning around the last of March and running over into the first of April.

All of the best debaters and speakers of the country will participate, and an especially large number is expected from the middle West. Any team visiting the convention will have its choice of one of two questions, one dealing with the federal control of cotton production, and the other the Pi Kappa Delta query now being debated.

Debating is not the only phase of speaking that will be considered, but there will be contests in after-dinner speaking, extemporaneous addresses, and other forms of public address.

All of the debaters will go to Winthrop at an early date for the three-day Southeastern convention to be held there.

Illness Postpones Freshman Debate

The freshman debate with Wofford, previously scheduled for tomorrow night, has been postponed, Coach H. M. Wilson has announced. He gave as the reason for the postponement, the recent sickness of part of the team.

With another week of preparation before them the team should be ready to meet Wofford on March 3 and Carolina and Furman at a later date.

They are also making arrangements to have a double debate with the Winthrop freshmen in Rock Hill about the middle of March.

BLUE KEY FRAT IS CONSIDERING TOURNAMENT

Leadership Organization Announces Plans For Intramural Basketball Eliminations.

PROBABLY GET UNDER WAY DURING THE WEEK

Phil Adams, president of Blue Key, leadership fraternity, announced that his organization would again sponsor an intramural basketball program to begin, probably, this week.

The tournament will consist of eliminations among teams put out by the six fraternities and outfits sponsored by the various dormitories. Due to the revival which is to start next week, it has been impossible as yet to fix a definite date for play to begin, but it is hoped that the first brackets may be played off this week and play continued next week, possibly in the afternoon.

Last year's tournament was won by Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity, Alpha Lambda Tau taking second place, and Pi Kappa Alpha, third. With the Pi Kappa Phi's defending the campus basketball championship and the other fraternity and dormitory teams eager to gain the crown, this year's contest should be packed with upsets.

Fraternity presidents and dormitory leaders are asked to turn in to Adams as soon as possible names of competing team members so that a schedule of games may be arranged within the next few days.

Plans Continue For "Y" Revival

Series of Prayer Groups Being Held In Preparation For Services Next Week.

In preparation for the revival services to begin a week from today, under the leadership of Rev. Peter Marshall, of Atlanta, the Y. M. C. A. last week inaugurated a series of prayer groups to be held throughout the campus through the end of this week.

These groups are divided into three parts. First, a short meeting of prayer and meditation is held each morning at 7:10 in Dr. Brimm's classroom, one of the individuals present taking charge. Second, a brief devotional service is held each night in chapel immediately after supper. These services are led by the various social fraternities, one having charge each night. Third, prayer meetings are conducted in all of the dormitories each night at 10 o'clock. These assemblies are short, consisting of a scripture reading and sentence prayers. Members of the "Y" cabinet in charge in the dormitories are as follows: Spencer—first floor, Doug Patton; second floor, Joe Patrick; third floor, Jim Collings. Alumni—Lynn Jones and Colin Hudson. Lauren—Marion Bird Smyth—A section, Cliff Johnson; B section, Ernest Arnold; C section, Buck Patterson.

The third division of the prayer groups will probably be the most beneficial and the most inspiring of the three. Students are already turning out in large numbers to these meetings of prayer and meditation.

PI KAPPA ALPHA FRAT INITIATES NINE MEN

The Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity initiated nine new members Saturday night, February 15. Among these new members was one senior, three juniors, and five freshmen.

The initiates were as follows: Allen Guerard, Raleigh Shoemaker, Jack McAlpine, Joannie Hughes, Harry Shumhart, James Hafley, Dave Carson, Bill McSween, and Bob Upshur.

Other nominations by the staffs were as follows: PaC-SaC, for business manager, Jim Collings; for advertising manager, Ashby Johnson and Malcolm Hemphill. The Collegian, for business manager, Joe Commander; for managing editor, Cliff McLeod.

Elizabeth Blakely Heads Dramatists

At the last meeting the Sock and Buskin elected Elizabeth Blakely president, Robert McLees, vice-president; Robert Black, secretary and treasurer, to head the organization during the coming season.

After the election of officers, McLees submitted a list of old and recent plays for consideration. Following a general discussion the group decided to select a modern play for their March production.

Several members reported on recent plays they had seen and the ones that met with the most approval were "The House Beautiful" and "Lyons Pratts."

There was a large attendance of old members and at the close of the meeting several new ones were added.

CHAMPIONSHIP MATCHES MARK END OF SERIES

Campus Tourney Is Brought To Close As Entrants Flail Opponents For Titles.

SLUGGING IS FEATURE OF NIGHT'S OFFERINGS

Amid a colorful setting, the finals of the intramural boxing tournaments were run off last Tuesday evening and new champions crowned in six divisions. The new champs are Bradner, Clements, Coleman, Lambright, Nettles and Moore.

The evening's festivities were inaugurated with a slow and listless bout between Bradner and Berry for the featherweight title. Neither of the two were able to display their [illegible] efficiency. Bradner piled up points in the second and third rounds and climaxed his campaign with a technical knockout.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

If the student body meetings will ever be changed to some hour when students are not scrambling to get the mail.

If Blue Key will justify its existence this year.

If hot water will ever be available in Spencer dormitory for more than two hours out of a 24-hour day.

Why the walk from the library to Alumni and Spencer has not been made navigable for the larger boats, rather than for the smaller ones now used by students negotiating the passage on rainy days.

If professors' lectures will ever be interesting enough to keep students from sleeping and reading the morning paper in class.

Food For Thought

The second failure of the committee appointed by the president of the student body more than a month ago to attempt to secure meals of a better quality in the dining hall seems now to be clearly evident.

In dealing with a case that has received the written and oral comment that this one has received the situation is an extremely delicate one. Realizing the difficulty, being students, of obtaining the administration's view-point, and with the sincere desire that no feelings will be hurt, we enter the lists of those who have gone before and who have attempted a like revision. Certainly the problem of food is as vital a problem to the student as is anything that concerns his day by day life at college.

That the committee has failed seems certain. Certain concessions were discussed, such as improving the quality of the meat served in Judd Hall, elimination of "meat balls," sausage burned to an indigestible crisp, the serving of milk at each noon meal, and a general improvement in the entire system. At this writing we note no improvement other than in the preparation of eggs for breakfast. Other improvements have been only partial and of short duration. We are fair-minded enough, we hope, to realize that the dining hall is being operated on reduced appropriation due to the financial condition of the college. But a curtailment in the quality of food is probably the worst curtailment that the college could have made in that the health of every member of the studnt body is involved.

Completely out of patience with the existing dining hall situation and practically at the end of the proverbial rope, patronizers of the dining hall see little hope in future attempts by the committee. The college authorities were informed, forgetting the numerous efforts of 1934 and 1935, sometime during the week of January 12 that the students were far from satisfied with conditions. Action was promised. None has resulted.

With this in mind, there seems to be two possibilities in connection with securing better meals: (1) the college administration, realizing the evils of such a curtailment or the prospective results on next year's freshman class, will act to remedy the situation; (2) no change being noted within a reasonable period of several days, a general, concerted action by the student body toward asserting its rights, its desires, and its demands.

That a change is essential toward the happiness, well-being, and health of the students is no view held by a radical minority. Campus leaders agree, almost without exception, that something must be done. Whether or not such action is taken by the college and all undue publicity and feeling kept at a minimum lies within the express and sole power of the college. Should concerted student action become necessary it will do so through the inactivity of the authorities of the institution.

But that a change will be brought about, whether it originates with the college or with the students, there seems to be little doubt.

Would You Fight?

All over the country polls are being conducted to find out whether the college student would fight if this country should ever become involved in another great war. Throughout the colleges and universities of the nation hysterical groups are organizing societies whose platforms rest on the simple statement, "We will not fight, whether the war be aggressive or defensive."

But will they fight? When the bands are playing and the headlines are screaming of war and the president calls for volunteers and the draft—will they fight? We believe that the majority of them will, and that war will never be made obsolete through such methods. Only by teaching the great cost of war, the utter uselessness of war, will it ever be outlawed.

To strike at the root of the trouble the youths of every land must have instilled in their minds the fact that war can never justify its ends and that all men, the world over, are much the same in make-up and in nature. America's youth must come to realize that the average German is more concerned with getting his beer than with taking New York City; that Japanese college boys are more interested in Babe Ruth than in the Philippine Islands. Suspicion is the first step towards war.

Not by signing pledges not to fight will the world avert another war. Education, a better understanding among nations, and a more efficient organization for the arbitration of international disputes — these will be our strongest shields when war clouds arise.

COLLEGIATE REVIEW

"Instructors talk too much, regulate too much and are too suspicious of students."—Dr. L. P. Stieg, president, University of Washington, talks about talking.

"Almost any English-speaking person can get a job in China teaching English."—William E. Daugherty, Ohio State graduate, returns from Tung Chow.

"Hell week." The only solution is elimination." Northwestern's President Walter Dill Scott speaks his mind.

"Student radicals are manufactured by the hysterical regulations of the institutions in which they are enrolled." President Robert Maynard Hutchins of Chicago releases the cold dope.

The Collegiate World

Note on ice on the blizzard area: The date bureau at Drake university in Iowa has closed up shop for lack of applicants.

A strange tale of the consequences of a mistake made in translation of a book on basketball, used at Innsbruck, was brought to the University of Minnesota by a student, Carl Hensel, who has just returned from the University of Vienna.

Hensel said he found the Austrian students playing basketball as they learned it from an American text book. But in translation they thought they were to use an oval ball instead of a round one. So night after night, before cheering throngs, the Austrian college men fought around the wooden floor, stepping over one another while trying to dribble a football. Eventually they came out on the court with a round ball—but whether the translator's mistake had been found or their own ingenuity was responsible, Hensel did not know.

It appears, according to a professor at Kansas State college, that college, after all, does perform a developmental function. This professor maintains that dumb students get more out of attending college than the naturally bright ones. He says he has shown that the gains made by the former are both absolutely and relatively greater.

Along with this we might report a study made by the university examiner at Ohio State university who says that the bright boys and girls of high school finish college still at or near the top of the list.

The P. M. S. and T. desires to thank the freshmen for their cooperation in taking part in the boxing tournament.

Climaxed by seven bouts in which plenty of skill and courage were shown, the R. O. T. C. boxing has at last come to an end. No doubt the freshmen are very glad of this since they furnished the majority of the fights. The bouts were marked by clean fighting and good sportsmanship, and Coach Johnson should be able to find much usable material for his team next year.

With boxing out of the way, the big shots, namely, the lieutenant-colonel and his assistants, are concentrating on the long-awaited military ball. The date has been definitely set for the 20th of March. Besides the ball, the corps will give a tea dance Saturday afternoon. Plans are being laid to make the grand march even prettier than was last year's. Lieutenant-Colonel Richard Potter will lead the march with his usual dignity and grace. The home guard has, as yet, made no announcement as to their ball Saturday night.

As an added feature, the entire corps will take part in a dress parade to be held on the night of the ball, probably on Johnson field beneath the lights if the weather is good. Color and charm will be added in the persons of the various sponsors for the officers. They will take part in the ceremonies.

Well, the first shot is over, one down and two to go. It wasn't so bad, but just wait. Lord help the careless freshman who bumps the sore arm of any junior tomorrow. Moral is: stay away from juniors for the next two weeks because they're apt to be easily riled.

GAMECOCKS CROW IN ONE-POINT VICTORY

Carolina Five Wins From Hose In Final Minute of Game.

An inspired stab for vcitory on the part of a determined group of Blue Stockings fell short by the narrowest margin as the Hosemen dropped a 33 to 32 decision to Carolina on Thursday evening.

"Lefty" Levi went on a scoring spree that netted 19 points and high scoring honors for the evening.

The Gamecocks had a 5-point lead at the half, but this was overcome by a strong rally as the second half opened. The loss of the Waldrep brothers and Adams through the personal foul route weakened the Hosemen in the closing minutes of the fray, but even then they held their own with the University quint.

Johnson and James led the Carolina playing but it was Levi who captured the lion's share of honors.

The efficient refereeing of "Abe" Fennell, of Columbia, was probably the best performance on the P. C. court this season.

Levi and Holden Lead Quint Scoring

Scintillating Alan Levi of Charlotte, with the final game of the season scheduled for tonight, continues to lead the Hose basketball scoring, having amassed 149 points to out-distance his nearest rival, Roy Forehand, who has tallied 96 chalkers.

Les Holden's mark of 101 leads freshman scoring, while Giles Batchelor runs a close second with 84 points.

Complete scoring records for the season are as follows:

Baseball Nine To Be Best In Years

With Improved Weather, Team Begins To Take Form.

Checked by snow and continued cold weather, candidates for the 1936 baseball nine have been forced to do their cavorting about in the gymnasium for the past week. Coach Chick Galloway has held daily meetings at 4 o'clock, in which he has schooled his men in various phases of the game and issued plans for the season.

Although the squad has undergone no team practice as yet, a definite nine is already shaping itself in the minds of those connected with the sport. Among the hurlers available, "Chick" will select Holliday, Suggs, and probably Anderson and Commander for the major share of mound duty. In Holliday and Suggs, the Hose machine can boast of two of the most reliable pitchers in the state. The sophomore material is strong also, it is reported.

Marion Bird and Forehand will offer for the catching job with the result a toss-up. At first base will be sophomore "Cab" Blackwell, in all probability. Horne and Higbe are a cinch to retain their positions at second and short, respectively, and the "hot corner" will be cared for by either Red Wyatt or Hick Harvin.

Ernest (Hawk) Evans will hold down one of the outfield positions, and Suggs will patrol another when he isn't on the mound. Wallace Coe will probably get the other call. Coe played well last season as a sophomore and should be better this year. "Soupy" Millsap may offer for the infield. His hard hitting of last season made him a valuable man. Other candidates, mostly untried, are Power, Al McSween, Cox and Cavin.

Galloway has prospects for a fast-stepping aggregation, and if things break right the talented coach will give P. C. one of its best teams in a decade.

Varsity, Frosh Close With Reds

Presbyterian's varsity and freshman basketball aggregations ring down their curtains on the 1935-36 season tonight, meeting the Newberry Indians in Leroy Springs gymnasium at 7 o'clock.

Newberry's varsity is at the bottom of the state loop and will be out for its first win of the year as a final stroke of the season. P. C. will be attempting by a last-minute rally to improve its own cellar standing of two victories and 12 defeats.

The Blue Sox, freshman outfit, has been undefeated in the state this season. Newberry's first-year outfit will present the last threat toward maintaining a clean slate.

No Swimming Team

Although it was definitely announced last week by the athletic department that a swimming team would be sponsored by the college, it has been found necessary to cancel plans for a tank outfit.

A shortage of material because of a lack of interest among the student body seems at present to be the chief reason for the change in plans.

Cadet Quintet Captures Hosemen

In a contest sometimes ragged, occasionally rough but consistently interesting, The Citadel's cagers from Charleston took the Hosemen into camp by a 27 to 24 score.

The Citadel quint was decidedly off-color during the first half and played a slip-shod brand of basketball. Coming back for the final fling, they appeared steadier and calmer against the hard-fighting Calvinists. With McNeil and McGee handling the ball, and Morah circling around, the Bulldogs maintained a slim lead. The last three or four minutes of play were packed with intensity as the two teams battled on even terms with only two or three points variance in scores.

There were no outstanding performers on either side. Levi's long shots, which came dangerously close to tallying, caused consternation in The Citadel ranks, and Morrah's elusiveness kept the Hosemen on constant guard. P. C. was playing without the services of Coach McMillian and the Bulldogs were performing before their new mentor, A. W. "Rock" Norman.

"King Kong" Cappelmann Gets Long Count After Good Start.

C. M. Cappelmann was eliminated in his quest for Golden Gloves fistic honors last Monday evening when he received a first-round knockout at the hands of Dode Patton in the finals of the Southern division of the tourney at Charlotte. Cappelmann entered the ring the favorite, after having knocked out P. H. Slaughter in the semi-finals.

Coming out of his corner with a determined, two-fisted attack, "Cap" drove his opponent to the canvas twice. Sensing quick victory, he carelessly dropped his guard in favor of a knockout pose. Patton, evidently not as subdued as he appeared, surprised the great crowd of spectators by delivering a blow that felled "Cap" for a count of ten.

Cappelmann, had he won, would have entered the Olympic try-outs at Cleveland later. His unexpected defeat, however, terminated these plans.

Y. M. C. A. Hears Delegates Report

At the regular weekly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night, students enjoyed reports of delegates to the Indianapolis convention and the Student Mission conference.

Ernest Arnold gave an interesting report on the Student Volunteer convention which he attended during the Christmas holidays in Indianapolis. Other reports were given by George McInnis and Hilbert Wardlaw on the Student Mass on conference held in Greenville on February 7, 8, 9. The object of these reports was to give to the students an idea of the work that is being carried on among students throughout the state and nation.

On Thursday night the Y.M.C.A. will present Dr. Charles Haddon Nabers, of Greenville, who will give an illustrated lecture on his tour of Europe. Dr. Nabers is an interesting speaker and it is felt that students will derive a great deal of benefit from his lecture.

On Sunday, March 1, a deputation team from Winthrop college Y.W.C.A. under the leadership of Miss Frances Putnam, will present a program at the First Presbyterian church. The young people's societies of the various churches will join with the college students in the program.

Methodist Group Attends Meeting

Presbyterian college student delegates returned yesterday from Greenville where they attended a state-wide conference of Methodist college students held at the Buncombe Street Methodist church Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Registration took place Friday afternoon and was followed by a supper at 6 p. m. The program for the three-day meeting consisted of group discussions on religious problems, social programs, addresses, and business meetings. Leaders and speakers included outstanding Methodist workers from all parts of the state.

The P. C. delegation reports an inspirational and enjoyable session.

Board of Trustees Elects Jacobs President

NEW PRESIDENT ANNOUNCES PLANS

ACTING PRESIDENT OF COLLEGE CHOSEN PRESIDENT LAST WEEK

New Permanent Head of Institution Is Grandson of Founder and Son of Former Professor.

IS WELL-KNOWN IN FIELD OF BUSINESS

At the annual meeting of the board of trustees on Tuesday, William P. Jacobs was elected president of the college. For the past eight months Mr. Jacobs served as acting-president of the institution.

Previous to the meeting much pressure was brought to bear on the board, urging the election of Mr. Jacobs. When first approached, he was reluctant to accept, but after receiving many letters, not only from the student body, alumni, and local friends, but from friends throughout the two controlling synods, he felt moved to accept. In accepting the presidency, Mr. Jacobs stated that he considered the action of the board one involving serious responsibility and a mandate from the Presbyterians of South Carolina and Georgia to build Presbyterian college into an outstanding educational institution, occupying a unique position in the educational field. He promised the adoption of a progressive program working toward the perpetuation of the Presbyterian college spirit, the expansion of the scope and influence of the college, as well as its physical equipment.

Mr. Jacobs' report to the board indicated that the college has operated at a profit for the past eight months and that its financial problems are being steadily solved.

Reports show that during the past year the student body has shown an increase of 16.7 per cent over last session, out-of-state students having increased 48.6 per cent, of which 33.9 per cent were from Georgia.

Mr. Jacobs is the son of the late James Ferdinand Jacobs, graduate of and former professor at Presbyterian college, and the grandson of the founder of the college, the late William Plumer Jacobs, D.D., LL.D. A graduate of the class of 1914, Mr. Jacobs took a prominent part in all school activities, being instrumental in introducing football and basketball into the institution. He is well known in athletic circles as the donor of the Jacobs interference trophies in football.

Besides being president of Jacobs & Company, advertising agency, he acts as secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of South Carolina, secretary-treasurer of the Print Cloth group of cotton manufacturers, and executive vice-president of the Institute of Medicine Manufacturers. His acceptance of the presidency of the college does not affect his connections with these activities, he announced.

William P. Jacobs, grandson of the founder of P. C., and last week named permanent president of the college by action of the board of trustees.

P. C. Students Take West Point Exams

Four P. C. students, three juniors and one senior, left this afternoon for Fort McPherson, near Atlanta, to stand various types of examinations for entrance to the United States Military academy at West Point.

Those leaving this morning were Dill Ellis, who has received the McSwain appointment from this district and who will take his final physical examination, all others having been successfully passed; Julien Freeman, first alternate for the McSwain appointment; and Allen McSween and Edgar Stanton, who are working on congressional district appointments. The first three are juniors, while Stanton is a senior.

DATES SET FOR MILITARY BALL

March 27 and 28 Is Latest Announcement From R.O.T.C. Group. Harmon To Play.

Cadet Lt. Col. R. R. Potter has announced that the week-end of March 27-28 has been selected for the staging of the military and home-guard balls.

The dances were originally planned for the previous week but the difficulty of signing an orchestra for the Saturday night affair necessitated the change in plans. George Oliver, who heads the committee sponsoring the home-guard ball, found that Paul Harmon's Blue Stockings, who were signed to play for the military affair, had an out-of-town engagement on March 21. Since no satisfactory arrangement could be made for a substitute orchestra, it became necessary to change the date of the dances.

Conflicts with the schedules of the college track and baseball teams have made it difficult to choose a suitable date for the dances. The week-end of March 21 was selected since neither team will be away from the campus at that time. There is, however, a varsity track meet with the University of Georgia scheduled to be run in Clinton Saturday.

Arrangements have been made for the Blue Stockings to play for both dances. Definite announcement has been made that the military ball will be given Friday evening, March 27. The home-guard affair is planned for the following night. Final arrangements for the dances are in the hands of committees selected from the senior class of the R.O.T.C. and the non-military students.

Frosh Debaters To Open Schedule

Tomorrow night the freshman negative debaters will travel to Spartanburg to meet the Wofford frosh.

Bradner and Dyes, the negative team members, have spent several weeks of intensive preparation under the competent eyes of their coach, H. M. Wilson; and according to him they have shown unusual ability, which indicates stiff competition to their Methodist institution opponents.

Directly after their return they will resume work in preparation for their next debate which will very probably be with the Winthrop freshmen.

MARSHALL TO OPEN SERVICES AT 7:30 TONIGHT

Evening Meetings To Be Held At First Church; Mornings In College Chapel.

ATLANTA MINISTER TO LEAD ANNUAL SERIES

All pre-service preparations having been completed, the annual spring revival services for the students of Presbyterian college, under the direction of Rev. Peter Marshall, will begin tonight at the First Presbyterian church at 7:30.

Mr. Marshall is to arrive on the campus this afternoon and will inaugurate his series of services tonight at the First church by speaking on the subject, "Youth Asks, 'So What?'" Mr. Marshall is pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Atlanta. Although still a young man, he is endowed with a brilliant mind and an influential personality. The auditorium of his church is continually packed with listeners eager to hear his sermons. He is a great favorite in Atlanta, particularly among the young people, a large number of whom are always present in his congregation.

Beginning tonight and ending Friday, Mr. Marshall will deliver two talks each day. In the mornings, he will speak in the college chapel at 11:45 a special chapel hour. The evening addresses will be given at 7:30 at the First church, to which services the public has been invited.

The Y.M.C.A. has devoted a great amount of work in preparing for these meetings. Groups of prayer have been conducted on the campus during the past week in order to help students prepare themselves for the services of Mr. Marshall. At 7:10 a. m., at 6:30 and 10:00 p. m. each day, students have been engaged in prayer and meditation somewhere on the campus.

The spring services promise to be the best in several years. It would be exceedingly difficult to uncover a better man than Mr. Marshall to lead these meetings. Y.M.C.A. leaders stated today that they have high hopes of a large attendance at all services.

HISTORY OF P. C. PRESIDENTS IS MARKED BY FINE SERVICE

The election by the board of trustees last week of William P. Jacobs to the permanent presidency of the college arouses thoughts of the presidents who have gone before. The history of P. C. is definitely bound to the history of its presidents.

In the year 1854 a young minister came to Clinton, S. C., a town of no more than 400 people. Through his faith, energy, and influence, a strong Presbyterian church was built, the orphanage which perpetuates his memory was founded, and the Presbyterian College of South Carolina was begun. That man was Rev. William Plumer Jacobs, D.D., LL.D., grandfather of the man who was last week elected president of the college.

The Clinton academy was given by its owners to be used to form the Presbyterian college, and Professor W. S. Lee, a teacher at that institute, was made the first president. Professor Lee continued to serve the college until 1889. Rev. R. P. Smith was president in 1887. Succeeding him was Prof. John W. Kennedy, who served until his death in 1899. It was during this year that the name was changed from Clinton college to Presbyterian College of South Carolina.

These next fifteen years were years of difficulty, and those who stood by the college deserve the appreciation of the college and the church. In the first three years of this difficulty J. L. Cleland was president, and following him, serving until the year 1897, was Rev. E. C. Murray. In 1897 Professor A. E. Spencer, known and honored as a devoted Presbyterian elder throughout the Southern Presbyterian church, became president, which office he held until 1904. Three times Dr. Spencer has served as president of P. C. and taught Greek and French and other subjects in the college for 39 years.

Dr. W. G. Neville became president in the year 1904 and served until his sudden death in 1907. Dr. Neville proved himself a man of great ability. He set about to raise funds which were at the time much needed, and through his ability and perseverance the money sufficient to build the Administration building, Laurens hall, and Judd dining hall, along with a president's home and several teachers' residences, was secured.

After Dr. Neville's death, Dr. Robert Adams was called to the presidency from his church in Laurens and served until 1910. The next president, Dr. D. M. Douglas, came to the college from Maryland Avenue Presbyterian church, Baltimore. It was through his sanity, honesty and foresight that the confidence of the general public of South Carolina, as well as of the Presbyterians, was gained. During Dr. Douglas' administration Spencer hall, W. P. Jacobs Science hall and library, a central heating

LOOKS TO FUTURE WITH CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM

William P. Jacobs, named president of Presbyterian college by action of the board of trustees last week, announced shortly after his election definite plans for the improvement of the college and today elaborated on his earlier statement.

As a preliminary move before attempting any extensive changes, Mr. Jacobs will sponsor a contest in which every student of the college has been asked to contribute suggestions for bettering the facilities and conditions of the college.

In an interview with a representative of The Blue Stocking, the new president of the college stated that while he will wait for student suggestions, he hopes to prepare the way for certain definite steps leading toward improvement. Present plans are that the offices of the president will be moved from their location in the administration building and the space thus available made into reception and Y. M. C. A. rooms to meet the needs of non-fraternity men for a lounging room. The president's offices, however, would not be moved from the campus.

Definite plans are already underway, as a first attempt to extend the scope and degree of the college, for the installation of a thorough commercial course in the curriculum for next year. That such a course will make a decided improvement in the educational advantages of the college members of the administration seem assured.

Nominees To Be Chosen Tuesday

Nominations for various student body offices will be made tomorrow morning in regular chapel session.

Student nominees will be named for president of the student body, secretary and junior councilmen, sophomore councilmen, and president of the Y. M. C. A. The man defeated for president of the student body automatically becomes vice-president of the organization.

Council recommendations for the officers of the student body are presented and the floor is then opened to other nominations. In addition to the president and vice-president of the student body, one senior councilman, three junior councilmen, one of whom will act as secretary, and two sophomore councilmen will be elected from the list of nominees.

Campbell Automatically Chosen Editor of The Collegian. Elections Come March 10.

The board of control for student publications, meeting Thursday afternoon, nominated five men for editor of The PaC-SaC and automatically elected Stuart Campbell editor of The Collegian in the first session of the board created by student constitution amendment several weeks ago.

In addition to the editors-in-chief for the two publications, the board also made nominations for business manager and advertising manager of The PaC-SaC and for managing editor and business manager of The Colle-

Debaters Continue Victory Streak

Affirmative and Negative Defeat Erskine To Continue Undefeated Record.

The Presbyterian college debaters closed their series of five debates for the season with a dance victory over Erskine Wednesday night.

Hank Wilson and Edgar Stanton, supporting the negative side of the query, "Resolved, that the Congress of the United States should have the right, by a two-thirds majority, to overrule any decision of the Supreme Court," won at home, and Hugh Harman and Red Potter journeyed to defend the affirmative side of the same query at Erskine.

These two wins bring the total number of victories to five, and of five debates entered Wilson and Stanton have a very impressive record, not having lost a single debate in the two years they have been teamed together, and Wilson has the distinction of never having lost a debate since he entered college.

Six men will go to Winthrop this week to participate in the South Atlantic Forensic tournament being held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Schools from Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina will be represented at this meet. Each delegation will debate six times during the tournament.

A debate is being arranged with Converse college, and this will probably be the last encounter for the team in the state before leaving for the Pi Kappa Delta convention in Houston, Texas, in the latter part of March.

Looking Forward

The election by the Board of Trustees of Acting President William P. Jacobs to the permanent presidency of the college and the announcement by Mr. Jacobs of his far-raching plans for P. C. paint with bright colors the future of the institution. By his very earnestness and sincerity of purpose Presbyterian's new president has proclaimed that the day of slumbering is over, that the day of stagnation is no more, and that progressive, constructive work is the order of the day.

Behind us we see a work well done, by a small denominational school, hampered by lack of funds and meagre equipment; before us we see a consolidated, unified college whose watchword shall be PROGRESS. No longer do we mark time — from this point on the only marching order that we shall heed is the command to move forward.

The new president brings with him the years of business experience gleaned from participation in fields of endeavor as diversified as president of an advertising agency, executive vice-president of the Institute of Medicine Manufacturers and secretary of a state textile association. To equal his business ability, Mr. Jacobs brings a pleasing personality that has won the entire student body to his cause and to that of the college.

The combination of business astuteness and personal magnetism are, we believe, the probes that will be necessary to raise P. C. from any rut that it may have fallen into and to push it forward, toward its rightful place in South Carolina education. That Mr. Jacobs possesses both attributes there seems little doubt.

Plans for new buildings, for more extensive courses, and for better equipment seem to assure a future that for a time has been somewhat dark. United cooperation from the student body, already evidenced by the requests submitted to the Board of Trustees for Mr. Jacobs' election, will be absolutely necessary for the successful completion of the program outlined.

As one step toward that unity, THE BLUE STOCKING offers unreservedly its cooperation and its support of all plans and policies for the further development of the college. Where we feel that criticism is deserved, we shall not hesitate to criticise; but such criticism will always be constructive. We hope that always it will be received with that in mind.

Today we look to a tomorrow bright with hope. Today we look to a future of service and of progress.

Hats In the Ring

Party lines are going up and fraternity instructions are rapidly going out for next week's student body elections. The Delta's are already agreeing to support the Chi nominee if the Chi's will support the Delta man. And thus will it always be.

Next Tuesday the student body will select student government officers, editors and assistants of two publications, and officers of the Y.M.C.A. Whatever the quality of those selected the work will continue to be done. If the student body head selected is spineless, student governmnt will continue to exist — of a kind. No matter who heads the publications and the Y. M. C. A., their work will be done next year. Probably it will be less thorough, certainly it will be less efficient; but it will still be done.

The quality of the student government, of the publications, and of the "Y," however, depends to an enormous extent upon the abilities of the men elected to fill the various offices. Whether or not P. C. is to be blessed with efficient government and creditable publications will depend upon the actions of the 300 or more students who will vote Tuesday.

The careful consideration of the qualities of every candidate by each voter, regardless of fraternity and dormitory affiliations, is essential toward the selection of competent men. The individual selection by each student voting, regardless of previous instructions, is essential toward the building of opinions unaffected by affiliations.

When you vote Tuesday, take a chance that the man whom you think best measures up to the qualifications is the man for the office. Forget that the Delta's are supporting the Chi's. Forget that party lines have gone up and fraternity instructions have gone out. Remember only that your character and the success of this college depend to some extent upon whether you control your vote or whether somebody else does. Then drop your ticket in the slot and say that you defied affiliations and stood by your own opinions. After you have done it once or twice, perhaps you will understand what we mean by character-building.

Christian Education

In connection with the election of Mr. William P. Jacobs to the presidency of P. C., there has been called to our attention the attitude taken by people throughout the state upon this matter of Christian education. The denominational school has definitely established for itself a place among the educational leaders of the country. Its continued position there will depend upon its support by church people throughout the nation.

The weekly bulletin of the First Presbyterian Church of Spartanburg, whose pastor, Rev. H. W. DuBose, is a member of the Board of Trustees of this college, expresses ably the church's view on Christian education. The following is taken from the bulletin of February 23, on which day Mr. Jacobs addressed the congregation:

What people think, and do, and are, depends very largely upon their leaders. It is from their leaders that men get the ideas that mold their aims and standards. Without wise leaders no nation can be great.

The Bible is a story of leaders who impressed their fellowmen for good or ill. So is all history. God works through men and women who are able to lead others in ways of truth and righteousness.

The church has no more important duty than that of preparing young men and women for Christian leadership. Without Christian leaders the human race would speedily relapse into paganism.

Our leaders come out of our colleges. Their ideals and convictions are largely determined there. If the atmosphere of the campus be skeptical faith is stifled. If it be neutral or religiously indifferent, it will not develop leaders of spiritual vision and moral earnestness.

The Christian college is the church's indispensable contribution to the educational process. It imparts knowledge in an atmosphere of faith. It teaches science in a spirit of reverence. It examines the theories of men in the light of God's revealed will. It tests human philosophies by the life and teachings of Christ. It trains Christian leaders. Its sons and daughters carry its influence into the university, the public school, the home, the pulpit, and every phase of the nation's life. If America is to be Christian, the Christian college must be maintained.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

One thing about being editor of a paper in a very old college—you can always fill up space with stories out of the past if you have to.

The editors of The Princetonian have been poring over a few old ledgers these days and coming up with some very interesting sidelights about their college in olden days.

They tell how hockey first put in an appearance at the college in 1787. The faculty was immediately alarmed over the sport. A statement was issued, saying "It appearing that a play . . . much practiced by smaller boys . . . with balls and sticks . . . is in itself low, and unbecoming gentleman students." Furthermore, said the faculty, "the sudden and alternate heats and colds" attending this sport were very dangerous.

Sports were not professionalized, not at all. They played "Prison base" in those days and in 1786 Richard Mosby became the college jump champion, "going 11 feet at a hop for 16 hops altogether."

Two excellent pieces of journalism got into the college press recently. One was an interview by Samuel Mintz, University of Wisconsin, with the late Huey Long and the other was an accidental interview with a boy just off a chain gang, by a reporter for the Princeton paper.

Mintz's story gave an idea of Long's tremendously fascinating, frantic, overflowing energy.

Excerpt:

A door flew open, Huey's head popped out. A "come on in, boy!" went rumbling down the hall.

"I'm a college student." I got no further.

"I know all about colleges. I ran one."

"What do you think should be taught in college?"

"Arithmetic. That's all. Plain and simple arithmetic. You've got to show the boys that there's something wrong in nine hundred and ninety-nine hawgs being fed on one portion of hawg feed and one haw being nine hundred and ninety-nine of hawg feed.

"What you've got to do, read." He jumped out of his almost overturning his desk bowed a very pretty secretary the way. "I'll give you some erature. Ever hear about the the Wealth idea?"

Suddenly he left me. He ra an adjoining room. I turned "Where are you going?" Mr was back. "Did you say you college student? Well, listen Don't you grow into a college sor and become a brain-trust you hear?"

The Princeton interview illustrated that slave-driving still in the chain gang. "All a guard could do was even look cockeyed and he'd get the lash," interviewee. "If you've ever lash with pieces of iron on come down on your back you how it feels."

Shackles, he said, were on his legs and the rivets were an iron hammer.

JACOBS MAKES STATEMENT TO P. C. STUDENTS

New President Issues Personal Message To Student Body. Seeks Cooperation.

President William P. Jacobs, elected last week by the board of trustees, today issued the following statement to the student body of Presbyterian college:

Please accept an expression of my deep appreciation of the many complimentary communications which you directed to the board of trustees. Your expressions had much to do with my decision for it would be next to impossible to overlook such sincere appeals.

I am glad to be working with you in the development of this potentially great institution. I pledge you my deep interest and confidence in the future of Presbyterian college.

This is more, however, than a one-man job. I am only selected as your leader. Many of the responsibilities of this position you can discharge better than I can. If we succeed, and we will, we will triumph because of the effectiveness of our joint efforts.

While I have tentatively in mind a number of steps which should be undertaken now or in the future, it would be unsound as well as inconsiderate for me to announce a definite program before I have heard from you, the other half of this new partnership. Who can better state the shortcomings of the college than the students themselves and who can better point to the remedial steps indicated for the future?

I have asked for your advice, and explained that it can be as critical as you wish. I meant just what I said, but I might explain that criticism will not be of much value to me unless accompanied by definite suggestions for rectification. What I most wish and need is the submission of as many practical suggestions for Presbyterian college as possible.

Assume for the sake of argument that the college will secure ample funds to carry your own ideas into execution. Tell me how you would build P. C. to its rightful position of leadership in the field of Christian education.

On account of my many responsibilities you may receive the idea that I have no time to confer with you. That is not true. I will take time to discuss the problems of the college and your own personal problems at any time.

I have a deep interest in the students of P. C., individually and collectively, and will count it a privilege to have the opportunity of advising you.

There will be occasions on which I will need the full cooperation of our students and I am confident that it will be forthcoming.

As soon as our contest is over and I have had time to study all of your suggestions I will announce the winners and simultaneously will announce our program for the Presbyterian college of the future.

—WILLIAM P. JACOBS.

Students' Parents Are Among Alumni

Number Found To Have Relatives Who Attended College Here In Former Years.

The recent census taken by the college librarian, Willard L. Jones, shows that some students now at Presbyterian college had a mother, father, brother, sister or grandfather who also attended P. C.

The census, although it has not yet been completed, already reveals quite a few interesting facts about those alumni whose brothers, sons, or grandsons now attend their alma mater.

The report shows that there is one student whose grandfather attended P. C., four whose fathers finished here, three who had mothers to graduate here, two who had sisters, and twenty-seven whose brothers graduated here.

The alumni represented in this group include a son of the founder of Presbyterian college, the present president of the institution, a medical missionary to the Belgian Congo, professors, doctors, aviators and ministers.

Thus we find in this group of 37 graduates of P. C., who now have members of their families in the college, men and women in nearly every walk of life. This is a record of which the college may well be proud.

Sorority To Hold Leap Year Dances

Announcement has been made by Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, of a girl-break, or leap year, dance to be held in Copeland hall on Friday, March 13, from 9 till 2.

Previous plans had called for the dance to be held in a different locality, but officers of the sorority deemed the change necessary. Music for the occasion will be furnished by Paul Harmon and his Collegians.

All male aspirants to no-break honors for the co-ed social function are advised to ignore members of the sorority during the next ten days.

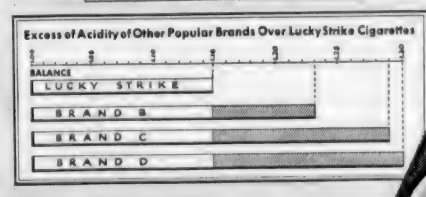
'Y' Picks Nominees For Early Elections

Program Featured By Illustrated Lecture On Holy Land By Greenville Minister.

Presenting Dr. Charles H. Nabers in an illustrated lecture, the Presbyterian college Y.M.C.A. Thursday held its usual weekly meeting and followed its program with a cabinet session in which Chester Keller was nominated for president of the organization, Frank Johnston for vice-president, and M. C. Patterson for secretary-treasurer.

In taking his audience on a trip through the Holy Land by means of his lecture and slides, Dr. Nabers, who is pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Greenville, began by showing scenes of his arrival at Palestine. Journeying from the coast eastward to Nazareth, he took several views of the people and other things interesting to the traveler. From here Dr. Nabers journeyed eastward, taking several shots of the people, their methods of farming, methods of living, etc. At the Sea of Gallilee, after arriving at Tiberias, he took some interesting views of the sea which, as he says, is the only thing reminiscent of the days of Christ that has not been altered by men. From Tiberias, Dr. Nabers went southward to Shechem and from ahence to Jerusalem.

After showing several views of the city of Palestine, among them the gate of Joppa and the church of the Holy Sepulchre, the lecturer next showed pictures of Jericho and the Dead Sea. Traveling southward, he came to Hebron which received him and his family less cordially than any of the other places in Palestine because the majority of the population are Mohammedans. Returning northward he came to Bethlehem, then to Jerusalem.



Shortly after the regular "Y" meeting a short cabinet meeting was held. At this time the cabinet selected its nominations for Y.M.C.A. officers for next year. Chester Keller was nominated for president, Frank Johnston received the nomination for vice-president, and M. C. "Buck" Patterson was nominated for secretary-treasurer. These nominations, together with student body nominations, will be voted on a week from tomorrow.

STANDARDIZED UNIFORMITY

The simple mechanical details of cigarette manufacture are of surprising importance. Upon them depend the physical properties of the cigarette, such as weight, size, firmness, moisture-holding properties, uniformity of fill—uniformity of product—all of which have a far-reaching effect on the character of its combustion and the constituents of its smoke.

In the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes all of these properties have been standardized with care for the perfection of A LIGHT SMOKE.

LUCKIES ARE LESS ACID!

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

Indian's Scalp Hose In Season's Finale

Newberry Five Rings Down Curtain For P. C. Basketeers.

At the expense of a faltering Blue Stocking five, Newberry's Indians broke an extended losing streak with a 36 to 30 win in the former's last court appearance of the season.

The Lutheran team had a seven-point lead after a bitterly-fought first half. This margin fluctuated very little during the closing semester, despite a frantic stab for victory by the Presbyterians.

Hewey and Beck were the big guns in the Newberry performance and amassed totals of 13 and 12 points, respectively. The defensive stand of the team as a whole was creditable, and sufficient to hold the P. C. sharpshooters in check. Ralph Waldrep broke away to go on a scoring spree that netted the elongated forward a 12-point total. The scoring of the other Blue Hosemen was mediocre.

In a surprise reversal, the Newberry freshmen scored a 41 to 30 victory over the Sox quint.

The varsity contest ended the collegiate careers of six Hosemen, only Ralph Waldrep of the starting five being eligible for further service.

Sixteen Men Get Sweaters, Letters

Sixteen sweaters bearing the block "P" emblem were awarded members of the varsity football team this morning in chapel session, while 20 freshmen were awarded numerals for meritorious service on the first year squad.

The varsity sweaters are of the crew-neck type, dark blue in color. The "P" is garnet, thus carrying out the colors of the school.

The following varsity players were awarded sweaters: Cox, McSween, Beeman, Boland, Hutchison, Weldon, Bird, Bradley, Thompson, Prather, Hipp, Jacobs, Degner, Waldrep, R. Players who had received block letters last year or the previous year were not awarded them this morning.

Trackmen Work On Cinder Oval

Balmy breezes and a bright sun served as an incentive for a wholesale debut of candidates to the cinder path during the past week. Practically the entire track squad has experienced at least one workout and a daily routine should be the order from now on.

Coach McMillian is utilizing practically all his time in conditioning the squad at present, but he pauses long enough to summarize the Hose prospects as "average." The loss of Prather definitely cut down the team's scoring power. The mammoth weightman had been counted on to consistently contribute 10 or more points to the P. C. total.

Bradley and Thompson will capably perform in the dashes. The latter has decided to compete in the 100, 220 and 440-yard events, probably withdrawing from the hurdles. Bradley, captain and veteran speed artist, will run the 100 and 220. Forehand is the best bet for the 880 and Adams for the mile. Hudson, working under the handicap of an injured leg, may be able to run into the two-mile. The injury, which occurred last year, kept him inactive for a large part of the season. Supporting him in this event will be Pierce Charles Jetterman and veteran.

Walt Williams, who performed well in the weights last season, will again enter this event. Working with him are Rex Wilbanks and Mason Hipp.

Of the sophomores, Power, Commander, Joe Hollis, Hemphill, Frewern, Beeman and others should bolster up the ranks depleted by the loss of last year's seniors.

The freshmen also have begun training. It is reported that several scintillating performers are in the ranks. It will be some time before Coach McMillian can get a definite line on his first-year talents, however.

FIRST BRACKET COURT TILTS BE ON SATURDAY

Pi Kappa Phi, Defending Champions, Scheduled To Open Play Against Spencer Dorm.

Through its president, Phil Adams, Blue Key has announced pairings and schedule of play of the intramural basketball tournament. The eliminations will begin on Saturday of this week and three rounds of play will be run off to determine the winner.

On Saturday afternoon, the gymnasium will be the scene of two first-round games. Spencer and Pi Kappa Phi tangle in the first bracket and Laurens versus Pi Kappa Alpha in the second. On Tuesday afternoon, Alpha Kappa Pi meets Alumni and Kappa Alpha, which draws a first-round bye, meets the winner of the Spencer-Phi tilt. Later in the evening Beta Kappa and Alpha Lambda Tau oppose each other to conclude first-round activities.

The second round will be played on Wednesday evening with four teams left in the running. The finals will bring the eliminations to a close on Thursday evening.

Interest in the tourney is unusually high and indications point to a successful and colorful affair. The Pi Kappa Phis, defending champions, are not as strong as the aggregation that featured Bill Clark, Bill Degner and Jimmy Seagle last year, and the title will in all probability change hands.

Blue Key has worked out a practice schedule which is now posted on the bulletin board.

Tennis Team To Start Drill Soon

Varsity tennis practice, it was announced today, will begin as soon as weather permits, probably this week.

Work is being pushed forward on the courts behind the dining hall and three of them will be ready for play in two weeks. The other three will be completed within a month's time. These new courts will attract quite a number of players.

The team this year should show up well in state competition. Three veterans, Capt. Levi, Gregg, and "Cotton" Parham, will form the nucleus of the squad. These men showed ability last year and with the aid of President Jacobs, who will coach them in his spare time, will be better this year.

Plans are being made to stage a round-robin tournament in order to select men to fill the vacant positions on the team. Among those who will participate in this tourney are Tom Estes, Frank Johnston, Norman Creech, Harris Grey, and John Woodward. These men played well in intramural tournaments last year; however, the tournament will not be limited to these men alone.

Coach Johnson is arranging an attractive schedule which is not yet complete. Matches with Davidson, Carolina, Wofford, and Erskine have already been approved. Attempts are being made to arrange a trip to the lower part of the state.

EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY

In a recent cage invasion of Georgia, the frosh basketeers of the Eatonton high school quint. Very much surprised were a dozen Baby Hosemen as they pulled into the Georgia city limits. posts, fences and in windows were posters welcoming Giles Batchelor home. It was "Batchelor night," and before the evening was over the curly-headed P. C. star had received a welcoming message only by the return of the Byrd expedition party.

Presented with a $60 watch, a Sheaffer fountain pen and numerous congratulations, Giles was also promised the whole-hearted support of the populace should he run for mayor. Every dog has his day, and Canine Batchelor certainly wasn't slighted.

LIGHTS OUT

With their Monday night loss to Newberry, the Blue basketeers rang down the curtain on another dismal season of court activity. Only two collegiate victories were chalked these at the expense of Newberry and Charleston.

The freshmen, on the other hand, experienced the sting of defeat only once within state collegiate confines. Batchelor, Holden. Holcombe, Kimbo and Christian, along with several other capable reserves, form a fast-stepping aggregation that gives promise of big doing next year. Until then, so long, basketball.

SHOOTIN' HIGH

Baseball, like spring, is on its way. We view the approach the season's opening with optimism and interest. First, welture out to the diamond to watch the Hosemen pit their against Connie Mack and his boys from Philadelphia. Then, time on our hands, we'll sit back and observe the Palmetto league campaign.

Presbyterian will present one of the strongest outfits it assembled in years. With the best coach in the state to them, a corps of ace hurlers ready for duty, and a well-balanced hard-hitting infield and outfield, the boys are headed in general direction of town. Good coaching, pitching, hitting fielding—the victory formula.

FACULTY FAN

Every college, high school or what not has its avid sports —men who follow all phases of sports activity with intense est. Be it baseball, football, track or tiddly-winks, these inuals are consistently among those present. Their value to institutions they support is undisputed. They boost athletics add color to the setting.

Such a man is Dr. A. E. Spencer, vice-president of the col and long-time faculty member. It is a source of pleasure to Dr. Spencer trek down to the football field, the diamond, cu and track. Seldom does he miss an athletic contest.

The presence of such a man inspires the athletes, makes th feel they're playing for all of P. C. Too, it makes us feel m closely related to the faculty. And that's somethin'.

PASS IN REVIEW

SIMON LEGARE

The bigger they come, the harder they groan. Loud and lusty were the comments of Pitt Bird after the first typhoid shot was given. He probably won't be able to take the second. Dire were the threats he issued to freshmen who passed within ten feet of his trusty left arm. Needless to say, the freshmen shook with fright. Pitt anticipates a little trouble over at Lander due to this disability.

Long, lanky Roy Forehand will probably have to buy a new saber before the year is over. The little girls at basketball practice have handled the one he now has till the scabbard has worn thin. He tried wearing it while refereeing but he tripped up and so decided he looked cute minus the side arm. One little Clinton Hi player was heard to remark, "Doesn't Roy look cute in his uniform. I like that long knife he wears best of all though. 'cause it adds to his 'shine'." From the cradle to the grave, Forehand get 'em.

Cadet Major Rex Wilbanks has been added to Cupid's list of victims in a serious way. During a discussion of the possibility of getting into the regular army, Rex asked the salary of a second louie. On being told, he asked whether or not it was true that a raise of $40 was given when and if the said louie married. Beaming with delight, Rex remarked, "Boy, we sure can use that extra forty bucks." Looks like wedding bells for Wilbanks. We wonder if his loud ringing laugh, heard above all others when the Major cracks a joke, will help him any in his rating with her.

Jovial Jim Collings holds, among other records, the record for the longest continuous date in history. Sergeant Collings journeyed over to Columbia college last week-end and held forth for twelve hours on his ability as a drill master and his coming greatness in camp. Said his fair date, after twelve hours, "My big Jim could be head man in the military at P. C. 'cept the doesn't want to hurt anyone's feelings by taking their job. Jim is sweet that way." Not content with the picture of a budding Napoleon—half-gallon size—which his girl has in her heart, Jim was over-heard asking Nick about the cost of a picture in full uniform. After all, Jim, if she doesn't remember how you look after twelve hours of continuous action, you had better quit trying.

First Sergeant Bill Thompson is very anxious to find out who wrote a letter to one of the famous Lander sisters and signed his name. It must have been a good one, for Bill heard from the well-known sister in a big way. He's thinking about having her down for the military ball and wants to thank whoever was the means of bringing this lovely little romance about. Wonder what Gussie will have to say to this?

When this column comes out, the band may be minus a top sergeant. "Baby Ray" Shoemaker tried very hard to get out of going to F. M. Charlie Wilson Is Sold To Montreal

Charlie Wilson, alumnus of P. C., and recipient of fifteen athletic letters during his four years of college, has been sold to Montreal, having played for the past several years with the Rochester, N. Y., ball club.

Wilson, one of the best all-round athletes ever to attend this institution, broke the state javelin record, placed second several times in the broad jump in S.I.A.A. meets, was one of the outstanding basketball players of the college and, of course, was outstanding on the baseball diamond. In addition, he also played varsity football.

Wilson played for a time with Rochester and then was transferred to the Cardinals for two years, going back to the New York club after this time. His recent transfer to the Montreal outfit will be of interest to students as well as to alumni of the college.

Movies Cause For Increased Reading

The motion picture industry has once more scored in its attempt to make this a more educated America.

According to the reports of W. L. Jones, the librarian, since the filming of some of the well-known works of great authors the demand for these books has increased a great deal; not only the particular book filmed but all the works of the author. The filming of "A Tale of Two Cities" has rekindled a reading interest in this great work which had lost interest to all except possibly those who had to read it for English parallel. Owing to the production of Nordoff and Hall's "Mutiny On the Bounty" the demand for this book and both its sequels has been so great that the books are no longer spending the night in the library. The first of these two sequels, "Men Against the Sea," is the tale of the voyage of Captain Bligh and eighteen men over 3,600 miles of ocean in an open boat, while the other, "Pitcairn Island," is the story of mutineers on the small island along with their native friends, where they imposed on themselves exile instead of punishment.

Some weeks back it would not have been difficult to believe all the things

'Nation' Sponsors Editorial Contest

Announcement has been made by the Foreign Policy association and The Nation of an editorial contest on the subject, "Will Neutrality Keep Us Out of War?" which will have for its first prize $50 and for its purpose further enlightenment of the youth of the country on the subject of war.

The contest, open to all undergraduate students, closes on March 15. Manuscripts must be submitted to the local campus newspaper, in this case The Blue Stocking, on the same date; but refusal of publication by the newspaper does not bar the editorial from entry in the contest.

Judges for the contest are four in number and include the president of the Foreign Policy association and the editor of The Nation. No manuscripts will be considered unless accompanied by the student's signed statement that the work is original and the endorsement of an instructor in the college.

This contest is one of the many steps that have been taken in recent months by individuals and organizations in an effort to insure the neutrality of the country in case of future war.

PaC-SaC Notice

All students desiring an additional copy of the 1936 PaC-SaC should communicate with me at once.

Extra copies of the publication will be sold to men having sponsors in the annual at a price of $1.50. All other students may purchase additional copies at $2.00 per copy.

Payment for all extra copies will be due before publication of the book.

Forest City, Iowa.—Freshmen at Waldorf college here have invented a lot of new facts for scientists and educators. Recent examination answers revealed the following new facts:

Shelley unfortunately died while drowning in the Gulf of Leghorn.

Dido means the same, and is usually represented by dido marks.

Romeo and Juliet are an example of an heroic couplet.

Milton wrote "Paradise Lost"; then his wife died and he wrote "Paradise Regained."

Keats is a poet who wrote on a greasy urn.

Robert Louise Stevenson got married and went on his honeymoon. It was then he wrote "Travels With a Donkey."

Robinson Crusoe was a great singer who lived on an island.

A yokel is the way people talk to each other in the Alps.

Rural life is found mostly in the country.

A corps is a dead gentleman, a corpse is a dead lady.

John Rauch Holds Traveling Position

John J. Rauch, former P. C. student, has accepted a position with Liggett and Myers Tobacco company and is now traveling four counties with headquarters at Camden.

Mr. Rauch left P. C. after Christmas last year and since that time has taken commercial courses at the University of South Carolina. While on the campus Mr. Rauch was outstanding in business affairs, both private and in connection with the publications, and will be especially remembered as Presbyterian's "Napoleon of Finance."

Mr. Rauch, who was married last year to Miss Dorothy Sealy, of Rock Hill, is one of the youngest members of the Liggett and Myers sales force. His present territory includes Kershaw county and three adjacent counties.

'Alumlite' Changes To Eight Pages

Robert C. McLees, student editor of The Alumlite, official college alumni publication, has announced that hereafter the paper will contain eight pages.

Formerly, The Alumlite has been issued once each month and has contained only four pages. The very definite work that the paper is doing in establishing a stronger bond between the alumni and the college has been made clearly evident, McLees stated.

It is thought by the administration of the college and members of the staff that the increase to eight pages will add much to the attractiveness of the publication. The first issue of the enlarged size will appear on March 13.

College Singers Practice For Trip

Due to the recent sickness of its director and pianist and because of the revival services for this week, the glee club has had to postpone its previously scheduled trip until March 9.

Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, the organization's director, announced that the club was going to start on its trip through Georgia on March 8, and return to the college on March 14, after giving its final performance over station WBT in Charlotte.

The director also stated that at this time there was some uncertainty about the Macon engagement but that the club would be in Waycross and Vidalia on March 10 and 11, respectively.

Snice the return of the director, Dr. Huntley, and the pianist, A. K. Darby, the vocalists have been hard at work in preparation for the coming tour.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

MALCOLM NORTON, famous campus character, has joined the ranks of those who journey over to Lander every week or so. This weekly trip to Greenwood has made his usual sojourn at Winthrop more or less a thing of the past.

The author of this column is always glad to correct any little mistakes that may creep in due to inadvertence or poor hearing. Consequently, we wish to correct the statement that MARION PARHAM invited the same girl down for seven consecutive dances without being accepted. Mr. Parham came to the author in a high dudgeon the other day and accused us of grossly misstating the facts, in that the total number of invitations he issued to the young lady was only six.

CARL McCULLY apparently has a great deal of confidence in his fistic ability, even after his defeat at the hands of the incomparable T. Q. JONES in the ring. Not long ago he had the audacity to attempt to sit on RED WYATT'S date with a young co-ed. Needless to say, the young man with the flaming red hair ruthlessly cast him out and continued to go about his business.

It is barely possible that some readers are tired of hearing about ROY FOREHAND, but it seems that somehow, in some way or other, he always manages to do the unusual. Apparently having forgotten about a similar stunt Hank Wilson pulled off last year, Roy bgean flirting with a good-looking girl in the theatre recently. She seemed receptive to his advances, but as he enjoyed the excitement of new courtship, he was suddenly tapped on the shoulder. He turned, astonished, to the lady in the seat next to him. "Young man," she said sharply, "will you please leave that girl alone. She is from the Feeble-Minded institute."

plant, Smyth dormitory and the Leroy Springs gymnasium were added to the campus. In 1926 Dr. Douglas resigned from the presidency of P. C. to accept the presidency of the University of South Carolina.

After Dr. Douglas, Dr. B. L. Parkinson served for one year, resigning in 1928 to accept a position in the state department of education in Alabama.

The college then was very fortunate in securing the services of Dr. John McSween, who immediately upon his entrance started to raise the college indebtedness which had accumulated to $375,000. Half of this sum was raised during the administration of Dr. McSween. He resigned from the presidency to accept the pastorate of Purity Presbyterian church, Chester, S. C.

Fortunate again was P. C. in securing the services of William P. Jacobs to serve as acting president until some man could be found capable to take the position as P. C.'s president.

After eight months' service as acting president of the college, Mr. Jacobs was last week elected to the permanent presidency of th college. STUDENT BODY GOES TO POLLS TUESDAY

DR. WORKMAN REPLACED BY ROPER, MONTS

College Accepts Resignation of Education Professor Who Left Saturday For Other Work.

NEW MEN TO BEGIN CLASSES IMMEDIATELY

Announcement was made Friday by Dean Marshall W. Brown of the acceptance of the resignation of Dr. John H. Workman, professor of education, who left Saturday to take up his duties as regional educational advisor for resettlement administration in the state of North Carolina, Tennessee, West Virginia, and Kentucky.

Dean Brown stated that this was the first time in the history of the school that a contract had been broken in the middle of a term, but further stated that since Dr. Workman was only under temporary contract during the leave of absence of Dr. R. A. Coe, the administration felt it only fair to release him in order that he might accept a permanent position.

Dean Brown announced that the college feels itself fortunate in having secured the services of Dr. John C. Roper, who will sreve as acting professor of education, and of W. Edward Monts, who has taken over the duties of acting associate professor of education. Both men bring with them wide experience in their individual fields. The new instructors began their new duties today.

Dr. Roper is at present pastor of Broad Street Methodist church of Clinton. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Wofford in 1896, his B. S. degree from the College of Charleston, his M. A. in social psychology from Wofford, and his doctor of philosophy in education from the University of South Carolina.

The new acting professor of education, in addition to his extensive work in the field of religion, is the author of a number of books and magazine articles. Chief among the former is his well-known work, "Religious Aspects of Education."

W. Edward Monts, acting associate professor of education, is at present superintendent of the city schools of Clinton. He received his B. A. degree

Revival Services Attract Many

Rev. Peter Marshall Leads Series of Inspiring Meetings.

Giving to the congregation the most interesting and inspiring message of the week, Rev. Peter Marshall brought his series of spring revival services to a close Friday night at the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. Marshall is pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, Atlanta, and fulfilled all pre-service commendations that had been heaped upon him. The services were held under the auspices of the college Y. M. C. A.

Speaking a total of nine times, Mr. Marshall conducted four services at the college and five at the Presbyterian church. His subjects were practical and based directly on the Gospels. At the morning services in the college chapel, he spoke on the following subjects: Tuesday, "Proof"; Wednesday, "Too Late — Nicodemus and Jesus"; Thursday, heart-to-heart talk on "Sex"; Friday, "Christ, the Great Physician." At the First church in the first three services, he raised and answered the question, "So What?" Thursday, "Hell in the Light of Modern Psychology"; Friday, "My Personal Testimony," in which a brief account of the speaker's life was given.

Due to the limited seating capacity of the chapel, only students and the faculty were privileged to hear Mr. Marshall in his morning addresses. The evening services, however, always found a large and appreciative audience of community people as well as college students present. Special music was rendered by the glee club, the church choir, the college quartet, and soloists.

MARKS FALL IN FIRST MONTH

Failures Show Improvement Over Semester Grades, But Triple First Month Last Year.

Grades for the first month of the second semester, while showing a decided improvement over the low averages of the recent semester composite report, were notably lower than those of the corresponding period of last year.

The freshmen led in total deficiencies with a new high of 103 E's, nearly one failure to each student. Marks for all other classes, while not approaching the record set by the first-year men, were correspondingly high.

Considering the total deficiencies, this month's failures showed an increase of nearly 200 per cent over those of last year. The increased enrollment of the school, however, is not taken into account in compiling percentage figures.

Grades for this month were as follows: Freshmen, 103 E's, 81 D's, 6 incomplete; sophomores, 28 E's, 38 D's, 4 incomplete; juniors, 19 E's, 24 D's, 10 incomplete; seniors, 10 E's, 12 D's, 5 incomplete.

Totals for this year and for 1935: February, 1936, 160 E's, 155 D's, 25 incompletes; February, 1935, 54 E's, 128 D's, 35 incompletes.

Glee Club Men Leave For Georgia

College Singers Go To Waycross In the Morning. To Broadcast From Charlotte Friday.

With their excellent program last night at the Methodist church in Clinton, the Presbyterian college glee club began a series of performances that will take them down into south Georgia and up into North Carolina before ending this season's tour.

Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, the director, announced that the club plans to leave tomorrow morning for Waycross, where they are scheduled to give their first Georgia performance. After staying overnight, they will go to Vidalia, where J. L. Clements will face a home town audience for the first time as a member of the P. C. glee club.

Since Macon will be unable to sponsor the organization at this time, as was previously announced, the boys will return to P. C. Thursday for a brief rest before going to North Carolina on the next day.

On Friday, the glee club will give its final performance of the year in Charlotte, N. C., when it presents its interesting and varied program to the WBT radio audience.

Although the club has suffered setbacks in the loss of several members and in the sickness of its director and pianist, it has continued to be the excellent organization that it was in the fall because of the competent direction of Dr. Huntley and the sincerity of the entire group in practices.

Dean's Honor List To Appear Soon

Announcement has been made that the dean's scholastic list will be published in next week's issue of The Blue Stocking. Included on this list are the students whose cumulative average is 2.5 or above.

Students on the list are named in order according to scholastic average. In making up the list only those grades are considered which are made in the regular school year at Presbyterian college. Since transfer students come from institutions where there may be a wide variety in the system of grading, it is considered fairer to consider only those grades given in this institution. Last year's list included less than 10 per cent of the student body.

It is announced by Dean Marshall Brown that there are still some incomplete grades for the first semester, but that practically none of these incompletes are against the records of the highest ranking students.

Publications of this list will also indicate to the student body the valedictorian and salutatorian for the commencement this year. In the past, the appointments have been on the basis of the whole four year's grades and the students have been notified a few days before commencement. However, after prolonged discussion of the situation, the faculty has voted that hereafter the selections would be based on the relative grades for three and a half years. Consultation with the students who ranked highest on the dean's list last year indicated that these students were pleased in this change in arrangement.

Each year a general scholastic medal is given to the student of the senior class whose average for the full four years in all classes has been the highest. Under this change in arrangement, the student making the highest grade will still receive the medal, even though he may not be the valedictorian.

ELECTIONS WILL NAME LEADERS FOR NEW YEAR

Councilmen, Staff Members of PaC-SaC and Collegian, and 'Y' Officers To Be Chosen.

SECOND RACES TO BE NECESSARY, IS BELIEF

With probability for the necessity of at least four second races, students of P. C. will tomorrow go to the polls to select a president of the student body, student councilmen, staff members of The PaC-SaC and The Collegian, and officers of the Y. M. C. A.

Five candidates for student body president, six for secretary and junior councilmen, five for sophomore councilmen, and four for edditor of The PaC-SaC seem to assure the necessity for additional ballotings to secure majorities. In each case in which a second race is necessary, the election will be held on Wednesday, the day after the regular election.

Of the five nominees for president, the man receiving the highest number of votes will be elected president, the next highest, vice-president, and the third highest, senior councilman. The same will hold true for the junior councilmen, with the exception that the first will be named secretary and the two next highest junior councilmen.

Two sophomore councilmen will be elected from the list of six nominees to complete the council roster. For all other positions, only one man will be selected from those nominated.

Nominations, with the exception of staffs of the two publications, were made for the council by recommendation of the present council, by the Y. M. C. A., for its officers, and then in both cases the floor was opened for additional nominations. Floor nominations were received on last Tuesday.

Because of a number of ineligible nominees, new nominations were received this morning for junior councilmen. Of the six men originally nominated for junior council positions, only two were declared eligible by the dean. In addition, several men withdrew this morning and the latter part of last week from various offices for which they were nominated.

The complete list of all nominated for the various positions is printed elsewhere in this issue.

DEBATERS WIN SEVEN MATCHES

Two Teams Show Well In South-Atlantic Meet At Winthrop.

The Presbyterian college debating team won seven victories, out of twelve debates entered, against 28 outstanding teams of the South Atlantic states at the annual South Atlantic Forensic association tournament held at Winthrop college on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Wake Forest won the tournament, with eleven wins out of twelve debates, losing only to the Presbyterian college affirmative team. Hank Wilson placed second in the impromptu speaking contest.

Each team entered six debates, and the final ranking was determined by the total number of wins for each school. Hugh Holman and Rod Potter represented P. C. on the affirmative team, and Hank Wilson and Colin Hudson the negative.

The affirmative team won four out of its six debates, defeating Guilford college, Atlantic Christian, and Wake Forest, all of North Carolina, and Shepherd college, of West Virginia, and losing to Waynesburg college, of Pindelphia, and Morehead college, of Kentucky. The P. C. affirmative team was the only team, either affirmative or negative, to defeat the

Frosh Debaters To Meet Wofford

The freshman debate with Wofford, prveiously announced for March 3, was postponed until tonight.

Bradner and Dyes will travel with their coach, H. M. Wilson, to Spartanburg, where they will debate the Wofford freshmen tonight.

These two negative debaters seem to be well prepared to deliver a strong main speech and rebuttals that will provide an interesting evening for their Wofford opponents.

Recent elections of Alpha Kappa Pi social fraternity installed Marion Bird, Columbia, as president, and R. R. Yow, of Martin, Ga., vice-president.

Jacobs, Glee Club Broadcast Friday

President William P. Jacobs has announced that he has accepted on behalf of the college an invitation from the South Carolina Economic association to present a program under its sponsorship over radio station WBT, Charlotte, on Friday, March 13, from 11:05 to 11:30 p. m.

The Presbyterian college program, which will be the 159th consecutive weekly broadcast of the association, will consist of a talk by President Jacobs and the rendering of five numbers by the P. C. glee club, under the direction of Dr. Stephen M. Huntley.

Mr. Jacobs' talk will consist in the main of an explanation of the purpose of Presbyterian college and the extensive character building program it has undertaken.

A Straight Election — Will We Have It Tomorrow?

Tomorrow the students of Presbyterian College go to the polls to select men for various student body offices. After three years at this college, we have come to be somewhat dubious about the ballot system; even somewhat certain that the elections we have seen in the past have not always been the spotless, honest ballotings that one uninitiated might suppose them to be.

Rumors of men who have voted twelve times, of ballot boxes stuffed by supporters of each nominee, and of men, sometimes a councilman, who used persuasive methods on students asking for ballots have not been entirely unheeded. What definite truth there is in such rumors expounders of a better system will never be able to prove. That there has been underhanded work at the ballot box and that there have been men, many men, who have voted more than once there is no doubt.

The evil lies definitely with the student body, but the prevention of the evil lies just as definitely with the student council. Although the student constitution makes no provision for a supervision of the election place by members of the council, the fact remains that unless some step is taken by the council to insure the honesty of tomorrow's election, the vote-counting will give only a fair idea of the trend of popular choice. Such matters have been going on long enough. The time to stop an evil is now. How it will be stopped is another question.

To think of suddenly convincing every man in this student body that box-stuffing is wrong is out of the question. Therefore, the responsibility must lie with the student council. To insure a straight election, we advocate that at least two councilmen stay in the office of the officer of the day to see that the election is run along lines somewhat more honest than in the past. We advocate that an amendment providing for this be added to the constitution after the new council goes into office.

It would be very fine for the managers of the election to announce that 330 votes were cast. But it would be very bad for the council to realize several days later that the glee club was out of town and that 15 men were on sick list. Has this happened before? If it has, we don't want to let it happen again.

Can You Suggest . . . ?

The contest sponsored by President Jacobs, which closes Saturday, offers, aside from any thought of money that might be gained, a great opportunity for the improvement of the school. Every student in this college, whether he be freshman or senior, has at some time complained of some existing condition. Now the opportunity has been presented to convert that complaining into constructive suggestions for the improvement of P. C.

We do not doubt that there are conditions that are worthy of rather extensive changes. The administration of any institution, especially a new administration, must find it extremely difficult to get a comprehensive view of the student outlook on campus affairs; therefore, President Jacobs' contest is the most practical answer to a complex problem. Just how practical that answer will be depends upon whether or not the suggestions received come from a minority of the student body or from a majority.

A minority expressing itself on campus affairs would describe only conditions which had come to the attention of that minority. A majority student opinion, on the other hand, would present to the administration a clear, concise idea of existing campus conditions that are in need of change.

So it all boils down to the fact that if you want this to be a better college, if you want to do your part toward making it a better college, you should take the time to tell those in authority how you think it can be done. We may have complained to our room-mates of conditions and gotten no results. Our room-mates had no authority to bring about results. Now the time has come when we can go straight to those who do have the authority. The opportunity lies with the individual.

The Collegiate World

"The educated man has proved a constructive force and at the same time a conservative force in the state, a bulwark against shallow counsels and vain proposals." Bainbridge Colby calls upon college men for straight thinking and steadying influence.

"Today men are not employed because they hold a college degree, and society has been forced to look for spiritual values in the character of educated men. Many colleges have been reduced to a loafer's paradise, with the students looking only for good positions and social standing from their education." Clemens M. Grankson, president of Augustana college (Sioux Falls, S. D.), believes importance of college degree has decreased because colleges fail in spiritual and moral training.

"I am in hearty accord with you when you say we should encourage youth to express itself on matters of education, business and government. I have observed that youth's lack of practical experience is frequently compensated by idealism and sense of justice. Today, more than ever, we need the stimulus of a youthful approach to the serious problems that confront our country." President Roosevelt approves a youth essay contest.

"Neither will we ever compromise our opposition to having 'free speech' mean that a man can do as he pleases under the university's protection, sneer at religion or bring in political propaganda." University of Pittsburgh's Chancellor John G. Bowman tells Pennsylvania's Governor Earle to jump in the lake.

Petite Mary Sanford, just graduated from the University of Minnesota, has the university administration overwrought with excitement.

Scanning her nice, crinkly new diploma, Miss Sanford noticed something ghastly in such a document:

Immediately she wrote a letter to the president of the college, saying, "The document reads, 'Know all men by these presents that the Board of Regents by virtue of the authority vested in them by the state of Minnesota have conferred upon . . .' The pronoun 'them' and the auxiliary verb 'have,' both plural, refer to the subject, 'Board' which is a collective noun and is considered singular. The correct forms are 'it' and 'has'."

At the next regents meeting, Miss Sanford's grant was the first item of new business, the president has assured her.

Twenty-one professors and other experts have issued a booklet condemning the Townsend plan as a "delusion."

New York city's public education system has received $23,500,000 from PWA during the depression years.

Variations in short-wave radio signals form the basis of a new system of weather prediction.

Fraternities at the University of California at Los Angeles have gone on record as opposing the abolition of compulsory military training.

[illegible] per cent of Minnesota college women [illegible] engaged in some way in the teaching profession.

"Let's run up to the frat room to see who we're supp to vote for tomorrow."

"O.K. I wonder who'll stuff the ballot box this time? T aren't going to catch anybody, so if they want me to do it."

Orchestralia

The old radio order is giving way to the new. Especially is this true of the orchestra trend, an important factor in radio because of the great percentage of music in the body of radio entertainment. The crest of the winter dancing season is over, because songs are beginning to come out mentioning bluebirds and other spring-like subjects.

The expiring contracts of winter's big names have still a few weeks to go, so we of the orchestra fans can still hear our favorite stylists broadcast. There are many radio commercial contracts that present most of our favorites until well into the summer.

Let's take a survey of some of the innovations that winter has left for our orchestras to use. Will Osborne and Ozzie Nelson are top bidders for the post of style-setter par excellence. Osborne has introduced a good style that features the slidingest of slip-horns, and a team of slide trumpets which make a pleasant and swingy sound in his players' competent hands.

Ozzie Nelson most probably deserves the top spot because of his unquestioned pace-setting. The thump style is dead and all our tunes "go round and round and come out here" in a new manner known as swing. The singing of Nelson and his new wife, Harriet Hilliard is also of good modern quality.

Our standing favorites, Lombardo, King, Glen Gray, and Garber, are airing their wares over commercial programs (the first three), and Garber is bouncing about over no station as a result of professional jealousy. He refused to broadcast over WGN because he dared to air Lombardo once and had signed him to broadcast when he starts an engagement in Chicag

The jazz technician, Glen Gr tinues his improved blowing i fine manner, with Hal Kemp a die Duchin pursuing their style. These two have that so called "it" which brings the worshipping at their shrines is a keyboard wizard who is by more pianists at present t other. He is imitated but unc in his field. Kemp has a funn of trumpet and a smooth co tion.

As an abrupt contrast, th symphonies of Howard Barlo Black, and Andre Kostelanet fine lot of organizations. Th casts by various civic symphon are on a superior standard. Toscanini is doing the worl admired conducting with t York Philharmonic. He a with Hans Lange and Sir Beecham. The programs al most famous classics and w attention.

Basketball Tournament Gets Under Way

PI KAPPA PHI BEATS SPENCER TO OPEN PLAY

Fraternity Wins First Bracket By 25-16 Score.

Process of elimination in the intramural basketball tournament got under way here Saturday afternoon when Spencer dormitory met Pi Kappa Phi fraternity in the first tilt as scheduled. After a long, gruelling match, the Phi's finally emerged victorious by the final count of 26-16, although the Spencer boys showed more power than the score indicates.

The rotund Hutchinson struck his stride after the second quarter got under way and registered four field goals and two foul shots for a total of 10 points for the Pi Kappa Phi's. The Spencer scoring honors were well divided, every member of the quintet managing to ring up at least one goal. Glenn Beeman proved himself the most aggressive for the losers, tallying five points and playing a fine game on defense.

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, by virtue of their win over Spencer dormitory in the upper bracket, will meet the Kappa Alpha's Tuesday, who drew a bye in the first round. Due to an agreement by both teams, the Laurens dormitory-Pi Kappa Alpha game was postponed and was to be played this afternoon. Further play in the tournament will be continued Tuesday, when the Alpha Lambda Tau's throw themselves against the Beta Kappa's and the Alpha Kappa Pi's meet Alumni dormitory. All of these will be first round matches with the exception of the Pi Kappa Phi-Kappa Alpha affair which will be a second round match.

This intramural tournament, sponsored by Blue Key, shows promise of being a great success. This first game was managed and refereed by Phil Adams, president of Blue Key.

Hose Baseball Team Takes Definite Form

All Signs Continue To Point To Best Team In Decade.

Another week of progressive practice has been ruled off by Chick Galloway's Blue Stocking baseball nine and the aggregation is rapidly approaching top form.

The starting line-up has varied very little since the beginning of practice. The catching job is still a three-cornered race among Forehand, Plowden and Bird. Third base is also unsettled and is the center of a race between Wyatt, Harvin and Hughes.

Cab Blackwell looks good at first. The wire-haired sophomore is a polished fielder, and with an improvement in batting ability will be a valuable man. Horne and Higbe have second and short sewed up.

Evans and Coe will hold down left and centerfield, and Suggs, the right garden when he is not on the mound. Al McSween will probably alternate with the diminutive southpaw.

The pitchers have gotten their arms conditioned for heavy duty and will bear down from now on. Weldon, reputed to be an outstanding mound performer, has not yet gotten in sufficient shape to show his wares.

Intramural Tennis Plans Take Shape

A total of seventy-three men, representing the six fraternities and four dormitories, have signed up to play in the intramural tennis tournament sponsored by Blue Key. The tournament will get under way as soon as the courts are made ready for play.

After being held in by a long, cold winter the racquet wielders will be anxious to get out and open up, and competition promises to be keen. Not only will the boys be battling for points towards winning the intramural trophy, but many of them will be seeking tryouts for the varsity team. A good showing in this tournament will win for them this opportunity.

Ceded number one in the tournament is "Red" Potter, the defending champion. It will be remembered that Potter turned aside many hopefuls in marching to victory last year, and these men will be out for revenge. Number two in the list, and a strong favorite, is George Beatty, who showed fine form last fall. Norman Creech, who lost to Potter in the finals last year, is ceded third. Creech was captain of last year's freshman team. All three of these men possess sound, steady games and it is quite possible that two of them will come face to face in the finals.

Other favorites are Frank Johnston, Harris Grey, Tom Estes, and Doug Patton. There are also several freshmen who probably will go far in this tournament.

Due to the large number of entrants, matches will be played on schedule. Players are warned to be present at the time of their match; otherwise, forfeits will be made.

The swimming meet sponsored by Blue Key will be held sometime in the near future. No definite date has been set as yet, but it is expected to be around the first of April. Kappa Alpha fraternity is the defending champion in this event.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

It seems to be fashionable for college newspaper columnists to engage in verbal squabbles each week with one another. The Citadel Bull Dog started something a month ago when that paper printed an incomprehensible piece of poetry presumably hitting at Winthrop girls. The Winthrop paper replied, and the Bull Dog, with a new staff eager to jump at anything that would make a good space-filler, immediately began writing about half a column each week thereafter on the subject. Now readers of The Bull Dog are anxiously awaiting the end of this feud until there will be room enough to publish some of the more necessary news of the campus.

GEORGE OLIVER, it seems, simply refuses to be kept out of the limelight. In addressing two letters to girls the other day he became slightly confused and addressed one intended for a girl at Boseman as follows: "Miss

FROSH TRACK OUTLOOK GOOD

First-Year Men Show Prospects of Building Fine Team.

The freshman track candidates, under the guidance of Coach Lonnie McMillian, have gone through a week of preliminary exercises and will soon get down to serious work. The workouts thus far have consisted chiefly of limbering exercises and no time trials have yet been made, but with several good men available for most of the various events, the prospects look good for a better-than-usual frosh team.

Reynolds, Ritch, and Dennard are the most promising prospects for dash men and competition will be keen among these three speedsters. All have had several years of high school experience and show promise of making excellent college records. Dennard also holds the Florida high school record for the broad jump and is almost a sure bet to chalk up points in this event.

The hurdles will be well taken care of by D. W. Davis and Reynolds. These two timber toppers have been working out for several weeks and are already in good shape. Bonner and Chapman, both of whom secured experience as cross country men on the fall track team, are leading the way for the long distances.

"Bogator" Atkinson, versatile frosh athlete, is the leading contestant for the high jump and the 440, while

Each Puff Less Acid
A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes. They include preliminary analyses of the tobacco selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("Toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product. All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

with each of the other five teams. These games will be played on the home-and-home basis. The state championship is to be based upon the record made by each team in this series.

Coach Chick Galloway, who represented Presbytreian college at the session, stated that aside from the league games, P. C.'s tentative schedule calls for out-of-state games and engagements with teams from local textile leagues. Arrangements are being made with Oglethorpe and Georgia university for games, but as yet the dates for these engagements are indefinite.

Lester Holden, an untried high jumper, is also expected to show rare form. Evans and Boswell, husky tackles of the football team, are the leading candidates for the weights and have been heaving the shot and javelin to good distances.

Coach McMillian is looking for several new faces on the cinder oval this week, and with the above men as nucleus he expects to develop a strong freshman team.

For centuries the world has gone to the Near East for its flavors and aromas and spices.

...and today Chesterfield imports thousands of bales of tobacco from Turkey and Greece to add flavor and fragrance to Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Turkish tobacco is expensive. The import duty alone is 35 cents a pound. But no other place except Turkey and Greece can raise tobacco of this particular aroma and flavor.

This Turkish tobacco, blended with our own American tobaccos in the correct proportions to bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco, helps to make Chesterfields outstanding for mildness and for better taste.

SHOEMAKER ELECTED STUDENT HEAD

Byrnes To Be Commencement Speaker

ROOSEVELT'S ADVISOR WILL ADDRESS GRADS

Is One of Outstanding Senators In Washington.

EXERCISES WILL BE CONDUCTED JUNE 2

Senator James F. Byrnes, leading Democratic congressman and one of the strongest supporters of the New Deal, will be the speaker at Presbyterian college's fifty-sixth commencement exercises June 2, it was announced yesterday by William P. Jacobs, president.

The exercises will be held in Bailey Memorial stadium and will have the added importance of the inauguration of Mr. Jacobs as president of P. C. The message of the day will be brought to the huge crowd expected to attend by means of the amplifying system used to advantage last year in the announcing of track meets.

Senator Byrnes, one of the outstanding South Carolinians in congress, has for the past three years been closely associated with President Roosevelt and has sometimes been termed the president's "right-hand man." Before his entrance into politics he was editor of an Aiken newspaper.

Several weeks previous to Senator Byrnes' acceptance of the invitation, the 62 members of the senior class voted unanimously to seek his services, not only as one of the outstanding leaders of the nation, but also as a native South Carolinian who has climbed the rungs to success.

Winthrop Team Holds Services

Y.W.C.A. Deputation Team At First Church Sunday.

Last Sunday evening at 7 o'clock the deputation team of the Winthrop college Y.W.C.A., under the direction of Miss Francis Putnam, chairman of the team, presented a worship service at the First Presbyterian church at the invitation of the Presbyterian college Y.M.C.A.

The service was opened with the singing of a hymn. The leader of the program, Miss Wagner Dye, was introduced by Ernest Arnold, president of the Presbyterian college Y.M.C.A. Miss Dye read the scripture and followed with a short prayer. A special musical selection was rendered by the trio composed of Miss Anna Marion Busbee, Miss Mary Davis and Miss Mary Frances Gosnell, who were accompanied at the piano by Miss Elizabeth Tester, a member of the deputation.

The first talk of the evening was given by Miss Katherine H. Paulling. She emphasized in her talk that Christ was a human being as well as a divine being and discussed what Jesus did doing the first thirty years of his life. During his early life, he lived much as other normal people about him. He was a man who laughed as others laughed. He has left that joy and good cheer with us, concluded Miss Paulling.

The second and last talk was given by Miss Frances Putnam, who discussed and emphasized that Jesus was and is the Christ, the Son of God, a divine being as well as a human being. Miss Putnam began by stating that world religions nowadays are centered around some personality such as Buddha, Mohammed, or Confucius. The Christian religion, too, is centered around a single personality. But this person is different from all the others. Jesus is and was divine. She concluded her talk by bringing out the point that Christ is the revelation of God through a man to men.

The trio then rendered another selection, this time singing "Faith, Hope and Love," by Shelley. The congregation was then dismissed with prayer by Miss Putnam.

HUDSON NAMED VALEDICTORIAN OF CLASS OF '36 BY HONOR LIST

SENATOR JAMES F. BYRNES
Senator Byrnes will make the commencement address, speaking in Bailey Memorial stadium on June 2.

Scholastic List of 31 Is Announced By Dean.

ED ANDREWS IS '36 SALUTATORIAN

Announcement today of the dean's honor list, containing the names of 31 students, confirmed the selection of Colin Hudson, Greenville, as valedictorian of the class of 1936, and of Edward Andrews, Milledgeville, Ga., as salutatorian.

Hudson, at the end of the three and one-half years, the period now used in computing honors, had a cumulative scholastic average of 3.6753. Andrews showed a cumulative average of 3.6724, two-thousandths of a point below Hudson.

Hudson, as a freshman, received the coveted scholarship medal for the highest average for the year among the first-year students. Andrews graduated from the Georgia Military academy of Milledgeville, Ga., with a four-year average of 98, the highest record ever made in the history of that school.

Hudson heads the senior class which has 15 representatives on the list; Sophia Sullivan heads the junior class, which has six representatives; E. A. Johnson heads the sophomore class,

Glee Club Returns From Georgia Tour

Trip Marred By Breakdown of "Dream Train."

Returning from a tour of Georgia Thursday night and broadcasting from station WBT, Charlotte, Friday night, the P. C. glee club wound up its performances for the season, travelling, when the "Dream Train" balked, in all kinds of conveyances.

Despite the manner of transportation they were forced to adopt, the club gave a creditable performance in Waycross, their first stop, before a small but appreciative audience. The next day they arrived in Vidalia about noon and after dinner spent an enjoyable afternoon, during which they experienced a bit of Georgia hospitality.

The audience in Vidalia was one of the largest that the organization has had this year, and the performance there and the dance directly after it were considered the highspots of this year's program.

The song-sters returned to Clinton by means of two school buses, after having supper in Augusta, and arrived here about 10 p. m., leaving the "Dream Train" college bess, somewhere in southern Georgia.

Friday afternoon the club again set out—this time for their final performance of the season in Charlotte, N. C., where they broadcast over radio station WBT in a special Presbyterian college program during which President Jacobs spoke on the college and its aims.

Alpha Psi Delta Dance Is Success

Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, opened the spring dance activities for the campus Friday night, presenting a get-away in Copeland hall with the music of Paul Harmon and his College aires.

The leap year dance was the first of its kind sponsored by the sorority and was a decided success. "Stags" in attendance included girls from Lander, Anderson, and other nearby colleges. Some dispute was caused over the problem of who was the belle of the ball, but sorority members finally handed the decision to a young man who danced immediately in front of the orchestra.

Frosh Debaters Defeat Wofford

Last week Bradner and Dyes, the freshman debaters, defeated the Wofford freshmen at Spartanburg in an interesting encounter.

According to their coach, H. M. Wilson, the two frosh handled their first intercollegiate debate well. He added that they presented their main speech-es with conviction, but that in rebuttal their opponents seemed to have a slight advantage over them.

The two negative debaters plan to make a few changes in their main argument, but will spend most of their time in practice rebuttals before the end of the season. One is to debate Winthrop here at an early date.

PAST STUDENT PRESIDENTS ARE LEADERS IN MANY VARIED FIELDS

(By Cleveland Bradner)

The elections last week for the student body president cause one's mind to wander back over the years and wonder what the success has been of those men who served in this capacity in previous years. Have they continued their leadership in the business that they have chosen as their life work? Were they leaders in school only because their "frats" or clubs had the "pull" to make them president or vice-presidents? As one turns the pages that give these records, we are somewhat surprised to find that the presidents have in most cases been and are leaders.

They include doctors, lawyers, ministers, insurance agents, teachers and missionaries. We are proud that a majority of the P. C. presidents are included in the ranks of those who serve directly as ministers or missionaries and equally proud that those who could not serve in this capacity are serving elsewhere.

The first records of the attempted student organization look something like the picture of sound vibrations. They represent, first, the attempt, then failure, then the success which is accomplished only by determination and intestinal fortitude to carry on and never give up.

When we look at the record of the student body presidents we find the lineup as follows, giving the name of the student body president, the year he held office, and his present occupation:

A. H. Miller, 1915, missionary to Africa.

A. W. Dick, 1920, minister, Fayetteville, N. C.

M. A. DuRant, 1922, minister, Upper Long Cane church, Abbeville, S. C.

D. F. Kirven, 1923, insurance agent.

F. M. Pearce, 1929, insurance agent, Florence, S. C.

T. M. Johnston, 1931, minister, Greer, S. C.

R. H. Ferguson, 1933, government work, Washington, D. C.

Founder's Day Observed Here

Dr. Charles E. Little of Peabody, Speaks On Dr. Jacobs' Life.

This morning in the Presbyterian college chapel special services were held as a tribute to Dr. William Plumer Jacobs, founder of the college and Thornwell orphanage. The anniversary of the birth of Dr. Jacobs, March 15, is observed as Founder's day by the two institutions which he organized and developed. This morning an address on the character and work of Dr. Jacobs was delivered to the students by Dr. Charles E. Little, of Nashville, Tenn.

COLLINGS IS NAMED COUNCIL VICE-PRESIDENT

Raleigh Shoemaker, of Charlotte, N. In addition to the president and vice-president, fourteen other student offices were filled by the balloting.

Shoemaker has served on the council for the past year and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity. Collings was formerly secretary-treasurer of the council, has been a member of the council for the past two years, and is a member of Beta Kappa social fraternity.

Frank Johnston, rising junior, was elected secretary-treasurer of the council. He has served on the student governing body since his freshman year.

Other councilmen elected were as follows: senior, Allen McSween; junior, Jack Witherspoon, Julius Boggs; sophomore, Morris Ritch, Virgil St. John.

"Y" Hears Colored Singers Thursday

The Y. M. C. A. enjoyed the voices of the Friendship church colored choir last Thursday night at the weekly meeting of the organization.

The group, under the direction of J. F. W. Mason, principal of Bell Street colored school, first rendered several hymns and, by special request, three Negro spirituals.

It has been the privilege of the Y.M.C.A. on previous occasions to secure the services of these singers and the students have always enjoyed their splendid programs.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

How many wires it will take to break students of the habit of walking across the newly-planted grass in front of the administration building.

Why some system is not installed to replace the unreasonable "two demerits, two points off grade" penalty for cutting a single class.

More Election Talk

Last week the retiring president of the student body, replying to an editorial in THE BLUE STOCKING, told the student body that there had never been a discrepancy of more than two or three votes in elections of the past year and further stated that the BLUE STOCKING editorial was written without thought, by one who knew nothing of the situation. The retiring president, for some obscure reason that we have been unable to understand even after discussion of the matter, took our suggestion for council supervision of elections as a personal affront to his honesty.

We do not propose to use these columns to air personal disputes. We do propose to use these columns to bring about what we feel is a needed reform. As to the character and honesty of the man who has headed this student government for the past year, we have absolutely no doubt. The sooner this is understood the sooner all can work toward a solution of a problem that seems evident.

To eliminate any idea of unfairness, we will make the following proposition: If we do not present proof of dishonesty in elections, upon being assured that it will not be used as evidence, we will publish an apology; if we do present proof, the retiring president will publish an apology for his statement in regard to the "thoughtlessness" of our former editorial. We do not know how to be more fair.

We no longer insinuate. Today we come down to the basis of the matter and lay our cards on the table. We have a man who will go with us tomorrow, when the present president is no longer on the council, and tell our critic that not so many years ago, he voted for practically the entire glee club when that organization was on tour. We have another man who voted three times in an election remembered by every man on the campus. We have a third who will tell of voting and checking names of men who were no longer meeting classes at this school. We have a fourth who tells us of seeing one man cast eleven ballots. There are others, but space prohibits their listing.

Such actions cannot be blamed on the council, unless it be indirectly. The constitution makes no provision for a councilman's presence in the voting room. That is the root of the whole argument — WE HOLD THAT AN AMENDMENT MAKING SUCH A PROVISION WOULD BE ONE OF THE FEW PROGRESSIVE STEPS MADE BY THE STUDENT BODY IN SEVERAL YEARS. We have the proof that such a reform is needed. Whether or not somebody will be offended by such a suggestion seems rather beside the point. Our guns may become heated, even red-hot, but we'll stick by those guns.

We realize the difficulty of a councilman's understanding evils about which he has no knowledge. Naturally, a man who has voted five or six times would not tell a student councilman, much less the president of the student body. But we cannot understand how the positive statement can be made that an election is straight because the number of votes tallies with the number of names checked. It is a known fact, at least among wide-awake members of the student body, that men have been known to have an enormous number of names on election day. —S. L.

To the Victors . . .

Tomorrow a new president of the student body, a partially new and untried council, editors of two publciations, and officers of the Y. M. C. A. take up the spoils of victory, some to begin work immediately and others to prepare to take over the reins next year.

To the new officers of the student body and the student council, as well as to those men who begin work next year, we extend congratulations. Many of you have taken over jobs that will not be at all easy to fill. In some cases you may even find that the men you succeed left shoes too large for you to fill. Certainly we can definitely say that, in the case of the men taking office tomorrow, you succeed men who have been conscientious in all that they have done, in all that they have tried to do. The lack of student cooperation in the enforcement of rules has of course hindered their work. You will face that same hindrance.

But whatever the success of your work may be, if you can say at the end of your term that you have been as conscientious as some of the men who have gone before, then you can rest assured that your efforts have not been entirely in vain. Tomorrow morning you take over the duties of student government. Good luck and the greatest success!

YOU'RE Telling US

ELECTIONS

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

It is certainly refreshing to see, in this day of sneering cynicism, that there are still some people left who, like Rousseau, believe in the innate goodness of mankind. So, it seems, is the attitude of a small minority who contend that all our school elections are held on a fair and legal basis. And yet, the proponents of this Pollyanna idea say in the same breath that there are never over two or three more votes in the box than there are students' names checked off the rolls. In other words, we are told that we have no right to protest against corruption at the polls so long as there is only a tiny, "insignificant" amount of corruption. Yet the president of the student body was elected last year by a majority of only TWO votes. What a fallacy!

The defenders of the integrity of our election system triumphantly declare that, since the student body names checked off during the voting always tally (within two or three votes) with the number of ballots cast, there can be no stuffing of the ballot box. Anyone with intelligence of a ten year old can observe the conditions and see that there are ways by which a large number of illegal ballots could be cast and yet the rolls would check with the ballots exactly. For the benefit of those who doubt this statement let us examine the system.

A student goes to the office of the O. D. to vote. The only officials present to superintend the voting are the Officer of the Day and his orderly. The voter hands his ballot to one of these men, who places it in the box, while the other checks the name on a student body roll. If the total number of ballots in the box is no larger than the number of names on the roll, the election is pronounced legal, and everybody lives happily ever after.

To some who have a mere superficial knowledge of our manner of carrying on elections, the above procedure may seem to be foolproof, but inquiring minds can easily see the possibilities of illegal voting. For instance, I have often passed by the O. D. office on election day when the door was standing wide open and not a person was in sight. Anyone could easily walk in, check off the names of several men not even on the campus, and drop in as many ballots.

Furthermore, who knows but that the O. D. or the orderly might follow exactly the same procedure. Without the restraining hand of a responsible student body officer these two would have ample opportunity to vote for sick, absent or deceased members of the student body.

The above is not mere idle speculation about what might happen, but is an exposition of events as I personally new them to have happened in many cases. It is safe to say that practically every other upperclassman who has paid the slightest attention to the way elections are handled has heard of various absentee voting from time to time.

The remedy for the condition is simple. Let the student council place two of its members at the polls to superintend the voting. The O. D. and orderly are too busy with their other duties to carry on an election properly. Besides, either of these two men might be a chronic procrastinator who would not hesitate to use the illegal method mentioned above. Only with two responsible men to watch the voting can there be any assurance of fair and square elections.

Let us hope that the new council, now coming in power, will do all in its power to make the elections clean and safe from ballot box stuffing. If they do not, however, it will be necessary for the student body to provide a workable plan by amendment to the constitution. —'36.

The Day Before Christmas

'Twas the day before Christmas
And throughout the class
The professor took his hair down
And mingled with the mass.

He forgot his logarithm-
And hid his horn-rimmed glasses;
He gathered up his galusses
And rudely waked his classes.

In lab they guzzed alcohol
And tore up all the maps;
The professor lost his slide-rule
In a friendly game of craps.

It was hop-scotch in the corridor
And leap-frog in the hall;
The fellow snatched the pickled brain,
We all played volley ball.

Oh, yes sir, we had fun no end,
The prexy and the boys,
And we toddled off to trundle beds
To dream of pretty toys.

The night Simon, Sr., had died, the house had been filled with his curses and muttered oaths. He had called Simon, Jr., to his bedside and snarled at his son that the head of the house of Sneerwell would soon be no more, and for him to grow a black moustache and slink around the community hissing at the rabble.

So young Simon grew a long black moustache which he waxed faithfully and tried to stroke with the same degree of savageness that old Simon had displayed. Young Simon would draw his black cloak around him and crouch villain-like with clinched fists and bared fangs before the mirror for hours and hours, but somehow he couldn't put his whole heart into his villainy.

The first few mortgages, he foreclosed all right, but he knew he was weakening and couldn't stand the gaff.

Victory In Basketball Division Gives Fraternity Ten Points Toward Trophy.

SCORE OF FINAL GAMES IS 20 TO 5

Defeating Kappa Alpha fraternity 20 to 5, Pi Kappa Alpha finally emerged victorious in the intramural basketball tournament sponsored by Blue Key, giving them 10 points in the race for possession of the coveted trophy donated each year by the honor fraternity.

Meeting Laurens dormitory in the first round, the Pi K. A.s trounced them by the one-sided score of 32-6, and then went on to win the championship, defeating the Alpha Lambda Tau's 22-14, and later the Kappa Alpha's.

The Pi Kappa Phi's, after getting off to a good start at the expense of Spencer dormitory, were eliminated in the second round by the Kappa Alpha's, who proved to be the dark-horse entry of the tournament.

Alumni dormitory took the Alpha Kappa Pi's into camp in the first round, eking out a 15-13 win. The Alumnites, however, were eliminated in the semi-finals by the K. A.'s.

The Alpha Lambda Tau's, after coasting to victory over the Beta Kappa's, 24-8, met the Pi Kappa Alpha's, who had previously defeated Laurens dormitory. The A.L.T.-Pi K.A. game proved to be the best game of the tournament, both teams exhibiting a championship brand of ball. The Pi Kappa Alpha's were put to an acid

Track Team Meets Birds Next Week

Presbyterian Outfit Expected To Be Strong In Track Events.

Coach Lonnie McMillian's Blue Hose track team is now finishing its preliminary limbering up and has just started the heavy work of the season in preparation for the meet with Carolina less than two weeks hence. The team is expected to make fully as good a record as that of the 1935 edition.

The Blue Hose are as usual stronger in the track events than on the field. Every event on the cinder path, with the exception of the high hurdles, is represented by at least one sterling performer. The relay team is also of high calibre, and has more than an even chance of being state champions this year.

The dashes will be ably taken care of by Joe Bradley, veteran senior trackster and captain of this year's team. Last year Bradley did as low as 9.9 seconds in the century and is expected to do as well or better during this spring. Bradley will be assisted in these events by Bill Thompson, in case Coach McMillian decides to change the latter from the 220 low hurdles to these events. Thompson, by the way, ran time dangerously close to the state record in the low hurdles during the past season.

Three middle distance men of undoubted calibre are out for the 1936 team, Jimmy Winget, Roy Forehand, and Joe Commander. The best times of the latter two in their best event, the 880, are around 2:01 and 2:06, respectively, while Winget runs very creditable time in his favorite, the 440 yard dash. These three will be seconded by Abe Briggs, Billy Burns and John Wells Todd, who made frosh numerals last year in the 440 and 880.

The distance runs are worrying Coach McMillian very little. In the mile he has Phil Adams, the blond flash who copped second place in last year's state meet. His best time is in the low 4:40's. Also running this event and the two-mile is Ralph Stowell, who hails from the state of Maine, and Colby College, where he went to school last year. The two-mile boasts Colin Hudson one of the best distance men in the state, with Preston Charles and George McInnes, letter man of last year, expected to account for plenty of seconds and thirds.

Although the low hurdles are not yet taken care of, Frank Waldrep will ably handle the high timber.

The field events, as stated above, are the team's weakest division. Rex Wilbanks and J. B. Jacobs are among the best in the state in the

Diamond Squad In Practice Game

Weldon Is Shifted To Field Because of Arm Injury.

A practice game in which the first team opposed a mixed nine of reserves and freshmen closed activities for another week within the ranks of the baseball aspirants.

The most important recent development has been the shifting of "Coon" Weldon to right field. Since the beginning of practice sessions, Weldon in fine form and went on to win the tournament.

The Pi K. A.'s showed their real ability in the final match with the K. A.'s when they piled up a 20 to 5 victory. The K. A.'s were outclassed in every department by a superior Pi K. A. five.

The defensive play of Billy Moore and Harry Shamhart was inspiring to their team-mates, as they handled the ball with amazing accuracy. Throughout the tournament, Shamhart was the spark-plug of the attack, dribbling and passing consistently to add to the confusion of his opponents. Winget, Pi Kappa Alpha forward, was in rare form throughout the tournament and he was the main factor in the success of his team. Boswell was held down to four points by the close guarding of Plowden, but he played a bang-up game.

OPINIONS ON HONOR SYSTEM GIVEN BY CAMPUS LEADERS

By A. K. Darby

The honor system of Presbyterian college was the subject of an impromptu discussion recently among several prominent students on the campus. The statements of these men are here presented as they were made upon inquiry. Their opinions concur in several instances, notably in the need for the system and its present failure.

Jim McClary, retiring president of the student body, volunteered the opinion that the honor system as it now stands is definitely a failure, but favored a continuance of the system in the hope that succeeding years might promote a change in student attitude that would insure its success.

George Oliver answered, upon query, that he has been an observer of the system since he first came to P. C., and that improvement in its working was very gradual, if at all; for he has been unable to see the increased success of the system in his observation.

Raleigh Shoemaker, president-elect of the student body, said he felt the honor system would remain in its present state of inoperation as long as students as a body refused to cooperate with the council in the enforcement of the system in all of its departments. As a cause for their non-support, he said that a distorted sense of honor probably was as much a cause as any other one factor.

Jim Collings, new vice-president of the student body, was emphatic in support of the system while admitting its present failure. He contended that college boys should realize that college in many ways tries to prepare them for life and its problems. Self-government, represented by the honor system and a student council, is a necessary step if a student wishes to become self-reliant and to learn self-honesty.

Johnny Chapman, a senior, said that it took years for a thing of this sort to work. Quoting Major Wysor, he set 25 years as a limit before which the honor system would not operate in intensity. He gave as his reasons the examples of successful systems and pointed that they all had their traditions as a background for their system.

test in this game, but came through has been working out with the pitchers and was counted on to be a mainstay on the hurling staff. Failure of an injured arm to heal, however, may prevent his doing mound duty, and Coach Galloway is grooming him for the outer garden position.

In Saturday's practice affair, the batteries were Suggs and Bird for the regulars, and Holliday and Forehand for the reserves. In the regular infield were Blackwell, Horne, Higbe and Harvin. Evans, Coe and Millsap were in the outfield. The opposing nine was made up of reserves and freshmen.

Coach Galloway is contemplating a game with some mill team, probably Judson, for Saturday of this week. Other such teams will be met as a prelude to the state college league campaign, which is scheduled to begin on April 1.

Anonymous Letters Not Be Published

Last week the editor of The Blue Stocking received an anonymous letter from out of town which the writer requested that we publish. Once again we wish it made clear that no unsigned letters will receive consideration for publication. It is not necessary that the name of the author be published, but the editor must know the identity of the writer.

Hereafter, no letter of more than 500 words will be published except in special cases in which more space is available.

FOUNDER'S DAY OBSERVED HERE

In presenting his topic for the Founders' day address, Dr. Little stated that every institution must have many men with the vision of a founder if it is to grow, but that it is to the original founder that our tribute is principally due. In describing the character of Dr. Jacobs he stated that the great work which he had done in [illegible] and unselfish vision. He stated that Dr. Jacobs' key note through life was unselfish devotion to his ideals and issued to the students of the college a challenge to imitate the life and ideals of the founder of the institution.

The service was dismissed by W. P. Jacobs, president of the college and grandson of its founder.

Walter Williams does well in the discus and shot put, but is handicapped by lack of weight. Then to complete the crop, Malcolm Hemphill is the only pole vaulter.

The relay team is expected to consist of Bradley, Thompson, Commander, and Winget. These men are a tried and true quartet and have more than an even chance to regain the crown lost to Clemson last year.

MAJ. WYSOR TO REMAIN AT P. C. ANOTHER YEAR

Major Floyd C. Harding To Replace Captain Beatty.

CHANGE EFFECTIVE START OF NEW TERM

The administration of the college has received official notice from the United States war department that Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., has been appointed to serve another year as professor of military science and tactics, and that Major Floyd C. Harding has been detailed to relieve Captain George S. Beatty, who will go to the general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Major Wysor has rendered excellent service to the school during his stay here, and the faculty and student body greet the news of his appointment with pleasure and enthusiasm.

The R.O.T.C. unit at Presbyterian college has had an excellent rating during Major Wysor's stay here. Each year at general inspection it has received the highest rating given.

The junior officers attending camp at Fort McClellan, Ala., have been awarded the genreal proficiency cup for the past two years in competition with the schools of the fourth corps area. In the 13 years that the cup has been awarded, Presbyterian college has received it six times.

Major Harding has been on active duty with the 3rd infantry, Fort Snelling, Minn., and will arrive here on August 31 to take up his new duties. Major Harding entered the army from the Iowa National Guard in 1917 and is a graduate of the infantry school and the tank school. He is married and has two children.

Tiger Delegation Holds 'Y' Servcies

Clemson Deputation Heard Here Thursday Night.

Continuing its programs conducted by visiting college students, the Presbyterian Y.M.C.A. Thursday night heard services led by a deputation team from Clemson college under the direction of Henry Mallone.

Mallone first introduced his team, which included a double quartet. Cadet Bainbridge then read the devotional and made a short talk on the parable of the sower, bringing out the fact that God puts men into three distinct classes and all fall into a definite place. After the talk by Bainbridge, the double quartet sang "Day Is Dying In the West."

In another talk, Cadet Mallone emphasized the fact that "the world is here today and passes tomorrow, but God is eternal." Also, in speaking of time-crowded days, he mentioned that "no matter how crowded days are, there is always time for Christ somewhere." Cadet Martin followed Mallone's talk with a violin solo, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life."

This was the second of a series of such programs scheduled by the Y. M. C. A. for this month, the Winthrop Y.W.C.A. having given a program here last Sunday, and another by the Lander Y.W.C.A. being scheduled for Thursday night.

Seniors To Meet On Thursday Night

Members of the senior class, in an endeavor to perpetuate the interests of the group, have drawn up a series of proposals which are at present under consideration and which will be voted on Thursday night.

The proposals include the establishment of a newspaper for the class, awarding of an annual memorial scholarship, regular reunions, and other measures that will tend to make the friendships formed permanent throughout the years.

R. R. Potter, president, stated this morning that the meeting, called for 7:30 Thursday night in the college chapel, is to include co-ed members of the class of '36 as well as male students. All students, both boarding and day, are urged to be present to discuss the plans.

PLANS FOR BALL NOW COMPLETE

Military and Home Guards Sponsor Week-End Dance Series.

Final plans for the army-home guard dance series, beginning Friday night and including a formal on the first night, a tea dance Saturday afternoon, and an informal dance Saturday night, have at last been completed, according to announcement from Cadet Lt. Col. R. R. Potter and Chairman George Oliver of the home guard.

Friday evening the R.O.T.C. unit is sponsoring its second annual military ball. This is to be a formal dance with the members of the military unit appearing in dress uniform. The climax of the evening is to be the grand march when Miss Mary Gillespie of Atlanta, Ga., and Lt. Col Potter will lead the column of advanced corps men and their dates under the arch of crossed sabres. The military department is also sponsoring the tea dance on Saturday afternoon.

P. C. And Converse Heard In Debate

Presbyterian's affirmative debating team met the negative team of Converse college here Friday night in a non-decision tilt which proved to be one of the most interesting of the year. Holman and Potter of P. C. debated against Miss Beam and Miss Ball, of Converse.

The debate was a non-decision affair, but one of the largest crowds ever to attend a debate here was present. The arguments were very interesting, being featured by brilliant and personal repartee.

P. C. has two more intercollegiate matches before the season closes, one a single debate and the other dual. The affirmative team meets the negative team of Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tennessee, here on Monday, March 30. The season will close on April 3, when the P. C. affirmative meets the Wofford negative in Spartanburg, and the Wofford affirmative debates the local negative team here.

PENLAND HEADS A.L.T.

Recent elections of Alpha Lambda Tau social fraternity named Jake Penland, Columbia, president for the coming year. In addition, Ernest Evans was elected vice-president of the group, and Penland was selected to represent the fraternity on the Pan-Hellenic council.

DRAMA GROUP SELECTS CAST FOR APRIL PLAY

Myra Wise and Lynn Jones To Head List of Nine for "Three-Cornered Moon."

At their meeting last Monday night the Sock and Buskin chose H. M. Wilson as its director and then by successive try-outs selected the entire cast of "Three-Cornered Moon."

The tryouts were judged by Elizabeth Blakely, president of the club, and Director Wilson. The cast selected includes Myra Wise in the female lead and Lynn Jones in the male lead. Others are: Frances Shaw, Warren Dickey, Polly Roberts, Eldred McLeod, Wandel Williams, Elizabeth Beatty, Thad Coleman.

After their first rehearsal on Tuesday night, Wilson stated that he was pleased with the attitude of the cast, but that it would take many more rehearsals before he could make a statement of what to expect on "opening night."

When the rehearsals for the main production are well under way, the director plans to begin work on a series of skits that he plans to present between the acts of "Three-Cornered Moon," which is to be presented on April 17.

CLASS ATTENDS STATE CLINIC

Abnormal Psychology Group Goes To Columbia.

Making a tour of the wards of the hospital and attending a demonstration clinic, the class in abnormal psychology paid its annual visit to the State hospital for the mentally deranged in Columbia last Thursday.

The class is taught by Dr. Jones, but is being held in his absence by Miss Norma Hallett, psychiatrist at the State Training school here. The tour through the hospital and the clinic were conducted by Dr. Chapman J. Milling, a graduate of P. C. in the class of 1923. During the clinic all types of dementia were demonstrated to the class and explained by Dr. Milling.

Five members of the staff of the hospital are graduates of Presbyterian college. Dr. W. P. Beckman, '20, is director of mental hygiene at the instiution and also conducts mental hygiene clinics at various places throughout the state. Other P. C. graduates on the staff are Dr. G. B. Carrigan, '17; Dr. S. B. McLendon, '25, and Dr. James M. Austin, '19.

Dr. Milling is also a prominent naturalist and is the author of several books of verse.

Wilson To Attend Debaters' Meet

Professor H. T. Swedenberg announced last week that H. M. Wilson would represent Presbyterian college at the national convention of Pi Kappa Delta, to be held in Houston, Texas, during the latter part of this month.

Wilson will leave on March 27 for the 1200-mile trip. The convention opens at eight o'clock on the morning of March 30 and runs through the evening of April 3rd. Delegates from all over the United States will be present at the meet, the largest of its kind in this country.

Wilson bears the distinction of never having lost a regular intercollegiate debate during his college career, and was captain of the negative team this year.

SEVEN NAMED TO HONOR FRAT

Four Seniors and Three Juniors Make S. K. A. Roll.

According to the announcement made by the faculty, seven new members were nominated to the local honorary scholastic fraternity, Sigma Kappa Alpha.

By the ruling that went into effect this year, four co-eds were enabled to share in these scholastic honors for the first time at Presbyterian college.

Seniors named to this, the highest scholastic honor on the campus, were Catherine Blakely, Elizabeth Blakely, Sara Cannon, and Hugh Holman. Juniors received into the fraternity were Sophia Sullivan, S. B. Campbell, Jr., and J. E. Patrick.

With the addition of these seven members, the total membership of the fraternity is brought to eleven, four seniors, Colin Hudson, Edwin R. Andrews, Tom Plaxico, and Cliff Johnson now being members.

TRACK TEAMS MEET CAROLINA

Varsity and Frosh To Open Season Friday Afternoon.

The 1936 editions of Lonnie McMillian's varsity and freshman track teams will open their sessions Friday against the cinder outfits of the University of South Carolina, the meet to be held on the fast P. C. track in the afternoon.

Although the Calvinists will be notably weak in some of the field events, the varsity will present a galaxy of veteran runners that the Gamecocks will find hard to outdistance. The freshman team, always an unknown quantity until after the first meet, has shown evidence of some excellent talent.

Trials for both teams were to have been held this afternoon. Due to the inclement weather of the past week, Coach McMillian has found it extremely difficult to whip his men into shape; therefore, times taken this afternoon were expected to be rather low.

To hold down the dashes, the Blue Hose will have Captain Joe Bradley, assisted by Bill Thompson. Winget and Commander on the 440, Forehand on the 880, Adams on the mile, and Hudson, Charles, and McInnes to handle the two-mile jaunt, complete the picture of the veterans who will take care of the Carolina runners.

Frank Wallace is expected to run the high hurdles and Thompson the low hurdles. If he does not do the dashes, Guerard, Hollis, and Thompson will take care of the broad jump, Beeman and Hemphill will do the vaulting, Jacobs and Guerard the high jumping, and Hipp and Williams will do most of the weight work.

Always famous for her relay teams, P. C. will this year have two men from which to choose her quartet. It is doubtful whether or not Carolina will enter a relay team, but, should this event be held, the P. C. team will come from Bradley, Winget, Forehand, Commander, and Thompson.

Yale Has Oldest College Magazine

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New Haven, Conn. — The oldest college magazine in America, the Yale Literary Magazine, [illegible] Saturday (Feb. 29) celebrated its 104th anniversary of its [illegible].

The [illegible] Yale [illegible] having had nothing [illegible] founding in 1836, the "Lit" has seen many [illegible] publications on the campus rise to meteoric glory and quickly fall into oblivion. During its entire existence, the magazine has not changed its form, except in 1882 when its cover was switched from brown to blue, a change that called forth such a storm of protest that the original color was readopted the following year.

The anniversary issue of the "Lit" contains articles by former editors and contributors who have since become famous, including Stephen Vincent Benet, Thornton Wilder, Phillip Barry and William Lyon Phelps.

THIRTY-SEVEN RECEIVE PRIZES FROM JACOBS

President Promises Speedy Action Wherever Possible.

POTTER TAKES FIRST PRIZE, McLEES SECOND

Prizes totaling one hundred and twelve dollars were awarded by President William P. Jacobs Saturday to 37 students who won places in his contest of suggestions as to how P. C. can be made a better college, R. R. Potter taking the first award of $25, Robert McLees the second of $15, and Ed Andrews the third of $10.

Seven prizes of $5 each were awarded the following: Power Garrett, Wilson, Smith, J. H., Sullivan, Dyes, and Holman. Those receiving one dollar each were as follows: Gasque, Heckle, Pitman, Winn, Hudson, Plaxico, Estes, Norton, Hollis, Love, Compton, Williams, R. W., Jones, T. Q., McClary, Wasson, Freesland, Holliday, Oliver, Nelms, Charles, Blakely, C., McLeod, C. H., Chapman, J. H., Wardlaw, Murchison, Booth, J. R., Tate.

In announcing the winners, Mr. Jacobs stated that the information he has received was worth far more to him than the amount of the prizes. He further stated that, although some of the suggestions would be impossible to put into effect immediately, he definitely expects to carry out as soon as possible all that are within his reach.

Open forum discussions of some suggestions about which the administration is doubtful will be held at an early date. All students will be invited to take part and campus questions will be discussed from all angles.

Mr. Jacobs, in speaking of some of his more definite plans, stated that, as announced several weeks ago, the college will provide an infirmary, an extensive commercial course, and lounging rooms under the direction and supervision of the Y.M.C.A. Although no announcement is yet ready as to its definite use, President Jacobs stated to The Blue Stocking that the Spencer home, immediately in front of Spencer dormitory, would be vacated in the near future, Dr. and Mrs. Spencer taking up residence in the president's home at the end of the plaza.

Due to space limitations of a four-page paper, The Blue Stocking is able to print excerpts from only a few of the letters submitted in the contest. However, the following are quoted be-

Low Grades and the Mid-Semester

For some obscure, confused reason or reasons, grades for the entire year have been startlingly below those of the 1934-35 session. Grades announced two weeks ago for the first month of the second semester showed a number of failures that tripled the number for the same period last year. Semester failures more than doubled failures of last year. Although this year's semester enrollment showed an increase over last year's of 49 students, the increase in failures far outweighs the enrollment increase.

What is the trouble and how can it be prevented? Does the fault lie with the student or with the faculty? Perhaps it lies with both. Saturday, grades will go in for the mid-semester reports. In the five days that remain between today and the end of the quarter numerous tests will be given, grades will fall and grades will rise. If the fault lies with the student, today is definitely the time to begin a correction of the fault.

Various causes have been advanced for the large number of failures. Too much outside entertainment, changes in faculty methods, overcrowding due to increased enrollment, general laziness — all have come in for some share of the blame. The student says that there is no more outside entertainment this year than there was last, and that he is no lazier in 1936 than he was in 1935. Faculty members say that there has been a decided decrease in the amount of studying done per pupil, and that any student who really works can pass practically any course. Answers of both throw light on the subject but offer no means of prevention.

As we have already said, perhaps the trouble lies with both faculty and students. Without a doubt, less studying has been done this year than was done last year. This can be corrected only by the individual student. Complaints have been made that many professors on the campus wait until the last four days of the last week to give monthly tests, thus throwing an unusual burden on the student taking an 18- or 20-hour course. Some professors do attempt to give their tests in the third week in order to lessen the strain. More scattering of tests would ease the burden.

All too often there exists no bond between faculty and students. Neither understands the other. Any system that might be devised to bring faculty and student closer together would greatly improve scholastic conditions.

A large increase in the amount of studying done by each student, the scattering of tests and parallel work by professors, and the establishment of a closer union between faculty and student body would cause a decided rise in grades.

The Dogs of War Are Barking

The daily papers and the radio news flashes tell us that France and Germany, like two small boys, are glaring across the council tables, each waiting for the other to make the first move. Unlike small boys, either has the power to throw the world into another great war.

It is inconceivable to think that France and Germany could go to war without dragging in Belgium, Russia, England, and the other powers linked by treaties both known and secret. Such a war would be but a repetition of the last world war, except that it would be fought on a much larger scale, with practically every weapon known to science. Allowing for the probable exaggeration of the powers of new gases, army equipment and fighting planes, it is still apparent that the next war will by no means be a tea party.

Only through the sanity, calmness, and clear-thinking of people throughout the world, of all ages, can war be averted if some minor border incident raises the spark. Rabid populations thirsting for blood and the scream of the bugle will carry the spark to the powder magazine. Millions of people throughout the world desiring nothing more than the right to peace and life will try to stop the spark before it reaches the powder. Whether or not the explosion will come will depend upon chance, the politicians, and mob psychology.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

MALCOLM NORTON, the man with the irrepressible grin, has been journeying over to Lander and Winthrop on each alternate Sunday. On the heels of this comes the news that he is to have a girl over for Military Ball. We have always thought highly of both of these schools, and therefore we await with eager interest to know which one has finally gained the advantage.

JULIUS BOGGS, baby-faced resident of Alumni dormitory, has at last gone in for courting in a big way, but recently his ardor has become a bit cooled. He came back from Pickens not long ago with a gory wound on the ear, which he admits was the result of a so-called "love bite" by his best girl. We wonder if that is also the cause of diminutive ROBBIE RODGERS' disfigured auditory apparatus.

BILLY MOSELEY, blithely walking out of Smyth dormitory toward Spencer the other day, came out of his spring reverie with a jolt when he suddenly saw two members of Clinton's local police force heading his way on the run. Turning quickly around he ran at breakneck speed up to the dormitory then bounded up the steps to seek Roommate Montague Jacobs' protection. Arrived at his room, he looked out of the window and saw that the cops were in the act of arresting a staggering bootlegger who had fallen exhausted in the middle of a field.

The bouquet of the week goes to ALLEN JONES for the fine quality candy his fair lady makes, and which bolstered the Keyhole's energy during a night of writing. It is hoped that she will make some of the same kind for Mr. Jones, for he has already promised more to the author, in exchange for certain concessions and immunities.

Tennis Season Opens Wednesday

TENNIS NEXT ON MURAL MENU

Play To Continue As the Weather Permits.

Now that the basketball tournament is over, the intramural sports program, sponsored by Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, will continue with the tennis tournament which will get under way as soon as the weather permits the competitors to limber up a bit.

There are men entered from every fraternity and dormitory, and "Red" Potter and George Beatty, ceded numbers one and two, respectively, are expecting keen competition from several aspiring racquet wielders. Potter is the defending champ and is placed at the top of the upper bracket, but there are a few promising courtmen who may be capable of dethroning him.

Because of the record-breaking number of entrants this year, Phil Adams, president of Blue Key, has announced that all matches must be played on schedule, and will be decided by one set. Only the finals and semi-finals will be decided by two out of three sets.

Play in the doubles tournament will get under way immediately after the singles champion is crowned, and the pool will see action on two successive nights as the swimming meet is run off. Plans are also being formed for a baseball tourney which will be played on the Saturdays on which the varsity squad does not have home games.

Nine Drops Tilt To Judson Mills, 11-3

P. C. opened its spring baseball schedule by dropping an 11 to 3 decision to Judson Mills in Greenville Saturday. It was the first practice game of the season and, despite the loss, Coach Galloway was well pleased with the showing his cohorts made, except for a few unavoidable miscues that were caused by the high wind.

Robby Rigbe of P. C., and Dudley of Judson, contributed sparkling plays to the game, even though they were handicapped by the elements.

The Judson assault was led by "Tap" Pack, rangy Judsonite, who batted in seven runs by virtue of his home run, triple, and double in five trips to the plate. Stokes and Alexander both hit safely twice out of four times at bat.

Higbe and Horne contributed the razzle-dazzle in the Blue Stocking attack, the former hitting safely two out of four times, and Shorty Horne securing a lone double. Horne was a bit erratic in his fielding, erring three times, but the high wind made perfect fielding well nigh impossible.

RACQUET CREW TO OPEN SEASON

Levi, Gregg, and Parham Are Veterans of Squad.

Due to unfavorable weather conditions, varsity tennis practice has been held up considerably. No definite team has been selected as yet, but Captain Alan Levi is prepared to announce the squad which will open the season here against Davidson March 25.

The veterans, Gregg and Parham, along with Levi, are sure to start. The two men for the other positions will be chosen from Creech, Woodward, Estes, Patton, Grey, and Johnston. Selections will be based on the brand of play exhibited by these men in the round-robin tournament now in progress.

To date only one round of this tournament has been completed, but it is hoped that the second round will be finished before the opening match. In the first round, Creech defeated Johnston, Woodward defeated Grey, and Patton won over Estes. All three matches required three sets to decide the winner.

Levi, Gregg, and Parham all looked good in practice, and are expected to be even better than they were last year. Parham looked especially good in doubles play, and, with Levi as a partner, will form a crack doubles team. Gregg and one of the new men will probably form the other doubles combination.

PEN-POINTS

"BLUE STOCKINGS"

To twentieth century P. C. students, the monicker, "Blue Stockings" applies to our various athletic teams.

But to eighteenth century England the term applied to a group of "female wits," or women of literary tendencies. This is probably the original use of the phrase.

One afternoon several years ago, P. C.'s twentieth century Blue Stocking football team was performing in exceptionally poor fashion. The eleven appeared sluggish and listless. Next morning's paper, in commenting on the game, compared the P. C. team's performance as being similar to the style of England's "Blue Stockings" of two centuries past. Very few readers caught the significance behind this criticism.

ACTIVITY IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Our athletes are about ready to launch into the spring and summer issue of the sports catalog. Baseball and track practice have been in progress for quite a while under the capable direction of Coaches Galloway and McMillian. The cinder artists meet Carolina on Friday in their initial appearance and the Galloway nine is already engaging in pre-season engagements with mill teams in preparation for the official college opening. Tennis activity is increasing daily.

We predict first or second place in the state standing in baseball, second in track, and a mediocre showing in tennis. But we're still wondering what will happen on September 16.

College Coops Form National Group

Indianapolis, Ind.— Representatives of college cooperatives in eleven states meeting here December 31 organized the National Committee on Student Cooperatives to speed the development of cooperative eating clubs, book stores, dormitory, gas stations and cleaning and pressing shops on college campuses.

Encouraged by the success of cooperative ventures on 19 campuses, the students formed the nucleus of a national association which is expected to expand into a permanent college organization during the coming year. Student cooperatives have made possible drastic cuts in living costs at colleges and have demonstrated that students can run their own businesses democratically on a non-profit basis. Wm. H. Moore, representing the Kimbark Cooperative at Chicago Theological seminary, was elected national chairman. Charles Paddock of Oregon, Cal Southerlin of Yale, and Paul Streik of Mt. Eden Theological seminary, St. Louis, were named regional representatives.

Medical Insurance Plan At Vassar

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Under Vassar college's new group insurance plan, a $12 yearly outlay obtains for a student insurance against hospital, medical and nursing costs in excess of $10 and not to exceed $250, and for surgical operations not to cost more than $250.

The plan was originated after one student had been killed and five others injured in a recent auto crash. It is contingent upon acceptance by 60 per cent of the student body of 1,150, and the insurers have committed themselves for only one year because of a lack of statistical information regarding group insurance on college women.

The policy would be in force during vacations and holidays and for seniors even after they had left the campus.

Saturday evening the "war lords" will give way to the "pacifists," as the non-military students stage their home guard ball. The plans of this dance have been in the hands of a committee headed by Oliver. This is the first year that such a dance has been attempted, and the non-military men are making a special effort to have it a great success. The music for all three dances is to be furnished by Paul Harmon and his "Blue Stockings."

Friday evening just prior to the military ball the R.O.T.C. unit will stage a formal parade under the lights of Johnson field. On this occasion the cadet battalion will pass in review before an honorary staff composed of the dates of the senior members of the military unit. The battalion is to be especially outfitted for the review in dress uniform, adcanced ers and white shoes.

The initial review will be commanded by the senior members of the unit. The junior class will then take charge and will parade the battalion past the reviewing stand to be inspected by the honorary staff. Since the public is invited to this evening review, a large number of guests from Clinton are expected for the demonstration. Cadet attendance at the review is not compulsory, but military leaders expressed hope that all members of the corps will attend in order to insure the success of the affair.

There will be four no-breaks Friday night, exclusive of the grand march, the first being a junior-senior military no-break. Saturday afternoon there will be two no-breaks, and Saturday night there will be four.

bring with them. Too many men are forming habits of laziness and intellectual slothfulness because it is too easy to stay here. The formation of those habits hurts them, and it hurts P. C.

To begin with a general statement, I suggest that you do all in your power to pull the college from the rut into which it has fallen, to replace the present feeling of defeatism among faculty and students with one of hope for the future. To do this, I would suggest that you make as many changes as possible, as quickly as possible, no matter how minute they may be, so that you will instill in the minds of all concerned the fact that this college is backed by one who realizes the significance of the word "progress."

Another thing that would help our campus is the matter of "rushing season." This season demoralizes the freshman's life and also that of the upper classmen. It puts everyone "off on the wrong foot" so to speak. It keeps everyone from studying and gives the new men a wrong conception of college. This is another important factor in the matter of failures. A good idea would be not to have "rushing season" until after the first month or until a certain length of time after school has commenced. It makes it mighty hard for one to get down to studying during this period or to start studying after it is over. It would also be advantageous to the fraternity and to the rushers in that they would better know each other and the matter would be more definite in the minds of each.

Isn't there supposed to be a check on rooms every now and then? Why not try it a while and hold students responsible for damages? Perhaps there would be much less breakage if it was coming out of the check from home. Is there any reason why students must live as animals when they need other training? Maybe all of us aren't adolescents and it is possible that we might like to live as people. Aren't we supposed to have study hours, or was that something I dreamed once?

If we are going to have co-eds, why not give them the same privileges as the boys? We have completedly failed to recognize them in any way. They are not allowed to vote, to hold office or to take any part in the class activities. I am not a co-ed and personally I do not approve of co-education, but I do believe if we are going to have them, that they should be recognized.

I think we should have better cheering at P. C. It seems as if the spirit was lacking at the football games. A cheer leader, or more than one, should be appointed for their ability, and the entire student body should be made to cheer at the games. I believe the mistake was in the uppr classmen expecting us rats to do all the cheering.

In this college there are a number of students who do not even attempt to do their work Such students are very detrimental to study and work. When a student's record shows that he is not passing a certain percentage of his courses, the college should require the withdrawal of this student from school. This would make the student entering this institution realize that he must study in order to have his name remain on the roll of Presbyterian college. It would also be a great benefit to the more studious members of the college in that it would liminate those students that regard college as a nine months vacation.

The Y.M.C.A. could be of immense value to the student body. This organization is in dire need of a set of rooms. With the things P. C. stands for, it seems almost ridicu... this group must ... without even on... its exclusive use.

conference officials announced they were satisfied that the Ohio governor was merely joking when he said, last October, that 15 Ohio State football players were on the state payroll and insinuated that athletic prowess won them their jobs.

The players obtained the jobs on their own initiative and through the help of personal friends, the report stated, were paid at the same rate as non-athletes, and did not hold more jobs in proportion.

Did you ever notice the difference in the aroma of Chesterfield tobacco?

Every person who knows about tobacco will understand this... for to get a pleasing aroma is just like getting a pleasing taste from fruit.

MILITARY AND HOME GUARD BALLS ARE GREAT SUCCESS

Paul Harmon Furnishes Music For One of Most Outstanding Series Ever Held Here.

RAIN PREVENTS NIGHT REVIEW OF CORPS

Opening the spring social season in superb style during the past weekend, the military ball of Friday evening, sponsored by the advanced corps of the Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. unit, was one of the most colorful occasions of the year, while the Saturday night dance given by the non-military students proved to be a highly successful and very popular event.

In spite of heavy rains which proved to be quite a hindrance, the military unit turned out in full dress uniform and contributed largely towards making the Friday evening formal an unusually colorful affair. The effect was carried out in the decoration of the hall, which was bedecked with red, white, and blue streamers and which bore witness to the good work of the freshmen who were drafted to furnish the manual labor. A number of guest officers from neighboring units were present at the dance.

The feature of the evening was the grand march, during which the members of the advanced corps led their dates under an arch of crossed sabres. The couples faced the orchestra while the national anthem was played and then went into the junior-senior lead-out. Music for the three-dance series was furnished by Paul Harmon and his orchestra.

The military department sponsored a tea dance Saturday afternoon and the series was concluded by the home guard ball Saturday night. This was the first dance to be given by the non-military students and was such a success that the event seems to have established itself as an annual occasion.

The moonlight review of the R. O. T.C. unit, scheduled for Friday night, could not be held because of the inclement weather.

STUDENTS LIST ALUMNI GROUP

Librarian and Reporter Find Number of Students' Relatives Were At P. C.

After an inquiring reporter had talked with students in almost every corner of the campus, Willard L. Jones, librarian, was able to complete a census for the alumni association which revealed that 16% of the present student body had members of their immediate family to attend Presbyterian college.

The results of this inquiry were not only of interest to the alumni association but they disclosed certain surprising facts interesting to the student body as well, such as the pairs of brothers and sisters here now.

There were found 50 students, members of whose family attended P. C., representing 45 families and 60 alumni. These 60 alumni included every member of one family, besides a grandfather and grandmother. The number of brothers was the largest, being 46, with five fathers and five mothers next, followed by two sisters and one grandfather and grandmother.

Many students questioned told of uncles, aunts and cousins who had attended P. C., and still others mentioned younger brothers who were planning to enroll there in the future. This indicates that the 16% represented in the census will have a tendency to increase from year to year.

While compiling the above census, it was noticed that there was quite a number of brothers and sisters here now, and an actual count showed that there were 20 pairs of brothers and three pairs of brothers and sisters coming from five different states

Hughes, MacLeod Awarded Medals

Senior and Sophomore Honored For Valuable "Y" Service.

A senior, Sam Hughes, and a sophomore, Eldred MacLeod, last week received the medals awarded annually by the Y.M.C.A. for meritorious service to the organization during the year.

Hughes is from Clinton and has done excellent work on the mission committee of the cabinet. MacLeod, from Bennettsville, has served creditably on the publicity committee.

In commenting on the awards, Y. M. C. A. officers stated that both Hughes and MacLeod had exemplified the spirit of unselfish performance of duty which the organization strives to obtain in all its work.

For the coming year, Hughes, being a senior, will no longer serve in an official capacity. MacLeod, however, is chairman of the publicity committee of the cabinet announced last week by President Chester Keller.

Chi Beta Phi Hears Clinton Physician

Chi Beta Phi, national scientific fraternity, had as guest speaker at its regular meeting on Tuesday night Dr. T. J. Peake, well-known local physician.

Dr. Peake presented an interesting discussion on "Birth Control," going into many varied aspects of the problem. "The State Training school, here in Clinton," said Dr. Peake, "is the most powerful argument that I can offer in defense of birth control. Pay a visit to this institution and you, too, will advocate this measure."

A large crowd of visitors attended, in addition to the members of the fraternity.

Last Copy For PaC-SaC Now In

Tom Plaxico, editor the 1936 Pat-Sac', announced today that the final copy for the annual was turned in this morning and that most of the other work is practically completed.

Printing will begin this week, with possible distribution tentatively scheduled for the first week in May. Although printing will be completed by April 10, distribution must as usual be delayed because of financial reasons.

From advance information, prospects seem to point to the fact that the 1936 annual will be outstanding

P. C. Prepares For Connie Mack's A's

American League Team To Play Blue Hose Next Tuesday.

VETERAN MANAGER TO ADDRESS CROWD

Final preparations will be made this week for the arrival of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, who will perform against the P. C. nine on April 7. The contest will draw a large crowd of fans from throughout the state, and local officials intend to make it a successful and interesting affair.

A new set of bleachers has been erected and a fence is in the construction stage. In addition, much work has been done on the playing field.

The major leaguers will bring their entire barnstorming personnel, inclusive of the famous Connie, a staff of coaches, publicity men, and the full team roster of approximately 30 players. Prior to the game, Manager Mack will make a short speech to the assemblage and other features may be presented to add color.

Coach Galloway will start Suggs, a brilliant southpaw, with Holliday the second choice. Forehand will be at the other end of the battery and the regular infield combination will be used. The outfield trio will include Evans, Weldon, and probably Coe.

The Athletics have made an impressive major league record in the past few years. For the past three years, the outfield has been in the process of rebuilding. This is a regular policy with the veteran Connie, whose action of purging the roster of its most scintillating stars a few years ago surprised the sport world.

Although he refuses to comment on his team's chances again such a formidable foe, Galloway is confident that his bunch will perform capably and accord the Elephants a good afternoon of practice. A former bright light in the big show himself, "Chick" knows his baseball, and the Blue Stocking nine is a fast-stepping organization as a result.

STUDENT BONUS PLAN SPREADS

No "Veterans of Future Wars" Chapter Discovered At P. C.

Organized by Princeton students in an attempt to kid the life out of war, the Veterans of Future Wars had this week spread to more than 50 chapters, throughout all parts of the nation.

Advocating for its major plank the immediate payment of a $1,000 bonus to all prospective veterans of future wars, the movement has taken on national proportions. To date, The Blue Stocking has been unable to discover a local chapter of the organization or even to substantiate the current rumor that prominent home guard students are meeting secretly in an endeavor to establish a strong Presbyterian college unit.

Not to be outdone by the male element, Vassar students organized on the heels of the VFW the first chapter of the Ladies Auxiliary, which was first named Gold Star Mothers of Future Veterans, but later changed because of popular indignation. The Vassar girls are agitating for a congressional appropriation to make it possible for them to visit Europe and view the future graves of future veterans.

The idea spread like wild-fire to colleges throughout the nation. The Ladies Auxiliary at the New Jersey College for Women began at once a drive for funds to erect a monument to "unborn" veterans of future wars. Torchlight parades, soap box speeches, frantic requests to the Princeton chapter for information concerning charters, consideration of lobbying students to be sent to Washington, crystallization of plans for a bonus march on the capital—all lent strength to the new movement.

An association of Future War Propagandists has been formed by Rutgers students, members demanding free tuition and government pay for the propaganda and atrocity stories they are to write in the future. Rensselaer Polytechnic institute followed suit in the organizing vein with the ...

TRACK TEAM OPENS 1936 SEASON WITH WIN OVER CAROLINA BIRDS

Cinder Men Raise Curtain On Current Season With 69 To 51 Victory Here Friday.

BRADLEY RUNS CENTURY RECORD-TIEING TIME

Presbyterian college's 1936 cinder artists made their seasonal debut with a 69 to 51 victory over Carolina's Gamecocks last Friday under skies that threatened to drench the somewhat softened track. In winning, the Hosemen took eight first places to the university's total of four.

Captain Joe Bradley furnished the biggest thrill of the meet with a scintillating performance in the hundred. The P. C. speed merchant covered the distance in 9.7 seconds to break the tape ahead of his rival, Epps, who was inches behind, and to tie the state record. Sharing honors with the Blue Stocking captain was Roy Forehand, who took first in the 440 and 880 events.

Spigner won the javelin throw, took third in the shot put and the 440 to lead the Carolina scoring. Other first places went to Craig, Taylor and Royster, and Farnum earned a tie in the pole vault.

The P. C. group showed surprising strength in the track events, winning all the dashes, the 880, mile and two-mile. Carolina men took both the hurdles and gained an even break in the field events.

The closeness of competition made the winner uncertain until the closing stages of the meet. Prior to that time, a nip and tuck battle had been in progress.

Summary:

100-yard dash: Bradley (PC), Epps (C), Lyons (C). Time: 9.7 seconds.

220-yard dash: Bradley (PC), Epps (C), Winget (PC). Time: 22.7 seconds.

440-yard dash: Forehand (PC), Winget (PC), Spigner (C). Time: 53.2 seconds.

Trackmen Meet Ga. U. Saturday

The Presbyterian college varsity track team, spurred on by its victory last week over Carolina, will meet Georgia's Bulldogs here Saturday afternoon.

The Saturday meet will open the season for Georgia and will be the second engagement for the Blue Hose. Last year the local team came back from Athens on the small end of an 81 to 47 score. Although Green, Georgia weight artist of last year, is ineligible for competition because of scholastic reasons, reports from the Bulldog camp state that track mentors have found an able substitute in Quinton Lumpkin, who will face the P. C. weight hurlers Saturday.

The spring issue of The Collegian, college magazine, featuring short stories, articles, poetry, humor, and drama, was distributed Saturday night.

Edited by George E. Oliver, Savannah, the third issue of the magazine this year continues to present an attractive lay-out and content. Featured on the center spread is a play by Robert McLees, "Wings Over Broadway," which portrays fantastic thought in an effective manner. Stories by Oliver, Hugh Holman, Jack Gasque, provide the fiction content, while R. R. Potter and Keitt Darby contribute an article each to round out the publication.

Editor Oliver announced this morning that copy for the final edition of The Collegian will be accepted immediately. Publication date has not as yet been definitely determined, but it is believed that the magazine will make its last appearance of the year around May 1.

Lander 'Y' Group Leads Program

To an attentive group of listeners on last Thursday night, the Lander college Y.W.C.A., led by Miss Agnes Corley, presented an excellent program on "The Negro In the Sight of God."

Miss Corley made an interesting talk on "The Negro In His Place," and was followed by Miss Louise Chambers, who brought out the "proven abilities of the Negro." The group brought with them, as an added attraction, a violin ensemble composed of Misses Norma Pitchford, Frances Felder, Grace Avant, and Miriam McKinney. This ensemble rendered several beautiful selections including "Let My Children Go."

After this, Miss Jackie Felder made a short talk on "Negro Poets."

Thursday night being the time when the old Y.M.C.A. cabinet retired from their duties and turned over the direction of the organization to the recently elected cabinet, a short meeting, at which both cabinets were present, was held immediately after the chapel meeting.

Why Not a Suggestion Committee?

The number of student suggestions received by President Jacobs illustrates the crying need for some organization or system by which the student body can make known to the administration its desires and its ideas for the improvement of P. C. Never before, as far as we know, has any great attempt been made by the college authorities to find out what the student thinks about the school he is attending and how he thinks it could be made a better institution.

Yet who is better able to suggest a change in a house than the man who lives in the house? It is practically impossible for an administration or a faculty, no matter how sympathetic it may be, to inform itself of the necessity for changes, for the addition of restrictions, and for the elimination of restrictions unless some connecting link is established with the student. Industry and labor have found it advantageous to establish better cooperation and, therefore, greater benefits to both, by the establishment of workers' organizations which recommend and suggest to the management means by which conditions detrimental to the common interest are removed and conditions helpful to each are strengthened.

The formation of some new organization or student committee which would hold regular meetings and which would make recommendations at specified times to the college administration would provide the president of the college a simple, methodical means by which he could keep his finger on the pulse of the average student and would provide the student an orderly means by which he could make his desires known. The large number of suggestions submitted in the recent contest demonstrates the vast store of ideas, some of them good and some of them bad, of which the college has never before availed itself. When you get down below the surface, you find that the management and the student are both concerned with the same endeavor — to make this a better school. From the selfish standpoint, students realized long ago that a better school means a better diploma.

Conditions will always arise that necessitate action by the administration and the student body. To conduct a contest every time such conditions arise would be satisfactory to the student but hardly satisfactory to the college. Yet how can the college authorities be apprised of student ideas and recommendations? THE ORGANIZATION OF A STUDENT COMMITTEE COMPOSED OF ONE REPRESENTATIVE FROM THE CO-EDS, ONE FROM EACH FRATERNITY, AND ONE FROM THE NON-FRATERNITY MEN IS THE OBVIOUS ANSWER TO A DESIRE FOR BETTER COOPERATION. The duties of such a committee would consist in the preparation of written recommendations to the faculty and administration at regular intervals, or a regular conference with the president of the college. Suggestions or complaints of the individual student would be submitted to his representative, who would in turn pass them on to those in authority.

The need for some organization of this type is clearly evident. We believe that the administration, already willing and eager for suggestions, would favor the plan. Certainly the student would favor it because it would have for its purpose the expression of his ideas in regard to college affairs.

Spring inspection, with its map reading, auto-rifle and innumerable other dreaded insjects, is less than a month away. The inspection will be held on the 22nd of April and the inspecting officer will be Major Don W. Ellis, on duty in Columbia. There will be no let-ups in drill from now till it's over, and the unit has again won the rating of excellent. Habitual gold bricks had better start meeting formation because there's no way of knowing who will be called out of ranks and questioned.

T. Upshur, captain of the rifle team and rated No. 1 on the list of bull's-eye putter-outers, is in line for a prize of a gold watch as a result of his scores made in the Hearst trophy matches. Besides being an excellent rifle shot, "T" is one of the best with a pistol in these parts.

All squad leaders had better be bearing down on squad drill because both during and before the inspection tests will be made to determine the best-drilled squads. The winning squad is to be excused from routine drill for the remainder of the year. This is a prize well worth working for. It gets plenty hot on Johnson field in May. There also will be special prizes for the best-drilled sophomore and freshman. A little extra time spent in the manual of arms might pay well for those ambitious enough to do extra work.

April 6th is army day. There are 140,000 R.O.T.C. students taking training this year—the organized reserves consist of approximately 100,000 reserve officers — our army today stands at about 140,000 men. It rates around 18th place among the nations of the world. With the great nations of Europe frantically arming to the teeth, our 140,000 seems but a very small safeguard should the need for them arise. Pacifists are continually harping on how militarized we are as a nation, yet statistics show that only one man out of every 1,000 men in the United States is a regular soldier.

With Europe in a turmoil, Benny can sit back and lick his spaghetti in unmolested glee. He can't lost regardless of how the diplomats decide to settle the troubled waters. Here's hoping they don't first pour oil on the waters and then set the oil on fire. These suave diplomats do all their cutting with their tongues. Consequently the pieces aren't very well hacked. They leave it up to us to attend to the minute details with bayonets.

All the beautiful girls and red sashes and write gloves are gone. It's the Monday after the week-end before and a dreary outlook indeed. Anyway, it was swell while it lasted and we hope the girls enjoyed it as much as we enjoyed them. The entire senior and junior classes are to be congratulated, especially the various commanders who so ably worked out the details of the biggest, most colorful military ball ever held at P. C.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

At a recent dance in Greenville, HARRIS GRAY, temperamental trumpeteer for Paul Harmon's Collegian group, was bitterly criticizing the trumpet music emanating from the orchestra platform. After he had thoroughly vented his spleen on the unwitting musician, he learned that the supposedly unharmonic one had just a few months previous completed his sixth year with Art Kassel.

RED WYATT, after three and a half years of comparative obscurity in the realm of romance, at last appears in his true light. It is reported that he was seen the other day (or was it the other night), riding through the streets of Clinton clasped in a warm embrace with a young lady, identity unknown to the observer.

NORMAN CREECH, of the musical temperament, has at last found the one girl who comes up to his level culturally. The young lady, having heard of his love of the finer things of life, sent him a program of some music festival or other in the capital city, and now he seems to be badly smitten, in spite of the fact that he has never seen her. Just a case of two kindred souls separated by the inexorable dictates of fate.

W. J. (TARZAN) LANGSTON, it is said, has at last found a mate. He even spurns N.Y.A. work some afternoons and walks home with her (carrying her books, of course). It would be all right, though, several students complain, if it were not for the that he continually annoys the ing students by singing "Pl lieve Mo" in the dining hall.

FRESHMAN TRACKMEN LOSE TO CAROLINA FROSH IN OPENER

Dick Little, Carolina, Ties State Record In 100-Yard Dash.

MILE RUN IS CHIEF BLUE HOSE THRILL

Winning ten of fourteen first places, Carolina's freshman track team defeated P. C.'s first-year outfit, 71 to 59, to open the season for both aggregations.

Running, in many cases, for the first time in competition, Coach Lonnie McMillian's charges were unable to stem the victory tide of the Bantam Roosters, who forged to the front early in the meet. In general, few of the times or distances were exceptional, probably due to the fact that both teams have found it difficult to obtain outdoor practice because of rain.

Dick Little, Carloina speed merchant, turned in the outstanding individual performance of the afternoon by winning first place in the century, the 220, and the broad jump, to capture 15 points and high scoring honors. His time of 10.1 seconds for the hundred equals the state freshman record set in 1935 by Rohr, of Furman, and his 220-yard dash time of 22.9 is one-tenth of a second slower than state record time. In addition, his broad jump mark of 20 feet, 8 inches, is barely short of the record set by Bill Thompson, P. C., of 21 feet.

From the P. C. standpoint, the highlight of the meet was the mile run. Won by Huntley, P. C., in rather slow time, it was particularly outstanding because of the home-stretch battle between the winner and Carson, a teammate. The latter trailed on the fourth lap, but sprinted the last 300 yards, only to lose by a narrow margin.

The summary is as follows:

100-yard dash: Little (C), Dennard (PC), Clark (C). Time: 10.1 seconds.

Mile run: Huntley (PC), Carson

Carolina Netmen Defeat Blue Hose

Levi Is Lone P. C. Winner In 4 To 1 Trouncing.

The University of South Carolina tennis team defeated the P. C. varsity team here Friday afternoon, 4-1, in five hotly contested battles. The doubles matches were rained out.

In the first match, Sammy Daniels, number one racket wielder for the state university, volleyed his way to a 6-2, 6-1 victory over George Beatty, who played number one for the Blue Stockings. Alan Levi, who captains the P. C. team, fought doggedly to win over Walker, the score being 6-2, 6-4. In a rather slow match, Carolina's Lipscomb defeated Parham, 6-2,6-0. Probably the most colorful match of the evening was the affair between Gregg, P. C., and McIntosh, Carolina. The final score was 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, for McIntosh, the tide of battle having changed on numerous occasions. In the final match of the evening, Norman Creech was defeated by Williams just as the rain began.

President Jacobs, coach of the tennis team, was well pleased with the showing his charges made and his firm beliefs are that he will produce a winning team after the members have become a little more experienced.

Nine Drops Game To Ware Shoals

Baseball Outfit Loses Second Practice Match.

Due to the inclement weather conditions during the past week, the P. C. baseball nine was able to play but one of its three scheduled practice games. The Galloway men have concentrated their practices on hitting and have begun to show a vast amount of improvement already since the game with Judson Mills two weeks ago.

In the lone game last Thursday with Ware Shoals, P. C. was nosed out by a single run, the score being 2-1. The game proved a success and gave the Blue Hose a chance to prepare themselves to meet Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

Pitcher Holliday allowed two hits in the first frame that counted for the two Ware Shoals runs, proving to be the margin of victory. P. C. managed to get a run across in the sixth inning, but never threatened to score again at any stage of the game.

Shorty Horne led the P. C. batting attack with two hits out of four trips to the plate, one being a long double. Willis, Ware Shoals batting artist, managed to get a pair of doubles from the deliveries of "Goof" Holliday to assume honors for the mill nine.

SHOOTIN' HIGH

Sincere and hearty congratulations from this department to William P. Jacobs—one of the best presidents in these here parts. If South Carolina college prexies would enter into competition for all-state honors, President W. P. would lead the list. At least that's our side of the story.

Fired with enthusiasm and a burning desire to accomplish great things, he can't lose. His activity is characterized by dynamic and determined action, confidence and unsuppressed energy. P. C. will profit. Our scholastic stock will rocket up, expansion will take place in every department, and athletics will reach a new high. Again, congratulations to an ideal leader. He's shootin' high.

BACK INTO THE FOLD

The seson 1936 marks the re-entrance of The Citadel into state baseball competition. The diamond sport is one of the features of a program of sports expansion being carried out by the military college. The school weekly and other agencies are working hard to firmly re-establish baseball as a major sport there.

We're glad to welcome the Bulldogs back into the fold. Although they will need some time to readjust themselves, the Charleston institution isn't lacking in spirit. Our best wishes for a smooth season and a successful continuation of the sport.

VERSATILITY DISCUSSED

Roy Forehand has the distinction of being the only four-letter man in school. He shades Joe Bradley in versatility by a baseball bat. The elongated Roy indulges in football, baseball, basketball, track and an occasional game of ping pong or monopoly. Horne and Higbe scintillate in a pair of sports, as do Elmer G. Holliday, Bill Thompson and other good boys. Ernest Evans, whose only love is baseball, is an example of the type who believes in "putting all his eggs in one basket."

Well, versatility discussed. So what?

A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

The simple mechanical details of cigarette manufacture are of surprising importance. Upon them depend the physical properties of the cigarette, such as weight, size, firmness, moisture-holding properties, uniformity of fill, uniformity of product—all of which have a far-reaching effect on the character of its combustion and the constituents of its smoke.

In the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes all of these properties have been standardized with care for the perfection of A LIGHT SMOKE.

Sells Stock In Self To Finance Trip

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Madison, Wis.—The self-financing system, brought to its peak by Max Baer when he sold some 200 per cent of himself to various managers under the belief that "per cents were like pieces of pie," has been successfully used by Rudolph Jegart, University of Wisconsin football player and sculptor, to finance a trip abroad.

Having sold all the shares available, Jegart left for France last week. Investors in the one-man corporation may look forward to dividends of oil paintings, water colors, or sketches on his return.

Jegart is the originator of "Kinetic Sculpture," using wire, wood and string as principal materials. His "The Lynching," in this medium won wide acclaim last fall, and he has won various prizes in other art forms.

Dr. Jones Returns From N.C. Hospital

Dr. Dudley Jones, of the college faculty, who has been undergoing medical treatment in a Charlotte hospital, returned to his home last week.

Dr. Jones is expected to again meet his classes regularly tomorrow. During his absence, abnormal psychology classes have been conducted by Miss Norma Hallett, of the State Training school, while work in South Carolina history has been carried on by James McClary, student assistant.

To top off the whole story, a Southern congressman has announced that he will introduce a bill within the next week or two providing for an immediate cash payment of the bonus to the Veterans of Future Wars in order that said veterans may enjoy the money while they are young.

Flat-Chested Folk More Intelligent?

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Minneapolis, Minn.—If your chest is flat, you are probably more intelligent than that fellow over there whose bulging, barrel chest interferes with his view of his feet.

At least so says Dr. S. A. Weisman of the University of Minnesota, who has spent lost of time peering and probing into the matter. He concludes that flat-chested persons not only have greater intelligence than the full-chested but are taller and heavier.

And that isn't all, either. Flat chests are no evidence of tuberculosis, nor of tendencies toward it. The deep-chested individuals have a better chance of contracting that disease.

PI KAPPA PHI SPRING DANCES NEXT WEEK-END

The Phi dances will open the spring season for P. C. fraternities.

Wilson Sixth In National Tourney

P. C. Delegate Only Rperesentative From East of Mississippi To Make Finals.

SPEAKERS ATTEND FROM 150 COLLEGES

Competing at Houston, Texas, against representatives of 150 chapters of Pi Kappa Delta, H. M. Wilson, Presbyterian college delegate, entered in the extempore speaking contest, captured sixth place, being the only speaker from east of the Mississippi to advance beyond the semi-finals. Wilson returned from Texas yesterday.

The faculty of the college selected Wilson to represent the school at the national forensic contests sponsored by Pi Kappa Delta fraternity, several weeks ago. Pi Kappa Delta is the largest society of its nature and has chapters in 150 universities and colleges throughout the nation. The contests, which are held each year, embrace every form of forensic competition and draw the best college speakers from all over the country. The majority of these contests are open only to teams of two or more men so that extempore speaking was the only phase in which Wilson was eligible to enter.

The rules of the contest required that each entrant draw a topic. One hour was then allowed for the preparation of an eight-minute address. The speaker could be challenged by the other contestants and was allowed two minutes for a reply. The topic drawn by Wilson was, "More Ships, Less Ships, No Ships." Speaking on this topic, he advanced to the finals, which were broadcast over the radio.

The excellent record made by Wilson is better appreciated when it is understood that he was competing against representatives of 150 colleges and universities from all parts of the nation. Many of the teams were accompanied by their coaches, while Wilson attended the convention alone.

Institutions which placed speakers in the finals were: Redlands, (Cal.); Baylor, (Texas); Augustana, (S.D.); Harding Simmons, (Okla.); Presbyterian college, (S. C.); and Sioux Falls.

KENNETH N. BAKER TO HEAD P. C. COMMERCE DEPARTMENT

KENNETH N. BAKER

To Be Associate Professor of Economics and Also Head of Appointment Bureau.

IS OUTSTANDING IN FIELD OF BUSINESS

(By Frances Spratt)

According to an announcement made by Dean Marshall W. Brown, Professor Kenneth N. Baker, Jr., of Newberry college, has been appointed associate professor of economics at Presbyterian college, in which capacity he will head the newly-created commercial department.

Mr. Baker also will serve as director of the appointment bureau which will aid students in securing positions upon graduation. Close contcat will be kept with a number of large corporations to aid in these placements.

By past experience, Mr. Baker is well qualified for such a position. He is an A. B. graduate of the University of South Carolina and a graduate of the Midwestern School of Commerce in Chicago. He has taken advanced work at the Waldo School of Commerce in Chicago and the University of South Carolina.

His business experience has been wide and practical. He has served as an assistant bank receiver, a cost accountant for a large corporation, and has been himself in the investment business. He comes to Presbyterian college from Newberry college, where for the past five years he has been director of the department of business administration.

Arrangements are now being made for a new and complete type of equipment for the commercial department, which, beginning next year, will offer a bachelor of science degree in commerce. The courses offered in this department will include accounting, money and banking, mathematics of finance, business statistics, economic history, insurance, public finance, business organization and administration, commercial law, advanced accounting, marketing, business psychology, labor problems, economic geography, business English, typing, shorthand, and public speaking.

Dean Brown, in seeking to determine student interest in the new courses, found that between 40 and 50 per cent of the present student body desired one or more of the new courses. Therefore, it is believed by college authorities that Mr. Baker will not lack for students in his work.

Mr. Baker's wife, Mrs. Katie Townsend Baker, is an accomplished musician and will possibly conduct private classes in piano. She attended Belhaven college, Jackson, Mississippi, Baylor college, Bolton, Texas, and spent two years at Chicago Musical college, of which institution she is a graduate. In addition, she was a pupil of the famous Moissaye Bogouslawski, and has had wide teaching experience.

SENIOR CLASS PASSES PLAN

Provdes For Organization To Perpetuate Group.

Members of the senior class, meeting last week, provided for the permanent organization of the group through the foundation of a perpetual alumni organization for the class.

In a second meeting on Thursday afternoon the class of '36 presented to a faculty committee arguments for the right of exemption from final examinations for all seniors averaging "B" on subjects. After some discussion of the matter, the student petition was denied. Class members based their petition mainly on the fact that when they entered school in 1932 the catalog provided for senior exemptions.

At the same meeting, plans were discussed by the faculty committee and the class group for the institution of some system whereby conduct of students in the dining hall might be controlled. Action on this question was postponed until a later date.

With the view of continuing the organization of the present senior class after graduation, the fourth-year men voted to form the class of 1936 into an alumni club which is to remain active after graduation. To encourage the permanent organization of the class, the seniors drew up a constitution for the alumni club. The plan which was accepted at the meeting calls for a class reunion every five years. A banquet financed from a class fund is to be given on each of these occasions

CONNIE MACK TO MAKE TALK PRIOR TO GAME

Battle With Big League Outfit To Be Called At 4 P. M. At Young Field On Campus.

LARGE CROWD IS EXPECTED FOR TILT

NO PLANS MADE FOR GAME'S POSTPONEMENT

Walter A. Johnson, director of athletics, stated this afternoon that the Philadelphia-P.C. game would definitely be played tomorrow if the weather breaks tonight or in the morning. Should cancellation be necessary, no plans have as yet been made for a future date for the game and Coach Johnson expressed doubt that such a date might be arranged.

With interest keyed up to a high pitch, Presbyterian college awaits the arrival of Connie Mack and his Athletics, who meet Chick Galloway's Blue Hose nine at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The big league organization comes to Clinton from a barnstorming engagement in North Carolina, arriving around noon. Just before the game, the famous Connie will make a brief talk to the assembled crowd. Other features may be added to the festivities.

An amplifying system, new bleachers, and other improvements have been made to the playing field, and college officials are prepared to care for the large crowd that is anticipated.

Accompanying Manager Mack will be 31 players, three coaches, publicity men, and others of the Philadelphia personnel. The team roster is made up this year, in the main, of young players. The pitching staff, for example, includes only one veteran, Dietrich. The stars of a few years back — Grove, Cochrane, Simmons, Walberg, Foxx and others, have been sold or traded to other clubs. In their place is a determined, ambitious group of youngsters—bent on attaining the fame of their predecessors.

The P. C. nine is one of the strongest in the state. Their coach is a former Philadelphia shortstop who reached the heights of success a decade ago. The Hosemen have progressed rapidly under his direction, and will be ready and waiting for their famous opponents.

The Athletics are in North Carolina today and following tomorrow's encounter with the P. C. varsity go to Greenville to continue their barnstorming tour against a Piedmont opponent.

Spring Holidays Begin On Friday

Spring holidays, instituted this year by faculty decree, begin Friday morning at 8 a. m. and end Monday, April 13, at 6 p. m. Students will leave, in the majority of cases, after their last class Thursday.

The addition this year of spring holidays to the college calendar is met with joy and thankfulness by a faculty and student body already beginning to feel the effects of spring inertia. All commentators expressed the belief that the holidays were a welcome rest before taking a scholastic homestretch interest with term papers, parties, and examinations.

Pi K. A. To Hold Dances Next Week

Announcement was made last week that Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity would hold its annual dances on Friday and Saturday, April 17 and 18.

The Friday night dance will be formal, while Saturday's will be informal, in the form of a bowery ball. Music for both occasions will be furnished by Paul Harmon and his orchestra. The series will be held in Copeland hall.

Last year's P. K. A. dances were among the outstanding social events of the spring season and it is expected that the current week-end will be equally successful.

Martin, Hudson Receive Awards

Colin Hudson, of Greenville, and Venable Martin, of Clinton, have received notification of scholarship appointments for graduate work, the former at the University of Wisconsin, the latter at Duke university.

Hudson is valedictorian of the class of 1936 and has been outstanding scholastically since entering school. He will take up his duties as an assistant in the department of physics at Wisconsin for the 1936-37 session in September.

Martin, son of the late Dr. A. V. Martin of the college faculty, also has been an outstanding student while at P. C. His [illegible] work in the department of mathematics at Duke [illegible] duties will begin in September.

Both men are members of the senior class this year and each has been outstanding [illegible] at the end of commencement.

Walter Johnson On Air Program

"South Carolina should not neglect the physical training program, but should build," said Coach Walter A. Johnson, speaking over station WFBC, Greenville, on the South Carolina Physical Education association program Wednesday night.

Beginning his speech, Coach Johnson told how the first physical educational program in school systems began in Germany in 1723 and some years later in Denmark; then in 1825, the first program began in this country in the New England states.

Johnson told next of the interest and value of organized athletics. He said that through participation in organized athletics a young man was preparing his future character, courage, and ability to carry on in his life work.

In order to carry out this program in high schools and colleges, the athletic director suggested that playgrounds and gymnasiums be built and that every student be required to engage in some form of physical training. As an example of this program, he pointed out the extensive intramural activities at P. C. for those not taking part in intercollegiate sport.

The Presbyterian college glee club quartet concluded the interesting program by singing the college alma mater.

Pi K. Phi Dances Held Last Week

Dancing to the strains of Paul Harmon and his orchestra, Pi Kappa Phi fraternity opened the spring fraternity social season Friday and Saturday nights at Lakewood country club with its annual dance series.

Featuring a formal Friday night from 10 till 2 and an informal from 9 till 12 Saturday night, the fraternity sponsored one of the most successful series of the year. Novelty numbers by the orchestra added to the attractiveness of the occasion. The rooms of the country club were colorfully decorated and added a festival aspect to the gala event.

Members of Pi Kappa Phi chapters from throughout the state, together with members of other fraternities on the campus and non-fraternity men, attended the series. Girls were in attendance from various girls' colleges of the state and from surrounding cities.

Hose Debaters Beat Cumberland

In their tenth intercollegiate debate of the year, Hugh Holman and Richard Potter defeated the negative team of Cumberland university here on last Monday night. Frank Karbaker and Roy Northern debated for the Lebanon, Tennessee, school.

Out of the ten debates which Holman and Potter have entered, they have won eight and lost two, winning Monday night by a two to one judges' decision.

The debate scheduled with Wofford for Thursday of last week was postponed until the latter part of April. This meet will close the debating season for both schools.

A Progressive Class

Installation last week by the seniors of a plan by which the unity of the group will be maintained marks the end of several class meetings for discussions and of much thought by class leaders. It follows as the night the day that this college will grow in strength and effectiveness as the alumni association grows in loyalty. If the class of '36 is able to follow the program it has outlined — a program that will keep its members in touch with each other and the school throughout the years — then it will have established a precedent on which future graduating classes can base their efforts to establish stronger ties.

Whatever the determination of administration and student body may be, a college will never attain the highest degree of service until alumni and school are bound together by bonds of interest and loyalty. How else may this more efficiently be done than through the organization of each graduating class into a compact unit that will preserve its interest in campus activities and whose members will preserve their interest in each other?

The class of '36, led by its progressive president, has charted the course for future classes and has set an example of determination for alumni chapters throughout the state and the South.

A Baseball Revival?

Tomorrow P. C.'s varsity baseball team will meet Philadelphia's famed Athletics. Although the Blue Hose nine is one of the strongest in the past decade, we are not primarily concerned with its chances for victory tomorrow afternoon. Ordinarily, the lust for victory is perhaps the predominant factor in an athletic contest. It may be tomorrow, but it will not be so with us.

The game is chiefly due to the efforts of Coach Chick Galloway and the athletic department. It will focus the eyes of the sporting world of the entire state on P. C. The advertising that the college will receive will be worth far more than a full page ad in the Sunday supplement. No matter what the score may be, baseball fans will realize that the college's athletic staff has not forgotten what was once the best loved game in collegiate circles, and the South Carolina College League, founded in the main by P. C.'s Walter Johnson, will take on new life as more interest is aroused in the sport.

Today we welcome the Athletics to the campus and wish both teams the best of luck, but, more than anything else, we go down below the surface and express appreciation to the coaches for their success in scheduling a big-time game for Clinton and P. C.

PASS IN REVIEW

— By —
SIMON LEGARE

The annual spring inspection is just around the corner and if this rain which has been bathing Clinton for the past few weeks doesn't stop maybe we'd better become a unit of engineers. At least we'd learn to build bridges from Spencer to the Science hall even if we can't practice extended order drill. Rain might save Haile but Major Ellis inspects rain or shine.

The juniors have begun to hear nothing but "camp" from the experienced seniors. According to them, it's the hottest place in all respects, on duty and off, that we'll see this side of the furnace doors. Maybe it will serve to reform some of the lads—a taste of the fruits of high (or low) living. The Major has already announced that the juniors are to include him in any plans they may have for painting the town. We wonder if perhaps the Major doesn't know a few shades of red which the young juniors haven't, as yet, heard of.

Keep your eyes on the juniors; any day now they should be blowing out in their new pink pants. This will be the first year in the past three that pink pants have been worn and they should add much to the looks of the uniform. Maybe the juniors won't rush back from drill to get their uniforms off after the advent of the pink pants and Sam Browns which they rate around the first of May. We wonder how Nichols studio will meet the demands for pictures which Nick will get when the heartaches of such lovers as Pitt Bird, Jim Collings, "Tarzan" Langston, and George McInnes see them in their new finery. Maybe "Tarze" will oust Captain "Red" Wyatt in the affections of the object of their mutual esteem.

Maybe if the juniors have many of those tactical walks "Fat" Wallace will lose that watermelonish gait the Major noticed while out drilling the other day.

At the ball last week, the corps was disappointed when Major Wysor failed to appear in the white uniform we had been told he would wear. Maybe he'll wear it for the moonlight review which it is rumored will be given the president some time after inspection.

Did you happen to see the tricky steps Captain Walter Johnson was using at the ball? "Coach" was stepping high and swinging 'em with the best of the boys. There is talk of "Coach" starting a dancing class in place of a physical ed class. "Woof-woof" can really push 'em around.

Big Jim Collings has been rated the best no-break crooner in the advanced military. He was heard going to town on My Dear at the ball. Captain Forehand sings a mean tenor, but a girl was overheard telling him that she was supposed to sing soprano, not him.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

Coach Walter Johnson, the man who handles the money for the athletic department, has at last parted with enuogh lucre to purchase a new pair of scales. The reason: Since LQUIS ANDERSON and ALFRED PLOWDEN started going out for baseball they have been weighing every day; hence the old set of scales completely broke down under their fairy feet. It is thought likely that Coach will charge the cost up to the breakage fees of these men.

JACK WITHERSPOON, newly-elected student councilman, is certainly showing his mettle in the new position. During a recent dance intermission his presence at the local Green cove became so obnoxious that he was ousted by force from said place of business. It seems to be the general opinion, however, that all he needs is the refining influence of a good woman to set him aright.

A certain upperclassman was seated in his room Thursday night absorbed in study, when the yell came that he had a telephone call. Reluctantly leaving his books, he went down to answer it. "Is this Mr. Blank?" he heard over the phone.

"Yes, sir," he replied.

"Well, my name is Harry Butler. I know your father very well, and when I saw him last week he gave me some money to hand you when I should arrive in Clinton. Meet me at the Clinton hotel, and I'll give it to you."

Gleefully the young man scurried out of the dormitory and started out, in long swift strides, for the hotel, in the heart of Clinton's business district. In less than no time he arrived there. He strode confidently into the lobby and walked up to the desk. "I, Mr. Harry Butler in?" he inquired. He added by way of explanation, "Er you see, I'm supposed to meet him here. He's got some money from my dad to give me."

The clerk looked mystified. Scratching his head, he searched through the register. Finally he looked up and replied, "There's no such person as Mr. Harry Butler here."

Student Blank's face fell. His plans for that big week-end faded into obscurity. Not knowing anything else to do, he turned away and sat down in one of the chairs in the lobby, as if to wait for the said Mr. Butler to show up. At that moment, a group of college acquaintances burst out of a corner where they had been gleefully listening to the conversation. Amid howls of loughter, the credulous student slung on his hat and facedly stamped out the door and the gloom of the night.

The rumor is now being circulated that JULIUS BOGGS is following in the footsteps of ELROD Mahe by beginning a career of "sweet take the 440, the Bulldog outfit The baby-faced student-councilman said to have made a late date Saturday night with one of the popular girls present at the guard brawl.

It appears that the morals of young women of our student body are being corrupted by one T. Rex hitherto known as the pride of Sumter county. The lanky senior has conquered the scruples, such as they were, of co-eds MAHAFFEY and GEE and has succeeded in making confirmed tobacco chewers out of them. Now the two girls have been using leisure moments to discuss cute boys they met at the last dance but rather are utilizing them to argue the comparative merits of Mail Pouch Plug and Brown's Mule.

University of Georgia Trackmen Down Blue Hose

VISITORS TAKE TEN FIRSTS IN DUAL MEET HERE SATURDAY

Final Score Is 84 To 47, P. C. Winning 100, 220, 440-Yard Runs and Relay.

TOWNS IN CHIEF STAR OF GEORGIA TEAM

Georgia's Bulldogs exhibited strength in the hurdles and field events to pile up 84 points and victory over Presbyterian Saturday afternoon. Chilly winds and generally cool weather kept the cinder artists from chalking up par performances in the dashes and other events. The final score was 84-47.

The feature events of the afternoon were the hurdles, starring the Georgian, Towns, who is holder of a world indoor hurdle record. The fleet Bulldog star easily won both hurdle events, and placed second in the 100 to take high scoring honors for the meet.

Pennington put on a last lap spurt to pass Adams and give the Georgians a small lead as the meet began. P.C.'s Bradley evened up things by winning the 100 and 220. After watching Winget take the 440, the Bulldog outfit began rolling up points and soon settled down to a comfortable lead.

Captain Joe Bradley was the most effective Blue Stocking performer. The Calvinist speed-merchant had little trouble winning the 100 and 220. In the relay, he ran in the number one position and gave his mates a wide lead that spelled victory in the end. Winget was the only other Hoseman to cop a first place, although Beeman shared a first with Roundtree in the pole vault.

Baseball Outfit Trips Mill Team

Nine Defeats Judson Mills, 3-0, Last Week.

Due to the unfavorable climatic conditions of the past week, the Presbyterian college baseball nine was able to play but one practice game, defeating Judson Mills, 3-0, Tuesday.

The game with Citadel, which was to have been played in Charleston last Thursday, was postponed indefinitely on account of the stormy and overcast weather. This game was to have been the first real test as to the power of the 1936 Blue Hose.

However, in the Judson tilt, the Calvinist aggregation came through splendidly behind the trusty southpaw of "Lefty" Suggs. At the outset of the contest, a pitching battle materialized between Suggs of P. C. and Gross of Judson, which lasted throughout the entire game. Suggs allowed four well-scattered bingles that did no real damage and the Galloway men garnered the same amount of hits, but managed to bunch them enough to put three runs across the pan in the fifth inning.

Horne and Weldon were the most brilliant players on the field for P.C., the former getting two well-placed singles off the slants of Pitcher Gross, and the latter slamming out a screaming tripie in the second frame. Coon Weldon also made several spectacular catches in right field to rob the Judsonites of numerous base-hits. Williams and Alexander were outstanding for the mill nine.

Wofford Netmen Defeat P. C. Team

Methodist Tennis Squad Too Strong For Presbyterians.

The Presbyterian college racquet-wielders lost an interesting match to Wofford in Spartanburg Friday afternoon, 5 to 2, Levi winning in singles, and Parham and Woodward in doubles.

Beatty, playing number one for the Blue Hose, lost to Mitchell in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4. Levi, in the second position, defeated Prince after the latter had made a brilliant rally. The scores were 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. These four squared off in the first doubles affair with the Wofford pair winning, 6-3, 6-4.

Snyder defeated Parham in the third singles macth, 6-0, 6-3. Ritter gave Wofford at 3 to 1 lead by defeating Gregg, 6-1, 6-3, and Garvin sewed up the match for the Terriers, defeating Woodward, 6-4, 6-1. In the final match of the afternoon, Parham and Woodward teamed up to defeat Thompson and Rogers in a long-drawn-out affair, 6-4, 7-9, 6-2.

The Hosemen meet Erskine on the local courts Wednesday afternoon of this week.

Hurricane Blanks Hose

Earlier in the week, on Monday afternoon, the Furman netmen defeated the Blue Stocking tennis representatives on the Clinton courts, 7 to 0.

The visitors had complete supremacy, winning the seven matches with fine tennis form. Practically all of the matches were close and hard-fought; however, the Hurricanes emerged victorious each time. The only match that furnished any real thrill for the spectators was the doubles contest between the two teams. Parham and Beatty, playing number one doubles, displayed a brand of flashy play but went down before the visitors in three hard-fought sets.

The entire Presbyterian squad seemed sluggish and showed themselves badly in need of practice. The team was weakened by the absence of Captain Levi, who was unable to play because of an eye injury.

Hose Meet Tigers Next In Track

The Presbyterian college varsity track team, smarting from its crushing defeat by Georgia Saturday, will meet Clemson this week, while the freshman team, after a two weeks' rest, will tackle the Tiger Cubs, both meets to take place at Clemson Saturday afternoon.

Probably Presbyterian's strongest contender for state meet honors, the Clemson aggregation will present stiff competition in practically every event. Last year the Hose were defeated on the local track by a strong Tiger team.

Trounced soundly by Georgia Tech Saturday, Clemson will be out for revenge, as will P. C. Folger, Clemson captain, ran the high and low hurdles in time below the state record marks for both events last week, stepping the high timbers in 15.2 seconds, and the low in 24.6. Kitchens' time of 52 seconds for the 440-yard dash was more than a full second faster than times made by P. C. runners in the two meets held thus far.

Clemson's relay team was defeated, Tech taking the event in 3:33. Tech took both dash events, the times being especially low for the weather conditions. With close races in prospect for the majority of the events, the Calvinist outfit will find its hands full Saturday.

McGILLICUDDY AND HIS MEN

At noon tomorrow, Cornelius McGillicuddy, of Philadelphia, will arrive on the P. C. campus. Following not far behind, will be the thirty-one players, three coaches, publicity men, and others who composed the make-up of the Athletics, Philadelphia's American league baseball representative.

Easily the most famous of the major league managers, Connie Mack is likewise the most colorful. A few years ago his teams were tops in the Big Show. A brilliant array of stars dotted the Mack roster, and the future was apparently rosy. But the aged Connie startled the baseball world by selling, trading, and in other ways purging the roster of his most brilliant performers. Simmons, Grove, Cochrane and others were turned loose. A group of comparatively unknown youngsters remained to carry on. Few were able to grasp the significance of the "Mack purge."

Then, somebody started turning back the leaves of baseball's history book. The era of Athletics domination many years ago was reviewed. After building up a brilliant team, and monopolizing honors for some time, it happened. Without a word of warning, Mr. McGillicuddy dissembled and did away with the powerful machine. Thus, we acquaint ourselves with the Mack policy of periodical rebuilding.

When the 1936 Athletics machine takes the field on the morrow, spectators will view a young, ambitions group of ball hustlers. Famous names will be lacking. The pitching staff includes only one veteran, Dietrich. But under the careful tutelage of their master, these unknowns of today may bud out into Simmonses, Groves, and Cochranes of tomorrow. So watch them. Watch a Mack team as it passes through the development stage. And in a few years, recall the machine of 1936—before it had traveled to fame.

History Class Leaves For Tour

After worry as to the possible cancellation of the trip because of bad weather and Dr. Jones' illness, the South Carolina history class leaves tomorrow for an extended trip into the lower part of the state. The class will travel in six cars and will be gone for three days.

The purpose of this trip is the visiting of noted spots in South Carolina's history. Dr. Jones will pursue his usual plan of lecturing on each of the spots visited on this annual trip. The itinerary provides that both of the nights be spent in Charleston, the chief objective in the tour.

The special points of interest on Tuesday are around Sumter and on the road to Charleston from Sumter. Stateburg, once the residence of several of South Carolina's great men, and still famed for the relics of these men, will be visited. Hillcrest, Joel R. Poinsett's home; Gillon, the home of Surgeon Anderson, and the home of Maj. Gen. R. H. Anderson will be points of interest. Continuing, Eutaw Springs, the Santee canal, Biggin church, Medway, Goose Creek church, the homes of Henry Laurens and Francis Marion are scheduled.

On Wednesday, Charleston is to be covered. The Old Town (Albemarle Point), the Stono river, city hall, slave market, museum (with a probable lecture by the curator), St. Philip's and St. Michael's churchyards, and other famous locales will be visited. The group will begin the return trip on Thursday.

Y.M.C.A. To Issue Frosh Handbook

A handbook to familiarize freshmen and transfer students with the college and its ideals will be issued next fall under the direction of E. F. MacLeod and a committee, Y.M.C.A. officers announced last week.

The first issue of the manual will appear in September, going to press this spring in order that it may be ready at the opening of school. It will contain information relative to fraternities, history of athletics at P. C., professors, military department, organizations, and other matter. It is believed by "Y" leaders that such a handbook will do much toward aiding the freshman in orienting himself to new surroundnigs.

Editor MacLeod stated today that preparation of copy has already begun and that printing will begin around May 15.

Military Frat Is Organized Today

A new campus organization, to be known as "The Musketeers," was organized by members of the junior military class this morning.

Members of the new group announced today that membership was at present limited to ten juniors, all of whom are leaders in the P. C. military unit. Present plans are that next year the military society will petition Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, for a charter.

The Musketeers will foster interest in campus military affairs and will probably sponsor the annual military ball next year.

Charter members listed this morning included the following: Freeman, Thompson, Collings, Legare, McInnes, Shoemaker, Bird, McSween, Plunkett, and Patrick.

Private Office Be Provided For Dean

Work was begun this morning on a private office for the dean, to be of a temporary nature and to take up a part of the space used in the general college offices.

College authorities, feeling that a private office for the dean is practically a necessity, made plans several weeks ago for the addition. Although the office space now available for administration, registrar, and general secretarial work is inadequate, the new arrangement will facilitate private interviews with Dean Marshall W. Brown.

and class officers will be elected to serve for the following five years.

Plans were made at the session for the foundation of a scholarship fund which is to be an objective of the class. The seniors voted to establish an award which will be given each year to some student attending Presbyterian college. The scholarship fund will be financed by the annual dues of the members of the class and is designed as a permanent award. Plans for a semi-annual class publication were also discussed.

Several other matters were discussed at the meeting, including the selection of a baccalaureate speaker for the commencement exercises. Although recommendations were voted on this issue, no definite decision has been announced.

Clinton To Stage Gigantic Spectacle

What is said to be the biggest event ever staged in Clinton will be produced tomorrow and Wednesday nights in the Thornwell orphanage chapel, "The First Commandment." Members of the cast include prominent Clinton citizens, P. C. faculty members and students.

Chester Keller, P. C. sophomore, will take the part of Joseph and will be supported by ten brethren. Marion Bird will portray the Pharaoh of Moses' time, while Professor H. T. Swedenberg will play the part of Gad. Supporting Bird in his Egyptian scene will be the Four Wise Men of Egypt, one of whom is Professor Neil G. Whitelaw, of the department of mathematics.

Others connected with P. C. who will take part in the huge Biblical spectacle are: J. H. Hunter, college business manager, as interpreter of various scenes; Dr. H. S. Fish, department of biology, as Joseph, father of Jesus; Ernest Arnold, as Helon; and three members of the P. C. quartet as Three Kings of the Orient.

The play has aroused wide interest in college circles and it is believed that a large crowd will witness both performances. Admission for students will be 25c.

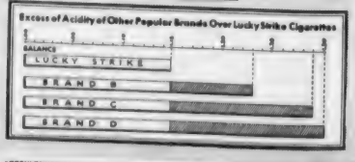
Each Puff Less Acid
A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes.



They include preliminary analyses of the tobacco selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("Toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product.

All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

SUMMER SCHOOL, OFFERING VARIED COURSES, OPENS JUNE 8

Six Weeks' Session Will Be Under Direction of Dr. Huntley of College Faculty.

NUMBER STUDENTS ALREADY ENROLLED

Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, who will act as director of the Presbyterian college summer school this year, announced last week that the six weeks' period will begin June 8 and last through July 17.

Although no definite plan has been decided upon as to courses to be included, Dr. Huntley stated that in all probability mathematics, education, modern languages, English, and, possibly, history and science courses would be listed in the curriculum. The tentative faculty includes Professors Sturgeon, Spencer, Monts, Woodworth, Graham, and Huntley, all of whom are members of the regular P. C. faculty.

Credit may be obtained for one full year's work in any subject offered. No student may take more or less than two courses in the summer session and each six week's course will give the student credit for a semester's work in the subject.

A tuition fee of $15 will be charged per student, board and room not being offered by the college. Accommodations, however, may be secured in homes convenient to the campus.

Dr. Huntley further stated that, in addition to regular undergraduate work, the summer school will offer a means by which teachers' certificates may be renewed.

Sigma Kappa Alpha Banquet Tonight

Sigma Kappa Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity, will hold its annual banquet tonight in the college dining hall, Dr. Henry W. Snyder, president of Wofford college being the principal speaker of the evening.

New members of the group, elected several weeks ago by the faculty for outstanding scholastic work, include Hugh Holman, Sara Cannon, Elizabeth Blakely, Catherine Blakely, Sophia Sullivan, Stuart Campbell, and Joe Patrick. Tom Plaxico, Ed Andrews, Colin Hudson, and Cliff Johnson, elected previous to this year, bring the total membership to 11.

In addition to members of the honor fraternity, students who this year made the dean's list will be special guests.

McLeod To Lead Ministerial Club

At its last meeting, the Ministerial club elected Cliff H. McLeod, Ocala, Fla., as president for the coming year. Virgil St. John, Charlotte Courthouse, Va., was elected vice-president, and D. M. Morrison, McClellanville was chosen secretary.

McLeod is a rising junior and has been active in various religious affairs on the campus. St. John and Morrison are rising sophomores and have shown a wide interest in religious activities on the campus. St. John served as freshman councilman this year and was recently elected sophomore councilman.

HARVIN TO HEAD K. A.

Harry T. Harvin, Manning, has been elected president of Kappa Alpha, Furman Wallace, Chester, vice-president, and Ernest Propst, Winnsboro, secretary, according to announcement this week from the social fraternity.

Recently initiated into the chapter were the following: Harris Gray, Greenwood, Miss., George Beatty, Clinton, June Moore, York, Delson Reynolds, Washington, Ga., Jake Berry, Griffin, Ga.

'Musketeers' Pick Ellis President

Julian Freeman, batallion sergeant-major, was named vice-president, and Allen McSween, first sergeant of "C" company, was elected secretary and treasurer. The other members of the fraternity are Pitt Bird, Jim Collings, Ben Legare, George McInnes, Joe Patrick, George Plunkett, Bill Thompson and Raleigh Shoemaker.

Tomorrow night's dance is to be given at 10 o'clock and will last until 2 o'clock, during the course of the evening there will be four novelty dances and the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity lead-out. The grand march, which is to precede the fraternity lead-out, will be headed by Major R. E. Wyse. The Saturday night affair is the bowery ball. ALLISON GIVES EXHIBITION ON LOCAL COURTS

Jack Stockton of New York; Peyre Kennedy and Bill Childs of Spartanburg, Also Here.

LARGE CROWD IN ATTENDANCE

Clinton tennis addicts got a taste of the best last evening as they watched America's top-ranking amateur, Wilmer Allison, go through his paces and trim Peyre Kennedy, state champion, 6-2 and 6-1, under the floodlights of the College View courts. This was the feature event of a colorful program enthusiastically applauded by a large crowd.

Allison started off slow and let his opponent gain an even break in the first four games. From then on the national champ was complete master of the play. He took four straight games, to win the first set, and had little difficulty subduing Kennedy in the final set. Both performers got in some pretty shots during the course of play. Kennedy's serve was apparently his strongest asset, while the smooth and polished Allison excelled him in every department.

Following the feature singles event, Jack Stockton of New York, met Bill Childs, of Spartanburg, South Carolina No. 2, in another singles exhibition.

The rotund New Yorker, a former national ranking player, boasted a slow and exacting style of play that gave him a 6-3 victory over his elongated opponent. Stockton drew several good-natured laughs from the crowd by his occasional humorous mannerisms.

Stockton then teamed up with Allison to beat Kennedy and Childs, 6-0, 6-3, and thus brought the nocturnal show to a successful close.

From the preliminary match between the No. 1 doubles teams of P.C. and Erskine through the final doubles, the show was greatly enjoyed by the crowd that

P. C. STUDENTS AID IN RELIEF WORK IN STORM STRICKEN AREA

Among the group of people engaging in relief work following the disastrous Gainesville tornado were six P. C. boys—Jim Brewer, rushing to the stricken city fearing for the safety of his family and finding them safe, Bo. Degner, Warren Dickey, Tom Estes, laValle Parham, and Marion Parham. The young men journeyed over to the stricken city only a few hours after the catastrophe, and began to help the remainder of the workers immediately upon their arrival.

The five youths, arriving as they did, immediately after the disaster, were confronted with the most awful scene of destruction any of them had ever witnessed. The business section of the city was a total wreck, and will have to be entirely rebuilt. They had little time, however, for sight-seeing, since the need for workers was to urgent. The sextet offered their services to the relief officials and were set to work in an improvised morgue, formerly a church, which was located in the center of the storm area.

The work performed by the P. C. boys was that of identifying the dead bodies of unclaimed persons. According to one of the boys, the dead bodies were so badly mutilated that they could be identified only by their teeth, and many are still unrecognized. The appearing corpses were stored in the morgue until they were in such condition that they will carry with them the rest of their lives.

While the other students returned to Clinton after a day's stay at the scene of the disaster, Jim Brewer, whose home is in Gainesville, remained to aid in the work of clearing away wreckage and identifying bodies. Only a few days ago Dean Brown received a telephone call from a prominent Red Cross executive engaged in the work requesting that Brewer be allowed more cuts from classes in order to assist in the identification of the dead.

DELAYED

Due to the fact that final work was not resumed until Tuesday morning after spring holidays, this week's issue of The Blue Stocking was delayed until tonight.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

And to sigh with regret, genuine and deep, that the spring holidays should have been for a week, rather than a mere four days.

* * * * * *

What ever became of a tennis ball hit by one of the big boys last night. We never did see it.

* * * * * *

Why professors won't accept dissertations on spring fever in place of the term papers we begin to hear so much about around this time of the year.

What! No Orators?

Shortly before the spring holidays we noticed in various daily papers pictures of entrants in the state college oratorical contest and, before and after the contest, newspaper stories listing subjects of each contestant and giving results. Yet, search as we would, we found no mention of a P. C. representative; nor can we remember any chapel request for student oratorical candidates, any attempt to arouse interest or to secure a representative.

Several years ago we'd recall that an attempt was made to revive the interest of potential student speakers and that the response was just about as encouraging as a thunderstorm thirty minutes before a baseball game. P. C. has been blessed this year with an excellent debating team and men who have done outstanding work in all types of forensic work at various conventions and conferences, but such we have to ask-tracts for state oratorical honors. It is our firm belief that this college is just as capable of securing oil first honors in a state oratorical contest as it is capable of placing among the honors in south-eastern and national forensic conventions. We have local contests. Why not have them earlier in the year and send the winner to the state contest?

Especially beneficial to students intending to enter the ministry, almost essential for students of law, and of practical benefit to every man who will come in contact with his fellows, oratorical training has a very definite place in the extra-curricula activities of this school. We do not know why student interest in competitive speaking has fallen to such a low ebb, or why interest seems to have centered in the debating team, although debating is probably even more important than oratory; but we do feel that something should be done about the situation.

In addition to personal experience to be derived, the lack of a representative in the state oratorical contest each year is, to say the least, negative advertising for P. C. For a college that has become noted for its broad participation in all phases of athletics, publications, and forensic endeavor, this institution presents a strange paradox by the conspicuous absence from the oratorical contest of P. C. delegates. The barrenness of the P. C. oratorical field has seemingly escaped the public eye for the past year or two, yet it seems unlikely that it will continue to do so. An institution entering the expansive era this college is destined for cannot afford to overlook a single detail. Through student interest and continued faculty or administrative prodding, we believe that next year we shall be able to discover without much difficulty a P. C. representative in the list of oratorical contestants.

Thinking and the College Man

College students, they were saying, don't think. They don't know how to think. They probably know how to memorize unimportant fact, how to "cram" for final examinations, but they just don't know how to do original thinking. They can learn historical facts but they aren't able to base progressive thought on those facts. They said much more, but the listener grew tired.

Is it true that modern education is making robots of American youth? We are not, being more or less on the stand ourselves, capable of answering. Yet, looking around us at the boys who have met the same classes we have, looking at ourselves, the case for the defense takes on a rather dark aspect. We see boys who can recite perfectly any assigned lesson, but we know that they are pitifully unable to face life and to obtain the respect of their associates. We see other boys who can take out an opposing tackle or halfback with the greatest of ease, but who cannot answer the simplest question on current events, unless it concern the life of "Andy Gump" or "Popeye."

Perhaps, after all, it is true that the average college student of today is more concerned with the betting odds on the Detroit Tigers than with the prospect of war in the Rhineland. Germany and her marching legions are far away; baseball is as near as the practice field. But how else except through making college youth conscious of difficulties facing the world and giving them, or helping them to give themselves, the ability to think how those problems may be met can the nation expect to rise above war and crime and crooked politics?

We do not know whether it is true. We are too close to the situation to be able to form a fair opinion as to whether or not colleges are making robots of students. But if they are, if memorization of unimportant facts has become the chief method of our colleges in developing the power to think, then they have failed dismally in their duty to the country and to the student.

COLLEGIATE REVIEW

A course in etiquette offered by Muhlenberg college, Allentown, Pa., has attracted 298 students.

A University of Tennessee coed has decided the depression's over. She was named codirectress of a million-dollar estate.

Cleveland college, Ohio, students must complete semester grades in physical fear.

Earnest Propst claims he earned an average of $1,992 last year.

Annapolis expects increased enlistments. Legislation now pending would allow each congressman five, instead of four appointments.

Hiram college, Ohio, celebrated leap year by ordering all men in at 12 every night, giving co-eds complete freedom.

Duke university plans for a centennial celebration in 1938 include construction of two new buildings, enlargement of the library to accommodate 500,000 volumes, and funds for scholarships.

More than 50 Yale graduates are presidents of American colleges and universities.

"The right to remain unmolested and unmurdered is worth more to a people than what one finds to be right. Prohibition is, to the most of its acolytes." Harvard President James Bryant Conant records his conception of academic freedom for the benefit of Massachusetts' legislative committee advocates.

"After all, it is necessary that we all speak alike? There always will be conventions of pronunciations that no educated man can afford to neglect, but variations in minor matters should not be suppressed." Boston university's Prof. William G. Hoffman stanchly defends regional variations in speech.

"And yet the paradox of the situation is that now, just when we must need freedom and fearlessness of the school's handling of the basic issues of the time, waves of popular hysteria against a free and fearless scholarship begin to beat over the schools."—Glenn Frank, U. of Wis.

CAMPUS CAMERA

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

A certain student, wearing his hat down over his eyes in the approved Al Capone fashion, was told that he looked like Don Tuten. Desperately he grasped his fedora and thrust it on the back of his head. Then, scarcely had he placed it in its new position when his critic burst out, "Haw, haw. Now you look like Professor Swedenberg."

The impressionable student again snatched off his hat, slapped it down as far over his eyes as possible, and slunk dejectedly away.

During the past week or two there has been an alarming increase in the amount of "snaking." This phenomenon is always associated with dances at P. C., but it seems that lately the vicious practice has grown so much that the more conservative minds on the campus are viewing the situation with genuine alarm. If conditions continue from bad to worse some of the smoothest Don Juans in school will join the stag line at the next dance.

TOM ESTES, one of the earliest exponents of snaking at P. C., was in rare form at the last dances. However, Tom seems to be slipping in some respects, fofr he neglected that one little fine joint that insured secret, successful snaking. Late-dating at the home of girl was staying, he took her to his fraternity room. The victim, ever, being a man of safe, conservative temperament, used good judgment to go back to fraternity room which he had (after she had pleaded ness). There the unfortunate was caught with hte goods.

April Fool's day went by unnoticed among the students but a few curious incidents the attention of the more discreet members of the student body. them were the following:

1. "Windy" Cross, leader of rough-and-ready element on floor Spencer, changed his under
2. Dr. Brimm failed to make tion of the Parousia and the ania in sophomore Bible class
3. Professors Brown and Kell let out classes before the bell
4. George Oliver appeared in on time with his hair nicely and parted.
5. Butter was served in the hall at all htree meals.
6. The afternoon mail was immediately after dinner.

Blue Hose Track Teams To Meet Furman Saturday

ERSKINE NINE DEFEATS P. C. AT DUE WEST

ostly Errors Contribute To 6-2 Defeat At Due West.

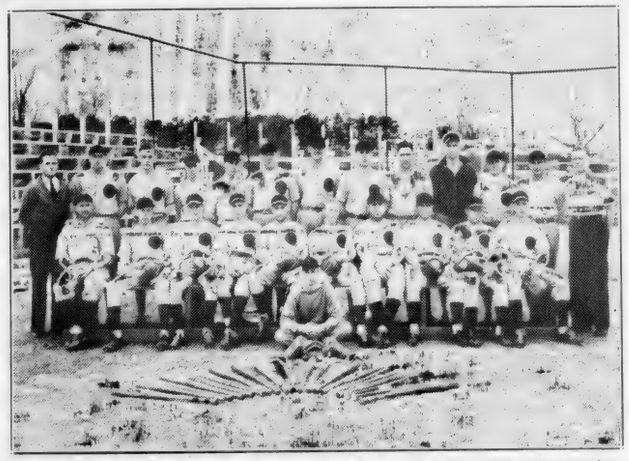
In the second diamond engagement the week, the Galloway nine from . C., boasting one of the strongest ams in the Palmetto loop, dropped 6-2 decision to the Flying Fleet om Erskine, at Due West. The game as played under very unfavorable onditions, fielding being made most difficult by the winds.

"Goof" Holliday started the game in the mound for the Calvinists and ave a very creditable account of imself until he wrenched a muscle his side. His valuable services may e lost to the team for a week or ore. Holliday was relieved by Commander, who in turn was relieved by Red" Wyatt in the closing stages f the game.

Forehand smashed a triple to lead he Garnet and Blue attack, and Whitesides, Erskine second baseman, layed a hustling ball game.

Newberry Wins, 4-3

The Blue Stocking baseball nine, after winning its first loop game, was osed out in a close return tilt here onday afternoon by Newberry, the core being 4-3.



The game was literally stocked with ostly errors, three miscues being harged up to each side. Hick Harvin, ose third sacker, let in the tieing and winning runs on his wild throw o first base. Coon Weldon played his usual fine game, while Thompson, who hit for the circuit in the third nning, was outstanding for the visitors.

The P. C. baseball team, despite early-season losses, is expected to finish high in the state loop standing. The Hose meet Clemson Friday ond the Clemson field.

BLUE HOSE TRACK AGGREGATION SWAMPED BY STRONG TIGER TEAM

Final Score Is 86 To 45; Bradley Continues Good Work.

Clemson's trackmen copped ten first places and shoved strength in almost all events to roll up 86 points and decisively whip the P. C. cindermen in a meet held last Saturday. The Hosemen registered only 45 points against the Tigers.

Carter won the high jump and high hurdles and placed second in the low hurdles to lead the scoring. Joe Bradley, P. C. dash star, added two more stellar performances in the 100 and 220 to his growing list. His time in the century was 9.8, a fraction slower than his surprising time in the Carolina meet.

The Hosemen excelled in only one event, the pole vault. Hemphill, Beeman and Jacobs combined to give their team a clean sweep. The only other first credited to the Calvinist team came when Joe Hollis leaped a distance of 20 feet, 10½ inches to win the broad jump.

100-yard dash: Bradley (P), Tribble (C), Berry (C). Time, 9.8.

220-yard dash: Bradley (P), McCoy (C), Tribble (C). Time, 22.0.

Two-mile run: Hinson (C), Charles (P), Joyner (C). Time, 10:48.4.

Netmen Trounce Erskine In Second Straight Victory

Win Yesterday, 4 to 3; and Last Week, 6 to 1.

Trailing 3 to 1 with only three matches left to play, P. C.'s varsity tennis team turned on the steam here yesterday afternoon to defeat Erskine's Flying Fleet by a 4 to 3 decision, the Hose outfit winning straight matches after beginning the comeback.

Joe Gettys, Erskine No. 1 player, turned in what was probably the most polished performance of the afternoon when he defeated Alan Levi, P. C. captain, 6-0, 7-5. Last week Levi defeated Gettys in the opening gun of the matches played in Due West.

"Cotton" Parham fought through three sets with Williamson, of Erskine, winning 6-3, 5-7, 7-5. Perhaps the closest match of the entire afternoon's play, the battle between George Beatty of P. C., and Calhoun, of Erskine, went three sets, 2-6, 11-9, 6-3, Calhoun coming out on top.

The Levi-Beatty doubles team won by default, while the Gregg-Parham outfit trounced Erskine's Gettys-

HOSE TO FACE BAPTISTS ON MANLY FIELD

King, Hurricane Star, Expected To Give Much Competition.

Having suffered its second successive defeat last week, the P. C. varsity trackmen will meet the Furman Hurricane Saturday on the track of the Baptist institution.

Last week Furman trounced Wofford, but lost the preceding Saturday to a strong University of Florida outfit. Especially outstanding in the Wofford meet was Bob King, Furman weight man, who took first place in the discus, javelin, shot and high jump, to pile up a top score of 20 points. King, in taking first honors, tossed the discus 133 feet, 1 inch, the javelin 155 feet, 9 inches, heaved the shot 42 feet, 8 inches, and then high jumped 6 feet.

Scott and Rohr, both of whom turned in hundred-yard dash times of 10 seconds flat, are expected to give P. C.'s Joe Bradley plenty of competition. Anderson, of Furman, last week stepped the 440-yard dash in 53.9, but covered the same distance the week before in 53.2. Stevens, high and low hurdler, is expected to give the Hose plenty of trouble.

Although P. C. will take the field a slight favorite because of a marked advantage in the track events, pessimists point to Furman field superiority and look for anything to happen.

Frosh Trackmen Lose To Cubs

Losing by a heart-breaking three-point margin, the P. C. Blue Sox track team journeyed to Tigertown Saturday to suffer defeat at the hands of Clemson's Cubs.

Diminutive Jimmy Dennard sprinted the century and 220-yard stretches, and handled the broad jump, winning first in all three and piling up high scoring honors of 15 points. Coming next in the list of Hose performers was Hurdler Reynolds, who raked in 10 points when he tripped the high and low timbers for two first places.

Although the track was comparatively soft, the frosh outfits found little trouble in setting some excellent times. The jinx of inadequate ability in the field events continued to ride the Presbyterian first-year men.

Friday, the Sox will meet Furman's Little Hurricane on Manly field, at Greenville, while the varsity meets the Baptists' strong aggregation.

Class Visits Spots Of Historical Note

Annual Trek To Charleston Proves of Much Interest and Benefit To Students.

Leaving three days before the beginning of spring holidays, Dr. Dudley Jones' class in South Carolina history last week completed its annual tour of points of historical interest throughout the state, the main [illegible] of the [illegible] Charleston.

The trip included several interesting old spots between the towns of Clinton and Charleston which took up the better part of the first day. The second day was spent in visiting the old houses in Charleston which have contributed to the making of South Carolina history, terminating with a trip to the gardens.

En route to Charleston, the class stopped at Biggen Church where they visited the grave of Sir John Carthage, the Henry Laurens plantation and Goose Creek church—all of which contributed to the making of South Carolina history.

Early on the morning of the following day, the class started its tour of the city. Their first stop was the Charleston museum, the first museum in America. Here they delved into relics of the past, including a collection of pistols, pottery, Egyptian mummies, wall placques, eye glasses used by the makers of early South Carolina history, and also an exact reproduction of what a drug store looked like during South Carolina's infancy. After this trip the class visited places of interest in the city, such as the battery, the Pringle house, and the old slave market. These visits were followed by a trip to the original site of Charleston.

FIVE JUNIORS ARE TAPPED BY BLUE KEY FRAT

Jacobs, Love, Collings, Shoemaker, Patrick Chosen By Local Leadership Group.

Total Membership Now Reaches Sixteen.

Phil Adams, president of the local chapter of Blue Key, national honorary leadership fraternity, has announced the election to membership of five new men, all of whom are rising seniors and active participants in campus affairs.

The new men include the following: J. B. Jacobs, Sadler Love, Jim Collings, Raleigh Shoemaker, and Joe Patrick. The total membership of the leadership group now stands at sixteen.

Jacobs is captain-elect of the 1936 Blue Hose football team and a member of the varsity track team. As a football player he was especially noted during the past season for his outstanding punting ability.

Love, of Rock Hill, is editor of The Blue Stocking, managing editor of The Collegian, and a member of the PaC-SaC staff. Socially, he is a Pi Kappa Phi.

A member of Beta Kappa social fraternity, Collings was recently elected vice-president of the student body, and is active in Y.M.C.A. and glee club work. His home is in Atlanta.

Shoemaker is president of the student body, comes from Charlotte, N.C., and has been active in student affairs. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Recently elected editor of the 1937 PaC-SaC, Patrick, of Covington, Ga., is also associate editor of The Blue Stocking, a scholastic honor student, and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Open Forum Held By 'Y' Last Week

A new venture, an open forum, took place at the Y.M.C.A. meeting Thursday night when a general discussion on the subject, "Christ's Place in God's Scheme of Things" was led by Cleveland Bradner. Preceding the discussion, George McInnes read an article on "Mortality" and painted life as it would be without Christ.

The main idea of the discussion was that man travelled one road in the beginningg but later sinned and was confronted with two roads — the one leading to righteousness and eternal happiness, the other leading to sin and eternal punishment. Then God sent His Son, Christ, to form a breach between the roads that man might repent and cross over to the righteous life.

This type of program is principally an experiment by the Y.M.C.A. and, from all appearances, met with the approval of those in attendance. It is thought that this will be the trend of the weekly meetings in the future.

Intramural Swim Meet Next Week

Its tennis tournament considerably hampered and slowed by inclement weather and lack of court space, Blue Key last week announced that the annual intramural swimming meet would take place on Tuesday, April 28.

The swimming menu will include the following events:

(1) 100-yard dash—free style.
(2) 60-yard dash—free style.
(3) 40-yard dash—free style.
(4) 40-yard breast stroke.
(5) 60-yard back stroke.
(6) Medley relay, 120 yards, three men swimming 40 yards each.
(7) Relay, 160 yards, four men 40 yards each.
(8) Diving.

Points awarded for places will be as follows: first place, 5 points; second place, 3 points; third, 1 point. For first place in the accumulative scoring for the entire meet, the victor will receive 10 points toward the intramural cup; for second, 6 points; for third, 2 points.

DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT PLAY AT 8:00 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

"Three-Cornered Moon" To Feature Myra Wise and Lynn Jones In Lead Roles.

(By Louis Heckle)

Presenting "Three-Cornered Moon" tonight at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Florida Street school, Sock and Buskin, newly-organized dramatic club, will stage its first performance since the group's reorganization.

The play is a modern comedy in three acts, concerning a New York family whose widowed mother, after successfully weathering the depression, solves another financial problem with the help of her sophisticated offspring.

Myra Wise and Lynn Jones, in the two leading roles, will have the greatest share of responsibility on their shoulders tonight; however, their performances during rehearsals have been a reassurance to the director. Frances Shaw, as the mother, will be seen in a difficult but interesting character part.

P. C. STUDENTS IN AUTO WRECK

Uninjured, But Occupant of the Other Machine Killed.

Striking an automobile that had just turned over about a quarter of a mile outside of Greenville on the Laurens road, two Presbyterian college students, Johnny Hughes and Billy Burns, were slightly injured in the smash-up that resulted Saturday night, in which the occupant of the other car, Butler Miller, 60, Simpsonville, was killed.

Ashby E. Johnson, Columbus, Ga., driver of the car containing the P. C. boys and managing editor of The Blue Stocking, was uninjured, as was J. B. Hafley, the fourth occupant of the car. Johnson stated this morning that, although he had been tentatively cleared by eye-witnesses, he was to attend the inquest to be held this week. He was not detained.

J. B. Smith, Laurens, who witnessed the accident, stated that Mr. Miller, driving a model T Ford, apparently lost control of the machine when another car swerved in front of his automobile and that it then turned over and was struck by Johnson's A-model Ford. Both cars were badly damaged. Miller was rushed to General hospital, Greenville, in an ambulance, but was dead when the city was reached.

Hughes and Moore, the former a member of the junior class and the latter a sophomore, were given first aid treatment at General hospital and then dismissed. Both were attending classes this morning.

Pi K. A. Series Is Enjoyed By Many

The past week-end brought with it dances on Friday and Saturday evenings sponsored by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, music for the dances, which were given in Copeland hall, being furnished by Paul Harmon and his orchestra. Both occasions, the PKA formal on Friday and the Bowery ball on Saturday, were pronounced successes by those who were present.

Members of the fraternity and a number of invited guests gathered Friday evening for the PKA formal dance. The features of the occasion were four no-breaks and a grand march which was followed by the Pi Kappa Alpha lead-out. Saturday was the occasion for the annual Bowery ball. This dance was made colorful by the gaudy and brilliant costumes worn by the guests to carry out the impression of a bowery dance. During the course of the dance prizes were awarded to Tom Valley and Elizabeth Beatty for the most original and distinctive costumes.

The presence of a number of out of town guests and of returning alumni added to the interest of the dance.

Blue Key Fraternity Moves On Cheating

Campus Group Agrees Not To Cheat and To Report Any Member Seen Cheating.

Realizing the need for definite reformation of the Presbyterian college honor system, Blue Key, honorary leadership fraternity, Thursday night passed an amendment to the local Blue Key constitution by which members of the group ppledged themselves not to cheat and to report to the student council any other member whom they see cheating.

The amendment further provides that the president of the fraternity shall announce this rule to the student body during the first week in October and shall request student cooperation in eliminating violators of the pledge from the group.

Passage of the new rule followed several meetings for discussions, during which time various plans for honor system changes have been discussed. Blue Key leaders believe that through a gradual crystallization of

S. K. A. HEARS DR. SNYDER AT YEARLY MEET

Wofford President Addresses P. C. Scholastic Fraternity At Banquet Thursday.

Sigma Kappa Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity, held its annual banquet Thursday night at the college dining hall, with Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder, president of Wofford college, as the principal speaker of the evening.

Dean Marshall W. Brown explained the nature and purpose of the fraternity, stating that Dr. Snyder was speaking to the upper ten per cent of the student body. Only the upper five per cent of the junior class is eligible for membership, and the upper five per cent of the senior class may be elected.

The speaker was introduced by William P. Jacobs, president of the college. Dr. Snyder, said Mr. Jacobs, would long be remembered as the outstanding educator of South Carolina.

Dr. Snyder, in his address, stressed the value of real scholarship and hard application, saying that in college we were actually living four years of life itself, and not preparing for life outside of college halls.

In addition to the eleven members of the fraternity, invited guests included the faculty and the students from the freshman and sophomore classes who made the dean's list for the last semester.

CAMPUS RADICALS WATCHING COMING INSPECTION WITH ALARM

Cries of "Down with the military" and threats of vicious wrist-slapping from dormitory windows as the R.O.T.C. crept past in file on the trail of an imaginary enemy were typical of the new attitude inculcated on the campus by the local communist cell, headed by Comrade Cliff McLeod. Marxist McLeod admits his only purpose in attending college in South Carolina is to observe first hand the technique of Sandlapper boll weevils, which he believes can be adapted with great success to "boring from within." McLeod motto: "More Dirty Linen On the Calvinist Campus," smudged shirts being the universal symbol of conversion to communism.

With shades down to shut out the blazing March sun, amid flickering shadows caused by the wavering flame of candles wedged with picturesque appropriateness into (empty) bottles furnished by sympathizers Arnold and Tate, McLeod and his minions (to wit, "Proletariat" Penland, "Down with Capitalism" Charles, and "Class-War Wilson) plotted perversely to poison Sergeant Young, plant TNT under the office of the professor of military science and tactics, and to pour acid on the immaculate uniforms awaiting delivery by "Capitalist" Commander (this last the idea of Penland).

The group also considered pouring lead down the barrels of all the muskets in the armory, the idea being that the consequent excessive weight of the weapons would cause the corps to mutiny and to throw them down. Said McLeod, "Revolution might possibly be precipitated, and our purpose of Class war advanced another step. Hurrah for Stalin!"

The Marxist group operated by approaching a prospect; if he refuses to sign up his name is inscribed on a roll with a black "x" along side, indicating that he is "to be abolished after the revolution."

Comrade Charles especially favors the soiled shirt clause in the McLeod manifesto: "More and better dirt . . . any kind of dirt . . . I can revise it for my column, just so it's dirt." He revealed that communism proposed to abolish corners, in order to get at prosperity to abolish IT. "Prosperity begats bourgeois content and capitalism."

Annual Inspection To Begin Tuesday

Moonlight Review of Corps Tuesday Night First On Bill.

After two weeks of intensive review, the Presbyterian college R. O. T. C. will stand its annual spring inspection Wednesday with Major Dan Ellis, Columbia, as the inspecting officer.

An unusual feature of the inspection will be the moonlight parade on Johnson field Tuesday night, when the corps, in full dress, will be reviewed by President Jacobs and Major Ellis. Heretofore, the dress parade always has been held on the morning of inspection day, but under the floodlights new glamor will be added.

The inspection will include not only drill and practical subjects, but the theoretical courses as well. A tactical problem will probably be given the corps on Wednesday morning.

The unit has maintained a standing of "excellent" for the past several years, and indications are that this ranking will not be lost.

MAY HOLD MEET UNDER LIGHTS

Johnson Endeavoring To Place State Meet At Night.

Walter A. Johnson, director of athletics, stated this morning that the state track meet would probably be held at night this year, introducing the first state meet ever held beneath the lights in South Carolina.

Coach Johnson also stated that he planned to attempt today changing the Wofford varsity and freshman track meet scheduled for Saturday afternoon to either Friday or Saturday night, probably Saturday night. It is felt that by holding meets at night a large number of local and out-of-town people would be able to attend who would otherwise be unable to do so because of business complications.

The new amplifying system was installed last week and it is believed that this, together with improved jumping pits in front of the stands and other outstanding features, will make the state meet on May 1 and 2 the most colorful ever held in South Carolina.

Juniors To Elect Leaders Tomorrow

Members of the rising senior class will meet tomorrow morning immediately after chapel for the election of class officers for next year, it was announced this morning by Julien Freeman, president of the class.

Coeds and day students, as well as regular boarding students, are urged to be present in the morning.

NEW BILLS ARE PROPOSED FOR CONSTITUTION

Election, Cheating Penalty, and Campusing Changes Advocated In Proposed Measure.

Supervision of Elections Provided In New Move.

Three constitutional amendments, providing for council supervision of elections, diminution of the cheating penalty, and carrying over of campusing penalties until after stated holidays, were proposed this morning at a regular student body meeting.

The election amendment, introduced this morning by student council and proposed several weeks ago in the editorial columns of The Blue Stocking, provides that one councilman and two designated members of the student body shall be in charge of all elections. At present, elections are in charge of members of the student body, no councilmen being required.

Introduced by Blue Key in an effort to secure better cooperation for the student council in honor system matters, the second proposed amendment provides that the cheating penalty be, for the first offense, a minimum of two weeks suspension, rather than expulsion, as is now the case. Roy Foreland, presenting the proposed bill, said that Blue Key believed that a less stringent penalty would permit more cooperation.

The third proposed amendment provides that a campus penalty placed on a student shall not require him staying on the campus through stated holidays. All such time, however, is carried over until after the holiday or holidays.

The complete amendments, which will be voted on a week from today, are as follows:

Article XI, Sec. 4. "The ballot-box shall be in charge of one student councilman and at least two members of the student body, authorized and designated by the student council, who shall be known as the managers of the election."

Article IX, Sec. 1. "Penalty for cheating: first offense, two weeks suspension, indefinite suspension or expulsion, as the case demands. For the second offense, expulsion shall be the mandatory penalty."

Third amendment: "If a man is campused and the penalty includes a holiday stated in college calendar, the campus will be suspended until after the holidays. The amount of time lost during the holiday must adjust after the man's return."

Kappa Alpha Gives Series Next Week

Beginning with an informal dance on F[illegible] night, Beta Pi chapter of Kappa Alpha social fraternity will stage its annual spring dance series, music for the occasion to be furnished by Paul Harmon and his orchestra.

The Saturday night dance will be formal, thus reversing the Pan-Hellenic custom of the informal dance Saturday and the formal for Friday night. The Friday night affair will last from 10 p. m. till 2 a. m., while the Saturday night formal will begin at 10 and last till midnight.

A number of alumni of the chapter, members of other campus fraternities, non-fraternity men, and chapter representatives from other schools are expected to attend the series.

Engagement Of Sims Announced

The engagement of Miss Katherine Truesdale, Bethune, to Bob Sims, '36, has been announced by the parents of Miss Truesdale, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Z. Truesdale.

Sims, of Rock Hill, was prominent in various affairs while on the campus. He was president of the student body, captain of the football team, outstanding heavyweight boxer, member of Blue Key and other college organizations.

Announcement of the engagement to Miss Truesdale will be received with interest by student and faculty.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

While at the same time we express our approval of all amendments introduced at student body meeting this morning by council and Blue Key.

* * * * * *

If the freshmen will shake tomorrow as we shook several years ago when the inspecting officer roved here and there between the ranks.

* * * * * *

And to congratulate Blue Key for its realization of the need for honor system changes and its initiative in instituting steps leading toward a more efficient, honest method.

* * * * * *

And to express the sincere hope that Major Wysor's boys will come out as well tomorrow and next day as they have done in the past, thus bringing credit to their instructors, their school, and to themselves.

A School For Gentlemen

The P. C. student body, long renowned for its sportsmanship, for its athletics, its R.O.T.C., and its fight-to-the-finish spirit, seems to us sadly lacking in what might be termed "gentlemanship."

During the past year we have seen men set bon-fires in the dormitory halls, hurl dishes through glass windows, and behave in the dining hall in a manner befitting a lower species of animal. We believe, in spite of all this, that the students of this college come from some of the best homes in the South: its fact, we are conceited enough to hold that this student body, taken as a whole, would out-rank any in the state in general excellence. But a glance at a dining hall table after a meal, or a glimpse of certain dormitories at festival seasons, causes us to bow with shame.

It is safe to say that the average P. C. student knows better than to toss from his place when meat is brought to the table and stab viciously, with malice and aforethought, for the choice pieces (plural not singular) of lobster. It is safe to say that the average P. C. student realizes that destruction of college property at the sudden discovery of an iron radiator deep in the fragments of stairs is a malicious act of vandalism. Only through student opinion may such practices be stopped: student opinion, or the election of dormitory and dining hall monitors.

To instill ideas of more gentlemanly conduct in P. C. students THE BLUE STOCKING suggests the following: First, a vigorous campaign by every campus organization—Blue Key, Ministerial Club, Y.M.C.A., student council, fraternities, etc.—for better conditions, for stirring of campus sentiment against adolescent behavior; second, the first attempt having failed, appointment by the student council, or by the president of the college, of student monitors who would see that dining hall and dormitory conduct is at least a trifle more civilized.

Of the two, we believe that the first is more effective. In regard to the second, it might be said that manners cannot be legislated; naturally, they cannot, but legislation may prevent a spread of the abuse. If you believe that something should be done about the whole situation, then you should feel it your duty to see that organizations of which you are a member or a leader take active steps toward the elimination of the necessity for troughs.

"Three-Cornered Moon"

Tonight Sock and Buskin, newly-organized dramatic club, will present its first performance, a play that we believe has been well chosen, carefully rehearsed and planned. Members of the cast have, probably unknown to a majority of the student body, spent long hours in tedious work and practice. They have done their part toward making "Three-Cornered Moon" a success. Tonight P. C. campus dramatics will hang in the balance and P. C. students will hold the power to sway the scales to either side.

No campus organization can exist for any length of time unless it has the full support of the students it represents. Certainly, it can never attain the success of which it is capable unless it does have that support. To make the new dramatic club a success, it is absolutely essential that its first production, "Three-Cornered Moon," have the wholehearted assistance of students and faculty.

Since the financial difficulties of Sock and Buskin are just as real as those of any other campus organization, your attendance tonight will aid the production in a very material and actual way, in addition to the interest that your presence will prove. Every ticket that is sold tonight will add strength to the move for a revival of dramatic interest.

Aside from any feeling of loyalty or any attempt that you may make to show that you are willing to do your part, you will find that any time or money spent to see "Three-Cornered Moon" will by no means be wasted. To all intents and purposes, tonight's audience will be large, and our comments here are perhaps wasted upon readers who would see the play regardless of whether or not it had been mentioned in these columns. But we do wish to add our entreaty that you see the play, give yourself good entertainment, and insure the success of the dramatic endeavor.

JACK GASQUE, master of satire, is fighting madly to gain supremacy over McLees and Darby in the field of punning. Each day he waits with bated breath to find out if he has received a bid to the Society for Prevention of Punster Punishment, headed by the first named. At the present writing the invitation has not been forthcoming.

Gasque bases his claim for eligibility to the S.P.P.P. on a remark made a few days ago. Someone, in a conversation on tennis, mentioned Helen Wills. Said Gasque with a coy smile, "I heard that Helen wouldn't."

It is not known just how the two pundits will react to this one.

Sad news comes out of old Charleston. To begin with, on the South Carolina history trip to that ancient city, SIMON LEGARE had a date with HELEN MAHAFFEY the night the group stayed in the city by the sea. On the following day the comely co-ed came down with mumps. And it was only a few hours later that the little corporal himself was sent to bed with the same ailment. Both are getting along nicely now, thank you.

"KAYO" GILLIS, dean of P. C.'s fast dancers, is usually very dignified when out in public, but a recent night at the carnival proved to be an exception. Kayo, being short on cash, decided to go in by a surreptitious, but nevertheless effective, manner. Spying a loose place in one of the tents, he silently parted it and sneaked through.

A group of friends, waiting outside to see how he got along, waited a few moments and nothing happened.

Suddenly they heard a wild yel and out scampered Kayo, with hulking German police dog heels. Finally, the dog be down by a chain, Kayo ma get out of range and escape out a scratch.

For the first recorded history, that handso turned from its lovely tennis or to a rosy red. He soon his composure, however, a thought that he again has ation well in hand after a setback.

Furman Trackmen Down Blue Hose At Greenville

PURPLE HURRICANE WHIRLS UP VARSITY SCORE OF 75-56

Joe Bradley Betters State Mark In Century By One-Tenth Second At Greenville Saturday.

HOSE TAKE SIX OF FOURTEEN FIRSTS

(By Jake Penland)

A strong Purple Hurricane track outfit blew its way to a 75 to 56 victory over Presbyterian's fighting Blue Stockings on Manly field at Greenville Saturday afternoon to become a potential threat for the state crown. Presenting Bob King in a four-star performance role, the Furman team dominated field events and the hurdles to offset P. C. supremacy in the track events. The versatile King took first in the discus, shot put and high jump, tied with Beeman for first in the pole vault, and placed second in the javelin to amass a high-scoring total of 22 points.

Possessing quality but not quantity, the Hosemen labored under the added difficulty of competing without the services of three of their mates.

In individual performance, Joe Bradley shone brightly as he proved his right to the title of South Carolina's fastest collegiate runner. The brilliant P. C. captain covered the century dash in 9.6 seconds to better the state record time. He also broke the tape ahead of Scott to win the 220 and keep his record in both events perfect for the year.

Roy Forehand paralleled the Bradley performance with firsts in the mile and 880. He covered the former distance in the time of 4 minutes, 45.4 seconds, and the latter in 2 minutes, 4 seconds.

"Frog" Charles, veteran Hose twomiler, broke the tape ahead of his Baptist competitors to secure the initial first place of his collegiate career. The diminutive Hoseman showed improved form in covering the long stretch. Wilbanks took the javelin and Beeman tied with King for the only other Calvinist firsts.

Dennard and Reynolds Step 100 and High Hurdles Below Records For Events.

The P. C. Anklets met Furman's frosh team in the Little Breeze's back yard and fought all Saturday afternoon to gain a victory, but when it was all over the Breeze had claimed a thrilling 68½ to 62½ decision.

Jimmy Dennard, covering the century one-tenth second below state record time, was good for his usual 15 points, as he gathered first places in the 100, 220, and broad jump; while Reynolds, bettering the state mark for the low timbers by one-tenth second, again copped first in both hurdle events with Davis on his heels for a close second.

Summary:

100-yard dash: Dennard (PC), Ritch (PC), Bumgarner (F). Time, 10 seconds.

Wofford Stops Calvinist Netmen

Wofford brought a strong net team to Clinton Saturday afternoon and defeated the P. C. courtmen by a 6 to 1 count.

Levi, P. C. No. 1 man, was defeated by Prince of Wofford, who is a polished performer with a great deal of experience, by a 6-3 margin. Gregg and Johnson offered real resistance to the parade of the Terriers. Gregg dropped his match to Garvin of Wofford, 7-5, 7-9, 6-3, while Johnson lost to Clay by a 6-1, 3-6, 6-1 score.

The summary:

Prince (W) defeated Levi.

Ritter (W) defeated Patton, 6-1, 6-0.

Garvin (W) defeated Gregg, 7-5, 7-9, 6-3.

Snyder (W) defeated Estes, 6-0, 7-5.

Clay (W) defeated Johnson, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1.

Prince and Garvin (W) defeated Patton and Johnson, 7-5, 6-2.

Ritter and Snyder (W) defaulted to Levi and Gregg.

Clemson Downs Blue Hose Nine By Score 10 to 8

Costly Errors Contribute To Defeat Friday.

The P. C. baseball team was defeated 10 to 8 Friday afternoon by the Clemson Tigers on the latter's grounds. Both teams showed great power at the bat but slow fielding marred the game greatly, two errors being charged to each team.

The fatal fourth inning was responsible for the Sox downfall, when the Tigers went on a hitting spree, obtaining eight runs. Aside from that one nightmare of an inning, the Presbyterian club played a commendable game, fighting an up-hill battle.

"Hawk" Evans, who policed the left garden for the Hose, was the shining star in the whole line-up, hauling down several long drives for put outs and contributing a triple and a double in the batting attack. Randy Hinson, Clemson gridiron star, who played center field, scored three lusty bingles.

JACOBS SCORES AGAIN

Another orchid to the president of this up-and-coming institution. The Jacobs-sponsored exhibition tennis match last Thursday evening afforded over a thousand students and townspeople some of the best entertainment of the season. Featuring the show was the appearance of America's leading amateur racketeer, Wilmer Allison, who is captain and No. 1 performer on the United States Davis Cup team.

Other attractions were Peyre Kennedy and Bill Childs, of Spartanburg, whose ratings in this state are No. 1 and No. 2, respectively; Jack Stockton, of New York, and another gentleman, Richards, a nationally known referee.

Evidently retarded by over-indulgence at a Jacobs-prepared repast, Allison took it easy as his singles match with Kennedy began. The latter matched his play through half the first set. Then America's top-ranking amateur got started, and the crowd was treated to a superb brand of play. We feel sure Allison was impressed with the genial hospitality accorded him here, and even surer he will have the undivided support and interest of this rural hamlet as he continues his quest for racket supremacy.

PALMETTO PICK-UP

During the past two weeks, a world champion boxer, world champion baseball team, and national champion in tennis have made appearances in the Palmetto state. Jim Braddock fought in Charleston, the Detroit Tigers opposed Cincinnati in Columbia, and Wilmer Allison appeared here in Clinton.

We hope this is an indication of things to come. South Carolinians have in the past found it necessary to journey to the big cities to view the best in entertainment. Now it seems as if the best is coming to see us—a policy which we hope will take on a permanent character.

DIAMOND TWADDLE

Successive defeats at the hands of Newberry, Erskine and Clemson greatly dampened hopes for a P. C. state baseball crown. Erskine has a perfect record and the Indians are close behind. If the Due West outfit runs into trouble during the course of the season, and the Hosemen win their remaining games, we will have a chance. Carolina, Clemson, Furman and Citadel apparently are out of the running in so far as the championship is concerned. This columnist believes the Blue Stockings will come out ahead of Newberry in the final spurt, which leaves Erskine as our lone threat—providing we win our remaining games.

With a highly capable coach, a hard-hitting outfield, good pitching, and an average infield, the Presbyterians are in a position to take their first baseball title in several years. From early season indications, it seems apparent that the boys have been building up for an awful letdown—but we are still hopeful of a strong finish—and the title.

EVIEW UNDER LIGHTS SPECTACULAR FEATURE

The highest rating ever given a resbyterian college R.O.T.C. unit as the result of Wednesday's annual pring inspection. With Major Dan E. llis, Columbia, inspecting, the corps ptured its seventh consecutive "Exellent" mark.

The inspection began with a formal view under the lights on Johnson eld Tuesday night. The glistening struments in the band and the shing brass made a fine spectacle as e unit passed in review before the ands. The lines were excellent and e step and cadence perfect. After e review, squad competition was ld and Corporal Anderson from "A" mpany was voted winner.

At 8 o'clock Wednesday morning e corps was formally inspected by ajor Ellis. Squads from each comany drilled as did a platoon from ch company. Captain Wyatt hanled "B" company with perfect preision in the company drill, taking it rough a number of different movents in perfect form.

After the parade a combat problem as held on the plaza with a section ping into action under fire. The use blanks by the defenders and atckers made this demonstration very alistic and Major Ellis commented the precision which marked all ovements of the section as they ent into skirmish line and assault re.

During the remainder of the day e theoretical work was given to all embers of the corps. The juniors, an unofficial checkup, bettered the ther classes slightly in grading on is work. The machine gun squad ent through its drill perfectly.

Prominent Alumnus Dies At Columbia

Funeral services were conducted esterday morning for Dr. James M. ustin, prominent psychiatrist and an lumnus of P. C., who died Friday fternoon at his residence, 2142½ ull street, Columbia, after a very rief illness.

Dr. Austin graduated from P. C. in 918 after serving in the World war. While in college he was active in student affairs and athletics, making allstate catcher while an undergraduate.

Dr. Austin did not take up active medical work until 1930 when he graduated from the Medical college of South Carolina. At this time he began a one year's internship at the State hospital, Columbia, and then became a regular member of the hospital staff. He was a member of the American Psychiatric association and Phi Chi medical fraternity and had won for himself a distinguished place in his chosen field.

Interment was at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Oakland cemetery at Gaffney with the Rev. D. A. Howard in charge.

Dr. Austin married Miss Mary Clary, of Gaffney. She, with two sons, and a brother, R. P. Austin, of Greenville, survive. A brother, Dr. W. C. Austin, head of the chemistry department of Loyola university, Chicago, also a graduate of Presbyterian, died last year.

WARDLAW ELECTED HEAD OF MINISTERIAL GROUP

Hubert G. Wardlaw, Marietta, Ga., has been elected president of Delta Chi Alpha for the coming year, according to announcement from the Christian leadership fraternity.

Wardlaw is a rising junior and has been active in various campus activities. Other officers are Cliff McLeod, vice-president; Virgil St. John, secretary, and Chester Keller, chaplain.

Sock And Buskin Presents Drama

'Three-Cornered Moon' Declared Great Success.

With their successful presentation last Monday night of "Three-Cornered Moon" before a large and appreciative audience, Sock and Buskin won its place among established campus organizations, according to opinions expressed by members of the faculty and student body.

The large attendance of students and faculty members was significant of the campus interest in dramatics, and their criticism was both helpful and encouraging to members of the dramatic club. Various faculty members expressed their opinions as Professor H. T. Swedenberg, who said, "It was a creditable performance and certainly the best amateur performance presented on the campus in some time." Dr. Brimm thought it was an "excellent performance," and Dr. Fish, who has a personal interest in dramaitcs, said, "It was the best amateur performance I have ever seen."

Frances Shaw and Thad Coleman deserve a generous share of credit for their line interpretation and their clever portrayal of difficult character parts. The entire cast and production personnel deserve the credit extended them and especially should director H. M. Wilson be given credit not only for his direction but also for his active part in the play when sickness prevented a member of the cast from appearing.

Director Wilson announced today that rehearsals would be presently resumed in preparation for a possible presentation of "Three-Cornered Moon" in Laurens in the near future.

LIBRARY BUYS VALUABLE SET

Smithsonian Encyclopedia Purchased By College.

Announcement has been made by Librarian Willard L. Jones of the addition of the patrons edition of the Smithsonian scientific series to the library.

This edition, edited by Charles Greely Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, is in twevve handsome volumes, profusely illustrated with over a thousand cuts and colored plates.

The series, prepared by the officers and scholars of the institute, is a result of their desire to diffuse knowledge more widely and to supplement its own inadequate resources for the increase of knowledge.

Sets are not available to the general public, but opportunity is given to a number of accredited educational institutions to secure these sets at $99. Twenty-five thousand sets have been prepared for subscribers and institutions.

Frosh Debaters Lose To Winthrop

Suffering their first defeat of the year when they met the varsity team of Winthrop college here Thursday afternoon, P. C.'s freshman debaters, Alvin Dyes and Cleveland Bradner, nevertheless put up a formidable struggle.

H. M. Wilson, freshman debate coach, knew that in sending his frosh debaters against the Winthrop varsity they would very probably be defeated, but he was well pleased with the stiff opposition offered by his team.

Although they have no definite schedule, the freshmen will probably debate once more before ending their first year in intercollegiate debating.

Students Ratify New Amendments

Vote Council Control of Elections; Cheating and Suspension Changes Made.

The student body voted in riotous disorder this morning passage of three constitutional changes proposed last week.

The first, having to do with elections, provides for supervision of the ballot-box by one student councilman who shall at all times during the election period stay at the scene of balloting.

The second reduces the penalty for first offense cheating from expulsion to two weeks suspension. Proponents of the bill explained that such a diminution would enable council to secure better student cooperation in enforcement.

The last change provides that campusing penalties shall not hold good during holidays but shall be carried over to the next regular day of college work. This rule shall only apply to holidays stated in the college catalogue.

STUDENTS TO BE GUESTS OF P. C.

High School Students To Be Invited For Inspection of Plant Saturday.

High school students invited from all parts of the state will be the guests of the college Saturday afternoon for an inspection of dormitories, athletic plant, and other interesting features.

Complete details have not yet been worked out, but present plans are that the Y. M. C. A. will, aided by student assistants, have charge of the visitors and direct their tours of inspection. Committees will be appointed within the next day or two to handle various phases of the matter and students will be selected whose duty it will be to see that dormitory sections are presentable.

College authorities have not definitely decided upon the number of students to be invited, but intend that, not only shall boys come who are prospective students, but also all who are interested in the college and its work.

The plan was first suggested to authorities by Colin Hudson and most of the preparations will be under his direction, except for work done by college administrative officers.

BOB POPE WILL PLAY AT FINALS

Dates For Series Set For May 15 and 16.

The newly-elected Pan-Hellenic council has announced the booking of Bob Pope and his orchestra for the finals, which are to be held in Copeland hall on May 15 and 16.

The Pope organization had originally planned a Northern tour, thus making it impossible for them to play for the series here; but a change in schedule occurred and the popular melody-makers became available for the local finals.

Pope's popularity has steadily increased, and there is an enthusiastic demand for his music throughout the South. Before organizing his present ensemble, he played with Art Kassel's famous orchestra. Since organizing his own, he has appeared on the air, made recordings, and filled many successful engagements. Besides a smooth, well-balanced orchestral makeup, he brings with him one of the most appealing torch-singers in the business.

The finals will come as a climax to an active and successful spring social season. The series of dances are always well attended, and dance addicts throughout the state are looking to the affair with interest.

NIGHT FINALS ON SATURDAY TO BE BRILLIANT EXHIBITION

GOVERNOR JOHNSTON

Governor Johnston will present the victory cup to the winning team Saturday night after the state meet finals and make a short address on sportsmanship.

Governor, Amplifying System, and Band To Add To Colorful "Little Olympics" Meet.

GOVERNOR JOHNSTON TO PRESENT CUP

Final preparations were going forward today for the staging of what is perhaps South Carolina's most colorful sports carnival, the state track and field meet, P. C.'s "Little Olympics," which this year will be held for the first time beneath the giant floodlights of Johnson field, the festivities to commence Friday afternoon with the freshman meet and varsity trials at 1:30, and to conclude Saturday night with the grand finale.

Teams representing each of South Carolina's college and universities, except for the College of Charleston, will compete for the coveted title that is now hold by Clemson's tracksters. Practically the same procedure will be followed that proved so successful last year. The new floodlights, not used last year, will add greatly to the occasion.

Carter Newman of Waco, Ga., will serve as referee and starter again this year; Professor H. E. Sturgeon, of P. C., will act as clerk of the course, and Hank Wilson will lend his talents as announcer.

The finals begin at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday. Prior to that time, all coaches will report to the gymnasium to receive numbers for their contestants, participate in the drawings, and attend to other matters.

The final activities will be preceded by a parade of teams. Captains will lead their squads onto the field, carrying flags of their school colors. Marching in front of the south stand and around the first bend in the track, they will then make a left turn and march to the middle of the field. Colors will be hoisted and the band will play the national anthem. A one-minute [illegible] to the captain of the winning team by [illegible] of South Carolina.

Election Aftermath

This morning the students of Presbyterian College voted, together with two other amendments, to provide for council supervision of elections, a step advocated some weeks ago by THE BLUE STOCKING.

We feel that our stand upon the matter of elections has been made adequately clear, both by our original suggestion and by the controversy that arose from it; yet we feel that such an amendment will remain effective only if it receives the support of the entire student body and the cooperation, with the student council, of each student. Stuffing the ballot box in campus elections, perhaps in itself not such a heinous crime, is, however, but one step above something worse.

College youth, in spite of the popular conception of knickers and pipe, has reached, or certainly should have reached, a level very near to manhood. Perhaps in the past ballot-stuffing has been looked upon as something of a joke, a pastime while waiting for classes to change; but that's all past and far behind us now, and we are learning that just about the only way to get a straight election is to put somebody there to see that it is straight. Now it is our part, yours and mine, to prove that in the Utopia to come such supervision will not be necessary.

"Championship Spirit"

P. C.'s crack military unit last week won its seventh consecutive grade of "excellent," attaining, in doing so, the highest average on all subjects ever made in the history of the college's R. O. T. C.

Strongly characteristic of President Jacobs and his "championship spirit" is the repeated success of an R. O. T. C. corps that has come to not only hope for success, but to expect it. Bringing home laurels from Anniston that are contested for by outstanding colleges and universities of the South is no longer an unusual occurrence. Should the juniors not bring home general proficiency honors then that would be unusual.

Looking back on more than a half-dozen brilliant, championship military units, we are chiefly impressed today with the leadership exhibited by cadet officers, the loyalty of the men in the ranks, and the fine work done by Major R. E. Wysor, commandant, and the officers who have served with him in the building of men and a championship spirit.

PASS IN REVIEW

— By —
SIMON LEGARE

Orchids to the R.O.T.C. seniors who on last Wednesday met their last drill as cadet officers. They did a swell job all year and deserve the holiday. At Anniston, Alabama, they once again brought the cup home and proceeded to continue their good work. The rising seniors could do no better than to use their record as a goal.

The first night review ever held here was so successful that many have expressed the wish that it be an annual affair. The town people were loud in their praise of the corps, even though the homeguards got a trifle "Boweryish" in their comments.

The homeguards were contemplating a counter review with such banners and posters as would properly express their disappointment at not being in the army. There was dissention in the ranks of the "Comrades" at the last minute and the demonstration had to be called off. They couldn't decide between "Honest John" Nettles and "Winthrop Kid" Norton for Major of their horde.

The juniors have a month of hard work ahead of them as final preparation for camp. Some complain of the Alabama heat, but if the class survives the rifle and pistol firing, as well as steady drill scheduled for them, they should take Anniston in their stride.

Private D. W. Davis, hero of the many telephone calls, is now minus his true love. In the squad competition on Tuesday night he determined to show the lovely maiden his ability as a soldier. He did. His cap fell off no less than six times and he turned in the wrong direction only twice. Properly impressed by this exhibition of skill, the young lady proceeded to ignore Davis as he slunk up to receive her praise. Pete Holcomb, however, got all the gushing intended for the hatless one. What's one man's loss is another's gain, or something.

Corporal Anderson of "A" company was unanimously voted winner of the squad drill, and, as a reward, he and his entire squad are excused from drill for the remainder of the year. Anderson acquitted himself well and deserves congratulations.

Lieutenant "Buddy" Chapman should copyright the new movement which his platoon executed while drilling for the inspector. It was faultlessly done and looked good. Of course it was sort of backwards, but it looked good anyway.

Private Henry Nelms would have made the original drummer-man-in-the-band gnash his teeth with envy at the way he was pounding the big drum during the review. True, you couldn't see Nelms for the drum, but he certainly made himself heard.

Now that inspection is finally over, a little of that rain which dampened our drill all year wouldn't be unappreciated by those of us who have a month of warm weather manoeuvering ahead of us.

CAMPUS CAMERA

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

The boys in B section Smyth have discovered a clever little game to play with freshmen who are too boisterous. A group of five or six upperclassmen blindfold a quaking rat and make him stand with his face to the wall. Then they administer blows with various types of instruments, such as paddles, coat hangers, toothbrushes, combs, tennis rackets, army sabres, et cetera. The game is for the victim to guess which one of the group hit him and what kind of torture was used.

As soon as the group tires of amusing itself in this way, the freshman is asked if he enjoyed the game. If he answers in the negative, the leader says sternly, "Oh, so you didn't, eh? Well, we'll make you like it." Then they proceed to apply more blows.

If he, however, says that he did enjoy it, they say, "Good. Now we'll play another game."

Moral: "The upperclassman is always right."

ROBERT HIGBE went running out of the dressing room in the gymnasium, in happy anticipation of a delightful dip in the college pool. It being a hot day, our Robbie had journeyed down to the gym, removed his clothing, and scampered out toward the pool. Swimming Meet Tomorrow Night

Blue Key Sponsoring Intramural Tourney.

Blue Key's intramural swimming meet will be held tomorrow night in the college pool with a variety of events scheduled for the aquatic program.

Neither teams nor contestants are as yet complete, but it is believed by officers of the leadership fraternity that this year's meet will be equally as good as that of last season.

The following events, subject to last-minute change, are as follows:

(1) 100-yard dash—free style.
(2) 60-yard dash—free style.
(3) 40-yard dash—free style.
(4) 40-yard breast stroke.
(5) 60-yard back stroke.
(6) Medley relay, 120 yards, three men swimming 40 yards each.
(7) Relay, 160 yards, four men 40 yards each.
(8) Diving.

Points awarded for places will be as follows: first place, 5 points; second dplace, 3 points; third, 1 point. For first place in the accumulative scoring for the entire meet, the victor will receive 10 points toward the intramural cup; for second, 6 points; for third, 2 points.

Frosh Tracksters Lose To Davidson

Davidson's frosh tracksters, running under ideal conditions, defeated the P. C. yearlings by the decisive count of 72 to 52 at Davidson Saturday.

Walker, Davidson distance man, paced the Wildcats with wins in the mile and two-mile, while Jimmy Dennard led the scoring for the Anklets with firsts in the century, the 220, and the broad jump. Reynolds, ace hurdler for the Baby Sox, amassed 10 points by virtue of his wins in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles.

The highlights of the meet were the high hurdles, first place being taken by Reynolds in the fast time of 16.1 seconds, tying the state record; the 220-yard dash, won by Dennard in the fast time of 23.1, and the mile run, captured by Davidson's distance prodigy, Walker, seconded by Huntley, P. C. hopeful, in 4:58.

"Trigger" Ritch, understudy to the inimitable Dennard, also made an impressive showing in the meet Saturday, capturing third in the 100-yard dash, third in the 220-yard dash, and second in the broad jump.

Baseball Nine Loses To Citadel

Also Drops Game To Erskine Earlier In Week.

Coach Jake Todd's Flying Fleet from Erskine defeated the Presbyterian baseball nine Tuesday afternoon on the Blue Hose grounds, 10-7.

P. C. held the lead up to the unfortunate fifth inning, when a sudden barrage of base hits began to sweep the Sox off their feet, the Toddmen pushing six runs across the platter in that frame. This victory kept the boys from Due West in the Palmetto league lead, with Clemson offering a threatening gesture in defeating The Citadel the same afternoon.

"Goof" Holliday and "Hawk" Evans walked away with the laurels for the Presbyterians, the former gathering three hits out of four times at bat, while Evans slammed out three doubles in five trips to the plate. For the invaders, Gettys, the elongated receiver, hammered out five hits in five tries for a perfect day.

Roy Forehand, P. C. catcher, suffered a shoulder injury on a close play at the plate during the opening stages of the game and may be out of the Galloway line-up for a week or more.

CITADEL TRIUMPHS

The P. C. Blue Stockings bowed humbly to The Citadel's Bulldog baseball nine in Charleston Thursday afternoon to the tune of 9 to 3. The highly-touted Heywood Thompson, veteran Citadel right hander, held the Garnet and Blue stick attack to eight scattered hits while his teammates bunched their ten blows for nine markers.

The game as a whole was a very listless and slip-shod affair; many miscues were chalked up to both teams and many bases were stolen. Robbie Higbe, speedy Hose shortstop, and Evans, were the stars for the invading Presbyterian aggregation, the former lining out a home run and a single and the latter smashing two singles. Spigner, mighty center-fielder, was undoubtedly the best player on the field in Saturday's tilt. He greeted Pitcher Holliday's slants with a triple and two singles out of five times at the plate and in addition he was given credit for two stolen bases. Jenkins, Bulldog first-sacker, played a whale of a game also, getting two long hits which registered four runs batted in.

MANY RECORDS EXPECTED TO FALL IN STATE MEET HERE

As final preparations today go forward for the finest and most colorful state track and field meet in the history of South Carolina track, all indications point to the prospect for the shattering of records that have stood for years.

Established in many cases by men who are no longer in school, existing records for several events seem destined to fall before the onslaught of collegiate tracksters who know no law but greater speed. Clemson and Furman are already pre-meet favorites for first honors and thus all eyes will, figuratively, be on the timers' watches as seconds are clipped from records.

Speed Merchant Joe Bradley, P. C. ace dash man, will figure high in the state sporting eyes in view of his recent spectacular times on the century distance. Bradley stepped his first competitive hundred of the year against Carolina in the record-tying time of 9.7 seconds, and then streaked down the straight-away a week ago against Furman in 9.6 seconds, one-tenth below Bryan Hutt's mark set in 1934.

When contestants line up for the start of the hurdles, spectators may look for anything to happen. Carter, Clemson, set a new record last year of 15.4 seconds for the high timber and will be in there again this year, already having bettered his former time by two-tenths seconds. Earlier in the year, Folger, Carter's teammate, clipped one-tenth second off the same stretch, so it's bound to be a good race. Then in the low timbers, Hurdler Folger will also be stepping high and fast since he has already run the 220-yard flight in time below the state record.

With McConnell, Clemson, throwing the discus within 10 inches of the state mark, and Bob King, Furman's house of magic, tossing the shot less than a foot below the record, it begins to look as if very few records will be on the books this time next week.

But ranking close to spring holidays in the affections of P. C. men is the relay team and relay records. Even this may crumble before a Tiger aggregation that has no respect for affections nor for traditions. Saturday the Clemson quartet, anchored by Kitchens, who the same day ran the 440 in 50.2 seconds to tie the time set by P. C.'s great Bill Clark, stepped the four laps in 3 minutes, 27 seconds, to equal the record established by the Bradley, Winget, Yearout, Clark combination of 1934.

Records tumble down about our heads, five days ahead of time, as the sportlight of the entire state slowly turns to focus on P. C. and "the finest track south of Philadelphia."

TAKE NINE FIRSTS IN 78 TO 48 WIN OVER METHODIST TEAM

Joe Hollis Is High Scorer In Friday Night Meet.

Performing under the powerful floodlights of Johnson field, P. C.'s trackmen had an easy time beating Wofford by a 78 to 48 score Friday night in South Carolina's first nocturnal cinder show. It was the last appearance of the Hosemen before the state meet this week.

Joe Hollis took high scoring honors for the evening by winning the broad jump and javelin, and placing third in the 100. Joe Bradley again captured the 100 and 220-yard dashes to contribute 10 points to the Blue Stocking total. His time in the century was 9.9 seconds.

The two-mile, usually an uninteresting event from the spectators' standpoint, proved unusually interesting with a close finish between Smith of Wofford, and "Frog" Charles of P. C. Charles led until the last curve of the eighth lap was approached. It was then that Smith took him unawares and sped past to break the tape.

The Hosemen annexed nine first places ,including a clean sweep in the pole vault.

Gamecocks Beat P. C. Racketmen

The Carolina netmen turned back the P. C. team in Columbia last Monday by a 5 to 2 count. Gregg, playing No. 4, was the best performer for P. C., winning his singles match from Williams by scores of 6-3, 3-6, 8-6.

He then teamed with Parham to win the second doubles match; thereby giving P. C. her lone two wins.

Levi lost to Daniels, Carolina's star performer, after a bitter second set that went to 10-8. Beatty, P. C.'s second man, lost a three-set thriller to Lipscomb, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4. Parham and Estes lost to Walker and McIntosh, respectively, giving Carolina four of the five singles matches.

In a match which provided many thrills for the sizeable group of spectators, Daniels and Walker, of Carolina, defeated Levi and Beatty by a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 count.

Students To Serve In Local Churches

Cliff H. McLeod, president of the Ministerial club, has announced that various members of the club will have charge of the worship services in several churches of Clinton and vicinity next Sunday.

Three services outside of the evening services will be held, one at the Thornwell Memorial church in the afternoon; two in morning, one at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, and the other at the Presbyterian church at Goldville. Similar services are to be held next week.

McLeod stated that the purposes of these services are to afford opportunity for the ministerial students to do Christian work for the college and the churches of Clinton, to bring about a more spiritual cooperation between the college students and the churches and to arouse interest in the evening church services.

The list of ministerial students who will take part, the churches at which they will preach, the subjects of their sermons, and the hours of the services are as follows:

W. Chester Keller, First Presbyterian church, 8:00 p.m. "When God Gives."

Cliff H. McLeod, Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, 11:00 a. m. "What Shall I Do With Christ?"

Manson B. Tate, Thornwell Memorial church, 4:00 p.m. "The Importance of a Little Child."

W. Chester Keller, Goldville Presbyterian church, 11:00 a.m. "To Whom Shall We Go?"

Cliff H. McLeod, First Baptist church, 8:00 p.m. "Where Are You?"

Manson B. Tate, Broad Street Methodist church, 7:30 p.m. "Find Thyself."

Hubert G. Wardlaw, Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, 8:00 p.m. "What Does God Mean To Man?"

Student Cleared In Death Of Man

Ashby E. Johnson, P. C. sophomore, who was implicated in the death of Butler Miller as the result of an automobile accident April 18, was last week absolved of all blame by a coroner's jury.

Miller, 60, was killed when the automobile in which he was riding turned over just outside Greenville and was then struck by Johnson's machine. None of the passengers occupying the car driven by the P. C. student were injured to any extent, although Johnny Hughes and Billy Moore received first aid treatment at a Greenville hospital.

Kappa Alpha Has Annual Dances

Beta Pi chapter of Kappa Alpha social fraternity, continuing the spring fraternity social season, held its annual dances Friday and Saturday nights, Paul Harmon and his orchestra furnishing the rhythm.

Friday night's affair was informal, while Saturday's was formal. Both dances were attended by numerous guests from other campus fraternities, non-fraternity men, and K. A.'s from other chapters in the state.

The hall was appropriately decorated, and several feature numbers by the orchestra added to the festivity of the occasions.

Final Collegian To Appear In May

George E. Oliver, editor of The Collegian, announced this afternoon that the final edition of the college magazine would appear sometime in early May.

All material for the May edition should be turned over to the editor within the next week in order that preparation of the lay-out may be begun. Prospects point to the fact that next month's Collegian will maintain the high standard set by the three previous numbers edited by the present staff.

In commenting on his desire for material from new contributors, Editor Oliver expressed the belief that many men not contributing at present are fully capable of writing acceptable short stories, articles, and poetry.

P. C. TAKES SECOND IN STATE MEET

DR. R. O. FLINN TO PREACH P. C. FINAL SERMON

Prominent Atlanta Minister To Address Graduating Class Here On May 31.

Officers of the senior class have announced that Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, organizer and pastor of North Avenue Presbyterian church, Atlanta, will deliver the baccalaureate address on Sunday morning, May 31, at 11:15 o'clock.

Members of the class and college authorities feel themselves fortunate in securing Dr. Flinn, as he is an outstanding minister of the Presbyterian church and is prominent in religious affairs of the South and nation.

Dr. Flinn graduated from Columbia theological seminary in 1894 and received the D.D. degree from P. C. in 1911. For a time he supplied the First Presbyterian church, Atlanta, and then organized the North Avenue church.

In 1896 Dr. Flinn was a delegate to the Pan-Presbyterian council in Glasgow, Scotland, and a representative in 1925 at a like meeting in Cardiff, Wales. During the World war he was a member of the committee of the Presbyterian church for the care of soldiers in camp and a speaker with the famous "flying squadron" of the Y.M.C.A. over-seas. In 1933 he was appointed councellor for the Fourth Corps Area Reforestation camps.

The baccalaureate sermon on May 31 will be the first exercise of the commencement program.

He founded Oglethorpe university and since January, 1913, has served continuously as its president.

High School Boys Are Guests Of P. C.

Visitors See Exhibitions In Physics, Chemistry, Weapons and Track.

Among the numerous visitors on the campus last week-end were high school seniors of South Carolina and Georgia as specially invited guests of the college. The Y.M.C.A., headed by Chester Keller, was in charge of the program arranged for the visitors.

After a brief registration period, the guests were conducted on a tour of the campus, which included visits to the various departments of the college. An interesting display of old books, papers, and pictures was arranged and demonstrated by Willard L. Jones, who also carried the visitors through the library.

Some very interesting demonstrations were arranged in the physics laboratory by Dr. F. W. Cooke, and these were displayed by various physics students. Among the displays were photo-electric cells, high-frequency coils, cathode rays, and several experiments in light and mechanics.

From the physics department the students were conducted to the chemistry lecture room where Professor Sturgeon performed a number of unusual and spectacular chemistry experiments, making water run up hill, building a fire on a piece of cotton, blowing smoke rings, making ink, and many others.

Orators' Contest To Be Held Tomorrow

The annual oratorical contest will be held tomorrow morning in regular chapel session, four men speaking on various subjects for first honors.

Hugh Holman, speaking on the subject, "Youth Rebels Against Mars," will lead the parade. Hubert Wardlaw, Colin Hudson, and Hank Wilson will complete the list of entries. All orations were written by the speaker in compliance with the rules of the contest.

To allow time for presentation of the four speeches, the first class will begin at 9:50, the second at 10:40, the third at 11:25, and the last class of the morning at 12:10. Afternoon classes will run on the usual schedule.

Seniors To Edit Next Week's Paper

Hugh Holman Chosen Editor For Issue.

STAFF IS ANNOUNCED

Next week's issue of The Blue Stocking, the next to the last of the school year, will be published under auspices of the senior class, the present staff stepping aside to replenish waning strength and to make room for the swan song of the graduates of 1936.

Elected by the seniors last week to editorship of the issue, Hugh Holman, who retired as regular editor of the paper in February, will have charge of the edition. Members of his staff have done excellent work on publications during their stay at P. C.

The final issue of The Blue Stocking will appear on May 18, two weeks from today.

Editor Holman announced his complete staff this morning as follows:

Associate editors, Richard Potter, Cliff Johnson, Robert McLees.

Sports editor, Preston Charles.

Y. M. C. A. editor, Ernest Arnold.

Publications editors, Tom Plaxico and George Oliver.

News writers, E. E. Stanton, E. R. Andrews, Tom Estes, Colin Hudson, J. E. Ratchford, Hank Wilson.

EXAMS LIKELY BEGIN MAY 22

Faculty Considering Longer Period. To Meet Wednesday.

All classes will begin final examinations on the same date, Dean Brown announced today, and added further that a faculty committee would probably consider a proposed ten-day schedule for the exams this year instead of the usual period, but that a definite decision had not been reached at this time.

The last regular meeting of the faculty will be held Wednesday afternoon and it is expected that action on the proposed plan will be taken at that time. It is probable that, should the faculty decide in favor of the longer period, examinations would begin on May 22, Friday, and be concluded on the following Friday, thus allowing professors Saturday for compilation of seniors' grades.

It is believed by administrative officers of the college that a wider distribution of the schedule would lessen somewhat the work of both faculty and student body.

Students Will Preach Sunday

Various members of the Ministerial club will again conduct the worship services for the Clinton churches on next Sunday evening, May 10. These will be the last services the ministerial group will hold for Clinton churches this school year. Next year the plan of supplying the pulpits of the local churches once a month with ministerial students will be continued.

The schedule of services is as follows:

W. Chester Keller, First Baptist church, 8:00 p.m., "When Jesus Commends Faith."

Cliff H. McLeod, Broad Street Methodist church, 7:45 p.m., "Can I?"

Hubert G. Wardlaw, Thornwell Memorial church, 4:00 p.m., "Our Refuge and Strength."

Ernest J. Arnold, Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, 8:00 p.m., "The Perfect Physician."

Manson B. Tate will preach at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, May 17th.

In the only election completed today, Harris Gray, Greenwood, Miss., was elected president of the rising juniors, defeating Billy Jones, Bishopville. Julius Boggs, Pickens, was named vice-president, defeating Max Jones, Pontotoc, Miss. Chester Keller, Greenville, was elected poet, and Cliff McLeod, Ocala, Fla., historian.

The rising sophomore class election left Ed Lambright, Jimmy Dennard, and James Booth in presidential race, Cleveland Bradner and P. M. Clement for vice-president, Lukie Culp, D. M. Carson, and Tom Woods for secretary-treasurer, Vernon Atkinson and Deleon Reynolds for historian.

P. C. Professor Publishes Article

Dr. Dudley Jones Writes of Historic Grimke Sisters.

Appearing in the April issue of The North Carolina Historical Review is an article by Dr. Dudley Jones, P. C. psychology professor and outstanding student of South Carolina history, discussing the letters of the Grimke sisters, fanatic exponents of anti-slavery.

In his review of the letters, which were recently published in two volumes, Dr. Jones brings out graphically that the communications are more than historical documents—that they are intensely interesting accounts of human relationships, factional, sectional controversy. Through the pages of the letters appear some of the greatest figures of the times and some of the most dramatic incidents of the period.

The North Carolina Historical Review is a quarterly magazine issued by the state historical commission at Raleigh. Dr. Jones' interesting article appeared in the book review section of the publication.

Intramural Tennis Now Underway

First and second round matches of Blue Key's intramural tennis tournament were completed today and finals will be played off this week, it is hoped by officers of the leadership fraternity.

All doubles entries were to have been turned in today and pairing will be completed as soon as possible. Completion of the remaining events behind the dining hall some time this week will do much toward speeding the play, since lack of court space has in the past hindered contestants greatly in match competition.

The last feature of the intramural program, baseball, will be played in the near future. Teams from all campus fraternities and several dormitories are expected to enter. Fraternity presidents and dormitory leaders are asked to turn in names of contestants to Blue Key officials not later than tomorrow.

Five State Records Topple In Colorful Track Exhibition.

HURRICANE TRAILS LEADERS IN MEET

(By Jake Penland)

Clemson's powerful trackmen rolled up a total of 60 1-5 points to take top honors in South Carolina's peer of cinder shows, the state track and field meet, which for the first time was run off under the floodlights of Johnson field. Presbyterian scored 40½ points to finish second, and Furman, featuring the versatile Bob King, came third with 27.

Other teams taking part in the meet were Newberry, Wofford and The Citadel.

Individual honors went to King, who smashed existing marks in the shot put and discus, placed third in the high jump and fourth in the javelin to amass 13 points and win the Jacobs-presented high-scoring cup.

Bob Folger, Clemson captain, broke both hurdle records to share second individual leadership honors with Captain Joe Bradley of Presbyterian. Bradley, contrary to general expectations, failed to better the record time in the century, but his performances in the two short-dash events were good enough to give him a wide margin of victory over his opponents.

In an exciting mile run, Green of Clemson, nosed out Trowbridge of Furman to set a new record time of 4 minutes, 36.5 seconds. Trowbridge, running on the inside, kept his curb position until the final curve was reached. Green had constantly battled for the position, and the two matched strides through nearly all the distance. A beautiful last-minute performance by Green netted him first place and a new record.

Carter of Clemson, and Farnum of Carolina, came within an ace of establishing new records in the high jump and pole vault, respectively. The height for the high jump was 6 feet, and for the pole vault, 11 feet, 6 in.

Forehand ran a beautiful half-mile and barely missed setting a record. Joe Hollis, his teammate, leaped a distance of 22 feet, 1 inch to capture broad jump honors. The two-mile run was won by Hinson, of Clemson, in a last lap finish that saw the lead change several times. Several runners were bunched together, with each of them in position to win the event.

The record made last year by Castle, of Presbyterian, in the 440 remained intact as Hertzog, of Clemson, won the event with a time of 51 seconds.

Clemson's cinder artists brought their activities to a successful close when their relay team outclassed a field of six teams to take this, the final event.

The meet was run off under ideal weather conditions on a track that was exceptionally fast. Fireworks added to the colorful occasion and the precision with which events took place added to the spectators' interest. Governor Olin D. Johnston, originally scheduled to present the victory cup and make a short address on "Sportsmanship," telegraphed at the last moment that he was unable to attend because of pressing affairs of state.

Varsity Debaters Complete Season

Ending their last season as P. C. debaters, "Hank" Wilson and Edgar Stanton, the negative team, met Converse in a non-decision debate, completing a very successful season.

These debaters have gone undefeated, with the exception of the district meet at Winthrop, where they made an excellent showing.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

If what Sherman said about war wouldn't also apply to this business of term papers, parallel, and the shadow of exams to come through which we are now passing.

* * * * * *

And to congratulate P. C.'s "best baseball team in a decade" on its recent victory over Clemson's Tiger outfit.

* * * * * *

Why we didn't dress a couple of boys in loud knickers and accessories and station them on the campus Saturday so that the high school visitors wouldn't be disappointed in the movie version of the 1936 "colliteh" boy.

* * * * * *

And to remark that it's a little too late in the year to start anything, but that it might be a good idea for the administration to take into consideration for next year a reduction of chapel to three times a week, thus getting much better attention at services and leaving two free days for student body meetings. This may be heresy, but you'll hear more about it next year—at least from this end.

And to rejoice at the prospect of an examination schedule stretched over a longer period of time.

Pants-Kicking or Legislation?

Now that the house of representatives has decided to drop all investigation of the Wofford boy, Peter Moody, who published a poem written in blank verse depicting a cotton mill worker, perhaps it will be possible for college students of the state to look at the whole matter as from a distance and gain much from the study.

We are not concerned with the justice of Moody's article; we are not concerned with the legal right of the state house to cause to be mentally examined a resident of another state without a court order; but we are concerned, more vitally than we will realize until we begin paying taxes, with the conduct of the representatives of the people of this state and the squandering of money contributed toward legislative maintenance by taxation of cotton mill workers, bank presidents, and college professors. We realize that nothing we could say here ever would influence legislative action. That is an indisputable fact. But we believe at the same time the fact also to be indisputable that the college students of today will elect the legislatures of tomorrow and that those legislatures will be composed in large measure of college graduates.

In the Moody case we read that one representative "cried like a whipped baby" when he read the poem and was so angered that he wanted to "kick the pants" of the young upstart. Another thought the young fellow should be sent to Russia. We hardly know why the solons took such an attitude. There have been rumors that this is election year and that the cotton mill vote has carried many a county, but we, being college students, would know nothing about that.

But we do know beyond the shadow of a doubt that regulation of college publications is child's play and that college authorities and publications' staffs are fully capable of handling practically any situation that may arise. A publications control board receiving the salaries of our state representatives would be a luxury that voters never bargained for.

Just about the brightest point of the whole business, certainly from our viewpoint, is the fact that the resolution calling for the dropping of the matter was introduced by a graduate of P. C., N. E. Truesdale, Bethune.

The first impression of the incident is anger at the infringement of the rights of a fellow student. The lasting impression is that we have learned a great deal about the people's representatives we did not know before. Perhaps the college students of today may use more judgment in the election of the representatives of tomorrow than our elders seem to have used in the past.

Sunday, the seventh day of June, begins a six weeks period of intensive training for the junior class in all phases of warfare from peeling spuds in the kitchen to studying latest methods of speedy transportation to the field of battle. The class will be satisfied with nothing less than the general proficiency cup, and, from the earnest way they're going about training for what's to come later, it should be right down their alley. Take it away, juniors!

Joe Patrick will journey alone to distant Edgemont arsenal in Maryland for special training in chemical warfare. Lucky guy. For him there's no drill and no shooting. However, Joe will have his hands full of little things in test tubes which will probably kill more men in the next war than all the bullets fired.

Here's a notice which holds much interest for all sophs trying to make advanced military. On May 15th the announcements for the advanced course will be made. In past years this has been held off till the last drill before exams, but this year the sophs won't be kept in suspense that long. From the way they have been applying their orders on the field the choice should be a difficult one.

The P. M. S. and T. has submitted recommendations to corps headquarters for those of the senior class who desire to go on active duty with the regular army for one year. One thousand R.O.T.C. officers will be taken in for a year's training and out of this number fifty will be given commissions as second louies. Those who enter from P. C. will be equipped as good or better than others in the country, regardless of schools, and most of them will doubtless get their commissions if they live through the year. From tales heard here and there, that year will be one of the hardest ever spent by any man. The regular officers are all set to see what the new rookies have. If the stuff is there it will come out, if not—well, the training won't be forgotten very quickly if the guys live to forget. Several men in the senior class will try for the air corps where now exist many vacancies. Luck to you—you'll need it.

The juniors look kind of awkward with their newly-acquired sabers but are becoming more expert every day in handling them. All ears are still in their proper places; some are slightly out. Nothing serious—Pitt Bird is the only one to drop his as yet, and that wasn't on the field. It happened in the administration building and Pitt claims some woman got him flustered. Money may be the root of all evil, but Pitt says if one didn't need it to spend on women there wouldn't be any evil. Pitt is a ladies man and should know.

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

FRANK BOOTH, freshman called "Katharine Hepburn" because of his striking resemblance to said motion picture actress, has his little love troubles, in spite of his manly beauty. Just recently he thought he was going strong with one of the best love affairs of the season. But after she went home from the military ball he wrote her, on the advice of Jack Gasque (his counsellor in amorous affairs), and told her of his deep and undying love and then asked her if she loved him. That was three weeks ago. He is still waiting for an answer.

A certain social lion was once asked why he invited three girls down to a dance. His reply was, "So I can have a table of bridge." This excuse could hardly be thought plausible, however, in the case of JIM BOOTH and LOUIS FOLLEY. These two freshmen together were scheduled to have a combined total of nine dates coming to Clinton for the Beta Kappa dances and state track meet. It is not known, at present writing, just how the boys were to entertain their dates. Possibly the best solution would be a baseball team out of the

BLUE STOCKING NINE TROUNCES CLEMSON TEAM

Holliday On Mound In 6 To 2 Victory Tuesday.

The Presbyterian college Blue Stockings checked a belated Clemson drive toward the state penant here Tuesday afternoon behind the four-hit pitching of Goof Holliday, the Hose emerging victorious, 6-2. The game was a somewhat abbreviated affair, being called in the middle of the eighth inning on account of rain.

Holliday bounced back into top-notch form as he kept four Tiger hits well scattered and demonstrated his remarkable control by issuing only one free pass to first base. Suggs, playing in center field for the Presbyterians, secured two long blows out of two trips to the plate, one of them going for a three-bagger. Evans again played his usual nice brand of ball in left field and got credit for three safeties out of four tries.

Pritchett may well be named as the Clemson star, getting two successive doubles and handling ten chances satisfactorily for errorless ball.

SONG

The baseball team theme song—"Lost."

AFTERMATH

South Carolina's colossal cinder show, the state meet, is over and the mighty Clemson Tiger still reigns supreme. When last seen, the greedy animal was heading out for Tigerville, with a big cup in his paw, and shouting in high glee at his victory. He deserved the honor, and this little piggy goes to market with no bitterness in his heart.

Our only regret is that Presbyterian's Joe Bradley failed to realize his greatest hope—the bettering of the record in the 100. Joe had equalled the mark on two occasions and bettered it once. Three hundred P. C. students were disappointed when their versatile captain failed to step off the distance in a record-breaking performance. But record or no record, we're proud of his victories in both dashes, and his consistent brilliance all year.

INDIVIDUALS

Furman's Bob King fulfilled predictions by romping off with high-scoring honors. His activities included the breaking of two records in addition to a third and fourth place, which came to a total of 13 points. Bob Folger, the Clemson captain, also established a pair of records. The truckin' Tiger went to town in both hurdle events, and his time of 15 seconds in the 120 high hurdles should remain unequalled for a long string of Sundays.

Roy Forehand barely missed a new record time in the 880. The elongated man of letters (four of them) had little trouble outclassing the field in this event. But what surprised us was the way Biffet Green went around the oval in the relay. Biffet is anxiously looking forward to the Florida meet, in which he plans to make a monkey of Forehand and Florida.

PREDICTION

Prior to the season's opening, we predicted either first or second place for Chick Galloway's baseball nine. The standing to date:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Erskine	9	1	900
Clemson	4	3	571
Newberry	3	4	429
Carolina	2	4	333
The Citadel	2	5	286
Presbyterian	2	5	286

In other words, we missed.

HAWK

Through last week's games, "Hawk" Evans had garnered 14 hits in 30 appearances at the plate for an average of 466. This gives the Blue Stocking fielder one of the best hitting records in the league, and if he continues the heavy stick work through the remaining three games, he will probably end up at the top of the collegiate ladder.

Evans' consistency and dependability at bat and afield have featured P. C. performances throughout the season, and the sturdy athlete deserves the honors that are coming his way. Watch him next year.

mural and Kappa Alpha was second and Pi Kappa Phi third.

The score of the meet was close all the way and the winner was not decided until the last event was run off. Pi K. A. won this, giving them 30½ points to K. A.'s 29. Pi K. A. won three first places, K. A. three, and Pi K. Phi two.

Ed Lambright of Pi K. A. was the big star of the meet, winning firsts in the 60-yard dash, 60-yard back stroke, and aiding his team to win the medley relay. George Beatty performed well for K. A., winning firsts in diving and the 40-yard breast stroke. Pete Holcombe proved himself fast in the dashes, winning the 40 and 100-yard free styles for Pi K. Phi.

The meet was ably conducted by Jim Brewer, assisted by Millsap, Plaxico, Valley, and McSween, and many thrills were provided for an enthusiastic group of spectators.

This victory gives Pi Kappa Alpha a 20 to 12 lead over Kappa Alpha in the race for the intramural trophy presented to the winner of the contest sponsored each year by Blue Key leadership fraternity.
